As for the remanance of the hosten, he set them upon both the sides in two parties with trumpetes, to prouoke the hoost, and to steere vp downe as were slowe in the armye. And when the Sonne shone upon their heades of golde and stele, the moontaynes glowed agayne at them, & were as bright as the creffterres of fyre. The kynges hoost also was denyed, one parte upon the his countaynes, the other lowe beneth: so they made the kynge good hebe, and kepinge them at bay. And all they that dwelle in the londe, were afrayed at the noyse of their hoost, when the multitude wente forth, and when the the weapens smote together, for the hoost was both greate & mightie. Judas also and his hoost entred in to the battayll, and slew v. C. men of the kynges armye.

Now when Eleazar the sonne of Saur dyd see one of þe Elephanes decked with the kynge badge, and was a more goodly bestlyd the other: he thought þe kynge shulde trypp him, and to perde himself to be yllur his people, and to get him a perpetuall name.

Wherfore he ranne with a courage vnto the Elephance in the myddest of the hooff, slayinge them dozens of both the sydes, and slawe many aboute him. So wente he to the Elephance feet, and put him vnder him, and slawe him: then fell the Elephance downe vpon him, and there he dyed. Iudas also and his men feinge the power of the King, and the mightie violence of his hooff, departed from them. And the Kinges armye wente up agaynst them towarde Ierusalem, and pitched their tentes in Jewry besyde mount Sion. To ouer the Kinge came letters vnto him that were in Bethsur.

But when they came out of the cite, because they had no wyales within, and the lorde laye vntill the Kinge toke Bethsur, and sent men to kepe it, and turned his hooff to the place of the Sanctuary, and layed siege to it a greete while. Where he made all maner ordinance: handbowes, fyris dartes, castelles to cast stones, scorpions to shute stones, and slinges. The Jewes also made abundance agaynst theirs, and foughte a long season.

But in the cite there were no wyales, for it was the seventh yeare of the warres, and those waulles that remayned in Jewry had eaten up all their foare. And in the Sanctuary were few men left, for the hanger came vpon them, that they were scarce abode every man to his owne place.

So when Antiochus herde, that Philippe whom Antiochus the Kinge whyle he was in Iuange, had ordered to bringe vnto Antiochus his sonne, that he might be Kinge, was come agayne out of Persia and Media vnto the Kinges hooff, and thoughte to opene the Kingdome: he gaue him to the Kinge in all the haiff and to the capeynes of his hooff, and sayde: we decrease by all, and our wyales are but small: Agayne, the place that we laye siege vnto, is very strong, and it were our parte to se for the realme. Let us agree with these men and take us vnto them, and with all their people, and giuente them to lye a fere their lawe, as they desire. For they be greued and do all the things agaynst vs, because we haue besyde their lawe. So the Kinge and the princes were content, and sent vnto them to make peace, and they receaued it. Now when the Kinge and the princes had made an othe vnto them, they came out of the castel, and the Kinge wete up to mount Sion. But when he sawe that the place was well fenced, he wote the othe that he had made, and com manded to destroye the wall rounde aboute. Then departed he in all the haiff, and returned vnto Antioche, where he founde Philippe hauynge dominion of the cite. So he foughte agaynst him, and toke the cite agayne in to his handes.

The VII. Chapter.

In the XL. yeare came Demetrius sonne of Seleucus from a cite of the sea coast, and there he bare rule. And it chaunced, that when he came to Antioche the cite of his progenitors, his hooff toke Antiochus and Lysias, to bringe them vnto him. But when it was tolde him, he said: let me not se their faces. So the hooff put them to death. Now when Demetrius was set vpon the throne of his Kingdome, there came vnto him wicked and vngodly men of Israel: whose capeyne was Alcimus, that wolde haue bene made hie priest. These men accused the people of Israel vnto the Kinge, sayinge: Iudas and his brethren haue slayne thy frendes, and dryuen vs out of our owne lond. Wherfore sende now some man to whom thou giest credence, that he maye go and se all the destruction, which he hath done vnto vs and to thynges sone, and let him be punished with all his frendes and fauourers.

Then the Kinge chose Balthasa a frende of his, which was a man of greete power in the realme (beyond the greete water) and sent him vnto the Kinge: and sent him to se the destruction that Iudas had done. And as for that wicked Alcimus, he made him hie priest, and commaunded him to be avenger of the children of Israel. So they rode up, and came with a greete hooff in to Ierusalem of Iuda, sendinge messengers to Iudas and his brethren, speakinge vnto them w peaceable wordes: but vnder disceite. Therfore Iudas and his people belued not their saynges, for they sawe that they were come with a greete hooff.

A fere this came Iudas to Ierusalem vnto Alcimus and Balthasa, crushing the best vnto them. And first, Iudas requyred peace of them, sayinge: Alcimus I priest is come of the side of Iuda, how can he disceite vs? So they gaue them lousige wordes, and Iudas wote them, and sayde: we wil do you no harme, neither youre frendes: and they belued them. But the very same daye toke they the men of them, and slawe them: according to the wordes Iudas wote: they haue cast Iudas flesh of Ierusalem, and shed their bloude rounde aboute Ierusalem, and there was none that wolde burye them.

C So there came a greate feare and dread amonge the people, sayenge: there is nether reach nor righteousness in them, for they have broken the appoyntment and oath that they made. And Balthides removed his hoost from Jerusalem, and pitched his tent at Bethzach: where he sent forth, and toke many of them that had forsaken him: he slew many of the people also, and cast them in to a greates pyre. Then committed he the londe unto Alcimus, and left men of warre with him to helpe him, and Balthides himself went unto the kynge. And thus Alcimus defended his his pasture, and all such as were of Israel, rescued unto him: In so much that they opened the Ise of Judas, and byd much well unto the Jerusalem.

Now when Judas sawe all the myschefe that Alcimus and his company had done (ye more then the death them selves) unto the Israelites: he wente forth rounde aboute all the borders of Jewry, and punished those unfaithfull renegades, so that they came no more one in to the countrey. So when Alcimus sawe, that Judas and his people had gotten the upperhande, and that he was not able to abyde them: he wente agayne to the kynge, and sayde all the worst of them that he coude. Then the kynge sent Ticanor, one of his chiefe pyncea, which bare euill wyl unto Israel, and commaunded him, that he shoulde verely destroye the people.

Ma. 11-2

So Ticanor came to Jerusalem with a greate hoost, and sent unto Judas and his brethren with frendly wordes (but vnder disceate) sayenge: there shal be no warre betwixte me and you: I wil come with a few men, to se how ye do, with frendshipe. Upon this he came unto Judas, and they saluted one another peaceably: but the enemies were appoynted to take Judas by violence. Neuertheles it was tolde Judas, y he came unto him: he vnder disceate: wherefore he gat him awaie from him, and wolde se his face nomore. When Ticanor perceaued y his counsell was betrayed, he wente out to fight agaynst Judas, beside Capphasalama: Where there were slayne of Ticanors hoost, v. M. men: the residue fled vnto the castell of Dand.

After this came Ticanor vpon vnto mount Sion, and the priests with the elders of the people wente forth to salute him peaceably, & to shewe him y borne sacrifices y were offered for the kynge. But he laughed the to scorne, mocked the, desired their offerings, and spake vnbreuedly, yee and swore in his wrath, sayenge: If Judas and his hoost be not deliuered now in to my handes, as soon as euer I come agayne (and saye well) I shal burne vpon this hoost. With that, went he out in a greate anger. Then the people came in, and stode before the altar of the temple, weeping & sayenge: For so much as thou (O LORD) hast chosen this hoost, the thy name mighte be called vpon them, and they shoulde be an house of prayer and petition to thy people: We avenge of this man the hoost, and let them be slayne with y sword: remember the blasphemies of them, & iustify them not to continue any longer.

When Ticanor was gone from Jerusalem, he pitched his tent at Bethboan: there an hoost met him out of Syria. And Judas came to Abasa with ii. M. men, & made his prayer vnto God, sayenge: O LORD, because the messengers of thy kynge stande in blasphemye of the, the angel wente forth, and slawe an Chero. thousande of them: Thus so destroye thou this hoost before we see that other people maye thinke, how that he hath blasphemed thy Sanctuaries, and iustify him, a corbidge to his malice.

And so the hoostes stroke the filde, the thirtene daye of the month Adar: and Ticanors hoost was discomfited, and he himself was first slayne in the battayle. When Ticanors men of warre sawe that he was kyled, they cast awaye their weapons and fled: but the Jewes followed vpon them an whole dayes iourney, from the 3er vnto Gazara, blowinge with trumpettes, and makinge tokeus after them. So the Jewes came forth of all the corners aboute aboute, and blente out their homes vpon them, and turned agaynst them: Thus were they all slayne, and not one of them left.

Then they toke their substance for a pay, and smote of Ticanous heade & his right hande (which he helde vp so piouly) and broughte it with them, and hanged it vp aboue Jerusalem. Wherfore the people were exceedingly reioysed, and passed ouer than theye in greates gladnesse. And Judas ordeined that þe same daye (namely the xiiij. daye of the month Adar) shoulde be kepte in myghty merye. Thus the londe of Iuda was in this life whyle.

The viii. Chapter.

Iudas herde also the fame of the Romanes, that they were mightie and valiant men, agreable to all things that are requyred of them, & make peace with all men, which come vnto them, and how they were doughty men of strength. Wherfore he, it was colde him of their battles & noble actes which they dyd in Galilee, how they had conquered them and brought them vnder tribute: and what greates things they had done in Spayne, how that with their wysdome and sober behauiour they had wonne the wyues of Syluz and golde that are there, and openyed all the londe, with ocher places farre from the: how they had discomfited and slayne downe the kynge that came vpon them from the westmost parte of the earth, and how ocher people geue them tribute everye year: how they had slayne and ouercome Philip and Derfus kynge of Cethim and ocher kyns in Iuda, which had broughte their ouerthrowne agaynst them: how they discomfited grece Antiochus kynge of Asia (that wolde needs fighte with them) hauynge an hand and xx. Elephantes, with heiften, charrettes, and a very greate host: how they toke him self alyue, and ordeined him (with such as shoulde raigne after him) to paye the a greates tribute, yea and to fynde the good herites and plege: Wherfore all this, how they had takē from him Iudis, Media and Lydia (his best lonces) and gotten them to lynge Lumenus Aga ynto, how they perceauynge þe Grekes were comynge to meete them against the captaine of an hoste which gaue the batayll, slewe many of the: led a myghty armye and children captiue, spoiled the, toke possession of their londe, destroyed their stronge holdes, and subdued the to be their bonde men vnto this daye. Moreover, how þe so for ocher kynngdomes & Isles, which some tyme with stode the, they destroyed them, and broughte them vnder their dominion: But helpe euer their owne frendes and those þe were confederate with them, & conquered kynngdomes both farre & nyer: & who so euer herde of their remouance, was affrayed of them: for whom they wolde helpe to their kynngdomes, those raigned: & who they lyked not them to raigne, they put him downe: And how they were come to greates preeminence: hauynge no kynge amonge the, neither eny man clothed in purple, to be magnifick there: thowmache had ordeined the synes a parlement, where in there sat iij. C. and xx. Senecours dayle vpon the counceill, to dispatche euer the busynesse of the people, and to kepe good ordre: And how feure years they chose a Mayre, to haue the gouernance of all their londe: to whom eury man was obedient, and þe there was neither warre nor disencion amonge them.

Then Judas chose Elepennus the sonne of Ihon the sonne of Jacob, & Jason the sonne of Eleazar, & sent the vnto Rome for to make frendshipe & a bonde of loue with them: þe they mighte take fro them the bondage of þe Grekes, for þe Jewes saue þe Grekes wolde subdue the kynngdome of Iuda. So they went vnto Rome (a very greates iourney) & came in to þe Parlyment, & saide: Iudas Machabens with his brethren & the people of þe Jewes haue sent vs vnto you, to make a bonde of frendshipe & peace with you, & ye to noze vs as yo louers & frendes. And þe matter pleased þe Romanes right well, wherfore it was writte vp of þe which þe Romanes made a wyte inze in tables of Lead & sent it to Jerusalem þe they mighte haue by the memoriall of þe same peace & bonde of frendshipe, after this maner: God saue þe Romanes & þe people of the Jewes both by see & by londe, & kepe þe frendes & enemye fro the for euermore. If there come first eny warre vnto þe Romanes or eny of their frendes thowmache all their dominions þe people of þe Jewes shal helpe the (as þe tyme requiereth) & wth all their herites. Also the they shal neither geue nor receiue vnto their enemies vialace, weapons, money nor shippes: but shal fil this charge at the Romaynes pleasure, & take nothing from them therfore. Againe yf the people of the Jewes ha pp first to haue warre, the Romaynes shal stande by the with a good wil, accordinge as the tyme wil suffice: Neither shal they gene vnto the Jewes enemies, vnto rales, weapons, money ner shippes. Thus are the Romaynes content to do, & shal fulfill their charge without any discease.

Accordinge to these articles, the Romaynes made the bande with the Jewes. Now after these articles (sayde they) yf any of the parties will put to them, or take any thinge from them: they shal do it with the consente of both: and whar so ever they adde them vnto them, or take from them, it shall stande fast. And as touchinge the euell that Demetrius hath done vnto the Jewes, we haue written vnto him, sayenge: Wherfore layest thou thy heuy yoke vpon the Jewes our frendes and louers? If they make any complainte of the agayne vnto vs, we shall defende them, and fighte with the by sea and by lande.

The X. Chapter.

In the meane season when Demetrius herde that Liciano: & his hoost was slayne in the felde, he proceeded further to sinde Barchides and Alcimas againe in co Jewry, and those that were in the right wyng of his hoost, with them. So they wete forth by the waye that ledeth vnto Galgala, and pitched their tentes before Melisloch which is in Arbellis, and wanne the cite, and slewe moche people. In the first moneth of the Cliv. yere, they brought their hoost to Jerusalem, and rose vp and came to Barea, with xx. III. fore men, and ii. III. housmen.

Now Judas had pitched his tente at Eusa, with thie thousande chosen men. And when they sawe the multitude of the other army yf it was so greates, they were sore afrayed, & many conveyed them selues out of the hoost. In so moche yf there abode no mo of them but viij. C. men. When Judas sawe that his hoost fayled him, and that he must needs fighte: he drake his herte, yf he had no ryme to gather them together: wherfore the man was in extreme trouble. Tench helpe he sayde vnto them, yf remayned with him: Op, let vs go agaynst our enemies, peraduanture we shal be able to fighte with them. But they wolde haue stopp'd him, sayenge: we shall not be able, therfore let vs now saue oure lyues, and turne agayne to the buchien, and then wil we fighte agaynst the, for we are here but fewe. And Judas sayde: God forbid, that we shoulde sit from them. Wherfore yf oure tyme be come, let vs be manfully for oure brethren, and let vs not slayne oure honoure. Then the hoost removed out of the tentes, & stode agaynst them. The housmen were deuyded in two parties: the slyng casters and the archers were before the hoost, and all the mightie men were foremost in the felde. Barchides hoost was in the right wyng of the battell, & the hoost drewe nye in two parties, and blew sixten peeces. They of Judas syde blew yf ten peeces also, & the earth shooke at the noise of the hoostes, and they stroke a sildre from the morow till night. And when Judas sawe Barchides hoost was strongest of the right syde, he toke with him all the partye, and brake the right wyng of their ordie, and sloued vpon them vnto the mount Zion.

Now when they which were of the left wyng, sawe that the right syde was defamed, they persecuted Judas and them that were w him. Then was there a sore battell, for many were slayne and wounded of both the parties, Judas also himself was hurt, and the remanant fled. So Jonathan and Syme toke Judas their brocher, and banded him in his fathers sepulchre in the cite of Bethan. And all the people of Israel made greue lamentacion for him, and mourned long, sayenge: Alas, that this worthy man should slayne, which deliuered yf people of Israel. As for other thinges pertaininge to the battell of Judas, the nobles actes that were done, and of his worthynesse: they are not writen, for they were very many.

And after the death of Judas, which came vp in all the coastes of Israel, and there arose all such as wolde vngodlyly. In these dayes was there a greates death vnto the lande, and all the countrey gaue ouer them selues & their vnto Barchides. So Barchides chose mightie men, and made them lordes in the lande. These soughte out and made search for Judas frendes, and brought them vnto Barchides: which auenged himself vpon them with greates despise. And there came so greates trouble vnto Israel, as was not sene the man that no prophet was sene there.

Then came all Judas frendes togither, and sayde vnto Jonathan: In so moche as thy brocher Judas is dead, there is none left him to go forth agaynst & enemies, agaynst Barchides, and such as are aduersaries vnto oure people. Wherfore this daye we do this for him, to be oure paynce and captiue in this our battell. And Jonathan took the governance upon him at the same tyme, and ruled in steade of his brother Judas. When Achabes gat knowlege therof, he sought for to slaye him: But Jonathan and Symon his brother, perceauyng that, fled into the wilderness of Thebena with all their company, and pitched their tentes by the way side of Aiphar.

Which when Achabes vnderstode, he came ouer Jordan with all his host vpon the Sabbath daye. Now had Jonathan (since his brother Thon's captiuitie of the people) to paye his friends the Tributes, so they wold leaue them their ordinaunce, for they had much. So the children of Jambai came out of Nabata, & toke Thon & all that he had, & moued their waye withall. Then came out also Jonathan & Symon his brother, & the children of Jambai made a greace marriage, & broughte of hyde from Nabata with greace pompe: for she was a daughter to one of the noblest princes of Canaan. Wherefore they remembered the bloude of Thon their brother, and wene vp, and hyd them selues vnder the shadowe of the monnes ync.

So they lift vp their eyes, and looked: and beholde, there was much a doo, & greate reyn: for the byrde grone came forth, & his fides and his brethren met them with cym pans, instrumentes of musick, and many warps. Then Jonathan and they that were with him, rose out of their shawtinge place agaynst them, and slew many of them. So for the remnant, they fled into so many mountaynes, and they toke all their substance. Thus the marriage was turned to mourninge, and so many of their melody in to lamentation. And so when they had awenged the bloude of their brother, they turned agayne vnto Jordan.

Achabes hearinge this, came vnto the river of Jordan with a greate power vpon the Sabbath daye. And Jonathan (synging his company) let vs get vp, & fyghte agaynst our enemies: for it stonde not with vs to daye, as in tymes past. Beholde, I memo are in our waye, & water of Jordan vpon the one syde of vs, with bandes, fennes and woodes of another syde, so that there is no place for vs to departe vnto. Wherefore crye now vnto heauen, that ye maye be deliuered from the power of youre enemies. So they strode the battell. And Jonathan stretched out his hande to smyte Achabes, but he fled backward. Then Jonathan and they that were with him leaped in to Jordan,

Therefore Achabes with his host returned agayne to Jerusalem, & buylde vp fortresses stronge holdes that were in Jeru. Jericho, Emmaus, Bethon, Bethel, Chanaan, Phara & Thopo, with walles, with portes & with lockes: & set men to kepe them, & they might use their malice vpon Israel. He walled vpon Bethsura, Gazara & the castell at Jerusalem also, & prouyded them with men & voyces: & he toke also the chiefe men somes in the countrey for pledges, and put them in the castell at Jerusalem to be kepte.

Afterwards in the Clij. yere in the seconde moneth, Alcimus commaunded, that the walles of the ynnest Sanctuary shoulde be destroyed, & the buyldinges of prophets also. And when he beganne to destroye the, & thinges that were aboute, were hymbered: for he was smitten with a palsy, & his mouth sturte, so that he coude nomore speake nor commaunde any of his house concerninge his business. Thus dyed Alcimus in greate misery at the same tyme. And when Achabes sawe that Alcimus was dead, he turned agayne to the kyng, & so the londe was in rest, yere. Then all the vngodly men helde a counsell, sayenge: Beholde, Jonathan and his company are at ease, & dwell without care. What for let vs bringe Achabes hither, & he shall take them all in one night.

So they wote & gaue Achabes this counsell, which arose to com to a greate host, & sent letters priuily to his adremtes which were in Jewry, to take Jonathan & those that were with him: but they might not, for the other had gotten knowlege of their deuyce. And Jonathan toke L. men of the countrey (which were the rynglebers of the kyng) slew them. Then Jonathan and Symon with their company departed vnto the cite Bethsura, which lieth in the wilderness, and repaired thither because therof, & made it stronge. When Achabes knewe this, he gathered all his host, and sent word to them that were of Jewry. This came he and layd siege to Bethsura, and songe agaynst it a longe season, and made instrumentes of warre. Now Jonathan let his brother Symon in the cite, and wente forth himself in to the countrey, and came with a certayn number, and slew Odreas and his brethren and the children of Phasiron in their tentes: so that he beganne to be stronge, & to increase in power.

As for Symon and his company, they of many charges, and geue you rewardes. And now I discharge you 3 Jewes from tributes, I forgive you the customes of silke, and release you of the crowne taxes, of the thirde parte of silke, and half of the frutes of trees, which is myne owne dewty. This I leave for you, from this daye forth: so that they shall not be taken of the londe of Iuda nor of the thre cities which are adioyned therunto one of Samaria and Galilee, from this daye forth for evermore. Ierusalem also with all thinges belönginge therco, shal be holy and free, yet 3 tributes 3 tributes shal pertaine unto it. As for the power of y casual which is at Ierusalem, I remeyce 2 geue it unto the hye priest, that he maye set in it such men, as he shall chuse to kepe it. I frely deuyce all the Jewes that are prisoners cho rose out all my realme: so that every one of them shalbe free from payenge any tribute, yet men of their caell.

All the solitarie feastes, Sabbathes, Twemones, the dayes appoyned, the thre daies before and after the feast shal be free for all the Jewes in my realme: so that in them no man shal haue power to do any thinge, or to make any busynesse agaynst any of them in any manner of cause. There shal xxx. M. also of the Jewes be written vp in the kynge booke, and haue their wages payed, as all wher most of warte of the kynge shalbe he ward of them shalbe ordened certayne, to kepe the kynge stronge holdes: yet and some of them shalbe set ouer the kynge busynesse, that they maye faithfully deale with the same. The Jewes also shal haue paynces of their owne, 2 walke in their owne lawes, as the kynge hath commaunded in the londe of Iuda.

And the thre cities that are fallen vnto Iewy from the countre of Samaria and Galilee: shalbe taken as Jewy, and be vnder one: neither be subiecte to any straunge lord, but to the hye priest. As for Ptolomais and thre londe pertainyng therco, I geue it vnto the Sanctuary at Ierusalem, for the necessary expences of the holy thinges. Moreover: I will geue enery yere xv. M. Syden of silver out of y kynge chedder (which pertaineth vnto me) to the worke of the temple: yet 2 lotte what remaineth (which they had curmatters in hande in tymes past, have not payed) that same shal they geue vnto them also. And beydes all this, the v. M. shales which they take yearly of the reues of the Sanctuary, shal belöngue vnto the priest: the do seruyce.

Item, who so euer they be that ste into the temple at Ierusalem: or which the libertie thereof: where as they are fallen in to the kynge daunger for any manner of busynesse, they shall be pardoned, and all the goodes that they haue in my realme, shalbe free. For the buyldinge also 2 repayinge of the worke of the Sanctuary, expences shalbe geuen out of the kynge chedder: yet and for the makinge of the walles rounde aboute Ierusalem, for the breakinge downe of the olde, and for the settinge vp of the stronge holdes in Jewy, shal 3 coffes and charges be geuen out of the kynge chedder.

But when Jonathan and the people her be these wordes, they gaue no credence vnto them, neither receaued them: for they remembered the greates wickednesse that he had done vnto Israel, and howe he had vntoed them. Wherefore they agreed vnto Alexander, for he was a prince that had dealed friendly with them, and so they stode by him allwaye. The gathered kynge Alexander a greate hoost, and broughte his armye agaynst Demetrius. So 3 two kynge stode bartayll together, but Demetrius doost fle, and Alexander followed after and fell vpon them. A mightie foue felde was it, continuinge till the Sonne waxe downe, and Demetrius was slayne the same daye.

And Alexander sente embassours vnto Ptolomy the kynge of Egypte with these wordes, sayenge: For so much as I am come agayne to my realme, and haue gotten the dominion, ouer come Demetrius, conquered the londe, and striken a felde with him, so that we haue discomfited both him and his hoost, and ste in the throne of his kynge dome: Let us now make frendshipe together, geue me thy daughter to wife: so shall I be thy foine in lawe, and both geue the rewardes, and his greates dignitie. Ptolomy the kynge gaue answer, sayenge: Happy be the daye wherein thou art come agayne to the londe of thy progenitors, and set in the throne of thy kynge dome. And now will I fulfill thy wyrtynge: but mete me at Ptolomais, 3 we maye se one another, and that I maye marry my daughter vnto the accordinge to thy besyde. So Ptolomy wode out of Egypte with his daughter Cleopatra, 2 came vnto Ptolomais in 3 Cris. yere: where kynge Alexander met him, 2 he gaue Alexander his daughter Cleopatra, and married them at Ptolomais with greates worshippe, like as the matter of kynge is to be.

Then wrote kynge Alexander vnto Ionathas, that he shulde come and meeke him. So he wente honourably vnto Prolomais, & there he met the two kynge, and gaue them greace pfectures of golde and syluer, & founde fauoure in their sighte. And there came to gether agaynst Ionathas certayne wicked men and vngracious perfonnes of Israel, makinge complaynes of him, but the kynge regarded them not. As for Ionathas, the kynge commaunded to take of his garnitures, and to clothe him in purple: and so they dyd. Then the kynge appoynted him to syt by him, and sayde vnto his prynces: So with him in to the myddest of the cite, and make a proclamacion, that no man complayne agaynst him of eny matter, and that no man trouble him for eny maner of cause.

So it happened that when his accusers sawe the worshippe which was proclaimed of him, & he was clothed in purple: they fled euery where. And the kynge made moch of him, more him amonge his chiefe frenches, made him a duke, and partaker of his deminion. Thus Ionathas wente agayne to Jerusalem with peace and gladnesse. In the xlv. yearc came Demetrius the sonne of Demetrius from Grece in to his fathers londe: wherof when Alexander herde tell, he was right sorry, and returned vnto Antioche. And Demetrius chose Appollonius (which had the gouernance of Celosyna): to be his captaine.

So he gathered a greace hoost and came vnto Iamnia, and sende wordes vnto Ionathas the hie priest, sayeng: Darrest thou stande vs thy self alone? As for me, I am but laughed to scorne and shamed, because thou prouest thy strength agaynst vs in the mountaynes. Now therefore if thou trustest in thine owne strength, come downe to vs in to the playne felde, and there let vs proue oure strength together: thou shalt synde, that I haue valourne men of warre with me: and shalt knowe who I am, & the other that stande by me.

Which saye, that youre force is not able to stande before oure face, for thy fathers haue bene trawse chased in to their owne londe. And now, how wyle thou be able to abyde so greace an hoost of hoismen and footemen in the felde, where as is neether rocke, stonier place to fle vnto?

When Ionathas herde the wordes of Appollonius, he was moued in his mynde: wherfore he chose f. thousande men and wente out of Jerusalem, and Symon his brother met him for to helpe him: And they choo their tentes at Joppa, but the cite keppe him forth, for Joppa was an helde of Appollonius. Then Ionathas layd siege to it, and they that were in the cite, for very feare let him in: and so Ionathas waite Joppa. Appollonius hearinge of this, toke with thousande hoismen, with a greace hoost of fote, and wente as though he wold goe in to Joppa, & came immediately in to the playne selde: because he had so many hoismen, and put his trust in the. So Ionathas stode vpon him to Joppa, & there they foughte the battayll. Now had Appollonius left a thousande hoismen behynde them pryudy in the cite. And when Ionathas sawe that such maner was layd behynde them, they were moued aboute the enemies hoost, and shewethes at the people from the morninge to the euenyng. As for Ionathas people, they kepte their ordre as he had commaunded them, & the enemies hoises were enee labouryng.

Then broughte Symon forth his hoost, and set them agaynst the fote man. For the hoismen were weery allready. So he discomfited them, and they fled. And they that were scattered in the felde, gat them to Joppa, and came in to the temple of Dagon that Ido. & they mighte here saue their lyues. But Ionathas set fyre vpon Joppa and all the cities rounde aboute it, & toke their goodes, and bit vp the temple of Dagon with all them that were fled in to it.

Thus were slayne and betwixt xviij. thousande men. So Ionathas remoued the hoost from thence, and broughte them to Scalon: where f. men of the cite came forth, and met him with greace worshippe. After this wente Ionathas and his hoost agayne to Jerusalem, with greace substance of good. And when kynge Alexander herde the se thinges, he thoughte to do Ionathas more worshippe, & sent him a colar of golde, as the vsite is to be geuen vnto such an arte of the kynge nexte bloude. He gaue him also f. & lxx. of Accaron (which the londe belonyng vnto) in possession.

The XI. Chapter.

After that kynge of Egypce gathered a hoost, (like the londe) f. liich vpon the sea shore: and many shippes: and wente aboute thowou disceate to sea: and came to the borne of Alexander, & to ioyne it vnto his owne realme. Vpon this he toke his iourney in to Syria, & was letten in to the cite, and he came forth to meeke him: for kynge Alexander had commaunded them so to do, because he was his father in lawe. Now when Ptolomy entered in to any cite, he left me of war-re to depart, and this he dyd thorow out all of cite. And when he came to Azotus, they shewed him the temple of Dagon and Azotus that was burnt up, with the other thinges which were destroyed, the dead bodies cast abroad, and of graves that they had made by the way syde, for such as were slaine in the fildes: And tolde the kynge that Jona-thas had done all these thinges, to the intent they might see him euill will. But the kynge sayde not a worde thereto.

And Jonathas met the kynge with great honour at Joppa, where they saluted one another, and took their rest. So when Jona-thas had gone with y^e kynge, vnto the water that was called Eleutherus, he turned agayne to Jerusalem. Now Ptolemy had gotten the dominion of the cities vnto Se-leucia vpon the sea coast, ymagynynge wic-edly to conuulse agaynst Alexander, & sent ambassadors vnto Demetrius, sayynge: Come, let vs make a bond betwixt vs, so shall I give the my daughter that Alexander hath, and thou shalt raigne in thy fathers kyngdom. I repente that I gaue Alexander my daughter, for he goeth abouce to slaye me.
And thus he flattered Alexander, because he wolde haue had his realme.

Thus he tolde his daughter from him, ga-ue her vnto Demetrius, and so sold Alexander, so that his malice was openly knowne.
And Ptolemy came to Antioche, where he set two crownes vpon his owne heade: the crown of Egypte and of Asia. In the messiasion was kynge Alexander in Cilicia, in they that dwelt in those places, had rebelled agaynst him. But when Alexander her-de of this, he came to warre agaynst him.
So kynge Ptolemy broughte forth his host and met him with a mightie power, and cha-ced him awaye. Then fled Alexander in to Zabdy, there to be defended, and kynge Pro-loms honoure increased. And Zabbid the Arabian smote of Alexanders heade, and sent it vnto Ptolemy. But the thirde daye after, died kynge Ptolemy himselfe: and they whom he had set in the stronge holdes, re-uolued of those that were within y^e cities.
And Demetrius reigned in y^e hundredch and sixtie yeare.

At the same tyme gathered Jonathas them that were in Jewry to laye siege vnto the castell which was at Jerusalem, and so they made many instrumentes of warre against it. Then were there certaine yngodly performes (which haued their owne people) vnto kynge Demetrius, and tolde him, that Jonathas besieged y^e castell. So when he herde it, he was angry, and Immediately came to Ptolemais, and wrote vnto Jona-thas, that he shalde not laye siege to the castell, but come and speake with him in all the haile. Tenderthelasse when Jonathas herde this he commaunded to be yege it. He chose also certayne of the elders and piesses of Israel, and put him self in the parcell, and toke with him golde, syluer, clotheing and diuerse presentes: and wente to Ptolemais vnto the kynge, and founde him gracious.

And though certayne yngodly men of his owne people made complaints vpon him, yet the kynge intreated him, like as his puddecessours had done before: and promoted him in the sight of all his frendes, confirmed him in the hie priefthode with all the wooshipe y^e he had a fore, and made him his chefe frende. Jonathas also desired the kynge that he wolde make Jewry free, with the the head cities of Samaria and the lon-des pertainynge thereto: vpon this vnto Jonathas promysed him the Calaitenes. Where vnto the kynge consented, and gaue Jona-thas wytynges of the same, comeynyng the se moodes: kynge Demetrius sendeth greetynge vnto his brother Jonathas and to the people of y^e Jewes. We sende vnto here a copy of the lettre which we dyd wyte vnto oure elder Lashenus, concerninge you, that ye shalde knowe it.

Kynge Demetrius sendeth greetynge vnto oure elder Lashenus his elder. For the faithfulness that our frendes the people of the Jewes kepe vnto vs, and for the louynge y^e bondes which they beare towarde vs: we are deter-med to do them good. Wherefore we ordene all y^e coastes of Jewry with the the cities, Lyda and Ramatha (which are a ceded vnto Jewry from Samaria): all y^e lodes pertainynge there vnto, to be freely separated for such as do sacrifice in Jerusalem: both com-meynyng the payntes which the kynge to ke yearly a cored tyme, & y^e frutes also of the earth & trees. As for other tithes & tributes y^e belonged vnto vs, we discharge the theof from this tyme forth. In like maner we frai-de vnto the all the customes of salt and crow-ne taxes, which were broughte vnto vs. And this freedome shal they haue firme & steadfast frō this tyme forth for euermore. Therefore se y^e make a copy of these of letters, and de-liuer it vnto Jonathas: that it maye be kept vpon y^e holy mount in a convenient place.

E After this, when Demetrius the kynge sawe that his londe was in rest, and that no resistance was made him: he sent awaye all his hoost euery man to his owne place, excepte an armie of straungers, whom he brought from the Iles of the heiden, where fore all his fathers hoost had endd wyll at him. Now was there one Triphon (that had bene of Alexanders parte afore) which when he sawe that all the hoost murmured agaynst Demetrius: he wente to Emaluel the Arabian (that brought vp Antiochus the sonne of Alexander) and laye sore upon him, to deliuer him this yonge Antiochus: that he might raigne in his fathers seade. He tolde him also what greates enell Demetrius had done, & how his me of warre loued him nor: so remayne there a lōge season.

And Jonathan sent vnto kynge Demetrius, to dryue them out which were in the castell at Jerusalem and in the other refuges, for they dyd Irael greates harme. So Demetrius sent word vnto Jonathan, sayenge: I wil not only do these thinges for the and thy people, but at tyme conuenite I wil do bech the & thy people greates worshippe. But now thou shalt do me a pleasure, if thou wilt send me men to helpe me: for all myne armie is gone fto me. So Jonathan sent him iij. M. stronge men vnto Antioche, and they came vnto the kynge, wher fore the kynge was very glad at their commynge. But they that were of the cite, euen an Cxx. thousande men gathered them together, & wolde haue slayne the kynge, which fled in to his court: & the citefins depreded the stretes of the cite, and beganne to fight.

Then the kynge called for the Jewes helpe, which came vnto him all together, & were abode thow the cite, and slawe the same daye an C. M. men: set fyre vpon the cite, gat many spoiles in that daye, and deliuered yf kynge. So when the citefins sawe that the Jewes had gotten their wyll of the cite, and they them selues dyspoynted of their purpose: they made their supplication vnto the kynge, sayenge: Graunte vs peace, and see the Jewes easse from troublinge vs and the cite, and vpon this they cast awa ye their weapons. Thus they made peace, and yf Jewes gat greates worshippe in the sight of the kynge, and in the sight of all that were in his realme, and were spoken of thow out the kynge dome: and so they came agayne to Jerusalem with greates goodnes.

So the kynge Demetrius sat in the throne of his kynge dome, and had peace in his lōde

Therethe he dyssembled in all that he spake, & with deceit him self from Jonathan, & rewarde him a goodnes of benefices which he had done for him, but troubled him very sore. After this came Laphen agayne with yonge Antiochus, which raigned & was crowned kynge. Then they gathered vnto him all yf men of warre, wher Demetrius had put awaye: these fought agaynst Demetrius, which fled & came to bacfe. So Triphon toke the Seleucus & reanne Antioche. And yf Antiochus wente vnto Jonathan, sayenge: I confirme the in thy presthode, & make yf ruler of all countrees, if thou mayest be a frende of yf kynge.

Vpon this he sent him golden vessels to serue in, and gaue him leue to dryue yf golde, to be clothed in purple, and to weare a bar of golde. He made his brother Symon so captayne, from the coastes of Tyne vnto the borders of Egipte. Then Jonathan toke his iourney, & wente thow yf cite by the water of Jordan, and all the men of warre of Syria gathered the vnto him to helpe him. So he came vnto Hecalon, and they of the cite receaued him honorably: & from thence wente he vnto Gaza, but they wolde not let him in: wherfore he laye by the sea to it, turninge vp and spoylinge the paces that were abonce the cite.

And the citefins of Gaza submytted themselves vnto Jonathan, which made peace with them, but toke of their summe to paye, sent the to Jerusalem, & wente thow the countrey vnto Damascus. Now when Jonathan herbe that Demetrius princes was come in to Calces (which is in Galilee) with greates hoost, purposinge to put Demetrius out from troublinge in the realme: he came agaynst them, and lefte Symon his brother in the londe: which came to Bethsara, and laye by se to it a lōge season, and deliuered them. So they desired to haue peace of him, which he graunted them, & after that put them out from thence, toke the cite, and sent to kepe it. And Jonathas with his host came to the water of Gensar, 2 by tryall in the moynynge gat them to the playne side of Ajoa.

And beholde, the hostes of the Zechen marche in the felde, 2 layed watch for the in the mountaynes: so þ when Jonathas came agaynst the, the other (which were layed to watch) rose out of their places, 2 fought, 2 they that were of Jonathas syde, fled every man: 2 there was not one of the leste, except the Monathias the sonne of Abalemus, and Judas the sonne of Calphi the captayne of the host. The Jonathas rence his clothes, layed earth vpo his heade, made his prayer, 2 turned agayne to the in y felde: where they fought together, and he put them to flight. Now when his owne mē þ were fled, same that they turned agayne vnto him, 2 helpe d him to followe vpon all their enemies vnto their tentes at Cabon. So there were slaine of the Zechen the same daye, iij. M. men, 2 Jonathas turned agayne to Jerusalem.

The xlii. Chapter.

Jonathas synge that þ tyme was nere for him, these certaynemen and sent them vnto Rome for to stablish to remaine the frendshipe w the. He sent letters also vnto Sparta, and to oether places in like maner. So they wrote vnto Rome and crued in so y council, 2 sayde: Jonathas y helpe þ the people of y Jewes sent vs vnto you, for to rence y olde frendshipe 2 bonde of loue. Vpo this y Romaynes gaue the fre responses, þ mē shalde lede the home in to y side of Judas peaceably. And this is y copy of the letters that Jonathas wrote vnto the Spartians:

Jonathas y hye prest w þ elders, prestes, 2 the other people of y Jewes, kinde greetynge vnto y Spartians their brethren. There we receiue sente lōge agoo vnto Onias y hye prest, from Arius which than raigned among you: that ye are oure brethren, as the wyng made therevpon specifieth. And Onias increased the embassie oure that was sent, honorably, and receaued þ letters: wherein the it was mention made of the bonde of loue 2 frendshipe. But as for vs, we haue no such minynges: for why, we haue the holy booke of scripture in oure bondes to oure comfort. Neuerthelesse we had rather sende vnto you for the trynyng of þ brotherhode and frendshipe: lest we sholde be straunge vnto you, for it is longe sene þ tyme þ ye sent word vnto vs. Wherefore in y sacrifices þ we of fre 2 oether ceremonies vpon þ hye solempne dayes and oether we allowe remember you without ceasynge (like as reason is, and as it becommeth vs to chynke vpon oure brethren) ye and are ryght glad, of youre profperous honoure.

And though we haue had greute troubles and warres, so that the synge about vs haue soughten agaynst vs: yet wolde we not be greuous vnto you ner to oether of oure louers and frendes in these warres. For we haue had helpe fro beaus, so that we are deliuered, and oure enemies subdued. Wherefore we chose Clementis the sonne of Antiochus and Anipater the sonne of Jason, and senthem vnto the Romaynes, for to rence the olde bonde of frendshipe and loue with them. We commaunded them also to come vnto you, to saluce you, and to deliuer you b letters, concerninge the renouacion of þ brotherhode. And now ye shal do right wel, to geue vs an answer there vnto,

And this is the copy of the wyryng, which Arius the kynge of Sparta sente vnto Onias: Arius kynge of the Spartians sendeth greetynge vnto Onias the hye prest. It is founde in wyryng, that the Spartians and Jewes are brethren, and come of the generation of Abusham. And now for so much as this is come to oure knowlege, ye shal do wel, to wyte vnto vs of youre prosperite. As for vs, we haue wyeten 6 mynde vnto you: oure carell and goodes are yours and yours, ours. These thinges haue we commaunded to be shewed vnto you.

When Jonathas herbe, that Demetrius prices were come forth to fight agaynst him with a greater host the season, he wente fro Jerusalem, 2 met the in the side of Gemath, for he gaue them noe space to come in to his owne countre. And he sent spyes vnto cheire tentes, which came agayne and tolde him, that they were appoynted to come vpo him in the night season. Wherefore when the Sone was gone downe, Jonathas commaunded his men to watch all y night, 2 to be ready w weapons for to fight: and set watchmen rounde aboute the hoost. Now when the aduersaries herbe that Jonathas was ready vnto his men to the battayll, they feared 2 were afrayed in their herres, 2 kymbled frys in their tentes, brake vp, and gat them awaye. Neuerthelesse Jonathas and his company knewe it not till the morninge, for they sawe the frys burnynge.

Then Jonathas followed vpon the, but he might not ouertake them, for they were gone ouer the water Eleutherus. So Iona-thas departed vnto β Arabia: whiche were called Sabades) (leue them, & toke their goo-des. He proceeded furthur also, and came vnto Damascus, & wente thowrow all that coun-tre. But Simon his brother toke his iourney and came to Mscalon and to the nexte strongholde: departing vnto Joppa, and wanne it. For he hearde, that they wolde stonde of Damascus partie: wherfore he sent mē of warre in the cite, to kepe it. After this came Jonathas home agayne, & called the elders of the people together: and deuised with the foi to buyde vnto the strong holde in Jewry, and the walles of Ierusalem, to see vp an hye wall betwixte the castell and β cite, for to separate it from the cite, that it might be alone, and that men shulde nethe bye nor sell in it.

Vps this they came together for to buyde vp the cite: and for moche as the wall vps the brooke of the west syde (called Captheta) was fallen downe, they repaired it. And Simon set vp Abiada in Sephela, and made it strong, settinge portes & lockes vps it.
Now when Triphon purposed to raigne in Asia, to be crowned, and to slaye the kynge Ariochus: he was affrayed that Jonathas wolde not suffre him, but fight against him.
Wherfore he wente aboute to take Jona-thas, and to kyll him.

So he departed, and came vnto Bethsan.
Then wente Jonathas fowth against him to the battayll with fourtye thousande choser men, and came vnto Bethsan also. But whē Triphon sawe that Jonathas came with so greate an hoost to destroye him, he was affrayed: and therfore he receaued him honourably, commended him vnto all his friends, gaue him rewardes, and commaunded his men of warre to be as obedient vnto him as to himselfe.

And saide vnto Jonathas: why hast thou caused this people to take soch manyle, seyn ge there is no warre betwixte vs: These sent them home agayne, & those certayne to waite vpon the, & come thowrow Ierusalem: for I will geue it the, whiche strong holde, men of warre, and their equypment. As forme, I must departe, this is only of my comyng. Jonathas beleued this, vnto as he sayde, puttinge awaye his bow, whiche wente in to β Ierde of β Ierde. He but iij. M. by him, wherof he sent ij. M. in to Gallice, & one M. wente with himselfe.

Now as soone as Jonathas ment into Ierusalem, the citefyns spured the of the cite, and toke him, and steele all them with the swerde, that came in with him.
Then sent Triphon an hoost of fore and hosmen into Gallice and in to the great plaine felde, to destroye all Jonathas company. But when they knewe that Jonathas was taken, and all they slayne that went vpon him: they toke counsell together, and came fowth ready to the battayll. So when they which folowed vpon them, sawe that was a matter of life, they turned backe a-gayne. As for the other, they wente in to Ierde of Iuda peacefully, & bewrayed Jona-thas, & them that were with him righte so.
And Irael made greate lamentacion. Of all the heithen β were rounde aboute them, soughte to destroye the. For they sayde: how haue they no captayne, nor any man to helpe them. Therfore let vs ouercome them, and rote out their name from amongest us.

The XIII. Chapter.

When Symon hearde that Triphon gathered a greate hoost, he came in to β Ierde of Iuda, and to de-stroye it: and sawe β the people was in great fearefulnesse and care: he came vnto Ierusalem, and gathered the people together, & ga-ue the exortacion, sayenge: Ye knowe what greate battayll I and my brethren & mys-thers house haue stryten for the lawe of the Sanctuary, and what manner of troubles haue sene: thowrow occasion wherof, all my brethren are slayne for Irael's sake, and I am left alone. And now let not me hurt my owne life in any manner of trouble, for I am no better then my brethren: but will save my people and the Sanctuary, our brethren and our wyues: for all the heithen are gathered together, to destroye vs of our malice.

At these wordes the hartes of the people were kyndled together, so that they came with a loud voice, sayenge: Then shall we be captayne in steade of Iudas & Jonathas thy brethren, euen thou our hatell, & what sauer thou commaundest vs, we shall do it. So he gathered all the men of warre, makinge haste to smyth all the walles of Ierusalem, which he made stronge rounde aboute.

B Then sent he Ionathas the sonne of Absalom & a fresh hoste vnto Ioppa, which diuidenth ouer y were in the castell, and returned there himself. Triphon also removed from Ptolemais with a greate armye, to come in to the londe of Iuda, and Ionathas with him in warde. And Simon pitched his tentes at Addon before the playne side.

Now when Triphon knewe that Symon sate vp in seade of his brother Ionathas, and that he wolde warre agaynst him: he sent messengers vnto him, sayenge: Where is as we haue kept Ionathas thy brother, as for money that he is owynge in the kynge a compace, concerninge the buynesse y behold in honde. Other foie sende now an C. talens of syluer and his two sonnes for sauerie, that when he is letted forth he shal not forsaue vs: and we shal sende him agayne. Heretofore Symon knewe, that he dyssembled his wordes: yet commaunded he the reueryt children to be deliuered vnto him: lest he shoulde be the greater enemye agaynst y people of Iuda, and saye: because he sent han not the money and the children, therefore is Ionathas dead.

C So Symon sent him the children and a hundred talens, but he dyssembled, & wolde not let Ionathas go. Afterwarde came Triphon in to the londe, to destroye it, and wente rounde aboute by the waye, y ledeth vnto Adon. But where so euer they wente, thither wente Symon and his hoste also. Now they that were in the castell, sent messengers vnto Triphon, that he shoulde make haile to come by the wyldernesse, and to save them vnto: And Triphon made ready all his hoisemen to come that same night. Heretofore it was a very greate newe, so that he came not in Galaadithim. And when he knewe the Baschama, he slew Ionathas and his sonnes there, and then turned for to go home in to his owne londe.

This tyme Symon so to set his brothers too course, and buried it in Modin his fathers see. So all Irael bewailed him with greate lamentacion, and mourned for him very longe. And Symon made vpon the sepulchre of his father and his brethren a buyllynge hye to loke vnto of sic stene behynde and before: and sic vpon iijen pylers, one agaynst another (for his father, his mother and foure brethren) and sic greate pylers reuibe aboute, with armes vpon them for a perpetuall memory, and carned shippes besyde the armes: y they might be sene of me sayynge in the see. This sepulchre which he made at Modin, standeth yet vnto this daye.

Now as Tripho wente forth to walke w y yoge kynge Antiochus, he slew him trayterously, and raigned in his stede. crowned himself kynge of Asia, and byd moche well in the londe. Symon also buylde vp the castles in Ieruy, makinge them stronge with hye towres, greate walles, portes and lockes, and layd vp vnto the stronge holdes. And Symon chose certaynemen, and sente them to kynge Demetrius to desyre him, y he wolde discharge the londe from all bondage, for Triphon had spoyled it very sore. Where vpon Demetrius the kynge answered him, to write vnto him after this maner:

Demetrius y kige sendeth greeteinge vnto Symon the hye pasc his friends, with the elders and people of the Jewes. The golden crowne and precious stone y ye sente vs to vs, haue we receaued: and are ready to make a stedfast peace with you, yet and to write vnto oure officers, for to release you, concerninge the thinges wherein we made you fre: and the appoyntment y we made with you, shal be firme and stable. The stronge holdes which ye haue buylde, shal be youre owne. As for anye ouer sighte or fauour committed vnto this daye, we forgiue it, and the crowne take that ye oughte vs also. And where as was anye other tribute in Ierusalem, it shal now be no tribute: and loke who are meete amongst you to be in oure court, let them be written vp, that there maye be peace betwixt vs.

This the yode of the seithen was taken from Irael, in the hundredth and seuentie year. And the peple of the Jewes beganne to write in their letters and actes on this maner: In y first yeare of Symon the hye pasc, and prync of the Jewes.

In those dayes wente Symon vnto Gaza, and besyged it rounde aboute, where he set vp ordinaunce of warre. And wanne a citie, which he toke. So they that gat in to the citie leapt into the cite, which was in a greate feare: In so moche that the people of the cite rente their clothes, and clymmed vp vpon the walles with their wyues and children, besytinge Symon to be as one with them, sayenge:

 3 Then Symon for very pity, wolde fight no more agaynst them, but put them out of the cite, and caused the houses (wherin the ymages were) to be clenfed; and so mured the cite with psalmes of prayse, giuinge thanks vnto the L O R D E. So when he had cast all abhominacions out of the cite, he set soch men in it as kepte the lawe of God, and made the cite stronge, and builded a dwellinge place for himself.

Now when they in the castell at Jerusalem were keepe so strately, that they coude not come forth ner in to countra, and might neither bye ner sell: they were very hungrie, and many of them famished to deathe: Insomuch that they besought Symon to be ac one with them, which he granted them. So he put them out from thence, and clenfed the castell from fylchynesse. And upon the xiiii. daye of the seconde moneth in the xliij. yeare they entred in to it with thankesgyuinge and bianches of palme trees, with harpes, crowdes, cymbals, and lutes, synginge psalmes and songes of prayse vnto God, for that the greate enemy of Israel was ouercome.

And Symon ordered that the same daye shulde be kepte euery yeare in gladnesse, and made stronge the hyll of the temple that was by syde the castell, where he dwelt himself with his company. Symon also perceauyng that Iohn his sorme was a mightie man of armes, made him captayne of all the hostes, and caused him to dwell at Gaza.

The XIII. Chapter.

21 In the xliij. yeare gathered kynge Demetrius his hoost, and departed vnto Media, to gett him helpe for to fight agaynst Crispus. Now when Arsaces the kynge of Persia and Media herbe, that Demetrius was entred within his borders: he sent one of his prynces to take him alyue, and so bringe him vnto him. So he worke and slene Demetrius hoost, toke himselfe, brought him to Arsaces, which keepe him in ward. And all the londe of Iuda was in rest, so longe as Symon liued: for he soughte the wealth of his people, therefore were they glad to haue him for their ruler, and to do him worshippe allwaye.

Symon wanne the cite of Joppa also for an haven towne, and made it an iurisdiction in to the Iea of the see. He enlarged the borders of his people, and conquered them more londe: he gathered vp many of their people that were prisoners: he had the bound of Gaza, Betsura and the castell, which clenfed from fylchines, and there was no man that resisted him: So that euery man in his grounde in peace, the londe of Iuda and the trees gaue their frute and increase. The elders sat all in iudgment, and toke their iuryce for the wealth of the londe: the yungemen put on worshippe and harness vnto them. He prouyded wyntayles for the cite, and made goodly stronge holdes of them: that the same of his worshippe was spoken vnto the ende of y^e world. For he made peace betwixen our the londe, and Iuda was full of myrrh and ioye.

Euery man sat vnder his vyne & figge tree, and there was no man to fraye them away. There was none in y^e londe to fight agaynst them, for then the kinges were ouercome. He helped those that were in aduersity among his people, he was diligent to se y^e lawe: for: as for such as were vngodly and with he toke thei awaye. He set up y^e Sanctuary, and increased the holy vessels of the temple.

When y^e Romaynes and Sparcians had gotten wode, y^e Jonathas was dead, they were righte foy. But when they herbe y^e soun his brocher was made by pest which steade, and how he had worne the londe a gayne wth the cities in it: they wrote vnto him in tables of laron, to renewe the frendshipp bonde of loue, which they had made with Iudas & Jonathas his brether. With writings were red before the congregacion at Jerusalem.

And this is the copy of the letters, that the Sparcians sent: The Senators and teyngs of Sparta sende greetinge vnto Iudas y^e greate peest wth the elders, priestes, & y^e other people of the Jewes their brether: Wherby embassours that were sente vnto o^r people certified vs of youre worshippe, honours and prosperous wealth: we were glad of this of munge, and haue written the earande which they spake before the counsaill of the people, namely, that Lumenius the sorme of Antiochus, and Antipater the sorme of Jason the Jewes embassours are come vnto vs, for to renewe the olde frendshipp with vs. Now this the people consented, that thei might be honorably increased, and that the copy of their earande shulde be written in the speciall booke of the people, for a perpetual memory vnto the Sparcians: yet and that we shal sende a copy of the same vnto y^e mon the greate peest.

After this byd Symon sende Numerias vnto Rome, with a golden shylde of a thousande pounde weight, to confirme the frendshipp with them: whiche when the Romaynes receiued, they saide: what chaunce shal we recompense agayne vnto Symon & his children: for he hath stablished his brethren, and ouercome the enemies of Israel. Wherfore they graunted him to be fre. And all this wrote the Jewes in tables of lacion, and nailed it vnto the pilers vpon the mount Sion. The copy of the writinge is this:

The xxij. daye of y moneth Elul in the clxxxij. years in the thirde yeare of Symon the hye prest, in the greatesse congregacion of y iustes, rulers of the people, and elders of the countrey at Asaramel, were these wordes openly declared:

¶ Sois much as there was moche warre in our londe, therefore Symon y sonne of Hasdrubas (come of the children of Jacob) and his brethren, put them selues in perill, and resisted the enemies of their people: that their Sanctuary and lawe might be maintained, and byd their people greatesse worshippe. Jonathan in like maner, after that he had gouerned his people and bene their hye prest byd, and yetty buried beside his eldes.

After that wolde their enemies haue trodden their holy churche vnder soote, destroyed their londe, and vnterly wasted their Sanctuary. Then Symon withstode them, and foughe for his people, spent moche of his owne money, weakened the valeant men of his people, gaue them wages, made stronge y ciues of Iuda, with Bethsura that lieth vpon the borders of Jewry, (where the ordinance of their enemies laye fortye yeres in Ierusalem there for to kepe it.

¶ He made fast Joppa also, which lieth vpon the see, and Gaza that bordereth vpon Aegypt, (where the enemies dwelle afore) and there he set Jewes to kepe it: and what sould he mete for the subduynge of the straitnes, that laye therein. How wbe the people sawe the noble actes of Symon, and what worshippe he purposed to do for them, his godly behauiour, and faithfulness which he kepe vnto them, & how he foughe by all waies y wealth of his people, because he byd all this, therefore they chose him to be their pryncer & hye prest. And in his tyme they prospered wel by him, so y the seieth wretche our of their londe: & they also which were in the cite of Dauid at Ierusalem in the castell, where they were out and besi-led all thinges that were aboue the Sanctuary, and bid greatesse harme vnto denshytes) and Symon put men of the Jewes in it, for the defence of the londe and the cite, and set vpon the walles of Ierusalem.

¶ And kynge Demetrius confirmed him in his hye presthode, made him his frende, and byd him greatesse worshippe. For he herde that the Romaynes called y Jewes their frendes, louers and brethren: how honourably they receaued Symons embassytours: how y Jewes and iustes consented that he shulde be their pryncer and hye prest perpetually (all God rayssed vpon the true prophet) and that he shulde be their captayne, to care for the Sanctuary, and to sit officier vpon the wicketes thereof, ouer the londe, ouer the weapons, ouer the houses of defence, to make piouysness for the holy churche, and to be obeyed of euery man, and all the writinges of y londe to be made in his name: that he shulde be clothed in purple and golde, and that it shulde be lawfull for none of the people no prestes to breake any of these churche, to withstode his wordes, nor to call any congregacion in the londe without him: that he shulde be clothed in purple, and were a cote of golde: And yf there were any which disobeyed or diale this ordinance, that he shulde be punished.

So all the people consented to allowe Symon, and to do accordyng to these wordes. Symon also himselfe set it vpon him, and was contente to be the hye prest, the captayne and pryncer of the Jewes and prestes, and to gouerne them all. And they commaunded to make this writinge in tables of lacion, and to fasten it vnto the compassse of the Sanctuary in an open place: and to laye vpon a copy of the same in the treasury, that Symon and his posterite might haue it.

The xv. Chapter.

After this, kynge Antiochus the sonne of Demetrius sente letters from the Ies of the six, vnto Symon the hye prest and pryncer of the Jewes, and to all the people, concerninge these wordes: Antiochus the kynge sendeth gretinge vnto Symon the hye prest and to the people of the Jewes. For so much as certayne wicked men haue gotten the kynngdome of our pryncer, I am purposed to chalenge the realme agayne, and to restore it to the olde state.

Wherfore I haue gathered a greatesse host and made shippes of warre: that I maye go to showe the contrarye, and be auenged of them which haue destroyed oure londe, and mayed many cities in my realme. And therfore nowe I make the frye also from all the tribuces, wherof all kynges my progenitors haue discharged the, and from other customes (wher from they haue releasid the) what soeuer they be: And I geue the leaue to synre money of thine owne within thy londe. As for Ierusalem, I wold that it be holy and frei-and all the weapens and houses of defence which thou hast buylded and kepest in thine handes, shal be thine. Wher as any thinge is as shal be comyng vnto the kyng, I souereigne it the, from this tyme forth for euermore.

 And when we haue openyed oure kyngdome, we shal do the, thy people and the temple greates worshippe: so that youre honoure shal be knowne thowout oure y whole world.

In the Christyng year went Antiochus in to his fathers londe, and all the men of war-re came together vnto him, so that fewe were left with Tripbon. So the kyng Antiochus foloweth vpon him, but he fled vnto Dara, which lieth by the see syde: for he sawe y there was myschance commyng vnto him, and that his heest had forsaken him. Then came Antiochus vnto Dora wth an hūdrith & twenty thousande men of armes vpon so-ce, and eight thousande horsemen. So he com-passed the cite rounde aboute, and y shippes came by the see. Thers they wered the cite by londe and by water, in so much that they suffered no man to go in nor out.

1. Ma. 14. d

In the meane season came Tamerius (y they that had bene with him) from the cite of Rome, hauinge lettres wryten vnto the kynges and prouincias, wherin were conteyned these wordes: Lucius the Mayre of Rome sendeth gretyng vnto Ptolomy the kyng.
 The embassours of the Jewes oure fredes being sent from Symon the hye prest and from the people of the Jewes, came vnto vs, for to reuise the olde frendshipe and bonde of lōne, and brought a shylde of golde weyng a thousande pounde, which we were contente to receaue of them. Wherfore we thought it good to wryte vnto the kynges & prouincias, to do them no harme, nor to take parte agaynst the, their cities nor countrees neyther to mayntene their enemies agaynst them. If there be any wickid persones ther fore fled from their countree vnto you, deli-uer them vnto Symon the hye prest, y he maye punysh them accordinge to their owne lawe.

The same wordes wrote the Romayne also vnto Demetrius the kyng, to Araba, Araba, Arfacas and to all regions in Sasianes, to them of Sparta, Bala, Man, Sa-bon, Caria, Samos, Pamphilia, Lyca, Al-carnassium, and to y Rhodowes, Sidon, Sida, Arabo, Beryna, Strydon, to Cyren and to Cyren. And of euery letter they sent a copy to Symon the hye prest and to the peple of the Jewes. So Antiochus the kyng brought his host vnto Dora the second tyme, to take it: where he made diuers enten-ce of warre, and kepte Tripbon in the cite of noe come forth. Then Symon for-chas two thousande chosen men to helpe him with golde, silver and other plenteous treasures: wherof he wolde not receaue any, but brake all y couenaunt which he made with Symon a fore, & withdiene himselfe vnto Symon, for to reason with him, say-yng: He withholde fro me Joppa and Gazan the castell that is at Ierusalem which are cities of my realme, whose borders ye haue destroyed, and done greace euell in the londe wher ye the dominacion in many other places of my kyngdome. Wherfore deliuer nowe the cities which ye haue takē, wth y tributes of places y ye haue rule vpon whiche the hebers of Jemyry: Or els geaue me five hundred talentes of syluer, yee and for the same ye haue done in the cities and for the tributes of the same, other fyue hundred talentes. If no, we shal come and fight agaynst you.

So Antiochus the kyng sent to Ierusalem, and when he sawe y greates shipe and honoure of Symon in golde, silver and so greates plenty of ornaments he was wiled, and tolde Symon as the kyng maunded him. Then answered Symon and saide vnto him: As for vs, we haue neither other mens londe, nor withholde any only oure fathers heretage, which our fathers had wrighteously in possession a certayne tyme. This heretage of our fathers haue we chalenged in piece of tyme. In wher as thou shal playnest concernyng Joppa and Gaza, they byd greace harme to the people and in d londe, yee wyl we geaue talentes for them.

Tenentes Antiochus answered him not one worde, but turned agayne wrightly vnto y kyng, and tolde him all that he had sene, and the greates dignite of Symon, and all that he had sene, and the kyng was wright angry. In the meane tyme fled Tripbon vnto Antiochus. Then the hye prest made Antiochus captiue of the see.

gave him an hoost of fote men and horsmen, commandinge him to remoue þe hoost toward Jewry, & to buyde vp the cite of Cebon, to make vp þe portes, & to warre agaynst þe people of the Jewes. As for the kynge him self, he followed upon Trifon. So Cendebes came unto Jamnia, & beganne to vexe þe people, to reade downe Jewry, to take the people prisoners, to slaye the & to buyde vp Cebon: where he set horsmē & ocher men of warre, that they might come forth and go throu the stretes of Jewry, like as the kynge had commanded him.

The XVI. Chapter.

¶ Then came Jhon vp from Gaza, and tolde Symon his father, what Cendebes had done amonge their people. Upon this called Symon two of his eldest sones, Judas & Jhon, and sayde vnto them: I and my brethren & my fathers house, haue euer from oure youth vp vnto this daye, foughten agaynst the enemies of Israel, & God gaue vs good fortune to deliuer Israel of tyme. And now for so much as I am one, be ye in steade of me & my brother, to go forth & fighte for oure people, & the helpe of God be w you. So he chose xij. mighty iungemen of the countee, with horsmen alſo, which wente forth agaynst Cendebes and rebeld at Moden.

In the morninge they arose, & wote in to þe playne felde: and beholde, a mightie greates hoost came agaynst the, both of fote men & horsmen. Now was there a water brooke betwixte them, & Jhon remoued the hoost toward them. And when he sawe that the people was afrayed to go ouer þe water brooke, he wente ouer first him self: and the men sounge this, followed him.

¶ Then Jhon set his horsmen & fote men in oone, the one by the ocher, for their enemies horsmen were very many. But when they came vp the prestes trompeted, Cendebes fled w his hoost, where of many were slayne, and the remnaue gat them to their stronge holde. Judas also Jhons brother was wounded at þe same tyme. And Jhon followed hill vpon þe enemies, till he came to Cebus whiche he buyded. The enemies fled also vnto the countee þe were in þe felde of Azocus, & thofe dyd Jhon burne vp: Thus they were slayned. Many of them, & Jhon turned agayne peaceably in to Jewry.

¶ And in the silde of Jericho was Ptolomy the sonne of Abodas made captaene: which because he had abundance of siluer & golde, (for he had married the daughter of Symon the hie prest) waxed proud in his mynde, & thought to conquire the lde, ymageninge falsed agaynst Symon & his sones, to destroye the. Now as Symon was gone aboute thowen the cities, þe were in þe countee of Jewry, and carynge for them: he came downe to Jericho, with Macabias & Judas his sones, in the xxxviij. yeare, in þe month called Sabar. Then Ptolomy þe sonne of Abodas receaued them (but w disceite) in to a stronge house of his called Dod, which he had buyded, where he made them a bancker.

¶ So when Symon & his sones were merry & had drunken well, Ptolomy stode vp w his men (whiche he had byd there) & toke their weapons, entred in to the bancker house, & slew Symon w his two sones, & certayne of his seruantes. Such greates vnfaichfulnesse dyd Ptolomy in Israel, and recompensd euill for good. Then wrote this Ptolomy þe same vnto the kynge Antiochus, requyryng him that he shulde sende him an hoost to helpe him: & so shulde he deliuer him the countee, w the cities & tributes of the same. He sent ocher men alſo vnto Gaza, for to take Jhon: & wrote vnto the captaenes to come to him, & he shulde geue them siluer, golde and rewardes. And to Jerusalem he sent ocher, to take it and the Sanctuary.

¶ The ranne there one before, & tolde Jhon in Gaza, that his father & his brethren were slayne, and howe that Ptolomy had sente to slaye him alſo. Whē Jhon hearde this, he was sore abasshed, and layed hys oserthanes that were come to destroye him, and slewed them: for he knowe, that they wente aboute to kill him.

¶ As for ocher thinges concernyng Jhon: of his warres, of his noble actes (wherin he behaued him self manfully) of the buydinge of walles which he made, and ocher of his doo: They are written in the croncles of his presthode, from the tyme forth þ he was made hys prest a fter his father.

The first Chapter.

he bishop of y James which be at Jerusalem in the londe of Jewry, with vnto this bocheif of y Jewes that are the row our Egypte: good frende, health and peace.

God the LORDE be gracious vnto you, & thynke vpon his conemauns þ he made of Abrahams, Isaac & Jacob his faithfull ser-uantes: and geue you all such an heritage ye maye loue and serue him, yet and persue me his will with an whole herte and of a willinge mynde: he ope youre hertes in his lawe and in his commandmentes, sende you peace: heare youre prayres, be at one with you, and neuer forsake you in tyme of trouble. This is heare oure prayer for you.

What tyme as Demetrius reigned, in the CXXI. yere, we Jewes wote wnto you in y trouble and violence that came vpon vs.
 In those yeres a fter that Jason departed out of the holy londe and syngdom, they bent vp the portes, and shed innocent bloode. Then made we oure prayer vnto þ LORDE, and were herde: we offered, and lighted the candelo, settinge forth cakes and bowe.
 And now come ye vnto the feoff of tubercanes cleas in the moneth Casleu.

In the CXXIIII. yere y peopel þ was at Jerusalem and in Jewry, the counsell and Judas him self, sent this wholsome saluta-cion vnto Aristobolus syngre ptolemyes mater, which came of the generation of the anoynted prestes: and to the Jewes that we re in Egypte: In so moch as God hath blydyed vs from greates perils, we therfor thin-ke. And why: he broughe men out of Persia by heapes, to fight agaynst vs and the holy cite. For as he was in persia (namely, þ captaune w' the greates boofe) he perished in the temple of Helanus, beinge v'cometh thotow the deuycce of Helanus prestes. For as he was purposed to haue dwelt there, An-tiochus & his felowes came thither, to receiue moch moneye for a dowry. So wote Helanus prestes had layd forth þ moneye, he came with a small company in to the compass of the temple, and so they shut the temple.

Now when Antiochus entred by open gethe peny inuance of the temple, þ prestes stoned þ captaune to deathe, hered this in pece that were with him, in ste of their heades, and thaxeth them out. In all thynges God be playid, which hath deliuered the wised in to oure bondes.

Where as we now are purposed to kepe the purification of the temple vpon 3 xlv. daye of the month Casleu, we thought necessary to certifie you therof: that ye also might kepe the tabernacle fast daye, & the daye of the fyre, which was geuen vs when Nehemias offered, after that he had set vp 3 temple & the altar. For what tyme as our fathers were led awaye vnto Persia, 3 puffed vs (which then sought the hono^r of God) to ke 3 fyre purelye from 3 altar, & hyd it in a valley, where as was a depe dreye pyre: ther in they kepte it, because the place was unknowne to euery man. Now after many yeres when it pleased God, 3 Nehemias shulde be sent from the kynge of Persia: he sent the chylde^ren of those prestes (which had hyd the fyre) to see it. And as they tolde vs, they founde no fyre, but thicke water.

The commaundment he them to drinke it vp, & to drynge it hum, & 3 offerynges withall. Wherupon 3 sacrifices were layed on 2 of dead, the prest Nehemias commaunded to sprinkle them 2 the wod wth the water. Wher this was done, & the tyme come 3 the Sonne shone, which afore was hyd in the cloude: ther was a grate fyre kyndled. In so much 3 euery man marueled. Now all the prestes prayed, while the sacrifice was a makinge. Jonathan prayed first, and 3 other gaue an ioynt.

And Nehemias prayer was after this maner: O LORD E God maker of all thynges, thou fearfull & stronge, thou righteous & mercifull, thou 3 art onely a gracious kynge, onely syberall, onely iust, Almightye and everlastinge, thou 3 deluyerst Israel from all trouble, thou 3 hast chosen the fathers & halowed them: cease the offeringe for the whyle people of Israel, presume thine owne portion, & halowe it. Gather those together, 3 are scattered abrode from vs: deluyere them 3 are vnder the Scythes bonoage, lake vpon them which are despyred & abhorred, 3 the Sonne make knowe 2e, how 3 thou art of God: purghe them 3 oppresse, and proudlye put vs to dishonoure. See 3 people agayne in thy holy place, like as Moses hath spokk.

And the prestes songe Psalmes of thankesgynge, so longe as the sacrifice endured. Now when the sacrifice was dyent, Nehemias commaunded the greates stones to be brought in to the residue of the water. Which when it was done, there was kyndled a flame of the alfo: but it was consumed theroon the lye, 3 shyned from the altar. So whyle this matter was knowe, it was tolde the kyng of Persia, that in the place where the prestes (which were led awaye) had hyd fyre, there appeared water in steade of fyre, & that Nehemias & his company had purified the sacrifices withall. Then the kynge consideringe & ponderynge 3 matter diligently, made him a temple, to proue the thynges 3 was done. And wher he founde it so in dede, he gaue the prestes many giftes & dynerse remembrance: yet he toke them wth his owne hande, & gaue the. And Nehemias called the same place Tephthar, which is as much to saye as a cleansing: but many men call it Teph.

The ii. Chapter.

It is founde also in the writings of 3^r Jeremy the prophet, 3 he commaunded them which were caried awaye, to take fyre, as it is sayde a fore, he commaunded them also, 3 they shulde not forget the lawe & commaundementes of the LORDE, & 3 they shulde not erre in their myndes, wher they se ymages of syluer & golde wth their ornaments. These 2 such other thynges commaunded he them, & exorted them, that they shulde not leaue the lawe of God go our of their hertes.

It is wycten also, how the prophet (at 3 commaundment of God) charged them, to take the tabernacle & the arte wth them: he wente forth vnto the mountaine, where Moses kyndred vp, & sawe 3 heretage of God. And when Jeremy came there, he founde an open caue, wherin he layed the tabernacle, 3 arte & the altar of incense, & so stopped the hole. There came certayne men together also followinge him, to marck the place, but they coude not fynde it. Which when Jeremy perceived, he reposed the, sayinge: As for that place, it shalbe knowne, vntill 3 tyme that God gather his people together agayne, & recalle the vncd mercy. Then shal God shewe them these thynges, & the maiesty of the LORDE shal appear, & the cloude also, like as it was shewed vnto Moses: like as when Salomon desyred 3 the place might be sanctified, & it was shewed him.

For he byng a wyseman, handled honorably & wysly: offeringe into God in 3 halowinge of the temple, when it was synished. And like as when Moses prayed vnto the LORDE, the fyre came downe from heauen, & consumed the burnt offeringe: Even so prayed Salomon also, & the fyre came downe from heauen, & consumed the burnt offeringe. And Moses sayde: because the fyre offeringe was not eaten, therfore it is consumed. In like maner Salomon kepte the dedication

C In y Annotacions z wrytynges of .J. Jeremy, weate these thinges put also: z how he made a libary. z how he gathered out of all countrees the bokes of the prophetes, of David, the epistles of the kynges, and of the presences. Then so Judas also, loke what he lerned by experyence of warre, z such thinges as hath happened vnto vs. he gathered the all together, z so we haue them by vs. If ye now desire to haue the same, sende some bodye to fynd them vnto you. Where as we the are aboute to celebrate the purification, we haue written vnto you. Therefore ye shall do well, yf ye kepe the same dayes. We hope also, that the God (which deliuered his people, z gaue them all y heretage, kyngdome, priesthode z Sanctuary) sh he promised them in the lawe, shal shortly haue mercy vpo vs, z gather vs together from vnder the heauē in to his holy place: for he hath saued vs fro greates perils, z hath clenst the place.

D As concernynge Judas Machabees z his brethren, the purification of the greates temple, the dedication of the altar, yee z of the warres sh edecene noble Antiochus and Lepator his sonne, of the shyminges y came downe from heauen upon thes, which manfully defended the Jewes. (For though they were but fewe, yet defended they the whole londe, downe awaye sh enemies hoost, reconered agayne the temple, sh was spoken of theow out all the world, deliuered the cite, doynge their best sh the lawe of the LORDE which was put downe, might w all tranquilitye be restored agayne vnto the LORDE. It was so mer ciful vnto the.) As touchynge Jason also of Cyren, we haue vnder take espendionly to byynge in to one boke, the thinges sh were comprehended of him in fyne. For we cōsiderynge the multitude of the boke, and how harde it shalbe for them sh wolde medle with stones and axes (and that be cause of so dyuers matters) haue vnder taken so to comprehend the stories: that such as are disposed to reade, might haue pleasure and pastyme therein: and that they which are diligent in such thinges, might the better thinke vpon them: yee and that who so euer red them, might haue profite thereby.

E Nevertheless we cure sines that haue medled with this matter for the shortynge of it, haue taken no small labour, but greates diligence, reachynge and trauayle. Like as they that make a frais, wolde saye do other men pleasure: then so we also (for many mens sake) are very wel content to take the labour, where as we maye shelye conprieche, the thynge that othe we haue truly reytent:

For he sh buyrdeth an house a new, and prouyde for many thynge to z wolde bydynge: but he that paymeth it aforwarde, (seth but only what is comly, men an comenient to garnysh it wiche). Can so do re also in like maner. And why: that he paymeth to wayte a story for the best, must with his vnderstandinge gather the matter together, sit his wordes in order, and diligently seth out every parte: But he that afterwarde will shorten it, vseth few wordes, and reacheth not the matter at the largest. Let this be sufficient for a pologe, and will we be ymie to shere the matter: for it is but a foolish thinge to make a long pologe, and to be shote in the story it self.

The iii. Chapter.

What tyme as the holy cite was inhabited in all peace and unity, z when the lawes were yet very well kepte. (For so was it ordered by Onias the hye priest and other godly men, that men an men to wisch chaste.) It came there, the euen the kynges and prynces the filios by the place: greates worship, and garnish of temple with greates giftes: In so much that Seleucus kyng of Asia of his comraun, bare all the costes belonginge to the saye cite of the offermynges. Then Symon of the trybe of Ben Jamin, a ruler of the temple, laboured to worke some myschance in the altar the hye priest refused him.

Nevertheless when he might not come Onias, he gat him to Appollonia the some of Theria (which thil was the cite in Calosyria and Phenicca) and toke him, sh the treasury in Jerusalem was full of inumerable money, and how that the com goodnes (which belonged not vnto the offermynges) were exchaubynge greates alforre: and how it were possible, that all these myghtome vnder the kynges power.

Now when Appollonia had shoud the kyng of the moneye, as it was told him: y kyng called for Heliodorus his sounde, and sent him with a commancoment to byynge him the sayde money. Immediately Heliodorus toke his iourney, but wth a colour, as though he wolde goe to Calosyria and Phenicca to vseth the cite, but his purpose was to fulfill the kynges pleasure. So when he came to Jerusalem, and was louyngly receaued of the hye priest: in the cite: he toke what was determed ing the moneye, and shewed the cause of his commynge; he asked also, yf it were so in vnde. Then the hye priefte tolde him, that there was such money layed up for the upholding of weddinges and fatherlesse childre, and how that a certayne of it belonged vnto Symeon Tobias a noble man: and that of all the moneye, which that wicked Symon had bequethed there were iij. hundredth talents of syluer, and ij. hundredth of golde: yet that it were impossible for those men meaninge to be discaued: that had layed up their moneye in the place and temple, which is had in ierusalem thorow the whole world, for the maintenance and honoure of y^e same. Whereunto Heliodorus answered, y^e the priefte had commaunded him in any wyse to bringe him the moneye.

So at the daye appointed, Heliodorus entred into the temple to ordeine this matter. There was no small feare thorow out the whole cite. The prieftes fell downe before the altar in their vestmentes, and called vnto heauen vpon him, which had made a lame conceytinge sinne generall to kepe, that they shoulde be safely perserued, for soch a contrarye them vnto kepynge. Then who so had let the hye priefte in the face, it wolde haue greeued his herte: for his countenance and the chaunginge of his colour, declared the inward sorrowe of his mynde. The man was all in bewyffe, and his body in feare: wherby they that looked vpon him, might perceiue the greife of his herte. The other people also came out of their houses by heapes vnto the common prayer, because the place was like to come in to confusion. The women came together thorow the streetes, with haire dished aboune their buskes.

The virgins also that were kepte in ranke vnto Onias, some in the walles, other some led out at the wyndowes: yet they all helpe vnto their honde towards heau. & prayed. A miserable thinge was it, to looke vpon the cōmyn people, & the hye priefte beinge in such trouble. But they besought Almighty God, that the goodes which were committed vnto them, might be kepte whole, for those that had deliuered them vnto their kepynge. The vnto the thinge that Heliodorus was demed to do, that performed he in the same place, he him self personally bringe aboune the treasury with his men of warre. But the priefte of Almighty God shewed him self openly, so that all they which presumed vnto Heliodorus, fell thorow y^e power of God in a greate start sinnesse & drede. For there appeared vnto them an hoste, with a terrible man fynginge vpon him, dedre in goodly arraye, and the hoste smote at Heliodorus with his fore feete. Now he that sat vpon y^e hoste, had harness of golde vpon him.

Moreover there appeared ij. sayes and beuifull yonge men in goodly arraye, which stode by him, scourged him of both the sydes, & gaue him many stripes without ceasinge. With that, fell Heliodorus sodenly vnto the grounde. So they toke him up, beinge compassed aboune with greate hardnesse, and bare him out vnto a beare. Thus he that came with so many runners and men of warre, vnto y^e sayde treasury, was borne out: where as no man might helpe him: and so the power of God was manifest and knowne. For laye still become also by the power of God, destitute of all hope and life. And they prayid the LORD, that he had shewed his power vpon his place and temple, which a litle afore was full of feare & troubles: and that thorow the reuelacion of the Almighty LORD. It was fylled with ioye and gladnesse.

The certaine of Heliodorus sithen praied Onias, that in all haile he wolde call vpon God, to graunte him his life, which was geauynge vnto the goost. So the hye priefte considered the matter, and left the priefte shoulde suspecte that the Jewes had done Heliodorus some euill: he offered an healtchefferynge for him. Now whi^e y^e hye priefte had openyed his petition, the same yonge man in the same clothinge appeared, & stode besyde Heliodorus, sayenge: Thanke Onias y^e hye priefte, for for his sake hath y^e LORD graunted the vnto the: therfore syngye y^e God hath scourged y^e, & gaue him prayse & thanke, and shewe euery man his might & power. And whi^e they had spoken these wordes, they apared nomore.

So Heliodorus offered vnto God, made greate vowes vnto him which had graunted him his life, chailed Onias, toke his bowe, & wote agayne to y^e kinge. The which he vnto cuery man, of y^e greates wordes of God, y^e he had sene wth his eyes. And whi^e the kynge ased Heliodorus who were made to be sent yet once agayne to Jerusalem, he sayde: If thou hast any enemy or aduersary vnto thy realme, sende him thither, & thou shalt haue him punished, yf he escape wth his life: for in y^e place (no doute) there is a speciall power & workinge of God. For he y^e dwelleth in heau. vnto y^e defende y^e place: & all y^e come to do it harme, he punisheth y^e & plageth the. This is now y^e matter concerninge Heliodorus, & y^e kepynge of y^e treasury at Jerusalem.

The III. Chapter.

Ahis Symon now, of whom we spake afore, beinge a buyrayer of the monarchy and of his owne naturall countrey, reported the moost of Onias: as though he had moned helidous vnto this, and as though he had bene a buyrger vp of euell. Thus was he not ashamed to call him an enemye of realms, that was so faithfull an ouer-seer & defender of the cite & of his people: yet so strict in the lawe of God. But when the malice of Symon increased so farre, & choiow his frendes there were certayne manslaughterers comited: Onias considered the parrell & might come thowow this strife, and hem that Appollonius (namely the chiefe loude in Calopis and Phenices) was all set vpon ryaniny, and Symons malice increased the same: he gaue him to the kynge, not as an accuser of the cite & kynge, but as one that by hym self intended the comon wealch of the whole multitude. For he sawe it was not possible to lyue in peace, neither Symon to leaue of from his foolishnesse, excepte the kynge dyd loce thereto.

But after the deatch of Seleucus, when Antiochus (which is called the noble) tode of Eynghome: Jason the brother of Onias laboured to be hys prest: for he came vnto the kynge, and promised him the hundred & xl. talentes of syluer, & of the other riches & talentes. Besides this he promised him yet an C. & l. yf he might haue & scole of y children, and that he might call them of Jerusalem Antiochians. Which when the kynge had graunted, & he had gotten the superiority: he begane immediatly to diuue his kinsmen to the custome of the Gethen, put downe the thinges, that the Jewes had set vp of loue, by Jhon the father of Apoloniemus (which was sent embassadour vnto Rome, for to make the bonde of friendship and loue.) he put downe all the lawes & lycencies of the lawes, and set vp wicked statutes. he durst make a fightinge scole vnder y castell, and set fayne yonge men to leme the maner of wyches and diobels.

CThis was now the begynnyng of the heithenish & straunge obseruacion, brought in thowow the ungracious and vnherte vnicednesse of Jason (which shulde not be called a prest, but an vngodly personne.) In so much, that the prestes were now nomore occupied aboute the straunge of the altar, but besides the temple, regarded not the offernynges: yee gaue their diligece to leme to fight, to mynste, to leape, to dance, & to put ac stone: not seruyng by & bond of & such, but liked & glory of the Gethes best of all for the which they streue personly, and were gredy to folowe their statutes, yet they liue was in all thinges to be likest, which afore were their enemies & detesters. howbeit to do wickedly agaynst & lawe of God, shal not escape unpunished: but of this we shal speake here after.

What tyme as the Olympianes games were played at Tyro (the kynge had sent beinge prestes) his ungracious Jason wicked men, bearinge from them of Jerusalem (which now were called Antiochians) iij. C. diachmas of syluer for an offernyng Hercules. These had they that carried them, desired vnder such a fashon, as though they shulde not haue bene offered, but bestowed in other uses. Nevertheless he that sent them, sent them to the intent that they shoulde offered vnto Hercules. But because of that that were prestes, they were gemen as to the makinge of shippes. And Appollonius the sonne of Nestas was sent in to Egipt, in cause of the noble men of Eynge Ptolomy Philometer. Now when Antiochus perceiued & he was put out from makinge the realm, he sought his owne profite, departed from thence, came to Joppa, & thence to Jerusalem: where he was honorably receaued of Jason & the cite, & was beguyn in w such lighte and with greates paynt: and so turned his hoost vnto Phenices.

After iij. yeare Jason sent Menelaus the fore sayde Symons brother to beare the money vnto y kynge, & to bringe hym answer of other necessary matters. But he (whiche was piayed of y kynge for magnificence of his power) turned y hys presthode vnto himselfe, & yenge vp iij. C. talentes of syluer for Jason. So wher he had gotten comendement from y kynge, he came, hauinge with yge becymeth a prest, but bearinge y shewe of a cruel tyrante, & the wiatch of a wyche like best. Then Jason (which had bynt his owne brother) stuyng & he him selfe begyled also, was sayne to sle in to y Ides of Ammonites, & Menelaus gaue y domine. But as for y moneye & he had promised vnto the kynge, he dyd nothinge therin, vnto Softramo the ruler of y castell required of him. (For Softramo was the man, & he ethered y customes) wherfore they were called before the kynge. Thus was Menelaus put out of y presthode, & Lysimachus his brother came in his steade. Softramo so was made loude of the Cyprians.

It happened in þe meane season, y þe Charsius ⁊ Malaciano made insurreccions, because they were gawne for a present vnto kynge Antochus conuincyng. Then came þe kynge in all þe haist, to still them agayne and to pacifye the matter, leauiyng Andronicus there to be his deuyt, as one meece therfore. Now Menelaus supposyng that he had gotten a right convenient tyme, stole certayne vessels of golde out of the temple, and gaue the to Andronicus for a present: and some he sate at Tyus and in the cities therby.

Whiche when Onias knewe of a iherusalem, he reuoyd him: but he kepte him in a sumary before Daphnis, that ierch by Antioche. Wherefore Menelaus gat him to Andronicus, and prayed him that he wold deleue Onias. So when he came to Onias, he counceiled him craftely to come out of the sumary, geaynyng him his honde with an othe (how be it he susceiued him) and the he slewe Onias, withoute eny regarde of righteousnesse. For the which cause not only the Jewes, but other nacions also tolde in dignacion, and were displeasid for the unrighteous death of so goodly a man.

And when the kynge was come agayne from Cilicia, the Jewes and certayne of the Gretes wene vnto him, complaynyng for the unrighteous death of Onias. Now An-tichus himselfe also was fory in his mynde for Onias, so þe it pleased him, and he recei-ued, remembreing his sobernesse and manerly be-hauoure. Wherefore he was so myndid in his mynde, þe he commaunded Andronicus to be striped out of his purple clothinge, ⁊ so to be led thowm out all the cite, yee and þe iugracion man to be layne in þe same place, where he committed his wickednesse vpon Onias.
Thus þe LORD rewarded him his punyssh-ment, as he had deserued. Now when Lysimachus had done many wycked debes in þe temple thowm the counceill of Menelaus, and the voyce came abiove: the multytude gathered thetogether agaynst Lysimachus, for he had caried out now moch golde.

So when the people arose and were full of displeasure, Lysimachus armed iij. M. vishuses to defende him: a certayne ryanance bemyng their capteyne, which was growen deed in age ⁊ woodnesse. But when the people understoode the purpose of Lysimachus, some gat stones, some good stronge clubbes, ⁊ some cast asshes vpon Lysimachus. Thus there were many of the wounded, some beyng de slain, ⁊ all the other chaaced awaye. But so þe wycked churchrobber himselfe, they fylled him besyde the treasury. Of these matters therfore there was kepte a course a-gaynst Menelaus.

Now when þe kynge came to Tyus, they made a cōplaine vnto him of Menelaus, concernyng this busynesse, ⁊ þe embassidours were the. But Menelaus wente ⁊ promysid Ptolemy to geue him moch money, yf he wold be perswade the kynge. So Ptolemy wote of the kynge in to a court (where as he was set to coole him) ⁊ brought him out of þe mynde.
In so moch þe discharged Menelaus fro þe accusacions, þe not withstandinge was cause of all myschefe: and those poore men (which yf they had toide their cause, yee before the Scythians, they shulde haue be iudged innocent) he eodined to death. Thus wote they soone punysshed, which followed vps þe matter for þe cite, for þe people, ⁊ for þe holy weisell.
Wherefore they of Tyus wote inuiccion, ⁊ buried the honorably. And so thowm þe co-uerousnesse of them that were in power, Me-nelaus remayned still in authorite, increasyn-ge in malice, to the hurte of the cetyfyns.

The V. Chapter.

At þe same tyme Antiochus made him ready to go agayne in to Egyppe. The where therer sente at Jerusalem (L. Onias 16) his oimne runninge to and fro in the ayre, which had rayment of golde, ⁊ spere. The re were sine also whole hoordes of me weapered, ⁊ houses runninge in an ordie, how they came together, how they helde forth their shildes, how þe harnessid men drew out their sweardes, ⁊ shote their darres. The slyme of þe golde weapens was sente, ⁊ of all maner of armure. Wherefore eueryman prayed, þe those colens might turne to good. Now wher the re was gone forth a fals rumour, as though Antiochus had bene ded: Jason cote a M.
m. ⁊ came so deily vps þe cite. The cetyfyns ran e vnto þe walles, at þe last was þe cite taken, and Menelaus fled in to the castell.

As for Jason, he spared not his owne citefyns in the slaughter, nether considered he what greate euill it were, to destruye þe prof-perite of his owne kynsmen: but dyd as one that had gotten the victory of his enemies, and not of his frendes. For all this gart he not the superiorite, but at the last recei-ued confuscion for his malice, and fled agayne like a vagabunde in to the londe of the Ammonites. Finally (for a remarde of his wickednesse) he was accusid before Archa-the kynge of the Arabians: In so moch that he was synoure fle from cite to cite, beyng despyed of euery man as a fosterer of the lawes, and an abhominable performe. And at y^e last, as an open enemy of his owne nacionall countre, and of the cittyfyns, he was dryuen into Egypte.

Thus he y^e fowre put many out of their owne nacyonall londre, persyshed from home him selfe, &c. wente to Lacedemon, thinkeinge there to haue gotten succoure by reason of kynrede. And he that afore had casten many one oute vnburied, was a thowen one him selfe, no man mourninge for him, ner puttinge him in his grave: so that he nether enioyed y^e buriall of a straunger, nether was he partaker of his fathers sepulchre.

C Now when this was done the kinge suspeere, y^e the Jewes wolde haue fallen from him: wherfore he came in a greates displeasure out of Egypte, & toke the cite by violence.
 He commaunded his men of warre also, that they shulde kill & not spare, but slaye downe such as w^o stode them, or clymmed vp vpon y^e houses. Thus was there a greates slaughter of yonge men, olde men, women, children and virgins. In iij. dayes were there slayne lxx. iiii. thousande put in prison, & no lesse solde. Yet was he noe content wth this, but durst go in to the most holy temple (Menelaus that traytoure to y^e lawes & to his owne nacyonall countre, beyng his gyde: & with his wicked hondes toke y^e holy vessell, which other kynnges & cittyes had gotten thurche for y^e garnishinge & hono^r of y^e place: the toke he in his hoodes unworthely, & defiled them.

D So madde was Antiochus, that he considered not, howe that God was a litle woth for the synnes of them that dwelt in the cite, for the which such confusion came vpon that place. And why? y^e it had not happened them to haue bene lapped in many synne, this Antiochus (as soone as he had come) had boldly bene punished, and shot out for his presumption: like as Heliodorus was, whom Selenus the kynge sente to robbe y^e treasury. Neuertheles God hath not chosen the people for the places sake, but the place for the peoples sake: and therefore in the place become partaker of the peoples trouble, but afterwards shall it enioy the woth of the kinge. And like as it is now forsaken in the woth of almighty God, so when the greates God is reconcyled, it shall be set vp in hye worshippe agayne.

So when Antiochus had taken a Massa & viij. Calentes out of the temple, he put him to Antioche in all the basyl, thinkeinge in his pryde, that he might make me sale vpon this dyce londre, and to go vpon y^e see, such an hie mynde had he. He lefte debetes there to wote the people: At Jerusalem left he Philippe a Phugian, in maners more cruell the burdill y^e set him there: At Sasim he left Antiochus & Meneclaus, which were more greuous to the cittyfyns then other. Now as he was thus set in malycie agaynst y^e Jewes, he sent Appollonius an hated pryner, wth xij. iiii. c. manninge him to slaye all those y^e were of perfeate age, and to sell the wom^{en}, maydes & children. When he came nomye Jerusalem, he sained peace, & kepte him still vntill y^e Sabbath daye. And then he commaunded his men to take them to their weapens: for y^e Jewes kepte holy daye) and so he stowe all them y^e were gone forth to the open playe, runninge here and there thew^o the cite with his men maner, and murdered a greates nombre.
 One Judas Nachabens which was the tenth, fled in to the wyldernes, led his life there with his company amonge the wyde beestes and vpon the mountaynes: dwelinge there and eatinge grasse, lest they shulde be partakers of the synnes.

The Vi. Chapter.

U Or longe after this, sent the kynge a messenger of Antioche, for to com-pell y^e Jewes to alre y^e ordinaunces of y^e sarchers & the lawe of God, to besyde the temple y^e was at Jerusalem, & to call in the ple of Jupiter Olympian: & they shulde be in Sasim, as those which dwell in y^e place of Jupiter the harberons. This wicked sidi-cious of y^e ungodly was heuy vpon all y^e people: for y^e temple was full of volupuousnes bebbinge & bollinge of y^e beeth, of ribbes & barlores togerher. The be wom^{en} were in to y^e holy place, & bare in that was noe lawfull.
 The aulter also was full of vnlawfull thinge, the which y^e lawe forbiddeth to laye vpon it.
 The Sabbathes were not kepte, the other temple fraistes of y^e londre were not repaired.
 To be plaine, there durst no man be a frend that he was a Jewe.

In the daye of the kynge byeth they wa compelled per force to offere: when y feast of Bachus was kepte, they were constrained to wear garlandes of yorn, and so to go a boone for the honoure of Bachus.

Moreover thowen the counsell of Prolom theyer mente oute a commandement in y nexte cities of the heithen, y they shulde in salute the Jewes in like maner: namely, to co pulche for to do sacrifice a fter y lawes of y Gentiles: and who so wolde not, to put them to death. And pincous thinge was it to se. The nexte ij. women accused to have circumci sed their sones, whom when they had led unto alome the cite: the babca hanginge at their busles: they cast them downe head longes onto the walles. Some y were crept into barnes and had kepte the Sabbath, we re accused wmo Philippe, and viene in the sit: because that for the feare of God they kepte the commandment so fastly, and wol den be defouled them silue.

Now y beseeke all those which reade this booke: that they resiste not for these folles of maner: for wodge the thinges (y are happed) for no defraction, but for a chastenyn ge of people. And wch: Wher God suffreth ex sinners longe to folowe their owne myn de, but shortly punyssheth them, it is a toke of his gracie: lounge kynedee. For this gra uame me of God more then other people, y he suffreth not so longe to ssume unpun yshed like other nacions, that when the daye of iudgment cometh, he maye punyssh the in the fulnes of their synnes. If we synne, he correcteth us, but he neuer withdraueth his mercie fro vs, & though he punyssh aduer saries, yett doeth he neuer forsake his people.
 Make this that we have spokt now: w few wordes, be for a warninge & exortacion of y soule. Now wnt we come to the declaringe of the matier. Eleazar one of y principall leaders an aged mā & of a welsauourd coten dence, was constrained to gaze wt mouth & to eate swynes flesh. But he defynge rat her to dye gloriouslye: the to liue w shame, of fnd himselfe willinge to y martirdome. Now wher he saue y he must needs go to it, he toke pncipalitye: for he was at a poynt w himselfe, y he wolde confite to no vnlaful thinge for any pleasure of liue. They y stode bye vt pncipall w ppe, but not a righte) for y olde yndershippe of the man, toke him asyde pinc hand prayed him y he wolde let (och flesh be though he him as were laful to eate, & the w made a collectiōe as though he had ea t of y flesh of y sacrifice like as the kynge commaunded, for so he might be deliuered from death: so for the olde friendshippe of y man, they shewed him this kinde. But he beganne to confide his discreete and hono rable age, his noble and worshipfull flocke, and how y frō his youth up he had bene of an honest and good conversacion, yett & how constantlye he had kepte y ordinaunces and lawes commaunded bye God, wherfore he ga uen them this answer, and sayde:

Yett had y rather first be layed in my gra ue. For it becommeth not myne age (sayde he) in any wyse to dyssolue, wherebye many yonge performes nighte thinges, that Eleazar beinge lxxx. yeare olde and en, were now go ne to a straunge life: and so thowen myne y pncipallye (for a litle tyme of a transitory life) they might be defecated: by this meanes al so shulde y defyle myne age, & make it abho minable. For though y were now deliuered from the tormentes of men, yett shulde y nee escape the honde of allmyghty God, neither alyne nor deed. Wherfore y wnt dye manful ly, & do as it becommeth myne age: Wherby y maie peraduenture leane an eraple of stib fastnesse for such as be yonge, yf w a ready mynde & manfullye dye an honest death, for the most worthy and holye lawe.

When he had sayde these wordes, imme diadlye he was diuyned to the tombe. Now they that led him and were mylde a litle a fore, beganne to take displeasure, because of the wordes y he sayde: for they thought he had spokt them of an hys mynde. But wher he was in his martirdome, he mourned and sayde: Thou O LORDE, which hast the holy knowlege, knowest openly: that n here as y might be deliuered frō death, y suffre the sore paynes of my body: but in my mynde y am wel contente to suffre them, because y feare the. Thus this man dyed, leauynge y memoriall of his death for an example, not only vnto yonge men, but vnto all y people, to be stedfast and manly.

The vii. Chapter.

It happened also that there were vij brethren (with their mocher) taken, & compelled by the kynge agaynst the lawe, to eate swynes flesh: namelye w scour ges and lathen whippes. And one of them rebuked w y cheif, sayde: What sekest thou, and what requyrst thou of vs? As for vs, we are ready rather to suffre death, then to offende the lawes of God and the sa thers. Then was the kynge angry, and had hate enuylous and biasef pceces. Which when they were made hote, immediatly he commaunded þe tongue of him that spake first, to be cut out, to pull the slynnne ouer his heade, to payre of the edges of his handes and feete: yet and that in the sight of his moether and the other of his biethren. Now when he was cleane marred, he commaunded a fyre to be made, & so (whyle there was any breath in him) was to be fryed in the caudron, In the which when he had bene longe payned, the other biethren with their moether exorted him to dye manfully, sayyng: The LORD GOD shal regard the trench, and comferte vs like as Moses testifieth and beclareth

B So whē the first was deed a fere this manner, they brought the seconde to haue him in derision, pulled the slynnne with the hayre ouer his heade, and axed him, yf he wolde eate slynnne flesch, as he were payned in þe other members also thow out his body. But he answered boldly, and sayde: I will not do it. And so was he tormentid like as y first. And whē he was axed as y geuynge vp of y goost, he sayde: Thou most ungracious personne puttest vs now to death, but the kynge of þe world shall raise vs up (which bye for his lawes in y resurrection of ouerlastinge liue.

A fere him, was the thirde had in derision: and when he was requyred, he putte one his tongue, and that right soone, holdinge fowr his hondes manfully, and spake with a stedfast faith: These haue I of beaust, but now for the lawe of God I despyse them: for my trust is, that I shall receaue them of him agayne. In so much that the kynge and they which were with him, marred at the yonge mans boldnesse, that he nothinge regarded the paynes.

C Now when he was deed also, they wexed the fourth wath to merces in like manner. So when he was now at his death, he sayde: It is better that we beynge put to death of me, haue our hope and trust in God, for he shal raise vs up agayne. As for the, thou shalt haue no resurrection to liue.

And when they had spoken to the fift, they tormentid him. Then lokte he vnto y kynge, & sayde: Thou hast power amonge me (for thou art a mortall man also y self) to do what thou wilt, but thinke not, þe God hath forsaken & generacion. Wybe the, tary styl a whyle, & thou shalt see the grete power of God, how he wil punyssh the & thy fyde.

A fere him they brought the sixte, which beynge at the poynte of death, sayde: We not discaared (o kynge): for this we suffre for oure owne sakes, because we haue offēded him God, & therfore marvelous thinges are shewed vpon vs. But thinke not thus, which takest in honde to stryue a gayne (God) that thou shalt scape unpunysht.

This excellent moether (woot by to be well reported of, and had in remembrance) sawe hir seven sonnes dye in one daye, and suffred it pacifely, because of the hope that she had in God: yet she exorted euery one of them in especiall, and that boldly and stedfastly, & pacifite wysdome, walyngyng vpon hir wysht thought with a manly stomacke, and sayde vnto them: I can not tell how ye came nary wombe, for I nether gaue you bieth ner soule, no ner life. It is not I þe ioyned y members of y bodies together, but y mater of y moule, which fashioend y byrd of wofe, & began all thinge so. When he also of his owne may shall geue you breath and liue agayne, like as ye now regarde not youre owne silue for his lawes sake.

Now thoughte Antiochus that she had bespyed him, therfore he let her go with her reprouces, and beganne to exorte the yonge sonne which yet was left: not only woxen but swore vnto him w an oath, y he shoulde make him a rich & welthy man: yf he wolde forsake þe lawes of his fathers) yet and y he shulde geue him, what so euer was necessary for him. But whē the yonge man wolden to be moored, for all these thinges, he called his moether, & counceled her to saue hir sonne liue. And when he had exorted her with many wordes, she promised him, that she shoulde speake vnto hir sonne. So she turned her vnto him (laughynge y cruel cruauite to saue) & spake w a boylde voyce: O my sonne, be not pite vpon me. y bare y. monethes in my wombe, that gaue the sucke, nourished the, and broughte the vp vnto this age. I bestowe (my slynnne) lokte vpon beautes and carny and all that is therein, and conside, that God made them and mans generacion of nauyghis shall thou not feare this hangman, but suffre death stedfastly, liue as thy biethren haue done: that I maye receaue the agayne in the same mercy with thy biethren.

Whyle she was yet speakinge these wordes, the yonge man sayde: Whom lokte yst? Wherfore do ye tary? I will not chere the kynges commaundement, but the lawe that God gaue vs by Moses. As for the that thou ymaginest all myschefe agaynst the Jewes, thou shalt not scape the bonde of God: for we suffre these thinges, because of our slynnne.

1 Although God be angry with us a litle while for chastening & reformation, yet shall he be at one agayne w his seruants for their. O shamefull & most abhominable persons. I praye not thy selfe thou maye hope in vengeance so malicious upon the seruantes of God: for thou hast not yet escaped the iudgement of the God, which is all mighty & seyth all thinges. My brethren that haue suffered a litle payne, are now vnder the iudgement of everlasting life: but thou the iudgement of God, then shalt be punyshed righteously for thy payne.

As for me like as my brethren haue bene I offer my soule & my body for the lawes of God, callinge upon God, & he will see one be shewfull vnto the people: yete & w payne & punyshment to make the graunce. & he only is God. In me now & in my brethren & notably of the mightie God is an one, which righteously is iudged vpon all the people. Then the Kinge bynded in anger, was more cruell vpon him then vpon all the other, & tolde indignity, & he was so lightly regarded. So this yngre maye be vnderstanded, & put his trust stil in the LORD. Last of all after the sonnes, was the Kinge put to death also. Let this now be prouly spoken, concerninge the offeringes, & the same cruellnesse. The viij. Chapter.

1 When Judas Machabeus and they were w him, were prynces in to the countie, called their kinfolkes & fren-des together, toke vnto them all such as contained yet in the faith & lawe of the Jewes, and broughte forth vi. M. men. So they called vpon the LORD, & he wolde haue an eye vnto his people, which was trodded downe of many: to be gracious vnto the people, & was despyed of the ungodly: to haue compassion vpon the destruction of the cite, (which was bounde yllike to be laied waste) to heare the crye of the bloud: & cried vnto him: to reme-ber the most vnrigheteous dearches of yonge weemen children, the blasphemies also done vnto his name, & to punyssh the. Now when Machabeus had gathered this multitude together, he was so mightie for the heathen that the Kinge of the Jewes was turned in to fear: he fell vpon the countie & cities vnanua bent them, toke the most comodious places, & steme many of the enemies. But specially he made such chace by night, in so much that his manlynesse was spoken of every where.

When Philippe sawe that the man infamous by litle and litle, and that the matter passed wch him for the most parts: he retore vnto Ptolomy (which was a captay-ne in Calosina & Phenicia) helpe him in the Kinges busynes. The Kinge he Licianus Parocli (a speciall frende of his in all the haile, & gave him of the comon sorte of the heathen no lesse then xx. M. harnessed men, to rote out the whole generacion of the Jewes, hauinge to helpe him one Gorgias a man of warre, which in matters concerninge battayls had greates experience. Licianus ordeined also the rebuz (which the Romaynes shalde haue had) to be geuen vnto the Kinge, out of the captayre of the Jewes, namely ij. M. salentes. And immediatly he sent to the cities of the coast, requyng the Kinge to bye Jewes to be their seruantes & bonde men, promisyng to fill them lxxx. And ten for one salente: but he considered not the wrath of almighty God, & was to come vpon him.

When Judas knewe of this, he tolde the Jewes & wote w him, of Licianus comyng.
Now were there some of them fearfull, not trustyng vnto the righteousnes of God and sled their waye. But the other & remayned, came together & besoughe the LORD, to deliuer the Kinge & wted Licianus, which had sold the Kinge: he came nye them: and though he wolde not do it for their sake, yet for the conuauant that he made w their fathers, & because they called vpon his holy glorious name. And so Machabeus called his men together, namely aboute vi. M. exor-tinge them not to agree vnto their enemies, neither to be afrayed for the multitude of their aduersaries comyng agaynst them unrighte-ously: but to fight manly, consideringe the repute that they had done to the holy place withour cause, how they had despyed and oppressed the cite, yee and despyed the lawes of the fathers. For they (saye he) trust in their weapens and boldnesse, but ouer confidence is in the almighty LORD, which is the rewardinge of an eye maye both destroye them that come agaynst vs, and all the world.

He exorted them also to call to remembra-ce the helpe, that God shewed vnto their fathers: as when they perished and. & lxxx. M.

the Kinge was geuen them from heauen, whereby they all had receaued many benefites.

followed vpon them on euery syde. But whē the tyme came vpon them, they returned, for it was the Sabbath, and therefore they followed nomore vpon them. So they toke which had deliuered them that daye, and shewed them his mercy. After the Sabbath they distributed the spoylez to the sicke, to 3

Deu. 20. b

Of those also that were with Timotheus and Bachides, which fought agaynst them, they slewe xx. M. manne byt and stronge boldes, and deuided moo spoylez: euer geuyng an equall portion vnto 3 sicke, to 3 fatherles to wyddowes & to aged persons. And when they had diligently gathered their weaples together, they layed them all in convenient places, & the remanent of 3 spoylez brought they to Jerusalem. They slewe Phylarchus that wicked personne, which was with Ti-motheus, and had weded many Jewes. And when they helde the thanksguyng in Jerusalem for the victory, they diene those that had set fire on the portes of the temple: namely Calisbemes, which was fled in to an houz: and so they gat a worthy rewarde for their wickednesse. As for that most uncious Ticanor, which had brought a spousants marchalres, to bye the Jewes: he was thorow 3 helpe of the LORD: brought downe, euen of them whom he regarded not: in so much that he pur of his glorious raimet, slewed by sear, and came alone to Antioch great shame & dishonour, which he gat from the destruction of his hooft. Thus he 3 promysed the Romaynes to paye the tribute, when he toke Jerusalem: began now to saye planely, that God was 3 defender of the Jewes, & therefore not possible to dooude them, because they followed 3 lawes which God had made.

The IX. Chapter.

At the same tyme came Antiochus againg with dishonour out of Persia.
For when he came to Persepolis, and went toke to robbe the temple and to sithen the citie, the people ranne together and sifted them selues, in so much 3 he had more saue to fle with shame. And so after that flight, it happened, that Antiochus came agayne with dishonour. But when he came to Bethsatha, he gat knowledge what was happened vnto Ticanor Timotheus.
Now as he was awauninge himselfe in wrath, he thought he was able to stoppe the injury that was done to them, vnto the Jewes: and therefore commaundeth him ready his charer, haistinge on his waye without cessinge: the indignite of God to vobryng him, because he had spelt 3 ly, that he wolde come to Jerusalem, and make it a grave of the Jewes. But the LORD God of Israel, that seith all things, sent him with an invisible plague, which man coude heale.

For as soone as he had spoken these wodes, there came vpon him an horrible paine of his bowels, & a sore greife of the thame.
And 3 was but righe: for he had marred other mens bowels with dyartres and singuler toimentes, how be it he wolde in no ceasse from his malice. For he was yet prouder, and more malicions agaynst the Jewes: But why he was commaundeth to make haist in the matter, it happened he fell downe violentlye frome the charer, it brusht his body, & dyd him greauous paine.

And so he that thought he might commaunde 3 floudes of the sea (so proud he be beyonde the condicions of man) and to the hye mountaynes in a paye of wordes, was now brought downe to the ground: carried vpon an horslyce, the mlegyng 3 manifest power of God upon him: so that his body of his was full of sores, which in his payne fill quyd out of his skin: In so much that his haire was greued with the smell and styncke of him. Thus he that a lile a fowle thought he myght reach to the starres of heauen, him myght no man stande neer beate, for the vehemence of styncke.

Therefore he beyng broughte from his greue pryde, began for to come to y knowledge of hum self: for the punishment of God wroth him, & his payne increased euer more: more. And when he him self myght not wyche his owne styncke, he sayde these wor-des: For reason to be obedient vnto God, & that a man desire not to be like vnto him.
 This wretched personne prayed also vnto the LORD, of whom he shulde haue obtained money. And as for the cite that he came was so haiffely, to bringe it downe to the grounde, & to make it a graue for dead men: now he desired to destroye it. And as to thinge of Jewes, whom he had subged, nor wold he be buried, but wolde haue cast the same into the deuoured of the foules and wylde bestes, sayenge, that he wolde haue destroyede olde and yonger: For he promys-sh, to make the like of carysims of Athens.
 And where as he had spoyled the holy temple afore, now he wold make promysse to garnish it with greate giftes, to increase the holy ornaments, and of his owne remes to beare the costes and charges belonginge to the offeringes: yee and that he wolde also become a Jewe him self, to go thorow every place of the world, and to preach the power of God.

But when his paynes wolde not cease, for the righteous iudgment of God was comē upon him: for of a very despaine he rootūdo the Jewes a lecture of intercession, & praye these wordes: The kynge and prynce Antiochus wyll send vnto the vertuous citizens of the Jewes, much healeth and good prosperite.

If ye and youre children fare well, and if all things go after youre mynde: we ge-ue greate thankes. In my sicke state also do I remembre you louyngly: for as I came out of Persia, and was taken with sore biza-re: I thoughte it necessary to care for the comō weale. Forther despayre I in my self, but haue a good hope to escape this sickness.

But consideryng that my father led an honeste lyfe in y hyer places, & shewed what he shalde raigne a fter him, that yf there happened any cōtrouersy, or any harde thinge were declared, they in the lorde myght knowe their chiefe lorde, & that shalde be no insurrection: Agayne, when I pōnde by my self, how that all y mightie men and neighbours rounde aboute, are laynge waite, and lette but for oportunitie to do harme: I haue ordered that my sonne Antiochus shal raigne after me, whom I oft commended to many of you, when I was in the hyer kyngho-mes, and haue wyrtē vnto him as it fol-loweth here fter. Therefore I praye you and requyre you, to remembre the benefites that I haue done vnto you generally and in speciall. For I hope that he shall be of sober & lowlyng behauiour, and yf he folowe me by wyce, he shal be indifferent vnto you.

Thus that murderer and blasphemour of God was foue synners: and like as he had treated other men, so he dyed a miserable death in a strangers countie vpon a mountaing. And his body byd Philippe (that we call with him) carry awaye: which carryng the sonne of Antiochus, wente into Egyp-te to Ptolomy Philometer.

The X. Chapter.

Now the helpe of the LORD, man ne the temple and the cite agayne, destroyed the altiers and chapels that the genthe had buylde thorow the strettes: clen-sed the temple, made another altar of bea-ste stone, and after ij. yeares they offered sacrifices, set forth the incense, the lightes and shewes died. When that was done, they fell to worshippinge vpon the grounde, and besoughe the LORD, that they myght come nomore into soch trouble: but yf they synned any more agaynst him, he him self to chasten them with mercy, and not to come in the honde of those aleuantes and blasphemous men.

Now vpon the same daye that y straun-gers polued the temple, it happened that on the very same daye it was clenfed agayne. namely, the xij. daye of the moneth called Casle. They kept viij. dayes in glad-nesse, like as in the feast of the tabernacles: remembryng that not longe a fow, they had be the staffe of y cabarnades vpon the mount taynes and in denues like bestes. And to y same token they bare greue bones, biazanches and palmes before him that had geuen them good fortune to clenfe his place. They agreed also to gather, and make a statute, y every yeare those dayes shalde be solemnly kepte of all the people of the Jewes.

The ij. booke of the Machabees.

How Antiochus then (that was called the noble) dyed, it is sufficiently tolde. Now wil we speake of Titianus the sonne of that wicked Antiochus, how it happened with him: and so with few wordes to comprehend the abovesaid that chaunced in y^e warres. When he had taken in the Kingdome, he made one Lysias (which had bene captayne of the hoost in Phenices and Syria) ruler ouer the matters of the realme. For Proximus that was called Mithron, beyng a ruler for the Jewes, and specially, to see in iudgment for such wronges as was done vnto them; vnderooke to deale peaceably with them. For the which cause he was accused of the frenches before Mithron: and when he was suscepte to be a traytour: because he had left Cyprus, that Philometus had committed vnto him: and because he departed from noble Antiochus, that he was come vnto, he poisoned himself, and dyed.

Now when Gorgias was gouernour of the same places, he tolde strangers and vnderooke oft tymes to warre with y^e Jewes. Moreover the Idumeans that helde the strong holdes, receaued those that were driven from Jerusalem, and toke in hande to warre also. But they that were with Machabees, besoughe and prayed vnto the LORD, that he wolde be their helpe: and so they fell in to the stronge holdes of the Idumeans, & wanne many places by strength: Such as came agaynst them they slew, and kylled no lesse (of all together) then twentye thousande. & were the lesse some (no lesse then syn: thousande) were fled in to two stronge holdes, hauyng: all maner of ordinaunce to withstande them.

Then Machabees leauyng Symon, Josephus, Zacharius and those that were with them, (which were very many) wente to besiege the, and to fight where most nebe was. Now they that were with Symon beyng led with covetousnesse, were increased for money, thowis certayne of those that laye in the towere: toke the Mithron, & let some of them escape. But when it was tolde Machabees what had happened, he called y^e captaynes of the people together, accusyng those persones, that they had selde the brethren for money, and let the armies go. So he slew those traytours, & immediately wente in hande with the Idumeans. And when they had ordred them selues wylly with their waspens & hondes, they flew in y^e two castles moe the twelue thousande.

Now Timotheus whom the Jewes had overcome afore, gathered a multitude of strange people, broughte an hoost also of boyssmen of the Asians, to wyne Ierusalem strength. But when he drewe nye, Machabees and they that were wth him fell to their prayer, spenclede ashes vpon their heades, beyng rydded wth hayre cloth aboute their loines, selbourne before y^e altar, & besoughe the LORD that he wolde be mercifull to them, but an enemy vnto their enemies, and to eade parte agaynst their aduersaries, accordinge as it is promised in the lawe. So after the prayer, they wente on further from the cite: and when they came nye the enemies, they prepared them selues agaynst them.

And by tymes in the morninge at fower of the daye, both the hoostes dailde together. The one parte had the LORD for their refuge, which is the greut of strength, strength and victory. The other had a ml lystand, which is a capeayne of warre.

 The battayll now beinge greate, there appeared unto the enemies from heauen v.
 21 out upon horsbacke with byrdes of golde.
 22 Amonge the Jewes, and two of them haueyn ge Machabeus bewrayce them, & keepe him safe on euery syde wth their reapeis, but thee ianes and lighte wynges upon the enemies. there chosyn they were confounded with thynesse and so faste afrayed, that they fell downe. There were slayne of foote men euen eithersande and fyue hundred, and sixe hu 23 dred horsmen. As for Timotheus him self, he fled into Gazar a very ströge holde, whe re Cereas was capeayne. But Machabeus and his company layed sege to it cheerfully 24 aij. dayes. And they that were within, cruf unge to the strength of the place, cursed & 25 lauded ceaseingly, and made greate cra gings with wicket wordeo. Twentehesse upon the fiftie daye in the morninge, xv. thou sand men of Machabeus cöpany, beinge set on fire in their myndes because of the blas phemy: came mansfully vnto the wall, and with bolde stomaches they and their other companions clymmed vp upon the towres, 26 and reueralyuge to sic fyue upon the poites, & in some those blasphemous persones quye k. Two dayes were they destroyenge the wall, which when they founde Timotheus that was crept in to a corner, they kyled him, and sterte Cereas his brother in like ma ner with Appollophaneos. When this was done, they sunge psalmes, with playes and thanksgyuynges vnto the LORDE, which had done so greate thynges for Israel, & ge neratione the victory.

The XI. Chapter.

 pany knew that the stronge holdeo were ta ken, they fell to their prayers with weeping and teares before the LORDE: and all the people in like maner besoughe him, that he wolde sende a good angell to deliuer Israel.
 Machabeus him self was the first that ma de him readye the battayll, & cryinge the other that were with him, to isperde them selues and to helpe their brethir. And when they were goyunge forth of Jerusalem ege re appeared before the upon horsbacke a mā in whyte clothyng with harness of gol de, shakinge his speare. Then they played 30 the LORDE all together, which had shewed them mercy, and were consorted in their mys deu: in so much that they were ready, not on ly to fyghe with men, but with y^e most cruell bestes, yee and to ranne throughe walles of Thus they went on wyllyngly hauryng an helper from heaue, and the LORDE mer cifully vnto them. They fell mightely vpon their enemies like Lyons, broughte downe xi.

 helpe of Almighty God, were not able to be overcome: wherfore he sent them worde, and promised, that he wolde confinne to all thynges which were reasonable, and to ma ke the Lynge their frede. To the which pay er of Lysias Machabeus a greed, semyng all thynges the comon wealthe: and what so euer Machabeus wrote vnto Lysias cöer 33 uing the Jewes, the Lynge graunted it.
 For there were letters writte vnto y^e Jewes from Lysias concerninge these wordes.

D Lysias sendeth greeting to the people of the Jewes. Iohn and Abisalon which were sent from you, deliuered me many things, and requyred me to fulfill the thinges concernynge their earande. Therefore lette what mighte be graunted, I certified I synge therof: and what so euer was comement, I agreed thereto. If ye now will be faithfull in the matters, I shal embouer my self hereafter also to do you good. As concernynge other thinges by every article therof: I have committed them to youre messungers, and to chese whom I sint vnto you, to comon with you of the same, fare ye well. In the vij. daies and xlvij. years, the xxij. daye of the moneth Diocetenebins.

¶ How the synge leere concerneth these ryces: A synge Antiochus sendeth gretinge vnto his brother Lysias. For so much as oure father is now deed, oure will is, that they which are in oure realme, haue without eny infurrecion, and euery man to be diligent in his owne matters. We vnderstande also, that the Jewes wolde not consent to oure father, for to be brought vnto the custome of the Gentiles, but stiffly to kepe their owne statutes: for the which cause they requyre of vs also, let them remayne still by their owne lawes.

¶ Wherfore oure minde is, that this people shalbe in rest: we haue concluded and determined also, to restore them their temple agayne: that they maye lyue accordinge to the vfe & custome of their forefathers. Then shalbe do vs a please therfor, if ye thinke vnto them & agree with them: that when they are certified of oure mynde, they maye be of good chere, and lette to their owne wealth.

And this was the leere, that the synge wroote vnto the Jewes: A synge Antiochus sendeth gretinge vnto the counsell and the other people of the Jewes. If ye fare well, we haue oure desyre: as for vs, we are in good health. Menelaus came and tolde vs, how I youre desyre was to come vnto youre people, which are with vs.

¶ Wherfore these that will come, we geue them five liberte, vnto the xxx. daye of the moneth of Apriill, that they maye vse I meates of the Jewes and their owne lawes, like as aforesaid: and none of them by eny manner of waye to haue haime, for thinges done in ignouance. Menelaus whom we haue sint vnto you, shal comon with you at large, fare ye well. In the Cxlvij. years, the xv. daye of the moneth of Apriill.

The Romaynes also sint a leere, conteynyng these wordes: Quintus Metellus & Titus Metellus embassatours of the Romaynes, sende gretinge vnto the people of the Jewes. Lette what Lysias the synge kynsman hath graunted you, we graunte you the same also. But as concernynge the thinges which he referred vnto the synge, sende hither some with speche: and p̄dūctre matter diligently amonge youre selues, that we maye cast I best to youre profice, for we must departe now vnto Antiochus. And therfore wryte shortly agayne, that we maye knowe youre mynde. Fare well. In the lxxvij. years, the xv. daye of the moneth of Apriill.

The xii. Chapter.

¶ These cōuenances were made: Lysias wente vnto the synge, and I Ieremias called char grounde. But Timotheus, Appollonius the sonne of Geminus, Jeremie and Dromophon I prioste, Alcanor I captayne of Cyprus, and they the laye in those places: wolde not lette them lyue in rest and peace. They of Joppa also thē even soch a shamefull dede: They payed I Jewes that dwelt amonge them, to go with their wyues and children in to the shippes which they had prepared, & to go with them, as though they had enged them so well as yet. For so much then as there was you forth a generall proclamacon thē so, for because of peace, they confirmed them, and suspecte nothinge: but when they wente forth in to the shippes, they bounde them then v. c. of them.

When Judas knew of this cruelle shew vnto his people, he commaunded those that were with him to make them ready, & to charge them to call vpon God the righteous iudge: wete soch agaynst those maner of his chaunce, for hee in I haue by night burnt up I shippes, and those that stode from the fyre, he slewe with the sword. And when he had done this, he departed: though he wolde come agayne, and rescue all them of Joppa. But when he had gonne word that the Jamnites were mynde to do in like maner vnto I Jewes which dwelt amonge them, he came vnto the Iamnia by night, and set fyre in the haven with the shippes: so that the lighte of the fyre was seene at Ierusalem, open a i. c. x. furlonges.

Now when they were gone from thence, I furlonges, in their Iourney towards Ermetheus: v. thousande men of foot and a hundred hoisemen of the Arabians sup-with him. So when the batell was earnest, and prospered with Judas thow the helpe of God: y^e residue of the Arabians began to come, besoughe Judas to be at one with them, and promised to geve him certayn pastures, and to do him good in ocher thinges. Judas thynkyng that they shoulde in due be profitable concernyng many thynge, promised them peace: wherupon they hid handes, and so they departed to their tentes. Judas wente also vnto a cite, which was very safe vnto w^{al}les, & dyuerse kyndes of people dwelling therein, called Caspin.

They that were within it, put sodi trust in the strength of the walles, & in their store of vntails: that they were the flacker in their downges, cursing and reuyling Judas with blasphemies, and speakyng sodi wordes as it becometh not. But Machabees callinge vpon the greates prync of y^e world (which without eny batayll ranime or ordinance of warre, by cast downe the walles of Jericho, in the tyme of Josaphat manfully vpon the walles, to be the ci- tadele thow the helpe of the LORDE made an exceeding greates slaughter: In so much that a lake of ij. furloges brode which lay there by, semed to flowe with the bloude of the slayne.

Then departed they from thence vij. C. and furlonges, and came to Tarsa vnto 3 Jewes that are called Tubianes. But as for Timotheus, they coude not geve him cher: for noe one matter dispatched, he was departed from thence, and had lesse certayne men in a very stronge holde. But Dositheus and Sosipater which were captaynes with Machabees, slewe those 3 Timotheus had lesse in the house of defence, euen x. M. men. And Machabees prepared him with y^e vij. M. men 3 were aboute him, for them in order by companies, and wente forth agaynst Timotheus, which had with him an C. and xx. M. men of foce, ij. M. and v. C. hoisim.

When Timotheus had knowlege of Judas comynge, he sent the women, children and the ocher baggage vnto a castell called Carnion. (For it coude not be wonne, & was harde to come vnto, the wayes of the same places were so narrow) and when Judas company came first in sight, the enemies were stricken with feare, thow the presence of God, which syth all thinges: In so much 3 they sleynge one here, another there, were rather discomfited of their owne people, & noyted to the strokes of their owne swordes. Judas also was very earnest in folowynge vpon them and punyshing those vngodly, and slewe xxx. M. men of them. Timotheus also himself fell in to the handes of Dositheus & Sosipater, whom he besoughe with many prayes, to let him go with his life: because he had many of the Jewes fathers and bretheren in prison, which yf they put him to death myght be disapoynted. So when he had promised faithfull to deliuer them agayne accordinge to the condicion made, they let him go without harme. for the health of y^e church. And when Judas had slayne xxv. M. he wente from Carnion.

Now after 3 he had chased awaye & slayne his enemies, he remoned the hoost towards Ephron a stronge cite, wherin dwelt many dyuerse people of the Scythians, and y^e stronge yonge men kepte the walles, defendinge the mightely. In this cite was much ordinance, and prouision of darters. But when Judas and his company had called vpon Almighty God, (which to his power breaketh the strengthe of the enemies) they wanne the cite, and slew xxv. M. of them 3 were within. From thence wente they to the cite of the Scythians, which lieth vi. C. furlonges from Jerusalem. But when y^e Jewes which were in the cite testified, that the cite shoulde be deliuered to them, yee and intrated them kindly in 3 tyme of their aduersite, Judas and his company gaue them him (which made them his people, and euer be sent his owne portion with euident to lena) that he wolde perswade them still. So at the commaundement of the captaine, they removed from thence, and came to a towne called Bethsai. And Symon Judas brother fell in honde with Licanor, but thow the sodane commynge of the enemies he was a fraye.

Demetrius Licanor hearinge the manlynes of them that were with Judas, and y bolde stomakes that they had to fight for their naturall countrie, durst not pious the matter with bloodsheddinge. Wherefore he sent Possidonius, Throdocius & Mathias before, to gaze and to take peace. So when they had taken longe aduysiment there vpon, and the captaine shewed it vnto the multitude they were a troob in one mynde, to haue peace. And they appoynted a daye to sit vpon these matters quietly amonge them selues, y foles alio were brought and set forth. Demetrius Judas commaunded certaine men of armes to waite in conuenient place, lest there shulde sodenly arise any euill choise of the enemies. And so they commoned reasonably together.

D Licanor, whye he abode at Jerusalem, ordeed himself not vnrasonably, but sent awaye the people that were gathered together. He loued Judas euer with his heart, and fauoured him. He prayed him also to take a wyfe, and to bringe forth children. So he married, luyed in rest, and they led a comon life. But Nicimus perceauynge the lone that was betwixt them, and how they were agreed together, came to Demetrius, and tolde him that Licanor had taken straunge matters in honde, and ordeed Judas (an enemy of the realme) to be the kynge successeur. Then the kynge was sore displeasid, and thow the wicked accusations which Nicimus made of Licanor, he was so prouoked, that he wrote vnto Licanor, sayynge: that he was very angry for the friendship and agreement, which he had made with Machabens. Demetrius he commaunded him in all the haist, that he shulde take Machabeus prisoner, and sente him to Antioche.

E Which letters when Licanor had sente, he was at his wyces ende, and sore grieved, that he shulde beate the thinge, wherein they had agreed: specially, kynge Machabeus was the man, that neuer dyd him harme. But because he might not wishcom be the kynge, he sought oportunitie to fulfil his commaundement. Therwithstandynge when Machabeus sawe that Licanor beganne to be churlish vnto him, and that he increased him more roughly then he was wont, he perceaued that sodenly vnto him came not of good, and therefore he gathered a few of his men, and withtake himself his Licanor. Which when he knewe that Machabeus had manfully presented him, he came in to the great and most holy temple and commaunded the prestes (which were doyng their vsuall offeringes) to despayse him the man. And when they sawe that they coude not tell, where the man was, he sought, he stretcht out his hande, and made an oath, sayynge: If ye will not despayse me Judas captaine, I shall remove this temple of God in to the playne side. I shal beate downe the altar, and consecrate this temple vnto Bachus. After these wordes he departed.

Then the prestes lift vp their hands toward heauen, and besoughe him that was the defendour of their people, sayynge: Thou O LORDE of all, which hast nede of noching, woldest that the temple of habitation shulde be amonge vs. Therfor now (O most holy LORDE): respect haue euer vnto thised, which lately was despoiled. Now was there accused vnto Licanor, one Razis an Alderman of Jerusalem, a leuer of the whole cite, and a man of good reputacion which for the kynge here that he bare vnto the people, was called a father of y Jewes. This man of tymes (when the Jewes were mynded to kepe them selues vnto thised) defended and deluyered them, beinge accused fastly to spende his body and his life for his people.

So Licanor willinge to declare the better, that he bare to the Jewes, sent first hundred men to take him: for he charynghe, yf he gat him, he shulde bringe the Jewes in grace to decaie. Now when the people beganne to rushe in at his house, to beate the doore, and to see nye on it: he beinge now taken, wolde haue defended himself with his sword: chosynge rather to dye manfully, then to yelde himselfe to those wicked doers: and because of his noble stouffe, he had rather than bene put to extreme crueltie.

Therwithstandynge what tyme he was mysse of his stroke for haist, and the multitude fell in violently betwixt the doers: he same boldly to y wall, & cast himselfe downe manfully amonge the heape of them, which gave some place to his fall, so that he fell upon his body. Nevertheless in hyle there was yet breache within him, he was synbolized in his mynde: and whyle his bloude gusheth out exceedingly (for he was very sore wounded) he rante throum the myddest of y people, and gat him to the toppe of a rocke. So when his bloude was new gone, he toke out his owne bowels with both his handes, and threw them upon the people: calling upon the LORDE of life and speere, to remembre him this agayne, and so he dyed.

The XV. Chapter.

When Licanius knewe that Judas was in the countre of Samaria, he thoughte with all his power to resiste a feilde with him upon a Sabbath daye. Nevertheless the Jewes that were compelled to go with him, sayde: O do not sacrilegiously and unkindly, but halowe y Sabbath daye, and worships him that sayth all things. For all this, yet sayde the ungracious performe: So there a mightie one in heauen, that commaunded the Sabbath daye to be kepte. And when they sayde: yet the lyvinge God, the mightie LORDE in heauen commaunded the seventh daye to be kepte, he sayde: And I am mightie upon earth, to commaunde them for to arme them selves, and to perfourme the thynges busynesse. Nevertheless if he might not have his purpose.

Licanius had denyed with greates pryde to overcome Judas, and to bringe awaye y victory. But Machabees had ever a fass confidence and a perfecte hope in God that he wolde helpe him, and exorted his people, not to be afrayed at the commynge of the heathen: but alwaye to remembre the helpe that had bene shewed unto them from heauen, yet and to be sure new also, y Almighty God wolde geve them the victory. He spake unto them out of the lawe and prophete, puttinge them in remembrance of the battaile, that they had stricken a fore, & made them to be of a good courage.

So when their hartes were plucked up, he shewed them also the discautfulnesse of the heathen, and how they wolde kepe no countenance thereof. Thus he weapened them not with the armour of shyld and speare, but with holowme wordes and exortacions. He shewed them a dyame also, wherthorow he made them all glad. which was this: he thoughte that he sawe Onias (which had bene hys prest, a virtuous & lowngyr man, sub. and of honest conversation, well spoken, and one that had bene exercised in goodlynes frs a childe: holdinge up his handes towards heauen, and prayenge for his people. A fter this there appeared unto him another man, which was aged, honourable and glorions. And Onias sayde: This is a lewte of the brethren, and of the people of Israel. This is he that prayeth much for the people, and for all the holy cite: Jeremy the prophet of God. He thoughte also y Jeremy helde out his righte hyde, and gave him (namely unto Judas) a sircarde of golde, sayenge: Take this holy swearde, a gifte from God, wherewith thou shalt synge downe the enemies of the people of Israel.

And so they were wel comforted throum the wordes of Judas, and toke courage unto this, so that the yonge men were detemid in their myndes to fighte, & to byde stiffly at it. In so much that in the thynges which they toke in hande, their boldnesse shewed the same, because the holy cite and the temple were in perill: for the which they toke more care, then for their wyves, children, brethren and kynfolkes. Agayne, they that were in the cite, were most carefull for those which were to fighte. Now when they were all in a hope that the iudgment of the matter was at hande, and the enemies drew nrye, the hoost beynge set in aray, the Elephanes and howsims every one standinge in his place; Machabees considered the commynge of the multitude, the ordinaunce of divers weapons, the cruellnesse of the bestes, and helde up his handes towards heauen, callinge upon the LORDE that doth wonders, which geueth not the victory after the multitude of weapons and power of the hoost (but so that please him) accordinge to his owne will. Therfore in his prayer he sayde these wordes:

O LORDE, thou that biddest sende thine angell in the tyme of Sennachibes kynge of Judas, and in the hoost of Sennachibes slenest an hundred and fyve and foure score thousande: sende now also thy good angell before us, O LORDE of heauen, in the fearfullnesse and tude of thy mightie arm, that they which come agaynst thy holy people to blaspheme them, maye be strayed. And so he made an ende of his wordes. Then Licanius and they that were with him, drew nrye with shawmes and songes: but Judas and his company with prayer and callinge upon God.

¶ And when they left of, and were turninge agayne with ioye, they vnderstode that Titicanos himself was slayne with the other. Then they gave a greates shoute and a crie, playnginge the almighty LORDE with a loud voyce. And Judas (which was ever ready to spende his body and life for his cittyzens) commaunded to smyte of Titicanos heade, with his arme and honde, and to be brought to Jerusalem. When he came there, he called all the people, and the prestes at the altar with those that were in the castell, and shewed them Titicanos heade, and his right honde, which he had presumptuously holden up agaynst the temple of God. He caused the tonge also of that vngodly Titicanos to be cut in litle peeces, and to be cast to the foules, and the cruel mans honde to

As for Titicanos heade, he hanged it up vpon the hye castell, for an example and playne token of the helpe of God. And so they agreed all together, to kepe that daye here namely the xiiij. daye of the month Adar, which in the Syriac language is called the next day before Mardocheus daye. This was Titicanos slayne, and from that tyme forth the Jewes had the cite in possession. And here will I now vnderstande the ende.

The Gospel of S. Mathew.

The first Chapter.

Ihis is the booke of the generation of Iesus Christ, the sonne of Dauid, the sonne of Abrahā. Abrahā begat Isaac: Isaac begat Jacob: Jacob begat Iudas & his brethren: Iudas begat Pharis & Sara of Chamara: Pharis begat Esrom: Esrom begat Aram: Aram begat Amnadaab: Amnadaab begat Naasson: Naasson begat Salmon: Salmon begat Dooe of Rahab: Dooe begat Obed of Rary: Obed begat Jesse: Jesse begat Dauid the Kyng: Dauid the Kyng begat Salomon, of her that was the wyfe of Dary: Salomon begat Roboam: Roboam begat Abia: Abia begat Asa: Asa begat Josaphat: Josaphat begat Joasam: Joasam begat Othias: Othias begat Joasabam: Joasabam begat Achas: Achas begat Ezechias: Ezechias begat Manasse: Manasse begat Amos: Amos begat Josias: Josias begat Iechonias and his brethren aboute the tyme of the captiuyte of Babylon. And after the captiuyte of Babylon, Iechonias begat Salathiel: Salathiel begat Zorobabel:

Zorobabel begat Abiubi: Abiubi begat Eliachim: Eliachim begat Azor: Azor begat Saboc: Saboc begat Achin: Achin begat Eliud: Eliud begat Eleasar: Eleasar begat Matthan: Matthan begat Jacob: Jacob begat Joseph the husbande of Mary, of who was borne that Iesus, which is called Christ.

All the generacions from Abrahā to Dauid are fouente generacions: from Dauid vnto the captiuyte of Babylon, are fouente generacions. From the captiuyte of Babylon vnto Christ, are also fouente generacions.

The byrth of Christ was on thyo wyfe: When his mother Mary was married to Joseph before they came together, she was yōude with chylde by y holy goost. But Joseph her husbande was a perfect man, and wolde not bringe her to shame, but was mynded to put her awaie secretly. But whyle he thus thought, beholde, the angell of the LORDE appered vnto him in a dreame, sayng: Joseph thou sonne of Dauid, feare not to take vnto the Mary thy wyfe. For that which is conceiued in her, is of y holy goost. She shall bynne foeth a sonne, and thou shalt call his name Iesus. For he shall saue his people from their synnes.

All this was done, y the thinge mighte be fulfilled, which was spoken of the LORDE by the Prophet. Beholde, a mayde shall be with chylde, and shall bynne foeth a sonne, and they shall call his name Emanuel, which is by interpretation, God with vs.

Now when Joseph awoke out of slepe he did as the angell of y LORDE bade hym, and toke his wyfe vnto hym, and knewe her none, tyll she had broughte foeth hir first borne sonne, and called his name Iesus.

The ii. Chapter.

When Iesus was borne at Bethleem in Iary, in the tyme of Herodes the Kyng, Beholde, there came wyse men from the east to Ierusalem, sayng: Where is the new borne kynge of the Iewes? We haue seen his starr in the east, and are come to worship him.

When Herode y Kyng had herbe thys, he was troubled, & all Ierusalem with hym, and he gathered all the hie Pustres and Scribes of y people, & ased of them, where Christ shulde be borne. And they sayde mit to hym: at Bethleem in Iury. For thus it is written by the Prophet: And thou Bethleem litch. 4. a amonge the Princes of Iuda. For out of y shall come vnto me the captiue, that shall gouerne my people Iſrad.

Then Herod picauly called the wyse men, and byſigently enquired of them, what tyme the ſtarre appeared, and ſent them to Bethleem ſaying: Go, and ſearche byſigently for the chyld. And when ye haue founde hym, bringe me worde agayne, that I maye come and woſſhippe hym alſo.

When they had heard the kynge, they departed: and lo, the ſtarre which they ſawe in the eaſt, went before them, tyll it came, and ſtoode ouer the place where the chyld was.
 When they ſawe the ſtarre, they were mar-uelouſly gladd, and went into the houſe, and founde the chyld with Mary his mother, and ended downe, and woſſhipped hym, and offered chyrcuſures, and offered vnto hym gyffes: gold, frankyſync and myrr. And after they were warned of God in a dreame, that they ſhould not go againe to Herod, they returned into their owne countrey another waye.

When they were departed: beholde, the angell of the LORDE appeared to Joſeph in a dreame, ſayinge: ariſe, and take the chyld and his mother, and ſlye into Egipte, and abyde there tyll I bynne the worde. For Herod wyll ſeke the chyld to deſtroye hym: But he ariſe, and take the chyld and his mother by night, and departed into Egipte, and was there vnto the deeth of Herod, that the thinge might be fulfilled which was ſpoken of the LORDE, by the Prophet, which ſayeth: out of Egipte haue I called my ſonne.

Then Herod perceauynge that he was diſceaued of the wyſe men, was excecbyng wroth, and ſent ſouth, and ſlew all the chyliden that were in Bethleem, and in all the coaſtes therof, as many as were two yere olde and vnder, accordynge to the tyme which he had byſigently ſearched out of the wyſe men.

Then was fulfilled which was ſpoken by the Prophet Jeremy ſayinge: On y bulle was a voyce heard, greete moornynge, we-pynge, lamentacion: Rachel wepynge for her chyldren, and wolde not be comforted, becauſe they were noe.

When Herode was dead: beholde, an angell of the LORDE appeared in a dreame to Joſeph in Egipte, ſayinge: ariſe and take the chyld and his mother, and go into y londe of Iſrad. For they are dead, which ſought the chyldes life. And he aroſe up, and toke y chyld and his mother, and came into the londe of Iſrad. But when he heard that Archelaus the ſonne of Herode, he was afraid to go thither.

 And when he had heard that Archelaus was dead, he returned into Galilee, and went and dwelt in a cite called Nazareth, to fulfill what was ſpoken by the Prophetes: he ſhall be called a Nazarene.

The III. Chapeer.

At thoſe dayes Iohn the Baptiſt came and preached in the wildernes of Iury, ſayinge: Amide yone ſilnes, the kyngdome of heuen is at hand. This is he, of whom it is ſpoken by the Prophet Iſay, which ſayeth: The voyce of a cryer in y wil-dernes, prepare the LORDES waye, and make his pathes ſtraight.

This Iohn had his garment of camels heer, and a leather girdell aboute his loynes, his meate was locuſtes and wyde hony.
 Then went out to hym Jeruſalem, and all Iury, and all the region rounde aboute Iordan, and were baptiſed of hym in Jordanes ſiſſynge their ſynnes.

Now when he ſawe many of the Phari-ſes and of y Saducees come to his baptiſm, he ſayde vnto them: ye generacion of vipers, who hath ceſſed you, that ye ſhal ſcape y vengeance to come? Bewarre, bringe forth the frutes of penitencie. Thinke not now, to ſaye in your ſilnes, we haue Abraham our father. For I ſay vnto you, that God is able of theſe ſtones to raiſe vp chyldren vnto Abraham. Euen now is the acript vnto y roce of the tree: therfore every tree which bringeth not forth good frute, ſhall be hewen downe, and caſt into the fyre.

I baptiſe you with water to repentance:
 but he that cometh after me, is myghtier than I, whoſe ſhoes I am not worthy to be-re. He ſhall baptiſe you with y holy goſt and fire: which hath alſo his fan in his hand, and will poure his floore out, and gather the wheate into his garner, and burne the chaffe with vnquenchable fyre.

Then came Jeſus from Galilee to Jordan vnto Iohn, to be baptiſed of hym. But Iohn forbade hym, ſayinge: I haue neede to be baptiſed of the: and commeſt thou to me? Je-ſus answered: and commeth thou to me? Je-ſus answered: and ſayd vnto hym: Let it be ſo now. For thus it becommeth vs to fulfill all righteouſnes. Then he ſuffered hym. And Je-ſus aſſone as he was baptiſed, came ſtraight out of the water. And lo, heere was op'd our hym: and Iohn sawe the spirite of God descende like a dove, and lyyge upon hym. And lo, there came a voyce froe heve saying: This is that my beloved sonne, in whom is my delight.

The III. Chapter.

Then was Iesus ledd awaye of the spirite into wilderness, to be tempted of the devyll. And when he had fasted forty daies and fourtye nightes, he was afeard an hungred. And the tempter came to him and sayde: yf thou be the sonne of God, commaunde, that these stones be made bread. he answered & sayde: yt is wryte: Man shall not live by bread onely, but by every worde that procedeth out of the mouth of God.

Then the devyll toke hym up into the holy cite, and sic hym on a pynacle of the temple, and sayde unto hym: yf thou be sonne of God, cast thy selfe downe. For it is wryte: thou shalt geve thy angels charge over the and with theyr handes they shal holde the up, that thou wasthe not thy fore agaynst a stone. And Iesus sayde unto hym: yt is wryte small: Thou shalt not tempt thy LORD God.

Agayne, the devyll toke hym up and led hym into an exedynge hys mountayne, and shewed hym alle the kyngdomes of the world and all the glorie of them, and sayde unto hym: all these wil I geve the, yf thou wilt fall downe and worship me. Then sayde Jesus unto hym: Awaye be Satā. For it is wryte: thou shalt worship thy LORD thy God and hym onely shalt thou serve.

Then the devyll lefte hym, and behelde, the angels came and ministred unto hym.
When Iesus had herde that Iohn was taken, he departed into Galile and lefte Ca-sarea, and went and dwelt in Capernaum, which is a cite upon the see, in the coastes of sabalon and Terepalim. Ye be thinge mighte be fulfilled whiche was spoken by Iesay the prophet, sayinge: he londe of sabalon and Terepalim, the waye of the see beyonde Jordan, and Galile of the Genetylo, the people which sit in darknes, sawe a greate lyyght, & in them which sit in the region of shadowe of deeth, lyyght is begonne to shyne.

From that tyme forth beganne Iesus to preach, and to saye: Amend your selves, for kingdome of heaven is at hande.

As Iesus walked by the see of Galile, he saw two brethren: Simon which was called Peter, & Andrew his brother, castinge a net into the see, for they were fishers, and he sayde unto them: followe me, & I will make you fishers of men. And they straggled waye to see their nettes, and followed hym.

And when he was forth from thence, he sawe other two brethren, James the sonne of sebebe, and Iohn his brother, in the ship with zebede their father, mendinge their nettes, and called them. And they without taryng lefte the ship and their father, and followed hym.

And Iesus went aboute all Galile, teaching in their synagoges, and preachinge the gospell of the kyngdomes, and healed all manner of sicknesses, & all manner of diseases among the people. And his fame spred abrode through out all Siria. And they brought unto hym all sick people, that were taken with divers diseases and gripings, and they were possessed with devils, & those which were lunacye, and those that had the palsie: & he healed the. And they followed hym a greate nombre of people, from Galile, from the ten cities, and from Jerusalem, and from the regions that lye beyonde Jordan.

The V. Chapter.

When he sawe the people, he went up into a mountayne: and when he was se, his disciples came to hym, and he opened his mouth, and taught them, sayinge: Blessed are the poore in spi-rite: for theirs is the kyngdome of heave. Blessed are they that mourne: for they shal be comforted. Blessed are the meke: for they shall inherit the erth. Blessed are they which hon-ger & thurst for rightewnesse: for they shal be filled. Blessed are the mercifull: for they shall obteyne mercy. Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God. Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shal be called the children of God. Blessed are they which suffre persecution for rightewnesse sake: for theirs is the kyngdome of heven. Blessed are ye when men revyle you, and persecute you, and falsly say all manner of euell say-nges agaynst you for my sake. Reioyce and be glad, for greace is youre reward in heve.

For so persecuted they the prophetes which were before youre daies.

Ye are the salt of the earth, but if the salt have lost his saltenesse, wher can he be salted therwith? It is thence forth good for no-thinge, but to be cast out, and to be trodden under foot of men. Ye are the light of the world. A cite that is set on an hill, can not be hid: neither do men lyyge a candle, and put it vnder a bushell, but on a candlestick, and is lighted all that are in the house. Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good workes, and glorify you re father which is in heauen.

Thinke not, that I am come to destroye the lawe, or the Prophetes: no, I am not come to destroye them, but to fulfill them. For truly I saye vnto you: till heauen and earth perishe, one iote or one tittle of the lawe shall not escape, tyll all be fulfilled.

Whosoever breakech one of these least commandementes, and teacheth me so, he shalbe called the least in the Kingdome of heauen. But whosoever obserueth and teacheth the same shalbe called greate in the Kingdome of heauen.

For I saye vnto you: excepte youe righteinesse exceede the righteinesse of the Scribes and pharisees, ye can not entre in to the Kingdome of heauen.

Ye haue herde, how it was sayde to the of the elderes: Thou shalt not kyl. For whosoever kylleth, shall be in daunger of iudgement. But I saye vnto you: whosoever is angry with his brother, is in daunger of the iudgement. Whosoever sayeth vnto his brother: Racha, is in daunger of fy colliell. But whosoever sayeth: thou fool, is in daunger of hell fyre.

Therefore when thou offerest thy gift at the altare, and there rememberest that thy brother hath ought agaynst thee: leaue there thyne offeringe before the altare, and go thy waye first, and reconyle thy selfe to thy bro ther, & then come and offre thy gyfte.

Agree with thine aduersary quiclye, whyle thou art in the waye with hym, lest that aduersary deliuer thee to the iudge, and the iudge deliuer thee to the minister, and then thou be cast into prison. I saye vnto the: verily thou shalt not come out thence, till thou haue payed the vermost farthinge.

Ye haue herde, how it was sayde to them of folde tyme: Thou shalt not committe adouerie. But I saye vnto you, that whosoever looth on a wiffe lustinge a fete her, hath committed adouerie with hir already in his herte.

Wherfore if thy right eye offendeth thee, plucke hym out, and cast him from thee. Better it is for thee, that one of thy members perishe, then that thy whole body shoulde be cast into hell. Also if thy right hand offendeth thee, cut hym off, and cast him from thee. Better it is that one of thy members perishe, thet þ all y body shoulde be cast into hell.

It is sayde: whosoener putteth awaye his wyfe, let hym geue her a testimonye of the diuorcement. But I saye vnto you: whosoener putteth awaye his wyfe: excepte he be for fornicacion; causeth her to beate many moun. And whosoener marryeth her that is deuorced, breakech wedlocke.

Agayne, ye haue herde, how it was sayde to the of olde tyme: Thou shalt not sweare thy selfe, but shalt performe thy ooth to God. But I saye vnto you: swere not at all, neither by heauē, for it is Gods feare: nor yet by the earth, for it is his fyrestole: neither by Jerusalem, for it is the cyte of þ greate kyng: neither shalt thou swere by thy heeb, because thou canst not make one heer whyte or blacke: But your communication shalbe, yee, yee: nay, nay. For what soener is more then that, commeth of euil.

Ye haue herde howe it is sayde: In an eye for an eye, a toth for a toth. But I saye vnto you: that ye resist not euil. But whosoever smiteth thee a blowe on thy right cheeke, turne to him the other also. And if any man will sue thee at the lawe, & take awaye thy coat, let him haue thy double also. And who so compelleth thee to go a myle, go with hym two myle. Geue to hym that asketh: and from hym that tolde diuorce, turne not awaye.

Ye haue herde, how it is sayde: thou shalt loue thine neyghboure, & hate thine enemy. But I saye vnto you: loue your enemies: Blesse thet that curse you: Do good to thet that hate you: Praye for thet which do you wronge and persecute you, that ye maye be the chyldren of youre father which is in heauen: for he maketh his sonne to aryse on the euil and on the good, and sendeth his rayne on the iust and vniuste. For if ye loue them which loue you, what rewardes shall ye haue: Do not the publicans euil so: And if ye be friendly to youre brethren onely: what is greater thyng do ye: Do not the publicans also lyke wyse: ye shall therfore be perfect, euen as youre father in heauen is perfect.

The VI. Chapter.
 The hebe of youre almes, that ye geue: it is not in the syghe of men, so the intente that ye wolde be sene of men: or els, ye get no reward of youre father which is in heauen. When soeuer therefore thou guesst thine almes, thou shalt not make a trompet to be blowne before the, as the hypocrites do in the synagoges and in the stretes, for to be payed of me. Verily I saye:

unto you: they haue their rewarde. But whē thou dost almes, let not thy left hande knowe, what thy righte hande doeth, that thine almes may be secreete: and thy father which seith in secreete, shall rewarde thee openly.

143 And when thou prayest, thou shalt not be as the hypocrites are. For they loue to stonde and praye in the synagoges, and in the corners of the strettes, to be seene of men. Verily I saie vnto you: they haue their rewarde. But when thou prayest, entre in to thy chamber, and shut thy dore to thee, & praye to thy father which is in secreete: and thy father which seith in secreete, shall rewarde thee openly.

144 And when ye praye, bable not much, as the heathen do: for they thinke that they shall be heard, for their much bawlynges sake. Do not ye lyke them therfore. For youre father knoweth wherof ye haue neede, be fore ye aske of him. After this maner therfore, shall ye praye:

145 O our father which art in heauen, hallowed be thy name. Thy Kingdome come. Thy will be fulfilled vpon earth as it is in heauen. Geue vs this daye our dayly bread. And forgie vs our dettes, as we also forgiue our detters. And lede vs not in to temptation: but deliuer vs from euell. For thine is the Kingdome, and the power, and the glorye for ever. Amen. For yf ye forgiue othert men their trespasses, youre heauenly father shall also forgiue you. But and ye will not forgiue mā their trespasses, neither shall youre father forgiue you youre trespasses.

146 Moreover when ye fast, be not sad as the hypocrites are. For they disfigure their faces, that they myght be seene of men to fast. Verily I saie vnto you: they haue their rewarde. But thou, when thou fastest, annoynt thine heed, and washy thy face, that it appere not vnto men, that thou fastest: but vnto thy father which is in secreete: and thy father which seith in secreete, shall rewarde thee openly.

147 Wherhat ye gather ye do not treasure vpon the earth, where rust and mothes corrupte, and wherethen beate throughe and steale. But gather you treasure together in heauen, where neither rust nor mothes corrupte, and wherethen beate vp nor yet steale. For wher your treasure is, ther is your heere also.

148 The eye is the lighte of the body. If thy righte eye be synge, all thy body shall be full of lighte: But and yf thyne eye be wyched, all thy body shall be full of darkenes: Wherfore yf the lighte that is in thee, be darkened, how greate then shall that darkenes be?

149 No mā can serue two masters. For either he shall hate the one and loue the other: or els he shall leaue to the one, and despyse the other: He can not serue God and mannon. Therfore I saie vnto you: be not ye carefull for your lyfte, what ye shall eate, or what ye shall drinke: nor yet for youre body, what ye shall put on. No nor the lyfe moche worth the meate, and the body moche of value then raymēt: Beholde the fowles of ayre: for they sowe not, neether reape, nor yet care in to the barnes: and yet your heauēly father feedeth they. See ye not much better the they?

150 Which of you (though he take thought therfore) coulde put one cubic vnto his stature: why care ye then for rayment? Considre the lilies of the filde, how they growe. They labour not, neether spynne. And yet for all that I saie vnto you, that euen Salomon in all his royale was not arrayed lyke vnto one of thes. Wherfore yf God so cloth the grasse, which is to daye in the filde, and to morrowe shall be cast in to the fowmace: shall he not much more do the same vnto you, o ye of lytle fayth?

151 Therfore take no thought, sayinge: what shall we eate, or what shall we drinke: or wherewith shall we be clothed? After all such thynges do the heauenly fete. For youre heauenly father knoweth, that ye haue neede of all these thynges. Seke ye first the Kingdome of heauen and the righte iustnes therof, so shall all these thynges be ministred vnto you.

Care not then for the morrow, for the morrow shall care for it self: Every daye hath ynough of his owne trauayll.

The vii. Chapter.

1 Whye not, that ye be not iudged? For as ye iudge, so shall ye be iudged. And with what measure ye meete, with the same shall it be measured to you agayne. Why seist thou a moace in thy brothers eye, and perceauest not the beamē in thine? Wherfore saye thou: O why failest thou to thy brother: holde, I will plucke the moace out of thyne eye, and beholdoe, a beamē is in thine? Wherfore saye thou: O why seist thou the beamē out of thyne eye, and then shalt thou se clearly, so plucke out the moace out of thy brothers eye.

Gene not that which is holy, to dogges: neither cast ye youre pearles before swyne, lest they create them vnder their feet, & the ocher trame agayne and all to reuise you.

Aye, and it shalbe geuen you: Seek, and ye shall fynde: no cōfesse, and it shalbe opened vnto you. For whosouer aseth, receaueth: and he that seeth, fyndeth: and to hym ꝑ Enocah, it shal be opened. As there eny man amonge you, which ys his some aged hym bred, wolde offer him a stone: Or ys he aged fyfthe, wolde he piosser hym a serpent: ys he then which are euell, can geue youre chyldren good gyftes: how moche more shall youre father which is in heauen, geue good thynges to them that aseth hym?

Therefore whas soeuer ys wolde that mē shulde do to you, cast so do ye to them. This ys the lawe and the Prophetes.

Enter in at the straye gate: for wyde is the gate, and broad is the way, that lea- deth to destruction: & many there be, which go in therat. But straye is the gate, and narrow ys the way, which lea- deth vnto lyfe, and fewe there be that fynde it.

Beware of falsē prophetes, which come to you in shepes clothinge, but inwardly they are rauynge wolues. Ye shall knowe them by their frutes. Do men gather grapes of thornes, or figges of thistles? Enter so euery good tree byngeth forth good frute. But a corrupte tree, byngeth forth euyl frute. A good tree can not bringe forth bad frute: neither can a rotten tree bringe forth good frute. Enery tree that byngeth not forth good frute, shalbe hewen downe, and cast into the fyre. Wherfore by their frutes ye shall knowe them.

For all they that saye vnto me, LORDE LORDE, shall enter in to the kyngdome of heauen: but he that doth the will of my father which ys in heauen.

Many shall saye to me in that daye: LORDE, LORDE: haue we not prophesied in thy name: haue we not cast out deuyls in thy name: haue we not done many greate deedes in thy name? And then will I knowe ge vnto them: I neuer knewe you, Departe fro me, ye workers of iniquite.

Whosouer therfore heareth of me these sayynges, and doeth the same, I will lycē hym vnto a wysse man, which buyle his housse vpon a rocke: How whan abundaunce of raynes descended, and the wyndes blew and her vpon that same house, it fell not, because it was grounded on the rocke. And who soeuer heareth of me these sayynges, & doth the same, shalbe lycēd vnto a folysh mā, which buyle his housse upon the sande: How whan abundaunce of rayne descended, & the wyndes blew, & bet vpon ꝑ housse, it fell, and great was the fall of it.

And it came to passe, that when Jesus had ended these sayynges, the people were astonnyed at his doctrine. For he taught them as one hauyng power, and not as the scribes.

The VIII. Chapter.

When he was come downe from the mountayne, moche people followed him. And so, there came a leper, and worshipped him, sayyng: LORDE, ys thou wylle, thou canst make me cleane. And Jesus put forth his hande, & touchēd him, sayyng: I wylle, be thou cleane: & immediately his leprosie was clenēd. And Jesus sayde vnto hym: Se thou tell no mā, but go and shew thy selfe to the priest, and offer the gyfte that Moses cōmanded, in witness to them.

When Jesus was entred into Capernaum, there came vnto him a Captaene, & bowght him, sayyng: Sy, my seruante lyeth sicke at home of the palsey, and ys greuously paymed. Jesus sayd vnto hym: I wil come & heale him. The Captaene answered and sayde: Sy, I am not worthy, that thou shouldest come vnder my roofe, but speake the worde only, and my seruante shall be healed. For I myselfe also am a mā subiect to ꝑ countour of another, & haue serued vnder me. Jesus saye to one: go, he geth, and to another: come, he cometh: & to my seruante: do this, he doeth it. When Jesus heardē that, he marvelled, and sayde to them that followed hym: Verely I say vnto you: I haue not founde so greatesayth: no not in Israel. But I say vnto you: Many shall come from the east and west, and shall rest with Abraham, Iaac and Jacob in the kyngdome of heauen: and the chyldren of the kyngdome shall be cast out to utter darthnes: there shall be weeping & gnashing of teeth. And Jesus sayd vnto ꝑ Captaene: go thy way, and as thou best, so be it vnto thee. And his seruante was healed the same houre.

And Jesus went in to Peters housse, and sawe his wyue moether synging sicke of a feuer: so he touchēd her hande, and the feuer left hir: and she arose, and ministered vnto them.

When the euen was come, they bowght unto him many that were possessed with devils. And he cast out of spirits unclean with a voice. And he healed all that were sicke, that of thing might be fulfilled, which was spoken by the saye the Prophet, sayinge the roke on him were iniquities, and bare our sinnes.

¶ When Jesus sawe moche people about him, he commaunded to go ouer the water. And there came a scribe and sayde vnto hym: mastour, I wyl folowe the, whyether so euer thou shalt go. And Jesus sayde vnto him: the foxes haue holes, and the byrddes of the ayer haue nestes, but of man hath not wherewith to rest his heade. Another that was one of his disciples, sayde vnto hym: Syr, gene me leue first, to go to burye my father. But Jesus sayde vnto him: folowe thou me, and the dede burye their dede.

¶ And he entred in to a shyppe, 2 his disciples folowed him. And beholde, there arose a greate tempest in the see, in so moche that the shyppe was couered with waues, 2 he was in dange. And his disciples came vnto him, and awoke hym, sayinge: LORDE, saue vs, we perishe. And he sayde vnto them: why are ye so fearful, o ye of litle faithe? Then he aroose, and rebuked the wyndes and the see, 2 there folowed a greate calme. And the men marvelled and sayde: what man is this, that both wyndes and see obey hym?

¶ And when he was come to of yther syde, in to the countrey of the Bergesites, there met him twopossessed of devils, which came out of the graues, and were out of measure feare, so that no man myghte go by that waye. And beholde, they cryed out, sayinge: Oh Jesus thou sonne of God, what haue we to do with thee? And thou come hyther to torment vs, before the cyme be come? And there was a good waye offfrom them a greate heerd of wyntedebils. Then the devyls besought hym, sayinge: yf thou cast us out, suffre vs to go our waye in to the heerd of swyne. And he sayde vnto them: go your wayes. Then they cymed out, and departed in to the heerd of swyne. And beholde, of whoale heerd of swyne was carryed with violence headlonge in to the see, and perished in the water. The heerdmen roode and wente their wayes in the cotes, and colde euery thinge, 2 that had cymed vnto the possessed of the devyls. And beholde, alle the cotes came out and besought hym, for to departe out of their mysse.

¶ Then entred he in to a shyppe, and passed ouer and came in to his owne ciuite. And lo, they brought vnto him a man sicke of the palsey, lying in his bed. And when Jesus sawe the faith of the, he sayde to the sicke of the palsey: my sonne, be of good cheare, thy synnes are forgiven thee. And beholde there, certeyne of the scribes sayde in thym siluence: this man blasphemeth. But when Jesus sawe their thoughtes, he sayde: wherfore thinke ye euill in youre hearts? Wherbet ye it easier to saye: thy synnes be forgiven thee, or to saie: arise and walke? But that ye maye knowe, that at the sonne of man hath power to forgive synnes in earth, the sayde he vnto the sicke of the palsey: arise, take up thy bed, and go home. And he arose and wente home. ¶ When of people sawe it, they maruayled, 2 glorified God, which had geue such power vnto men.

¶ And as Jesus passed forth from thence, he sawe a man sye a receyvinge of custome, named Mattheu, 2 sayde vnto him: folowe me. And he arose, and folowed him. And it came to passe as he sat at meate in the house: beholde, many publicans and synners came and sat downe also with Jesus and his disciples.

¶ When the Pharises sawe that, they sayde to his disciples: why eatech youre master with publicans and synners? ¶ When Jesus herde that, he sayde vnto them: The whole nede not of physick, but they that are sicke. Go and learne, what that meaneth: I haue pleasure in mercy, and not in offerynge. For I am not come to call the righteous, but of synners to repentance.

¶ Then came the disciples of Ihon to hym sayinge: why do we 2 of Pharises fast so oft: and thy disciples fast not? And Jesus sayde vnto the: Can the weddyngs chyldre mourne as long as the budgegrome is with them? The cyme will come, when the budgegrome shall be taken from them, and the shall they fast. ¶ No man cecech an olde garment with a pece of newe dothe. For then takech he awaye the pece agayne from the garment, 2 the rent ys made greater. ¶ Neither do men put newe wyne in to olde vessels, for then the vessels breake, and the wyne runneth out, 2 the vessels perishe. But they putte newe wyne in to newe vessels, and so are both saved together.

¶ Whye he thus spake vnto them, beholde there came a certeyne ruler, and worshipped him, sayinge: My daughter is euill now because, but come and lay thy hande on her, and she shall live. Jesus arose and folowed hym with hys disciples. And beholde, a woman which was diseased wth an yssue of bloude fū. yeres, came t^h hynde hym, and touchēd the hem of hys vesture. For she sayde in her selfe: yf I maye touche him: euen his vesture only, I shall be safe. Then Jesus turned him aboute, and behelde her, sayinge: Doughter be of good comforte, thy faith hath made thee safe. And she was made whole, euen that same houre.

And when Jesus came into the rulers house, and sawe the minstrels and the people raginge, he sayde vnto them: Get you hence, for I maye be not deed, but slepeeth. And they laughed hym to scorne. But when the people were put faith, he went in, and toke her by the hande, and she was made arose. And this was noyset through out all that londe.

And as Jesus departed thence, two blynde came folowed hym, cryinge and sayinge: O then some of Dauid, haue mercy vpon vs. And when he was come home, the blynde came to hym. And Jesus sayde vnto them: Wleete ye, ehar I am able to do this. And they saye vnto hym: yee, LORD. Then touched he their eyes, sayinge: accordinge to your faith, be it vnto you. And their eyes were opened. And Jesus charged the, sayinge: See that no mā knowe of it. But they departed, & spied abroad his name through out all the londe.

When these were gone out, beholde, they brought to hym a dourne man possessed of a deuyl. And when the deuyl was cast out, the dourne spake: And the people marvelled sayinge: it was neuer so sene in Israel. But the Pharisee sayde: he casteth out deuyls, eho rowe the these deuyl.

And Jesus wente aboute in all cities and townes, teachinge in their synagoges & preachinge the gospell of the kyngdome, & healinge all maner sicknes & all maner distaill amonge the people. And when he sawe the people, he had compassion on the, because they were pyned awaye, and scattered abroad, euen as shepe hauinge no shepherd.

Then sayde he to hys disciples: I herueste is greate, but the laborers are fewe. Wherefore praye the. ORDE of the barnest, to sende forth laborers vnto hys heruest.

The Chapter.

¶ Itd be called his xii. disciples vnto hym, & gaue them power ouer vncleane spites, to cast them out, & to heale all maner of sicknes, and all maner of distaill.

The names of the xii. Apostles are these: The first, Simon called Peter: & Andrew his brother. James the sonne of Zebede, and Iohn his brother. Philip and Bartholomew. Thomas, and Mathew the Publican. James the sonne of Alpha, and Lebbeus whiche was called Tabbeus. Simon of Cana, and Judas Iscarioth, which also betrayed hym.

These euolets sente Jesus, and commaunded them, sayinge: Go not in to the wayes that leade to the Genten, and in to the cities of the Samaritanes enter ye not. But go rather to the last shepe of the house of Israel. Go and preach, sayinge: The kyngdome of heuē is at hande. Heale the sicke, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out the deuils. Freely ye haue receaued, freely geue agayne. Possesse ye golde, nor siluer, nor brass in your girdles, nor yet scrip towardes your iorney: neither two cotes, necher shues, nor yet a staffe. For the workman is worthy of his meate. What whar soeuer cite or towne ye shall come to, quyre in it, who is meete for you, and there abide, vntill ye go thence.

And whiche ye come in to an house, salute the same. And yf the house be meete for you, your peace shall come vnto it. But yf it be not meete for you, your peace shall turne to you agayne.

And yf no man will receaue you, nor hear your preachinge, departe out of that house or that cite, and shake the dust of your feete. Truly I saye vnto you: it shall be easier for you to londe of Sodoma and Gomorra in a daye of iudgment, then for that cite.

Beholde, I sende you forth as shepe, and geue wolues. Be ye therefore wise as serpentes, and innocent as doves. Beware of men, in they shall deliuer you vnto the cōsules, and shall scourge you in their synagoges. And ye shall be brought before prynces and kynge for my sake, in witness to them and to the gentyls.

But when they deliuer you up, take thought how or what ye shall speake, for it shall be geuen you, euen in that same houre, what ye shall saye. For it is not ye that speake, but the spete of your father which speaketh in you.

The brother shall deliuer the brother to death, and the father the sonne. And the brethren shall arise agaynst their fathers and their brethren, & shall helpe them to death: & ye shall be hated of all men for my names sake. But he that endureth to the ende, shall be saved.

When they persecute you in one cite, flye into another. I tell you for a trowth, ye shall not synne the alle the cities of Israel, vntill the

There is nothing hyd, that shal not be openly shewed: and nothing secrete, that shall not be knowne. What I tell you in haue, that speake ye in lichte: and what ye heare in the eare, that preach ye upon the houlde toppen.

And feare ye not them that kille the bodye and be not able to kille the soule. But rather feare he, which is able to destroye bothe soule and bodye in to hell. Are not two sparowes sold for a farthinge? Yet both the wone of the lichte upon the groude with yourer father. And now are all y hairea of your heade tolde. Feare ye not therfor: yare of more valne then many sparowes.

Therfore whosoeuer knowlegeth me before, him wil I knowlege also before my father which is in heauen. But whosoeuer denyeth me before me, him wil I also denie before my father which is in heauen.

Chyke not that I am come to sende pace upon earth. I came not to sende peace, but a swerde. For I am come to set a man a variance agaynst his father, and the daughter agaynst hir mother, and the daughter in lawe agaynst her mother in lawe: and a mans foes shalbe they of his owne houlde.

Who so loveth father and mother more than me, is not meete for me: and he that loveth some or dougther more then me, is not meete for me. And he y eateth not his crosse and followeth me, is not meete for me. Who so denyeth his life, shal lose it: and he that loveth his life for my sake, shal fynde it.

He that receaueth you, receaueth me: and who so receaueth me, receaueth him y sent me. He that receaueth a prophet in the name of a prophet, shal receave a prophetes rewarde. He y receaueth a righteous man in the name of a righteous man, shal receave a righteous mans rewarde: And who so receueth vnto one of the least of these cuppe of colde water onely to drinke, in the name of a disciple, verely I saie vnto you shal not lose his rewarde.

The XI. Chapter.

It came to passe, when Iesus had made an ende of comaunding his twelve disciples, he departed thence, to teach and to preach in their cities.

When Iohn beinge in prison herbe of the wordes of Christ, he sent two of his disciples, and sayde vnto him: Art thou he y shal come, or shal we loke for another? Iesus answered and sayde vnto the: Go your waye and tell Iohn agayne, what ye se and heare. The blynde se, and the lame go: the deafe are clenfed, and y deaf heare: the dead aryst agayne, and the gospell is preached to the poore: and bleffid is he, that is not offen ded at me.

When they wente their waye, Iesus beganne to speake vnto the people, concerninge Iohn: What are ye gone out for to se in the wyldernes? Wolde ye se a rebe shakyn with the wynde? Or what are ye gone out for to se? Wolde ye se a man clothed in soft rayment? Beholde, they that weare soft clothinge, are in Kinges houses, But what are ye gone out for to se? A prophet? For I saie vnto you, and more the a prophet. For this is he, of whos it is writen: Beholde, I sende my messainger before thy face, which shal prepare thy waye before the.

Verely I saie vnto you: Amonge y childeuen of women arose there not a greater then Iohn the baptist. Yet with standinge he that is lesse in the kyngdome of heauen, is greater then he. From the tyme of Iohn baptist hither to, y kyngdome of heauen suffereth violence, and the violent plucke it vnto them. For all the prophetes and the lawe propheted vnto Iohn. Also yf ye wil receaue it, this is Elias, which shalbe come. Who so hath eares to heare, let hi heare.

But where vnto shal I like this generacion? It is like vnto childre which ste in the market, and call vnto their filowes, and saye: we haue pyped vnto you, and ye wolde not: daunke: We haue moyned vnto you, and ye wolde not wepe. For Iohn came neither eatinge nor drynkinge, and they saye: he hath the deuyll. The some of man came eatinge and drynkinge, and they saye: what a glutton and wyne bebbor this man is, and a companion of publicans and synners: And wisdom is iustificid of hir childre.

Then beganne he to upbraid the cities, in the which most of his miracles were done, because they amended not. He vnto the Chorazin, He vnto the Bethsaida: for y the miracles which haue bene shewed amonge ye you, had bene done in Tyre and Sidon, they had repeated longe ago in sackcloth and ashes. Wherefore I saye vnto you: Ye shall be easier for Tyre and Sidon in the daye of iudgment, then for you. And thou Capernaum which art lift vp vnto heauen, shalt be brought downe into hel. For yf the miracles which haue bene done in the, had bene shewed in Sidon, they had remained vnto this daye. Wherefore I saye vnto you: Ye shall be easier for the lordes of Sidon in the daye of iudgment, then for the.

¶ As y same tyme Iesus answered, and sayde: I praye the (O father and LORD of heauen and earth) that thou hast hid these thinges from the wyse and prudent, and opened the vnto babes. Euen so father, for so it pleaseth the. All thinges are geuen ouer vnto me of my father: and no mā knoweth the sonne, but the father: neither knoweth any man the father, I save the sonne, and he to whom the sonne wil open it. Come vnto me all ye that labour and are laden, and I wil ease you. Take my yock vpon you, and learne of me, for I am meke and lowly of heart, & ye shall fynde rest vnto youre soules: for my yock is easy, and my burden is light.

The XII. Chapter.

¶ The same tyme were Iesus thotow the come vpon the Sabbath, and his disciples were hongrie, and beganne to plucke of the eares of the come, and to eat. When y Pharisees sawe this, they sayde vnto him: Beholde, thy disciples do that, which is not lawfull to do vpon the Sabbath. He sayde vnto them: Hau ye not red what Dauid did, when he was hongrie, & they also y were with him? how he entered in to the house of God, & ate the shew breads which were not lawfull for him to eat, neither for the y were with him, but onely for the priestes? Or haue ye not red in the lawe how that the prestes in the temple breake the Sabbath, and yet are blamelesse? But I saye vnto you: y here is one greater then the temple. Or ye yf ye wyl what this were (I haue pleasure in mercy, and not in offeringe) ye wolde not haue condemned innocents: for the sonne of man is LORD of men ouer the Sabbath.

¶ And he departed thence, and wente in to their synagoge: and beholde, there was a mā with bad his hande dried vp. And they ased him, sayenge: Is it lawfull to heale vpon the Sabbath? because they might accuse him. But he sayde vnto the: Which of you is it, yf he had a shepe falle in to a pytt upon the Sabbath, that wolde not take him, and lift him out? And how much is a man better then a shepe? Therfore it is lawfull to do good vpon the Sabbath. Then sayde he to the mā: stretch forth thine hande. And he stretched it forth: and it was whole agayne like vnto the other.

¶ Then wente the Pharisees out, and he became a counsell agaynst him, how they might destroye him. But whā Iesus knewe this, he departed thence, & much people followed him: and he healed them all, and charged them, y they shoulde not make him knowe: that the thinge might be fulfilled, which was spoken by Esay the prophet, which sayeth: Beholde, this is my seruant, whom I haue chosen: and my beloved, in whom my soule delighteth: I wil put my spere vpon him, and he shall herce iudgement vnto the gentes. He shall not stryue, ner crye, neither shall any man here his voyce in the street. A broode rebe shall he not beate, and shall the begumeth to burne shall he not quenche. yf he sende forth iudgement vnto victory. And in his name shall the heathen trust.

¶ Then was there brought vnto him one possessed of a deuil, the which was blynde and dumme, and he healed him in such y blynde and dumme both spate and sawe. And all the people were amazed, and sayde: Is not this the sonne of Dauid? But what the Pharisees herbe that, they sayde: he bewyth the deuyls our none other wyse, but thotow Beelzebub the chiefe of the deuyls. Wherefore Iesus knewe their thoughtes, and sayde vnto them: Every kyngdome is dyded within it self, shall be desolace: and every cite or house dyded in it self, maye not contynue. So yf one Saetan cast out another, the is he a variatione within himself: how maye then his kyngdome endure? If yf I cast out deuyls thotow Beelzebub, thotow whom do youre childre cast them out? Therfore shall they be youre iudges. But if I cast out the deuyls by the spere of God, then is the kyngdome of God come vnto you. Or how can a man entre in to a strong mans house, and violently take awaye his goodes, excepte he first bynde the strong mā, & the spoyle his house? he that wylde me, is agaynst me: & he y gathereth not vnto me, scattereth abroad. Therfore I saye vnto you: All synne and blasphemy shall be forgiven vnto men, but the blasphemy agaynst the spere shall not be forgiven vnto men. And whosoever speaketh a worde agaynst the sonne of man, it shall be forgiven him: but trouble & persecucion anyeth because of the woide, immediately he his offended. As for him that is foune amonge y^e thorne, this is he: Wh^o one heareth the woide, & the carelesnes of this woide, & the disceitfulness of riches doke the woide, & so he becometh unfructifull. But he y^e is foune in the good grounde, in this: whan one heareth the woide, and understandeth it, and bringeth forth frute: and some geueh an hundred fold, so me fixtie fold, and some thirtie fold.

D Another parable put he forth vnto the, Luc. 4. c & sayde: The kyngdome of heauen is like vnto a man, y^e sowed good sēde in his sēde. But while he slepeth, there came an enemye, and sowed tares amonge y^e wheate, & wente his waye. Euen whā the blade was sprōge vp & brought forth frute, thē y^e tares appeared also. Then came the seruantes to y^e housholder, & sayde vnto him: Syr, sowest thou good sēde in y^e sēde: frō whēce the hach it tares? He sayde vnto the: that hath the enemye done. The sayde y^e seruantes: wilst thou then y^e ree go & weede the out? He sayde: No, lest while ye weede one y^e tares, ye p^lucke vp the wheate also w^h the. Let the both growe together tyll the harvest, and in tyme of harvest I wil saye vnto the reapers: Gather y^e tares first, & brynne the in sheues to be bitt: but gather the wheate in to my barn.

Another parable put he forth vnto the, Luc. 4. c & sayde: The kyngdome of heauen is like vnto a grane of mustarde sēde, which a man sowe, and sowed it in his sēde. Which is the leest amonge all sēdes. But whan it is growne, it is the greatest amonge herbes, and is a tree: so that the byrdes vnder the heauen come and dwell in the boughes of it.

Another parable spake he vnto the: The kyngdome of heauen is like vnto leest, which a woman sowe, and myxt it amonge the peeces of meale, tyll all was leuened.

All such thynges spake Iesus vnto y^e people by parables, & without parables spake he nothyng vnto the: y^e the thinge might be fulfilled, which was spokē by y^e prophet, sayenge: I wil open my mouth in parables, and wil speake out the secretes from the begynnyng of the woide.

Then sent Iesus the people awaye, and came home. And his disciples came vnto hi, and sayde: Declare vnto us y^e parable of y^e tares of y^e sēde. Iesus answered, and sayde vnto them: He that soweth the good sēde, is the sonne of man: the sēde is the woide: y^e good sēde are the chyldren of the kyngdome: the tares are the chyldren of wickednes: y^e enemye that soweth the, is the deuill: y^e harvest is the ende of the woide: y^e tapers are y^e angels. For like as y^e tares are weeded out, and brynne in the fyre, eue so shal it go in y^e ende of this woide. The sonne of man shal sende forth his angels, & they shal gather out of his kyngdome all thynges y^e offende, & they shal do iniquyte, & shal cast the in to a furnace of fyre, there shalbe waylinge and gnashynge of teth. The shal the righteous hyme as the Sonne, in the kyngdome of their father. Who so hath eares to heare, let him heare.

Agayne, the kyngdome of heauen is like vnto a treasure hyd in the sēde, which a man founde and hid it, and forioye thereof he sold the sēde all y^e he had, and bought y^e sēde.

Agayne, the kyngdome of heauen is like vnto a marchand. y^e sought good pearles: whā he had founde a pious pearle, he sold the and sold all that he had, & bought it.

Agayne, y^e kyngdome of heauen is like vnto a nett cast in to y^e see, wherewith are call all maner of fshes: & whā it is ful, me drawe ite out vnto y^e shore, & fyre & gather y^e good of the wisse, but cast the bad awaye. So shal it be also in y^e ende of y^e woide. The angels shal go out, & sear the bad frō the good, & shal cast the in to a furnace of fyre, there shalbe waylinge & gnashynge of teth.

And Iesus sayde vnto them: Saue yem-berlesse all these thynges: They sayde: Jesu LORD. Then sayde he vnto the: Therefoe euery scribe taught vnto y^e kyngdome of heauen, is like an housholder, which byngeth out of his treasure thynges new and olde.

And it came to passe whā Iesus had ended these parables, he departed thence, and came in to his owne countre, and taught in their synagogues: in so much, that they were astonnyed and sayde: Whēce cometh such wysdome & power vnto him? Jo not this the carpenters sonne? Jo not this the carpenters forme? Jo not his mother call Mary? and his brethren James & Ioseph, and Symon and Jude? And are not all his sisters here with us? Whence hath he this of these thynges? And they were offended at him. But Iesus sayde vnto the: A prophet is nomber lesse stey by, the at home & amonge his owne. And he byd not manye muldes there, because of their unbelou.

The XIII. Chapter.

W Hā the tyme Herode y^e Tetrarche was de of y^e same of Iesus, & sayde vnto his seruantes: This is Ihesus y^e baptiste, he is rysen agayne frō the dead, therefore are y^e dedes so myghtie. For Herode had take Ihesus becombe hi, & put him in prison for Iherodias sake his brothers Philipps wife. For Ihesus sayde vnto him: It is not lawfull for y^e to hane her. And sayne wolde he hane put him to death, but he feared the people, because they helde him for a prophet.

But whan herode helde his byth daye, the daughter of herodias daunced before him, and that pleased herode well, wherfor he promysed her with an ooth, that he wolde geue her what soeuer she wolde aske. And she (beinge instructed of hir mother a fou) sayde: geue me Jhon baptistes heade in a platter.

And the kynge was fory. Wherechles for that sake, the kyng wold with him at that table, he commaunded it to be geuen her, and sent, and beheaded Jhon in the prison. And his heed was brought in a platter, and geuen to the damzell, the she brought it unto her mother. Then came his disciples, and toke his body, and buried it, and wente and tolde Jhesus.

Whan Jhesus herde that he departed thence by shippe in to a deserte place alone. And whan the people herde thereof, they folowed him on foot out of that citee. And Jhesus wold sitte in a bush, and sawe moche people, and had pite upon them, and healed their sickes.

But at even his disciples came vnto him, and sayde: This is a deserte place, and by nyghte falseth the hartes of people departe from thet, that they maye go in to the houses, and bye them vnto theyr houses. But Jhesus sayde vnto them: They neede not go awaye, geue ye the to eate. The he sayde they vnto him: We haue here but fyve loanes and two sylfys. And he sayde: bringe the hither. And he commaunded that people to sitte downe vpon the grasse, and toke of fyve cakes and two fishes, and loked vp towarde heauen, and gaue thankes, and brake and gaue the loanes vnto the disciples, and the disciples gaue them to the people. And they all ate, and were suffysed. And they gathered up of the broken meate that remayned ouer, twelue basketes full. And they that were aboute a fyfte thousande men, besyde women and children.

And straight waye Jhesus made his disciples to enter in to a shippe, and to go ouer before him. And he had sent that people awaye. And whan he had sent the people awaye, he wente up into a mountayne alone, to make his prayer. And at even he was there him self alone. And of shippe was already in of myddes of the see, and was cast in of waves, for the wynde was contrary. But in of fourth watch of nyghte Jhesus came vnto the, walkinge vpon the see. And whan his disciples sawe him goinge vpon the see, they were afrayed, sayinge: Jhesus is some spycer, and cried out for helpe. But straight waye Jhesus spake vnto them, and sayde: Be of good cheare, it is I, be not afrayed.

Peter answered him, and sayde: LORDE, if it be thou, byd me come vnto the vpon the water. And he sayde: come on my waye. And Peter steepte out of the shippe, and wente vpon the water, to come vnto Jhesus. But whan he sawe a mighty wynde, he was afrayed, and began to synke, and cried, sayinge: LORDE, helpe me. And immediatly Jhesus stretched forth his hande, and caught him, and sayde vnto him: O thou of litle faith, wherfore wost thou doubt? And they wente in to the shippe, and the wynde ceased. Then they that were in of shippe, came and fell downe before him, and sayde: Of a trouth thou art that sonne of God. And they shipped ouer, and came in to the citee of Genazareth. And whan of that place had knowlege of hit, they sent out in to all that countrey rounde aboute, and brought vnto him all that were sicke, and besought him, that they mighte but touch the hemme of his vesture onely: and as many as touched it, were made whole.

The XV. Chapter.

Then came vnto him the scribes and pharises from Jerusalem, sayinge: Whydo thy disciples transgresse the tradicions of the elders: for they wash not their haddes whan they eate bread. He answered and sayde vnto the: Why do ye transgresse the commaundement of God, because of your own tradicions? For God commaunded, sayinge: Honour father and mother: the that curseth father and mother, shal dye the death. But ye saye: Every man shal saye to father or mother: The thinge that I shulde helpe withal, is geue vnto God. Bychis is it come to pass, that no man honoureth his father or his mother any more. And thus haue ye made the commaundement of God of none effecte, for your owne tradicions. Ye ypoctites, full well hath the saye prophetic of you, sayde: Thy people diameth nye vnto me with their mouth, and honour eth me with their lippes, howbeit, their hart is farre from me. But in sayne do they serue me, while they teach such doctrynes as are nothinge but the commaundementes of men.

And he called that people to hit, and sayde vnto the: Heare I vnderstande: That which goeth in to the mouth, desyleth not the ma: but that which cometh out of the mouth, desyleth hit. Then came his disciples, and sayde vnto him: Knowest thou that the pharises were offended, whan they herde this sayenge? He answered, and sayde: All plantes which my heavenly father hath not planted, shal be plucked up by 3 rotes. Let the go, they are of blynde leaders of 3 blynde. Whā one blin

Then answered Peter & sayde vnto him: Declare vnto us this parable. And Jesus sayde vnto the: Are ye yet the without vnderstanding: Perceau ye not, 3 what ser uer goeth in at 3 mouth, desceideth downe in to 3 hely, & is cast out in to the draughte: But the charge that proceadeth out of the mouth, cometh fro 3 here, & that desyleth 3 mā. For out of 3 hert come euell thoughtes murder, beaulyng of wedlocke, whordome theft, falsc witnesse, blasphemye. These are 3 things that desyle a man. But to care w vnto ashen bondes, desyleth nos a man.

147. c

And Jesus wente one from thence, & de parted in to the coastes of Tyre of Sidon.
And beholde, a womā of Canaan wete out of 3 same coaste, & cried a fter him, sayge: O LORD, thou sonne of Dauid, haue mer cy vpon me. My daughter is sore vexed w a deaeth. And he answered her neuer a worde.
The came his disciples vnto him, & besought him, sayge: Sende her awaye, for she crieth a fter us. But he answered, & saide: I am not sent, but vnto the lost shepe of the house of Israel. It cometh withynge she came & fell downe before him, & sayde: LORD, helpe me.

148. a

He answered & sayde: It is not good, to take the chyldrens bread, & to cast it vnto dogges.
This wretch LORD, sayde she: I remember the whelpes eate of the cromaues, that fall fro their lordes table. Then answered Jesus & sayde vnto her: O womā, greates is 3 faith be it vnto the, euē as thou desirest. And hir daughter was made hole at 3 same houre.

148. a

And Jesus departed thence, and came nye vnto the see of Galile, and wente vp in to a mountayne, and sat downe there. And there came vnto him much people, hauinge with them, lame, blynde, dōme, crepell, and other many, and cast them downe at Jesus feet.
And he healed the, in so moch that the peo ple wōd bled, to fe the dōme speake, the crepell to hole, the hale to ro, & the blynde to se. And they praised the God of Israel.

148. a. 2

And Jesus called his disciples vnto him, & sayde: I haue compassion vpon the people, for they haue obeyned w nic now the day es, & haue nothinge to eate, & I wil not let the departe fastyng, lest they perishe in 3 waye. And his disciples sayde vnto him: Whence shulde we gee so moch bled in the wyldernes, that we mighte satisfie so moch people: And Jesus sayde vnto the: How ma ny loaves haue ye: They sayde: seue, & a few litle fishes. And he commaunded 3 people to seye downe vps the grounde, and toke 3 seat loaves, & the fishes, & gaue charytes & bled the, & gaue the to his disciples, & 3 discip les gaue the vnto the people. And they all eat, wore sufficed. And they toke vp of the bled meate 3 was left, seuen baskettes full. And they 3 are, wore seure thousande mē, besyn women and children. And when he had said a waye the people, he wente in to a shyppe, & came in to the parties of Targola.

The XVI. Chapter.

Then came the pharisees & Saboces vnto him, & cepted him, requyring him to shewe the a roke from heauē.
But he answered, & sayde: It can ye saye: J wil be saye wedder, for 3 fl ye is red. And in 3 moynyng, ye saye: It wil be soule wedder to da ye, for the fl ye is red, & gleameth.
O ye ypocrites, ye can discerne the falshon of 3 fl ye: can ye not the discerne the toles of these tymes also: This euell and adoma rous generacō sedeth a toke, & there shal m e to be geue the, but the toke of 3 proph Jonas. So he left the, and departed.

And whā his disciples were come to the other syde of the water, they had fugones to take bled w them. Jesus sayde vnto the:
Take hede & beware of the laue of 3 phar isees & of the Saboces. The thoughte they in the silues, sayge: We haue taken no bled w no. Whē Jesus perceaued 3 he sayde to the:
O ye of litle faith, why are ye combed in 3 mindes: because ye haue take no bled w you?
Do ye not yet perceauē: Remember ye not these syue loaves, whē there were syue thou sande mē, and how many baskettes toke ye vp: & tetter 3 seat loaves than there were seure thousande men, & how many baskettes toke ye vp: Why perceauē ye not then: I spake not to you of bled, whē I saide: Bewar re of 3 leue of 3 pharisees & of 3 Saboces: The vnderstode they, howe 3 he had not the beware of the leue of bled, but of 3 doctry ne of the pharisees and of the Saboces.

Then came Jesus in to the coastes of the see Cesarea Philippi, & aget his disciples sayde: Whō do mē saie, 3 3 sonne of mā is:
They sayde: Some saye, 3 ebon ar: Ihs the bapstis, Some 3 thou art Elias, Some 3 ar thou art Jeremy, or one of 3 prophetes.
He saide to the: But whō saye ye 3: Jam: the answered Synis Peter and saide: Thou art Christ 3 sonne of 3 lyuinge God. And Jesus answered, & saide vnto hi: Blessed art thou Synis 3 sonne of Jonas, for fish 3 bloode hath not opened 3 vnto the, but my father ye is in heauē. And I saico 3: & thou art Peter, & vps this roke wil I bnde my chur gates: and y gates of hell shal not preuagage it. And the keyes of heauen wil I geue vnto the: Whatsoeuer thou shalt bin-de vpon earth, shalbe bounde also in heauen: ⁊ whatsoeuer thou shalt loose vpon earth, shalbe loosed also in heauē. Then charged he his disciples, that they shulde tell no mā that he was Iesus a Christ.

From that tyme forth beganne Iesus to shew vnto his disciples, how that he must go vnto Ierusalem, and suffre many thinges of the elders, and of the hie prestes, and of the scriebes, and be put to death, and rise againe the thirde daye. But Peter toke him asyde, and beganne to rebute him, sayenge: LORDE, fauoure thy self, let not this happen vnto the. ¶ Therethes he turned him about, ⁊ sayde vnto Peter: Auoyde fro me Sathan, thou hindrest me, for thou sauourest not y thinges that be of God, but of men.

Then sayde Iesus vnto his disciples: If my man wil folowe me, let him forsake him self, ⁊ take vpon his crosse, and folowe me. For whoso wil saue his life, shal lose it: but who loseth his life for my sake, shal fynde it.
 What helpech it a man though he wannē the whole worlde, and yet suffred harme in his soule: Or what can a man geue, to redeme his soule withall? For it wil come to pass, that the some of mā shal come in the glory of his father with his angelo, and then shal be rewardēd euery one accordinge to his doo. Verely I saye vnto you: there stonde here some, which shal not taste of death, vntill they see some of mā come in his kyngdome.

The XVII. Chapter.

¶ And after sixe dayes Iesus toke Peter James, and Iohn his brocher, and broughe them vp in to an hie mountayne out of the waye, and was transfigured before the: ⁊ his face shone as y Sonne, and his clothes were as white as the lichte.
 And beholde, there appeared vnto the Moses and Elias talkinge with him. Then answered Peter, and sayde vnto Iesus: LORDE, haue good beyngs for vs. If thou wilt, let vs make here thie tabernacles: one for the, one for Moses, and one for Elias. Whyhe he spake, beholde, a bright cloude ouershadowd them: and so, there came a voyce out of the cloude, sayenge: This is my deare sonne, in whom I delyte, ⁊ heare him. Whan ⁊ disciples herde that, they fell vpon their faces, and were sore afrayd. But Iesus came and touched them, and sayde: Arise, and be not afrayd. And whan they looked vp, they sawe no man, but Iesus onely.

And whā they came downe fro y mountayne, Iesus charged them, and sayde: Tell no man of this vision, vntill the sonne of man be risen agayne from y dead. And his disciples asked him, and sayde: Why saye the scribes then, that Elias must first come? Iesus answered and sayde vnto them: Elias shall come first in dede, ⁊ charge all thinges of t: ⁊ agayne. But I saye vnto you: Elias is come all ready, ⁊ they knewe him not, but haue done vnto him what they wolde. And so shal also the some of man suffre of them.
 Then the disciples perceaued, that he spake vnto them of Iohn the baptist.

And whan they were come to the people, there came vnto him a certayne man, and kneled vnto him, and sayde: LORDE, haue mercy vpon my sonne, for he is lunaticke, ⁊ sore vexed. He falleth oft tymes in to y fire, and oft in to y water: and I broughe him vnto thy disciples, and they coude not hea-le him. Iesus answered, and sayde: O thou faithles and frowarde generacion, how long ge shal I be with you? How longe shal I suffre you? Bynge him hitere to me. And Iesus rebuked him, and y deuyll wete out of him, and y child was healed, men that same houre.

Then came the disciples vnto Iesus secretly, ⁊ sayde: Why coude not we cast him out? Iesus sayde vnto them: Because of you re vnbeleue. For I saye verely vnto you: If ye haue faith as a graine of mustarde sēd, ye maye saye vnto this mountayne: Remoue hence to yonder place, and he shal remoue, nether shal eny thinge be impossible vnto you. Howebeit this kinde goeth not out, but by prayer and fastinge.

Whyhe they occupied in Galilee, Iesus sayde vnto them: it wil come to passe, that the some of man shalbe deliuered in to the hon-des of men, and they shal kill him, and the thirde daye shal he arise agayne. And they were very soiry. ¶ Now whā they were come to Capernaum, they that receaued y tribute money, came to peter, and sayde: Doth youre master paye tribute? He sayde yee.
 And whan he was come home, Iesus presented him, and sayde: What thinkest thou Symon? Of whom do the kynges of the earth take toll or tribute? Of their chyldren, or of straungers? Then sayde peter to him: Of straungers. Iesus sayde vnto him: Then are y chyl- dren fre. ¶ Therethes lest we offen-de them, go thy waye to the see, and cast erie angle, and take the fish that first cometh vp, and whan thou hast opened his mouth, upon shall fynde a pece of twenty pennis, take that, and geue it them for me and the.

The XVIII. Chapter.

¶ In the same tyme came the disciples vnto Iesus, and sayde: Who is the greatest in the kyngdome of heauen? And Iesus called a chyld vnto him, and set him in the myddest amonge them, and sayde: Verely I saye vnto you: Excepte ye turne and become as chyldren, ye shall not enter into the kyngdome of heauen. Whosoever therefore humbled himself as this chyld, the same is the greatest in the kyngdome of heauen. And who so receauech sode a chyld in my name, receauech me. But who so offendeth one of these litle ones which beleue in me, it were better for him, that a millstone were hangd aboute his neck, and he thrownd in the detych of the see.

Who vnto the world because of slanders. See there must slanders come: but no vnto that man, by whom slander cometh. But if thy hande or thy foot offendeth thee, cutt it off, and cast it from thee. It is better for thee to enter into life lame or crepelle, than if thou shouldest haue two hodes or two feet, and be cast in to euerlastinge fyre. And if thine eye offendeth thee, plucke it out, cast it from thee. Better it is for thee to enter in vnto life with one eye, than to haue two eyes, and to be cast in to hell fyre.

¶ Take heede, if ye despyse not one of these litle ones. For I saye vnto you: their angels do alwaye beholde the face of my father which is in heauen: for the sonne of man is come to saue that which is lost. How thinke ye? As a man haue an hande which shepe, and one of the be gone astraye, doth not he leaue the nyentie and nyentie in the mountaynes, and goeth, and secketh that one which is gone astraye? And if it happen that he fynde it, verely I saye vnto you: he reioyseth more ouer it, then ouer the nyentie and nyentie which were not astraye. Liken so is it not the will before your father in heauen, that one of these litle ones shoulde perishe.

If thy brother trespass agaynst thee, go and tell him his faute betwene thee and him alone. If he heare thee, thou hast reuoceth thy brother. But if he heare thee not, then take yett with thee one or two, that in the mouth of two or thre of thy wytnesses, every matter maye be stablyshed. If he heare thee not, tell it vnto the congregacion. If he heare thee not the congregacion, holde him as an heithen and publican. Verely I saye vnto you: what soeuer ye shall bynde vpon earth, shall be bounde also in heauen: and what soeuer ye loose vpon earth, shall be loosd also in heauen. Agayne, I saye vnto you: Whatsoeuer ye shall agree vpon earth (for what thinge soeuer it be) they will be despyed: they shall haue it of my father which is in heauen. For where two or thre are gathered together in my name, there am I in the myddest amonge them.

Then came Peter vnto him, and sayde: Lord, how oft shall I forgive my brother, if he trespass agaynst me? Decd answer: Iesus saide vnto hi: I saye not vnto thee, I will forgive him seven tymes, but sentie tymes seven tymes. Therefore is the kyngdome of heauen loosd vnto a kynge which wolde reuen to his seruantes. And when he beganne to reue, one was brought vnto him, which oughe him ten thousand poundes. To one which he had nothyng to paye his lorde commaunded him to be sold, and his wyfe and chyldre, and all he had, and payment to be made. Then the seruante fell down, and besought him, saying: haue pacifce vnto me, and I will paye thee all. Then had the lord pite on that seruante, and discharged him, and forgave him the debt.

And the same seruante wote out, and sold one of his selowes, which oughe him an hundred pennis, and layd hande vpon him, and toke him by the throte, and sayde: paye me that thou owest. This his selowe fell down, and besought him, saying: haue pacifce vnto me, and I will paye thee all. Then he wolde not, but wente and cast him in to prison, tyll he shoulde paye the debt. When his selowes sawe what was done, they were very sorry, and came and tolde their lorde all that had happened. Then his lorde called for him, and sayde vnto him: O thou wicked seruante, I forgave thee all this debt, because thou paydest me: shouldest not thou then haue had compassion also vpon thy selowe, even as I had pite vpon thee? And his lorde was wroth, and deliuered him vnto the iaylers, tyll he payed all that he oughe. So shall my heauenly father do also vnto you, if ye euery one of you forgiue youre brether, but geue not his brether his trespass.

The XIX. Chapter.

¶ And it came to passe, that Iesus had ascended these saynges, he gaue him self to Galile, and came to the coastes of Tenny beyonde Jordan, and moche people followed him, and he healeth them there.

Then came vnto him the pharisees and they tolde him, and sayde vnto him: Is it lawfull for a man to put awaye his wyfe for any cause? he answered and sayde vnto the: he ye not reb, how þ he which made (man) as the begynnyng made the mā & womā, & 147 sƿe: for this cause shal a mā leaue father & mother, & cleue vnto his wife, & they two shal be one fleshe. ¶ Now are they not tway as then, but one fleshe. Let not man therfore put a sūber, þ which God hath coupled together.

¶ Then sayde they: Why dyd Moses then 148 demaunde to geue a testimon yall of venoisumnt, & to put her awaye? he sayde vnto theſe Iſraelites (because of y hardness of yd hearts) suffered you to put awaye youre wyues: ¶ Neuertheless frō the begynnyng it hath 149 not bene so. But J saye vnto you: Whosoever putteth awaye his wife (excepte it be for som occasion) and marieth anothe, breaketh weddote. And who so marieth her þ is benowed, commytereth adououry.

¶ Then sayde his disciples vnto him: If 150 maner be so betwene mā and wife, the is it not good to mary. But he sayde vnto them: Allint can not cōspende þ þ sayenge, save 151 they to whō it is geue. For therē be some gelded, which are so borne from their mothers wombe: and there be some gelwed, whō are geid of men: & there be some gelwed, which have geideth theſelues for the kyngdome of heaues sake. he that can cōspende it, let him comprehendre it.

¶ Then were brought vnto him yōge chil-152 dren, þ he shulde put his hondes vpon the, & praye. And þ disciples rebuked them. But Jhus sayde: Suffre þ children, & forbyd the me to come vnto me, for vnto such belōgeth the kyngdome of heauen. And whā he had layd his hondes vpd the, he departed thence.

¶ And beholde, one came vnto him, and say 153 de: God maister, what good shal J do. þ he sayde: I maye haue the cure lastinge life: he sayde vnto him: Why callest thou me good: there 154 is none good, but God onely. ¶ Theretofore and if thou wilt entre into life, kepe þ 155 cōmā-vntōus. Theſe sayde, he vnto him: Which?

¶ Jhus saide: Thou shalt not kyll: thou shalt 156 not breake weddote: thou shalt not steale: thou shalt beare no falsse wyemes: honoure father and mother: and thou shalt loue thy 157 neyghbour as thy self. Then sayde the yōge mā vnto him: All theſe haue J kepte fro my youth vnto what lacke J yet? Jhus sayde vnto him: If thou wilst be perfecte, go thy 158 waye and sell that thou hast, & geue it vnto the poore, and thou shalt haue a treasure in heauen, and come and folow me. Whā þ 159 yōge man herde þ woide, he wente awaye sorrowful: for he had greates possessions.

¶ Jhus sayde vnto his disciples: Verely J 160 saie vnto you: it shal be harde for a rich man to entre in to the kyngdome of heauē. And þ morouer J saye vnto you: It is easier for a camel to go throu the eye of a needle, the 161 for a rich man to entre in to the kyngdome of heauen. Whā his disciples herde that, they were exceedingly amazed, and sayde ¶ Whō can the be saued? ¶ Theretofore Jhus beholde them, and sayde vnto them: With 162 men it is impossible, but with God all thin-ges are possible.

¶ Then answered Peter & sayde vnto him:
 163 Beholde, we haue forsakē all, and folowed the: What shal we haue therfore? Jhus sayde vnto the: Verely J saye vnto you: that 164 whē the sonne of man shal sit in the seate of his maiesty, ye which haue folowed me in the new tyme, shal sit also vpon twolue 165 seates, and iudge þ twolue crybes of Iſrael.
 ¶ And who so euer forsaketh his self, or brethers, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or landes, for my names sake, the same shal receaue an hundred fold, and in-166 heret euerlastinge life. But many that be the first, shal be the last: and the last shal be the first.

The XX. Chapter.

¶ The kyngdome of heauen is like vnto 167 a housholder, which wente out early in the mornynge, to hye labourers in to his vnyarde. And whā he had agreed with the labourers for a peny a daye, before 168 the in to his vnyarde. And aboute þ thirde houre he wente out, and sawe other stondye yole in the market place, and sayde vnto 169 them: Go ye also in to my vnyarde, & what so euer is right, J wil geue it you. And they wente their waye. Agayne, he wente out aboute 170 the sixte and nyent houre, and dyd like-wyse. And aboute the eleuent houre he wente out, and founde other stōdyng yole, and 171 sayde vnto them: Why stonde ye here all the daye yole? They sayde vnto him: because no man hath hyred us. he saide vnto the: 172 Go ye also in to my vnyarde, and loke what is right, ye shal haue it. ¶ Now whā euen 173 was come, the lord of the vnyarde sayde vnto his steward: Call the labourers, and geue them their hye, begynnyng from the 174 last vnto þ first. ¶ Then they that were hyed aboute the eleuent houre, came and receaued 175 euery man a peny. But whā the first came, they supposd that they shulde recea-176 ue more: and they also receaued euery man a peny. And whā they had receaued it, they murmured agaynst the housholder, and sayde: These last haue wrought but one houre, and thou hast made the equal vnc-to, which shal borne the burthen and hea-te of the daye. He answered and sayde vnto one of them: frende, I do y no wronge: vid-der: soe thou agree with me for a peny: Lake that thus is, and go thy waye. I will ge-ue vnto this last also, like as vnto the. O hare I noc power, to do as me listeth with my ne ome: To thine eye well, because I am good: So the last shalberhe first, z the first the last. For many are called, but few are chosen.

oure eyes maye be opened. And Iesus had compassion vpon them, and conched their eyes: z immediatly their eyes receaved sight, And they folowed him.

The XXI. Chapter.

Now when they drew nye vnto Ierusalem, and were come to Bethpa-ge vnto mount Olinets, Iesus sent two of his disciples, and sayde vnto them: Go in to the towne that lyeth before you, z amonge ye shal fynde an Assse bounde, and he foale with her: lowse them, and bringe the vnto me. And yf any man saye ought vnto you, saye ye: the LORDE hath neede of the.

all this was done, that the thinge mighte be fulfylled, which was spoken by the prophet, sayenge: Tell the daughter of Sion: beholde, thy kynge commeth vnto y mette, from ge vnto an Assse and a foale of y Assse to the yode. The disciples wente, and dyd as Iesus commaunded them, and brooge the Assse and the foale, z layd their clothes vpon them, and set him thereon. But many of the people spred their garments in the waye: ocher cut downe braunches from the trees, and strewed them in the waye. So sa-the people that wente before and that came after, they cryed and sayde: Hosanna vnto the sonne of Dauid, Blessid be he that commeth in the name of the LORDE, Hosanna in the heighth.

And when he was come into Ierusalem, all the cite was moued, and sayde: Whom this: And the people sayde: This is Iesus y prophet of Nazareth out of Galile. And Iesus wente in to the temple of God, and called out all them that boughte and solde in the temple, and overthrowe the tables of the mazy chaungers, and the sitces of them that sol-de dones, and sayde vnto them: It is writte: My house shalbe called y house of prayer, but ye haue made it a denne of murcheres. The blynde also and y lame came vnto

Then sayde he vnto his seruantes: The mariage is dede is prepared, but the ghests were not worthy. So yowre waye out therfore in to þe hye wayes, and as many as ye fynde, byd them to the mariage. And the seruantes went out in to the hye wayes, and gathered together as many as they coulde fynde, both good and bad, & the tables were all full. Then the kynge went in, to see the ghestes, and spake there a man that had not on a weddinge garment, and sayde vnto him: Stonde, how earnest thou in hither, & hast not on a weddinge garment: And he was cuen speechlesse. Then sayde the kynge vnto his seruantes: Take and bynde him hande and foote, & cast him in to þe vetter darcknes: there shal be waylinge and gnashinge of teth. The same daye there came vnto him the Saducees (which holde that there is no resurrection) and asked him, and sayde: Master, Moses sayeth: If a man dye, haueinge no children, his brother shal marry his wyfe, & raise vp syde vnto his brother. Now were there vnto vs seuen brethren. The first married a wyfe, and dyed: & so forsomuch as he had no syde, he left his wyfe vnto his brother. Like wyse the seccnde, and thirde vnto the fourth. Last of all the woman dyed also. Now in the resurrection, whose wyfe shal she be of the seuen: for they all had her. Jesus answered, and sayde vnto them: Ye erre, and vnderstande not the scriptures, nor the power of God. In the resurrection they shal neither marry, nor be married, but are as the angels of God in heauen.

As touching the resurrection of the dead, I haue ye no need, what is spoken vnto you of God, which sayeth: I am the God of Abraham, and I God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob: Yet is not God a God of the dead, but of the lyuynge. And when the people herde that, they were astounded at his doctrine.

When the Pharisees herde, that he had stopped the mouth of the Saducees, they gathered them silke together. And one of them a Scribe cepted him, and sayde: Master, which is the chiefe commandment in the lawe: Jesus saide vnto him: Thou shalt loue the LORD thy God with all thy heart, with all thy soule, and with all thy mynde: this is the principall and greatest commandment. As for the seconde, it is like vnto in: Thou shalt loue thy neighbour as thy self. In these two commandmentes hangeth all the lawe and the prophetes.

Now whyle the Pharisees were gathered together, Jesus asked them, and sayde: What thinke ye of Christ: Whose sonne is he: They sayde vnto him: Dauides. Jesus sayde vnto them: How then doeth Dauid in psalme, call him LORD, sayenge: The LORD sayde vnto my LORD: Bye thou on my right hande, tyll I make thine enemies thy foete stolle. If Dauid now call him LORD, how is he then his sonne: And no man can deuise to answer him one word, neither durst any man aske him any more questions, fro that daye forth.

Then spake Jesus vnto þe people, and to his disciples, and sayde: The Pharisees & Pharisees are set downe vpon Moses seate. Therfore what soeuer they bid you obserue, that obserue and do, but after that they wrotes shal ye not do, for they saye do not. For they bynde heavy and intolerable burthens, and laye them vpon mens shoulers: But they them selues wil not beare: as they with one of their fyngers. All their workes do they do to be seene of men. They also abide their phylacteries, and make long bordes vpon their garmentes, and looke to be uppermost at the table, and to haue the chiefe seates in the synagoges, and loue to be saluted in the market, and to be called of men Rabbi.

But ye shal not suffice yowre selues to be called Rabbi, for one is your master, even Christ, and all ye are brethren. And call no man father upon earth, for one is your father, which is in heauen. And ye shall not suffer your selues to be called masters, for one is your master, namely, Christ. He that is greater among you, shall be your seruaunt. In who so exalteth him self, shall be brought low: and he that humbleth himself, shall be exalted.

¶ Wo vnto you Scribes and Pharisees, ye hypocrites, that shut up the Kingdome of heauen before men: Ye come not in your selues, neither suffer ye them to enter, that wolde in.

¶ Wo vnto you Scribes and Pharisees, ye hypocrites, that decaure wyddomes houses, and that vnder the colour of prayenge long prayers, cherfoul shall ye receaue y greaue damnacion.

¶ Wo vnto you Scribes and Pharisees, ye hypocrites, which compassie see and lorde to make one y Profelyte: and when he is become one, ye make of him a chyld of hell, two folde more then ye your selues are.

¶ Wo vnto you byndegydes, which saye: Who so sweareth by the temple, that is to saye: but who so euer sweareth by the gyde of the temple, he is guilty. Ye fooles and blinde, whether is greater: the golde, or the temple that sanctifyeth the golde. And who so euer sweareth by the altare, that is to saye: but who so euer sweareth by the offeringe that is vpon it, he is guilty. Ye fooles and blinde, whether is greater: the offeringe, or the altare that sanctifyeth the offeringe. Therfore who so sweareth by the altare, sweareth by the same, and by all that is thereon: and who so sweareth by the temple, sweareth by the same, and by him that dwelleth therein. And who so sweareth by heauen, sweareth by the seate of God, and by him that sitteth thereon.

¶ Wo vnto you scribes and Pharisees, ye hypocrites, which eche thynge, A myn and Cumyn, and leaue the weightier matters of the laue behynde: namely, iudgment, mercy, and fayth. These ought to haue bene done, and not to leaue the other behynde.

¶ Wo vnto you scribes and Pharisees, ye hypocrites, which make cleane the vter syde of the cuppe and platter, but within are full of robbery and excessse. Thou blinde Pharise, cleane first the in syde of the cup-pe: and platter, that the out syde maye be cleane also.

¶ Wo vnto you scribes and Pharisees, ye hypocrites, which be like vnto paynted Sepulchres, that appeare beautifull outwardly, but within they are full of dead mens bones and all fylthines. Then so are ye also: Outwardly ye appeare righteous vnto men, but within ye are full of hypocrysy and iniquyte.

¶ Wo vnto you scribes and Pharisees, ye hypocrites, which buyde the combes of the prophetes, and garnyshe the sepulchres of the righteous, and saye: If we had bene oure fathers tyme, we wolde not haue bene partakers with them in the bloude of the prophetes. Therfore ye be wytnesses vnto your selues, that ye are the chyldren of them, which slew the prophetes. So do fulfill ye also the measure of your fathers. O ye serpentes, O ye generacion of vipers, how wyll ye escape the damnacion of hell?

¶ Therfore beholde, I sende vnto you prophetes and wyse men, and scribes, and some of them shall ye kill and crucyfy, and some of them shall ye scourge in your synagoges, and persecute them from cite to cite: that vpon you maye come all the righteous bloude which hath bene shed vpon y earth, from the bloude of righteous Abel, vnto y bloude of Zachary y sonne of Barachias, whom ye slew betwene the temple and the altare. Verely I saye vnto you: All these thinges shall light vpon this generacion. O Ierusalem Ierusalem, thou that slayest the prophetes, and stonest them that are sent vnto the: how oft wolde I haue gathered thy chyldren together, euen as the heeme gathereth hir chikens vnder hir wynges, and ye wolde not: Beholde, youre habitacion shall be left vnto you desolate. For I saye vnto you: Ye shall not see me hence forth, vntill ye see ye: Blessed be he, that commeth in the name of the L O R D E.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

¶ When Iesus wente out and departed from the temple, and his disciples came vnto him, to shew him the buyldinge of the temple. But Iesus sayde vnto them: Se ye not all these thinges: Verely I saye vnto you: there shall not be left here one stone vpon another, y shall not be cast downe. And as he sat vpon the mount Olivet, his disciples came vnto him secretly, and saide: Tell us, wher shall these thinges come to

All these thynges must first come to passe, honger, and earthquakes here & there. All these are the begynnynges of sorrowes.

Then shall they put you to trouble, & shall kill you, and ye shall be hated of all people for my names sake. They shall make be offer-red, and shall betraye one another, and shall hate one the other. And many false prophets shall arise, and shall disceane many: and because they saye shall haue the vpper han-endureth vnto y. ende, y. same shall be saved.

And this gospell of the kyngdome shall be

But wo vnto them that are with childe, and to them that geue suck in those dayes. But praye, y. that your flighte be not in y. wy-be shortened.

Then yf any man shall saye vnto you: lo, here is Christ, or there, beleue it not. For the which shall arise false christes and false prophets, and shall do greate colles and wonders: in so much, that yf it were possible, the very Immediately after the trouble of the their light, and the starres shall fall from moue: and then shall appere the token of the sonne of man in heauen: and then shall all the knoweth no man, no not the angells of he-the tyme of Noe: so shall the commynge of the sonne of man be also. For as they were in the dayes before y. flood: they ate, they dronke, they married, and were maried, and vnto the daye y. Noe entered in to the ship-pe, and they regarded it not, vntill the flood came and toke them all away: so shall the commynge of the sonne of man be. They shall not be in the fild: the one shall be married, and the other shall be refused: Two shall be gryndyng at the Myll, the one shall recei-in the bed, the one shall be receaved, and the other refused.)

houre your LORD will come. But be feare of this, that yf the good man of the house knewe what houre the thefe wolde come, he wolde sure watch, and not suffice his house to be broken vp. Therefore be ye ready al-waye in the houre that ye chynge not, shall the sonne of man come. Who is now a faithfull geue them meate in due season: Blessyd is y. seruaunt, whom his lord (whan he cometh) shall fynde so voyng. Dearly, y. saye vnto

The xxv. Chapter.

Then shal the kyngdome of heauen be like vnto ten virgins, which toke their lāpes, and wente forth to mete the bydegome. But fyve of them were foolish, and fyve were wyse. The foolish toke their lāpes, nevertheless they toke none oyle with them. But the wyse toke oyle in their vessils with their lāpes. Now whyle the bydegome caryed, they slombered all and slepe. But at mynnyght there was a crye made: Beholde, the bydegome cometh, go youre waye out for to mete him. Then all those virgins arose, and prepared their lam-pes. But the foolish sayde vnto the wyse: geue vs of youre oyle, for oure lāpes are gome out. Then answered the wyse, and sayde: Nee so, lest there be not ynough for vs and you, but go rather vnto them that sell, and bye for youre selues. And whyle they were to bye, the bydegome came: and they that were readye, wente in with him vnto the ma-riage, and the gate was shut vp. ¶ After that of other virgins also, and sayde: LOR-DE LORDE, open vnto vs. But he answered, and sayde: Verely I saye vnto you: I knowe you not. Watch ye therfore, for ye knowe neither the daye ner yet the houre, when y son of man shal come.

The wyse as a certayne mā ready to cale his iourney in to a straunge countre, called his seruantes, and delyuered his goodes vnto the. And vnto one he gaue fyve talentes, to another two, and to another one: vnto every man a ffar his abyltye, and straighte waye departed. Then he that had receaued the fyve talentes, wente and occupied with the same, and wanne other fyve talentes.
Likewyse he that receaued two talentes, wāne other two also. But he that receaued y one wente and dygged a pye in the earth, and hys hye loutres monye. ¶ After a longe season the lord of those seruantes came, and refend with them. Then came he that had re-ceaued fyve talentes, and broughe ocher fy-ue talentes, and sayde: Syr, thou delyuerdest vnto me fyve talentes: Beholde, with them I haue y wonne fyve talentes mo. Then sayde his lord vnto hi: wel thou good & faithfull seruaunt, thou hast bene faithfull ouer litle, I will set the ouer moche: entre thou in to the ioye of thy lord. The same he also that had receaued two talentes, and sayde: Syr, thou delyuerdest vnto me two talentes: Beholde, I haue wonne two other talentes with the.

His lord sayde vnto him: Wel thou good and faithfull seruaunt, thou hast bene faith-full ouer litle, I will set the ouer moche: entre thou in to the ioye of thy lord.

Then he that had receaued the one talente, came and sayde: Syr, I knewe that thou art an hard man: thou reapest where thou hast not sowed, and gatherest where thou hast not sowed, and so I was a ffar, and wete and hyd thy talent in the earth: lo, there thou hast thine owne. But his lord answered, and sayde vnto him: Thou euell and slothfull seruaunt, knowest thou that I reape where I sowed not, and gather where I strawed not? Thou shuldest therfore haue had my money to the chaungers, and then at my commynge shuldest I haue recea-ued myne owne with vantage. Therfore take the talent fro him, and geue it vnto him that hath ten talentes. For who so hath, to him shalbe geuen, and he shall haue abundauce. But who so hath not, fro him shal-be take awaye euery thinge that he hath. And cast the vnprouisable seruaunt in to vter darnes: there shalbe waylinge and gnashinge of teeth.

But when the sonne of man shal come in his glory, and all holy angels with him, then shal he syt upon the seate of his glory.
And all people shalbe gathered before him, and he shal separate them one from another as a shepherde deuyteth the shepe from y goates. And he shal set y shepe on his right honde, and the goates on the lefte. Then shal the kyng saye vnto them that shalbe on his righte honde: Come hither ye blessed of my father, in here: ye y kyngdome, which is prepared for you from the begynnyng of the world. For I was hongry, and ye ga-ue me meate: I was thirstie, and ye gaue me drynke: I was hardenlesse, and ye lodged me: I was naked, & ye clothed me: I was sicke, and ye visyted me: I was in pison, and ye came vnto me.

Then shal the righteous answer him, & saye: LORDE, whē sawe we the hōgry, and fed the: Or thirstie, and gaue the drynke?
When sawe we the hardenlesse, and lodged them: Verely I saye vnto you: Loke what ye haue done vnto one of the least of these my brethren, the same haue ye done vnto me.

Then shal he saye also vnto them that shalbe on the left hande: Departe fro me ye caused in to the euerlastinge fyre, which is prepared for the deuill and his angels. For I was hōgrie, and ye gaue me no meate: I was thursty, and ye gaue me no drynke: I was herbourlesse, and ye lodged me not: I was naked, and ye clothed me not: I was sicke, and in prison, and ye vsyred me not.

Then shal they also answerē hī, and saye: LORD E, when sawe we the hōgrie, or thursty, or herbourlesse, or naked, or sicke, or in prison, and haue not mystryd vnto the? The shal he answerē them, and saye: Verely I saye vnto you: Loke what ye haue not done vnto one of the least of these, the same haue ye not done vnto me. And these shal go in to euerlastinge payne, but the righteous in to euerlastinge life.

The XXVI. Chapter.

AND it came to passe whā Iesus had finished all these wordes, he sayde vnto his disciples: Ye knowe, that after two dayes shalbe Easter, and the sonne of man shalbe betrayed to be crucified.

Then assembled together the hye priestes and the scribes, and the elders of the people in to the palace of the hye priest which was called Caiphās, and helde a counsell, how they might kate Iesus by discreet, and kyl him. Due they sayde: For on the holy daye, lest there be an vpriour in the people.

Now when Iesus was at Bethany in the house of Symon the leper, there came vnto hī a woman, which had a boze with precious oymente, and poured it vpon his heade, as he sat at the table. When his disciples sawe that, they dysdayned, and sayde: Wherefore seruch this wast? This oymente might haue bene selde, and geue to the poore. Whē Iesus perceaued that, he sayde vnto them: Why trouble ye the woman? She hath reioyced a good worke vpon me for ye haue allwaye the poore with you, but me shal ye not haue allwaye. Where as she hath poured this oymente vpon my body, she dyd it to bury me. Verely I saye vnto you: wher so euer this gospel shalbe preached thorow out all the worlde, there shal this also that she hath done, be tolde for a memoriall of her.

(Iscariot) wente vnto the hye priestes, and sayde: What wil ye geue me, and I shal betraye him vnto you? And they offered hī thirtie syluer pēns. And from that tyme forth, he soughe oportynite to betraye hym.

The first daye of faste dyd come the daye called to Iesus, and sayde vnto him: Wher wil thou that we prepare for the to eate the Easter lambe? He sayde: Go in to the cite to such a man, and saye vnto hym: The Master sendeth the worde: My tyme is at hande, I wil kepe iuyne Easter by the with my disciples. And the disciples dyd as Iesus had appoynted them, and made ready the Easter lambe.

And at euen he sat downe at the table with the twolue. And as they ate, he sayde: Verely I saye vnto you: One of you shal betraye me. And they were eue adoringe soverfull, and beganne euery one of them to saye vnto him: Sye, is it I? He answered and sayde: He that betrayeth his honde with me in the dyshe, the same shal betraye me. The sonne of man goeth forth, as it is wyrtyn of him: but wo vnto that man by whō the sonne of man shalbe betrayed: It had bene better for that mā, if he had neuer bene borne. This Judas thus betrayed hym, answered and sayde: Master, is it I? He sayde vnto him: Thou hast sayde.

And as they ate, Iesus toke the bred, gaue thankes, brake it, and gaue it to the disciples, and sayde: Take, eate, this is my body. And he toke the cuppe, and thanked, and gaue it to hē, and sayde: Drynke ye all thereof, this is my bloud of the new testamēt, that shalbe shed for many for the remission of synnes. I saye vnto you: I wil not drynke hence forth of this fraye of the vnto tre, vntill that daye that I shal drynke it new with you in my fathers kyngdome.

And when they had sayde grace, the wente forth vnto mount Olivete. Then sayde Iesus vnto them: This night shal ye all be offended in me. For it is wyrtyn: I wil synye the shepheard, and the shepe of the flocke shalbe scattered abrode. But after that I ryse agayne, I wil go before you in Galile. Peter answered and sayde vnto him: Though all men shulde be offended in y, yet wil I neuer be offended. Iesus sayde vnto hī: Verely I saye vnto y: This same night before y coyk crowe, shalst thou deny me thryse. Peter saide vnto him: And though I shulde dye with the, yet wil I not deny the L. xxiij also sayde all the disciples.

 Then came Jesus with them into a seld which is called Gethsemane, and sayde unto the disciples: Syc ye here, whyle I go under z praye. And he toke with him Peter, and the two sonnes of Zebede, and be-ganne to weere fousonfull and to be in an agony. Then sayde Jesus unto them: My soule is heay even unto the deatch. Cary ye here, and watch with me. And he werne forch a lele, and fell flat upon his face, and prayed saynge: O my father, yf it be possible, let this cuppe passe fro me: neuertheless not as I wil but as thou wilt. And he came to his disciples, and fownde the a slepe, z sayde unto Peter: What: coude ye not watch with me one houre: Watch z praye, that ye fall not in to temptation. The spure is wyllingge, but the flesch is weak.
 Agayne, he wete forch the seconde tyme and prayed, saynge: O my father, yf this cuppe can not passe awaye fro me (excepte I drinke of it): thy will be fulfilled. And he came, and fownde them a slepe agayne, and then hea wete hery. And he leste them, and went forch agayne, and prayed the thirde tyme, saynge the same wordes. Then came he to his disciples, and sayde unto them: Slee on now, and take youre rest. Beholde, the houre is come, & the sonne of man shal-be betrayed in to the hondes of synners: Ariseker not be goynge. Beholde, he is at hys be, that betrayeth me.
 Whyle he ye: spake, so, Judas one of the twelve came, and with him a greates multitude with swordes and staves, sent fro the hye priestes and elders of the people. And he that betrayed him, had given them a toke, saynge: Whom so ever I kysse, that same is he, laye hodes vpo him. And forch withal he came to Jesus, and sayde: Gyle master, and kysed him. And Jesus sayde unto him: fronde, wherfore art thou come? Then can-me they, and layed hondes upon Jesus, and toke him. And beholde, one of them that were with Jesus, stretched out his honde, and toke his swerde, and stroke a seruant of the hye priestes, z smote of his eare: Then sayde Jesus unto him: Put vp & swerde in to his place. For all that take the swerde, shal pe-ish with the swerde. Or thinkest thou that I can not praye my father now, to sende me more then twelve legions of angels: But how the shoulde I be scripures be fulfilled: I saye this must be.
 In the same honde sayde Jesus unto the multitude: Ye are come out as it were to a murderer with swordes and staves for to take me. I sat daylie teaching in the temple amonge you, and ye toke me not. But all this is done, that the scripures of the prophetes might be fulfilled. & he all the disciples leste him, and fled. But they that toke Jesus, led him to Caiphias the hye priest, wher the scribes and the elders were gathered together. As for Peter, he folowed him a farte of unto the hye priestes palace, z wente in, and sat with the seruanntes, that he might se the ende.

 Dus the hye priestes and the elders, and the whole counsell soughte false wytnesse agaynst Jesus, that they might put him to deatch, and founde none. And though many false wytnesses stepte forth, yet founde they none. At the last there stepte forth two false wytnesses, z spake the sayde: I can breake downe the temple of God, and buyde it agayne in thre dayes.
 And the hye priest stode vp, and sayde unto him: Answerest thou nothinge, vnto it, that these testifye agaynst the: Neuertheles Jesus helde his tonge. And the hye priest answered, and sayde vnto him: I charge the by I synge God, that thou tell us, yf thou be Christ the sonne of God. Jesus spake Thou hast sayde it. Neuerthelesse I saye vnto you: from this tyme forth it shal come to passe, that ye shal se the sonne of man syttinge vpon the ryghte hande of the power (of God) and commynge in the cloudes of the heauen.
 Then the hye priest rente his clothes, and sayde: he hath blasphemed, what neede we eny mo wytnesses: Lo, now haue ye hearde his blasphemy: What thinke ye? They answered, z sayde: He is gylty of deatch. Then spyered they in his face, z smote him with fistes. Some smote him vpon the face, and sayde: Prophecie vnto us thou Christ, who is it, that smote the?
 As for Peter, he sat without in the pale-ce. And there came vnto him a damnell, and sayde: And thou wast with Jesus of Galilee also. Neuertheles he denyed before the all, and sayde: I can not tell what thou sayest.
 But when he wete out at the doore, another damnell saue him, and sayde vnto them that were there: This was also with Jesus of Nazareth. And he denyed agayne, and swore also: I knowe not the ma. And a fter a litle whyle, they that stode there, shrepe forth, and sayde vnto Peter: Of a trouth thou art one of them also, for thy speache betrayeth the. Then begane he to curse and ment by, reuered him, and wagged their beades and sayde: Thou that breakest bowe in the temple of God, and buyldest it in thre dayes, helpe thy self. If thou be the sonne of God, come downe from the crosse. The hye prieftes also in like maner with the scrybes & elders, laughed him to scorne, and sayde: he hath helped other, and can not helpe him self. If he be the synge of Israel, let him come downe now from the crosse, and we wil beloue him. He trusted in God, let him deli-uer himsome, yf he wil haue him. For he hath sayde: I am the sonne of God. The murderers also that were crucified with him, cast the same in his teche.

And from 3 fixe houre there was barchmas ouer the wholde earth vnto the nyenth houre. And aboute the nyenth houre, Iesus and many a lowde voyce, and sayde: Eli, Eli, Lamma sabachani: that is, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? But some of the that stode there, when they herde 3 sayde: he calleth Elias. And immediately one of them ranne, and toke a spoge, and fylled it with vnegar, and put it vpon a rebe, and gaue him to dryncke. But 3 other sayde: holde, let se whether Elias wyl come, and buyar him. Iesus cried agayne with a low-de voyce, and gaue vp the goost.

3 And beholde, the vale of the temple was rent in two peces, from aboue vnto benech, and the earth quaked, and the stoncs rent, and the graues opened, and many bodie of the sayntes that slepte, arose, and wete out of the graues after his resurrection, and came in to the holy cite, and appeared vnto many.

24 But the captaigne and they that were with him, and keepe Iesus, when they sawe the earthquake and the thinges that were done, they were sore afrayed, and sayde: Verily this was Godde sonne. And there were 25 many women there looyng as a farre of, which had folowed Iesus from Galile, and had mynistred vnto him: amonge whom was Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James and Iosef, and the mother of the children of Zebede.

26 At euen there came a rich man of Arima-thea, called Ioseph, which was also a disciple of Iesus. He wete vnto pylate, and aske the body of Iesus. Then commaunded pyl-ate that the body shoulde be geue him. And Ioseph toke the body, and wrapped it in a deane linnen cloth, and layed it in his owne new sepulcre, which he had heryen out in a rode, and rolled a greate stoncs to the doore of the sepulcre, and wente his waye. And there, was Mary Magdalene and 3 other Mary, syttinge ouer agaynst the sepulcre.

The next daye that foloweth the daye of pepermyng, the hye prieftes and pharisees came together vnto pylate, and saide: Syt, we haue called to remembrance, that this disciple sayde whyle he was yet a lyue: After the dayes 3 wyl ryste agayne. Commaunde therefore that the sepulcre be kepte vnto the thirde daye, lest peradventure his disciples come, and steale him awaye, and saue vnto the people: he is risen from the deed, and so shal the last erroure be worse the first. Pylate sayde vnto them: There haue ye watchmē, go your waye, and kepe it as ye can. They wete and kepte the sepulcre w watchmen, and sealed the stone.

The XXXVIII. Chapter.

3 Upon the euenyng of the Sabbath 2 holy daye, which dunneth 3 morow of the first daye of 3 Sabbathes, came Mary Magdalene and 3 other Mary, to se 3 sepulcre. And beholde, there was made a greate earthquake: for the angell of the LORDE befended from heauen, and came and rolled backe 3 stone from the doore, and sat vpon it. And his countenance was as 3 lightenynge, and his clothyngs whyte as snowe. But 3 watchmē were troubled for fears of him, and became as though they were deed.

The angell answered, and sayde vnto 3 women: Be not ye afrayed. I knowe that ye seke Iesus that was crucified. he is not here. he is risen, as he sayde. Come, and se the place, wherethe LORDE was layed, and go your waye soone, and tell his disciples, that he is risen from the deed. And beholde, he wyl go before you in to Galile, there shal ye se him. So, I haue tolde you.

And they departed from the graue in all 23 the haist with feare and greates ioye, & ran-ne to bidde his disciples wode. And as they were goinge to tell his disciples, beholde, Iesus met them, and sayde: God speke you.
And they wente vnto him, and helde his feces, and fell downe before him. The sayde Jesus vnto them: Be not afrayed: go your waye and tell my brethren, that they go in to Galile, there shal they se me.

And whan they were gone, beholde, certaine of the watchmen came in to the cite, & tolde the hye prieftes every thinge that had happened. And they came together with the elders, and helde a counsell, and gaue y foorders money mough, and sayde: Saye ye

The gospell
The gospell of
S. Marke.

The first Chapter.

This is the begynnyng of the gospell of Ihesus Christ the sonne of God, as it is roteyd in the prophete. Beholde, I sende in my messinger before thy face; which shal prepare thy waye before the. The voyce of a cryer is in the wyldernes: Prepare the waye of the LORDE, make his pathes straight.

John was in the wyldernes, and baptyse, and preached the baptyeme of amende-ment, for the remyssion of synnes. And then wente out vnto him the whole londe of Iewry, and they of Jerusalem, and were all baptyfed of him in Jordan, and knowledgith their synnes.

John was clothed with Camels heer, and with a lection gerbell aboune his loynes, and ate locustes and wyld honny, and preached, and sayde: There cometh one after me, which is stronger then I: before whom I am not worthy to stoupe doune, and to kisse vp þe lacher of his shue. I baptyse you with water, but he shal baptyse you with the holy goost.

And it happened at the same tyme, that Ihesus came out of Galilee from Nazareth, and was baptyfed of Iohn in Jordan. And as some as he was come out of the water, he sawe that the heauens opened, and the doost as a doue comynge doune vpon him. And there came a voyce from heaue: Thou art my beare soune, in whom I delecte.

And immediatly the sperte droue him in to the wyldernes: and he was in the wyldernes fourty dayes, and was tempted of Sa-than, and was with the wyld beestes. And the angels mystified vnto him.

But after that Iohn was taken, Ihesus came in to Galile, and preached the gospell of the kyngdome of God, and sayde: the tyme is fulfilled, and the kyngdome of God is at hande: Amende youre selues, and beleue the gospell.

So as he walked by the se of Galile, he sawe Symon and Andrew his brother, casting their nettes in the see, for they were fyshers. And Ihesus sayde vnto the: folowme me, and I wil make you fyshers of men. And immediatly they left their nettes, and folowed him.

And when he was gone a lytle further from thence, he sawe James the sonne of Zebede, and Iohn his brother, as they were in the shyppe mendynge their nettes. And anon he called them. And they left their father Zebede in the shyppe with the hyed seruautes, and folowed him.

And they wente in to Capernaum, and immediatly vpon the Sabbathes, he entred in to the synagoge, and taught. And they were astonyed at his doctryne: for he taught them as one hauynge power, and not as the Scribes.

And in their synagoge there was a man possessed with a foule sperte, which cried and sayde: Oh what haue we to do with the, thou Ihesus of Nazareth. Art thou come to destroye us: I knowe that thou art euen þe holy one of God. And Ihesus reposed him, and sayde: holde thy tongue, and departe out of him. And the soule sperte tare him, and cried with a loude voyce, and departed out of him. And they were all astonyed, in so much that they aied one another amonge the silues, and sayde: What is this: What new letyng is this: for he comanndeth the foule spertes with power, and they are obedient vnto him. And immediatly the same of him was noyed rounde aboune in the coastes and borders of Galile.

And forth with they wente out of the synagoge, and came in to the house of Symon and Andrew, w James and Iohn. And Symons mother in lawe laye, and had the fevers, and anonie they tolde him of her. And he came to her, and sic her vp, and tolde her by þe hande, and the fever left her immediatly. And she mystified vnto them.

At euen when the Soime was gone doune, they broughe vnto him all that were sic and possessed, and the whole cite was gathered together at the doore, and he healed many that were diseased with diverse sicknesses, and cast out many devils, and suffered not the devils to speak, because they knew him.

D And in the morning before daye, he arose, and wente out. And Jesus departed in to a deserte place, and prayed there. Peter also and they that were with him, followed after him. And when they had founde him, they sayde unto him: Every man seeketh thee. And he sayde unto them: Let us go in to the next townes, that I maye preach there also, for thereto am I come. And he preached in their synagoges, in all Galile, and drove out the devyle.

And there came unto him a leper, which besought him, and kneled before him, & sayde unto him: If thou wilt, thou canst make me cleane. And he putte Jesus, and he stretched forth his hande, and touched him, and sayde: I will, be thou cleane. And whā he had so spoken, immediately the leprosy departed fro him, and he was cleane.

Mat. 9. a
And Jesus forbade him straicy, and forth with sent him away, and sayde unto him: Take heed, that thou saye nothinge to any man, but go chy waye, and shew thy self unto the priest, and offre for thy cleansynge what Moyses commaunded, for a witness unto them. But he when he was departed, beganne to speake much of it, and made the dede knowne: in so much that Jesus coulde no more go into the cite openly, but was without in deserte places. 2 they came unto him fro all quarters.

The ii. Chapter.

2 After certayne dayes he wente agayne unto Capernaum, and it was noyset that he was in y house. And immediately there was gathered a greace multitude, in so much that they had no roome, no noe without before the doore. And he spake the worde unto the. And there came unto him certayne, which broughte one sicke of the palsy borne of foure. And when they coulde not come nye him for y people, they encountered y rose of y house where he was. And when they had made a hole, they lett downe the bed (by coarben) wherein the sicke of y palsy laye. But when Jesus sawe their faith, he sayde unto the sicke of the palsy: My sonne, thy synnes are forgiven thee.

2 Wherche the there were certayne scribes which sit there, & thoughte in their hertes: How speaketh this man sodly blasphemy: Who can forgive synnes, but onely God? And immediately Jesus knew in his spere, that they thoughte so in the silus, and saide unto them: Why thynke ye sodly thinge in your hertes? Whether is easier to saye in the sicke of the palsy: Thy synnes are forgiven thee, or to saye: Arise, take up thy bed and walke. But that ye maye knowe, that y sonne of man hath power to forgive synnes upon earth, he sayde unto the sicke of y palsy: I saye unto the, arise, take up thy bed, and go home. And immediately he arose, toke his bed, and wente forth before them all in so much that they were all astonished, and praised God, and sayde: We never sawe sodly.

And he wente soth agayne unto the sicke, and all the people came unto him, and he taughte them. And as Jesus passed by, he sawe Levi the sonne of Alphesus sittinge at the receate of custome, and sayde unto him: Follow me. And he arose, and followed him. And it came to passe as he sat at the table in his house, there sat many publicans & sinners at the table with Jesus and his disciples. For there were many y followed him. And when the scribes and pharisees sawe that he ate with publicans & sinners, they sayde unto his disciples: Why doth he eat and dryncke with y publicans and sinners? Whan Jesus herde that, he sayde unto the: The whole nedde not y pharisee, but they that are ycke. I am now come to call the righteous, but the synners to repentance.

And the disciples of Jhon and of y pharisees faste. And there came certayne, which sayde unto him: Why faste the disciples of Jhon, and of y pharisee, and thy disciples faste not? And Jesus sayde unto them: How can the weddinge children fast, while the brydegrome is with them? So long as y brydegrome is with them, they can not fast. But the tyme wyl come, that the brydegrome shalbe taken from them, and then fast they fast.

To man someth a pece of new doth m to an olde garment, for els he tareth awaye the new pece from the olde, and so is this world. And no man putteth new wyne in olde vessels, els the new wyne breaketh the vessels, and the wyne is spylle, and y vessels perishe: but new wyne must be put in new vessels.

And it chaunse that upon y Sabbath he wente therow the cornfeldes, and his disciples beganne to make a waye thowm, and to plucke the eares of y corne. And the pharisees sayde unto him: Beholde, what thy disciples do, which is not lawfull upon the Sabbath. And he sayde unto the: Have ye never nd what Dauid byd, whā he had mede, and was an hongred, both he and they that were with him: how he wente in to the house of God in the tyme of Abiathar the hye priest, and ate the shewbröde (which was lawfull for no man to eate, but for the prestes) and he gaue them vnto him, and to them that were with him: And he sayde vnto them: The Sabbath was made for mans sake, and not man for the Sabbaths sake. Therfore is the sonne of man LORD OF euen ouer the Sabbath.

The III. Chapter.

So wente agayne also in to the synagoge, and there was there a mā that had a wythred hande. And they marred him, whether he wolde heale him on the Sabbath, that they might accuse him. And he sayde vnto of mā with the wythred hande: Steppes forth here. And he sayde vnto the: Is it lawfull to do good on the Sabbath: Or is it lawfull to do euill: to save life, or to kill: But they helde their conge. And he looked rounde aboute vpon them with wrath, and was firy for the harde hertes of the, and sayde vnto the man: Strecth out thine hande. And he stretched it out. And his hande was made whole like as of ycher.

And the Phariseis wöde out, and straight way they helde a counsell with Herodes and officers agaynst him how they might destroy him. But Iesus departed away with his disciples vnto the see. And there folowed him moch people out of Galilee, and frō Jewy, and frōm Ierusalem, and out of Iudaea, and frōm beyonde Iordan, and they thardmōlt aboute Tyre and Sydon, a grea multitude which had herde of his noble acts, and came vnto him.

And he spake vnto his disciples of they shulde take a shyppe for him because of the people, lest they shulde thunge him: for he heald many of them, in so moch, that all they which were plagued, pressed vpon him, that they might touch him. And whan the foue shippes saue him, they fell downe before him, and cried, and sayde: Thou art the sonne of God. And he charged them fearely, that they shulde not make him knowe.

And he wente up in to a mountayne, and called vnto him whom he wolde, and they came vnto him. And he ordeyned of twoules, that they shulde be with him, and that he might sende them out to preach, and that they might haue power to heale sicknesse, and to cast out deuyls. And vnto Symon he gaue the name Peter, and James the sonne of Zebede, and Iohn the brother of James, and gaue the name Donargos, that is to saye the children of thonder: and Andrew, and Philippe, and Bartholomew, and Mathew, and Thomas, and James of sonne of Alphaeus, and Lebbaeus, and Symon of Cana, and Judas Iscariot which betrayed him.

And they came to house. Then assembled the people together agayne, in so moch that they had no leysure to eate. And whan they that were aboute him herde of it, they wente out to holde him. For they sayde: because he hath done moch vpon him. But the scriybes that were come downe from Ierusalem, sayde: he hath beleubod, and thorum the these deauld casteth he out deuyls. And he called them together, and spake vnto them in similitudes:

How can one Sathan dryue out another: And ys a realme be denyed in it self, how can it endure: And ys a house be denyed agaynst it self, it can not consume. If Sathan now ryse agaynst him self, and be at variance with him self, he can not endure, but is at an ende. No man can entre in to a stronge mans house, and take away his goodes, receyue he first bynde the stronge man, and then spoyle his house.

Verely I saye vnto you: All synnes shal be forgiven the children of men, and the blasphemie also wherewith they blasphemis. But who so blasphemeth the holy goost, hath neuer forgiveness, but is gilty of the everlasting iudgment. For they sayde: he hath an vnclene spere.

And there came his mother and his brethren, and stode without, and sent vnto him, and called him. And the people sat aboute him, and sayde vnto him: Beholde, thy mother and thy brethren are after the wythour. And he answered, and sayde: Who is my mother and my brethren: And he looked rounde aboute him vpon his disciples, which sat rounde in compassi aboute him, and sayde: Beholde, my mother and my brethren. For who so enerdeth the will of God the same is my brother, and my sister and my mother.

The III. Chapter.

He began agayne to teach by a shippe. And there gathered moch people vnto him, so that he wente in to a shippe, and sat vpon the water. And all the people stode vpon the londe by the see syde. And he preached longe vnto the by paraboles, and sayde vnto the in his doctryne: hereto, beholde, there cometh out a sower to sow: & it happened whyle he was sowing, that some fell by the way syde. Then came the fowles vnder the heauen, and ate it vp. Some fell vpon stonye grounde, where it had not moche earth: and anon it came vp, because it had not depe earth. Now whā the some arose, it caught heate: and in so moche as it had no rote, it withered away. And some fel amonge the thornes, & the thornes grew vp, and choked it, and it gaue no frute. And some fell vpon a good grounde, which gaue frute, that came vp and grew. And some bare thurris folde, and some steele folde, and some an handrech folde. And he sayde vnto them: Who so hath eares to heare, let him heare.

And whan he was alone, they that roore aboute him & the twolue, ased him concerninge this parable. And he sayde vnto the: Vnto you it is geuen, to knowe the mystery of the kyngdome of God: but vnto them that are without, all thinges happen by paraboles, that with synge eyes they may see, and not discern: and that with hearinge eares they may heare, and not vnderstande, lest at any tyme they turne, and their synnes be forgiven them. And he sayde vnto them: Vnderstande ye not this parable? How wyl ye then vnderstande all other paraboles?

The sower soweth the worde. These be they that are by the waye syde: where the worde is sowne, and as soone as they haue herde it, immediatly commeth Satā, and taketh awaye the worde that was sowne in their hertes. And likewise are they that are sowne on the stonye grounde: which when they haue herde the worde, receaue it with ioye, and haue no rote in them: but endure for a tyme. When trouble and persecution ariseth for his wordes sake, immediatly they are offended. And these are they that are sowne amonge the thornes: which heare the worde, and yet carelesnes of this worde, and the discaresnes of riches, and many other lustes entre in, and choke the worde, and so is it made vnfertill. And these are they that are sowne vpon a good grounde: which heare the worde, and receaue it, and bringe forth frute in some thurris folde, and some steele folde, and some an handrech folde.

And he sayde vnto the: As a candle lighted be vnder a bushell, or vnder a table: As it is not lighted, to be set vpon a candlestick: For there is nothyng hyd, that shal not be openly shewed: and theris nothinge secreete, & shal not be knowen. Who so hath eares to heare, let him heare. And he sayde vnto them: Take heede wth ye heare. Wth what measure ye mete, wth the same shal it be measured vnto you agayne. And vnto you that heare this, shal moche be geuen, for who so hath vnto him shal be geuen: and who so hath not, from him shal be taken awaye, euen that he hath.

And he sayde: The kyngdome of God is after this maner, as when a man casteth seede vpon the londe, and slepeth, and standeth vp night and daye, and the seede springeth vp, & groweth, he not knowinge of it. (So the earth bringeth forth frute of herselfe: first the grasse, afterwards the eare, then the full wheat in the eare.) But when he hath brought forth the frute, he putteth in the sickell, because the harvest is come.

And he sayde: Where vnto wyl I liken the kyngdome of God? Or by what similitude wyl I compare it? It is like a graine of mustarde seede, which whā it is sowne vnto the londe, is the leest amonge all seds of the earth. And whā it is sowne, it groweth vp, and is greater then all herbes, and geueth greete bannettes, so & the fowles vnder the heauē maye dwell vnder y shadowe thereof.

And by many such paraboles he spaketh the worde vnto the, there after as they might beare it, & without paraboles spaketh he nothinge vnto them: but vnto his disciples he expounded all thinges pryuaely. And the same daye at even he sayde vnto them: let us passe ouer. And they let the people go, and toke him as he was in the shippe, and there were mo shippes with him. And there ariseth a greete storme of wynde, and dashed the waves in to the shippe, so that the shippe was full. And he was behynde in the shippe and slepeth vpon a pelowe. And they awok him & sayde vnto him: Master, Carest thou not, that we perishe? And he arose, and rebuted them, and sayde vnto the: Peace, and be still. And the wynde was layd, & there foloweth a greete calme. And he sayde vnto them: Why are ye so fearefull? How is it, that ye haue no faith? And they feare exceedingly, & sayde one to another: What is he this? For wynde and sea are obediēt vnto him.

of an uncleane spete, which had his dwelling in the graues. And no man coude byn deuyne, no nor with theymes: for he was oft bounde with fetters & theymes, and placete the theymes in sunner, and brake the fetters theymes, and no man coude tame him. And he was allwaye both daye and night upon the mountaynes and in the graues crienge, and beatinge him self with stones. But when he sawe Iesus asatte of, he ranne, and fell downe before him, and cried loude, and sayde: What haue I to do with the O Iesus thou some of I Jhesu God: I charge thee by God, that thou torment me not. Therwithen he sayde vnto him: Go out of the man thou soule spete. And he ased him: What is thy name? And he answered and sayde: My name is Legion, for there be many of vs. And he played him instantly, that he woldenot sende them a waye out of that countre.

And euen there in the mountaynes there was a greare heerde of swyne fedynge, and all the daye he praied him, and sayde: Let vs departe in to the swyne. And anon Iesus gaue them leue. Then the soule spetez wrot out, and entred in to the swyne. And the hard of swyne, ranne heedlinges in to J see wch a froume. They were aboute a two thousande swyne, and were diuyned in the see.

And the swynes herde fled, and tolde it in the cite, and in the countre. And they wente out for to se what had happened, and came to Iesus, and sawe hym which was possided and had had y legion, that he sat, and was clethe, and in his right mynde, and they were astayed. And they that had sene it, tolde them what had happened to the possided, and of the swyne.

And they beganne to praye him, that he wold departe out of their coastes. And when he came in to the shyppe, the possided prayed him, that he might be with him.

Therwithen Iesus wolde not suffre h, he sayde vnto hi: Go I to y house & to thine owne, and tell the how greate benefices the LORD hath done for y, and how he hath had mercy upon the. And he wente his waye, and beganne to publish in the ten ci ties how: greate benefices Iesus had done for him. And eury man marueyled.

And when Iesus passed ouer agayne by shyppe, there gathered moch people vnto him, and was by the see syde. And beholde, there came one of the rulers of the synagoge, whose name was Jairus. And when he sawe him, he fell downe at his feet, and besought him greatly, & sayde: My daughter is at the poynthe (of deathe) let it be thy pleasure to come and laye thine hande vpon her, that she maye be whole and lyue. And he wente with him, and moch people followed him, and thronged him.

And there was a woman, which had had the bloudysse twolue yeares, and had suffred moch of many physicians, and spent all that she had, and was not helped, but rather in worse case. When she herde of Iesus, she came beynde amonge the people, and touched his garment, for she sayde: If I maye but touch his clothes, I shal be whole.

And immediatly y fountayne of his bloude was dryed up, and she sle in his body, J sh: was healed of the plage.

And forth with Iesus sle in himselfe the power that was gone out of him, and turned him aboute amonge the people, and sayde: Who hath touched my clothes? And his disciples sayde vnto him: Thou seist that the people thrusleth the, and sayest: Who hath touched me? And he looked aboute to se her, that had done it.

As for the woman, she feared and trembled: for she knew, what was done in her) and came and fell downe before him, and tolde him the whole truth. And he sayde vnto her: Doughter, thy faith hath made the whole: go thy waye in peace, & be whole of thy plage.

Whyle he yet spake, there came certayne from the ruler of the synagoge house, and sayde: Thy daughter is dead, why troublest thou the master any more? But Iesus herde right soone the worde that was spoken, and sayde vnto the ruler of the synagoge: Be not thou a frayed, because onely.

And he suffred no man to followe him, but Peter and James and Iohn his brother.

And he came in to the ruler of the synagoge house, and sawe the busyness, and them that wepte and wayled greatly: and he wente in, and sayde vnto them: Why make ye this a doo, and wepe: The mayde is not dead, but slepeth.

And they laughed him to some. And he diuone them all out, and tolde the father and mother of the mayde, and them that were with him, and wente in where the mayden laye. And he took the mayde by the den arose, and walked. She was twolue yea-re olde, and they were astonnyed out of measure. And he charged them straitly, that no man shulde knowe of it, and sayde vnto them, that they shulde geue her to eate.

Mat. 17. g
Luc. 4. c
Ioh. 4. c

And he wente abouen in the townes ou-er euery syde, and taught them. And called the twolue, and began to sende them two and two, and gaue them power ouer the vncleane spites. And commaunded the, that they shulde take nothing with them towards their iourney, save onely a rodde: no scrippe, no berd, no money in the girdell, but shulde be shod with sandales, and that they shulde not put on two coates. And he sayde vnto them: Where so euer ye shal entre in to an house, there abyde, tyll ye go thence. And who so euer myll not receaue you, ner heare you, departe out from thence, and shake of the dust from youre feete, for a wytnesse vnto them. I saye vnto you verely: It shal be easier for Sodome and Gomorra in the daye of iudgment, then for that cite.

Mat. 10. a

Mat. 14. a
Luc. 9. a

And they wente forth, and preached, that men shulde amede them selues, and they cast out many deuyls: and many that were sicke and wounded they mych oyle, and heald the.
And it came to kynge Herods eares (for his name was now knowne) and he sayde: Thon the baptist is risen agayne from the dead, and therefore are his dedes so mightie.
But some sayde: It is Elias. Some sayde: It is a prophet, of one of y prophetes. But when Herode herde it, he sayde: It is Ihon whom I becheved, he is ryisen agayne from the dead. This Herode had sent forth, and taken Ihon, and put him in prison, because of Herodias his brocher Phylippes wyf, for he had married her. Wherefore Ihon sayde vnto Herode: It is not lawfull for the to haue y brochers wyfe. But Herodias layde waite for him, and wolde haue slayne him, and coude not. At some tyme Herode feared Ihon, for he knew that he was a just and holy man: and he feared him, and bette-ned vnto him in many thinges, and herde him gladly.

And there came a convenient daye, that Herode on his birth daye made a suppete of the lordes, captaynes and chiefe officers of Galile. Then the daughter of Herodias came in, and daunsed, and pleased Herode, and them that sat at the table. Then sayde the kyng vnto y dangell: Tell me what thou wilt, I wil geue it the. And he saide unto her: What soeuer thou shal aske of me, I wil geue it the, euen vnto y one half of my kyngdome. She wente forth, and sayde vnto her mother: what shal I aske? She sayde: Ihon baptistes heade. And immediatly she ent-red in to the kyng with halfe, and sayde: I wil that thou geue me straight waye in a platze the heed of Ihon the baptist. When the kyng was so: For the oother sakes the that sat at the table, he wolde not say her nay.

And immediatly he sent the hangman, and commaunded his heade to be brought in. So he wente, and beched him in the prison, and brought his heade in a plattze, and ga-ue it vnto the damsell, and the damsell gaue it vnto hir mother. And when his disciple herde that, they came and toke his body, and layed it in a graue.

And the Apostles came together vnto Iesus, and tolde hi all, and what they had done and taught. And he sayde vnto them: Let vs go out of the waye in to the wy-ernes, and resta litle. For there were many more and goere, and they had not tyme ynough to eate. And there be passed by the out of y waye in to a deserte place. And the people sawe the departinge awaye, and many knewe of it, & came thither together of fore out of all cities, & came before the came vnto him. And Iesus wente out, and sawe moche people, and had compassion vnto them: for they were, as the shepe, that had no shepherde, and he began a lorge sermon. It was when the daye was faire passed, the disciples came vnto him, and sayde: Thou

244 a before place, let them departe, that they may go in to the villages and townes rounde aboute, and by them selues bled, for they haue noching to eate. But Iesus answered and sayde vnto them: Geue yethem to eate.

245 And they sayde vnto him: Shal we go then, and bye two hundred peny worth of bread, and geue them to eate? He sayde vnto them: How many loaves haue ye? Go and see. And when they had searched, they sayde: fyve, and two fishes. And he commaunded them all to syt downe by cable fulles vpon the greas graffe. And they sat downe here a rowe and there a rowe by hundreds and by fiftes. And he toke the fyve loaves and two fishes, and lobed vp vnto heauen, and gaue thankes, and brake the loaves, and gaue to the disciples, to set before them. And the two fishes parred he amonge them all. And they all ate, and were satisfied. And they toke vp twelue baskets full of y broken peces and of the fishes. And they that ate, were aboute fyve thousand men. And none he caused his disciples to go in to the shippe, and to passe ouer before him vnto Bethsaida, whyle he sent a waye the people. And at euen was the shippe in the myddes of the see, and he alone vpon the londe. And he sawe that they were in parrell with rowynge, for the wynde was agaynst them.

246 And aboute the fourth watch of y night he came vnto them, and walked vpon the see, and wolde haue gone ouer by the. And when they sawe him walkinge vpon the see, they thoughte it had bene a spyre, and cried out, for they sawe him all, and were a frayed. But immediately he called with them, and serde vnto them: He of good comfoite, it is I. I denoe a frayed. And he wete vnto them in to the shippe, and the wynde ceased. And they were a storryed, and marueld exceedingly: for they had forgotten the loaves, and their herte was bynded.

247 And when they were passed ouer, they came in to lande of Cenezareth, and dreue up in to the haven. And when chy were come out of the shippe, immediately they knewe him, and ranne thowm out all the region aboute, and beganne on euery syde to brynge vnto him in beddes such as were sicke, where they herde that he was. And whyle he was euer he entred in to townes, cities or villages, there layd they the sicke in the market place, and prayed him, that they mighte but touch the hemme of his garment. And as many as touched him, were made whole.

The VII. Chapter.

248 And there came vnto him the pharisees, and certayne of the scribes, that were come from Ierusalem. And when they sawe certayne of his disciples eate bread with comon (that is, with vnwashen) handes, they complained. For the pharisees & all the Iewes eate not, excepte they wash their handes of s ymes: obseruynge so the tradicions of the elders. And when they came from the market, they eate not, excepte they wash. And many other thynges there be, which they haue taken vpon them to obserue, as the washinge of cuppes and cruces, and blasen vessels and tables.

249 Then the pharisees and scribes asped him: Why walke not chy disciples after the tradicions of the elders, but eate bread with vnwashen handes? But he answered & sayde vnto them: Full well hath I say propheted of you Ipoocrates, as it is wyte: This people honoureth me w their lippes, but their herte is farre fro me. But in vayne do they serue me, whyle they teach sodayntymes as are nothinge but the commaundmentes of men. He leaues the commaundment of God and kepe the tradicions of men, as the washinge of cruces and cuppes, & many sode thynges do ye.

250 And he saide vnto the: How goodly haue ye cast asyde the commaundment of God, to maneyme youre owne tradicions: For Moyses sayde: Honour father & mother. Whoso curseth father and mother, shal bye the deathe. But ye saye: A mā shal saye to father or mother: Coiban, that is, The thinge y I shulde helpe the with all, is geue vnto God. And thus ye suffre him nomore to be ought for his father or his mother, & make Gods worde of none effecte, thowm youre owne tradicions that ye haue set vp. And many sode thynges do ye.

251 And he called vnto him all the people, and sayde vnto them: Herten vnto me ye all, and vnderstonde me. There is noching without a man, that can defyle him, when it entrech in to him. But that goeth out of him, that is it that maketh the man vndeane. If any man haue eares to heare, let him heare. And when he came from the people in to y house, his disciples ased him of this synlikende. And he sayde vnto them: Are ye so then without vnderstondeing? Perceauye ye not yet, y euery thyng which is without, and goeth in to the mā, can not defyle him: Forcithereis not in to his heart, but in to y belly, and goeth out in to the draughte, that purgeth all meates.

C And he sayde: The thinge that goeth out of the man, that defyleth the man. For from within out of the heart of man proceede euill thynghes, aduortise, whordome, murder, chefte, contenciousnes, wickednes, disceate, unclennes, a wicked eye, blasphemy, payde, foolishnes. All these euill thinges go forth from within, and defyle the man.

LUC 11 C And he arose, and wente from thence in to the borders of Tyre and Sydon, & entered in to an house, and wolde let no man knowe of it, and yet could he not be hyd: For a certayne woman, whose daughter had a foule spite) herde of him, and came and fell downe at his feete (and it was in cheite woman of Sydenhates) and she besought him, that he wolde dryne out the deuill from hir daughter. But Jesus sayde vnto her: Let the children be fed first: It is not meete to take the chyldren bread, and to cast it vnto dogges. She answered and sayde vnto him: For LORDEN, marthales the rehelses also eate vnder y table, of y chyldrens cromes. And he

D sayde vnto her: Because of this sayenge of thy maye, the deuill is departed out of thy daughter. And she wente vnto hir house, & founde that the deuill was departed, and hir daughter spenge on the bed.

LUC 11 B And whan he wente out agayne from the coastes of Tyre and Sydon, he came vnto the see of Galile, therto the myddes of 3 coastes of the er cicies. And they broughe vnto him one that was deaf, and had impediment in his speach. And they prayed him, that he wolde laye his hande vpon him.

And he toke him a syde from the people, and put his fynghers in his eares, and byd spyt, and touchyd his tonge, and lokyd vnto heauen, sighed, and sayde vnto him: Ephatha, that is, be opened. And immediately his eares were opened, and the bonde of his tonge was loosed, and he spake right. And he charged them, that they shulde tell no man.

AND 5 A But the more he forbad them, the more they published it, & marueyled out of measure, and sayde: He hath done all thinges well. The deaf hath he made to heare, and the dumme to speake.

The VII. Chapter.

AT the same tyme whan there was much people there, and had nothing to eate, Jesus called his disciples to him, and sayde vnto them: I haue compassion vpon the people, for they haue tauid to me now the dayes, & haue nothing to eate. And yf I let them go home from hie tynges, they shulde fayne by the waye. For some of them were come from farr. And his disciples answered him: Where shal we get bread here in the wyrdines, to feede them? And he eyed tht: How many loaves haue ye? They sayde: Seven. And he commaunded the people to sit downe vpon the grounde. And he toke the seven loaves, and gaue thales, and brake them, and gaue the vnto his disciples to set them before the people. And they set the before the people. And they had a few small fyshes, and whan he had givene thankes, he bad sit the same before the people. They ate, and were satysfied, & toke vp seue baskettes full of y broken meate that was left. And they y aca, were vp a fewe thousande. And he sent tht awaye.

And som which he wente in to a shippe with his disciples, and came in to the coastes of Bethsaida. And the pharisees wente out, and beganne to dispute with him, and temptede him, and desired a token of him from heauen. And he sighed in his soule, and sayde: Why doth this generation seeke tokens? Verely I saye vnto you: There shal no toke be geue vnto this generation. And he left them, and wente agayne in to the shippe, and passed over.

And they foughe to take bread with them, and had no more with them in the shippe but one loaf. And he commaunded them, and sayde: Take heede, and beware of the leuen of the pharisees, and of the leuen of sadde. And their mynches remained here and there, and sayde amonge them selues: This is it, that we haue no bread. And Jesus vnderstode that, and sayde vnto them: Why trouble ye youre selues, that ye haue no bread? See ye yet withoute vnderfonginge: haue ye yet a lynchyd here in your haue ye eyes, & senec: and haue ye eares, and heare not: and remember ye not, that I brake fyue loaves amonge fyue thousande, how many baskettes full of broken meate toke ye then vp? They sayde: twelue. And whan I brake the same amonge the foure thousande, how many baskettes full of broken meate toke ye then vp? They sayde: Seven. And he sayde vnto the: Why are ye then without vnderfonginge? And he came to Bethsaida, & they besoght one blinde vnto him, and prayed him to teach him. And he toke the blinde by the hande, and led him out of the towne, and spat in his eyes, and layed his handes vpon him, and asked him whether he sawe ought.

And he toke vp, and sayde: I see men goyn-g as yf I sawe trees. After this he layed his handes vpon his eyes agayne, and made him to see. And he was broughte to right again, and sawe all clearly. And he sent him home, and sayde: Go not in to y^e towne, and tell itt alld vnto noman therein.

D And Iesus wente out and his disciples into the towne of the cite Cesarea Philippi.
And in y^e waye he asked his disciples and sayde vnto them: What do men saye, that I am? They answered: They saye, thou art Ihose the baptist. Some saye thou art Elias, some that thou art one of the prophetes.
And he sayde vnto them: But whom saye ye that I am? Then answered Peter and sayde vnto him: Thou art very Christ. And he charged them straitly, that they shulde tell no man of him. And he begane to teach them: The sonne of man must suffre many things, and be cast out of the elderts & hye priefes and scribes, and be put to death, and after thre dayes ryse agayne. And that met despise he fre openly. And Peter toke him vnto him, and begane to rebuke him. But he turned him aboute, and looked vpon his disciples, and reproveth Peter, and sayde: Go after me thou Satan, for thou sawe ouert the thinges that be of God, but of men.

E And he called vnto him the people with his disciples, and sayde vnto them: Who so wylt forsake me, let him denye himself, and take vp his crosse, and folowe me. For who so ever wylt save his life, shal lose it: and who so ever loseth his life for my sake and y^e gospells, y^e same shal save it. What helpeth it a man though he waine the whole worlde, and yet take harme in his soule? Or, what can a man geue, to redeme his soule withall?
Who so ever is ashamed of me, and of my wordes amonge this aduoceros and synfull generacion, of him shal the sonne of man also be ashamed, when he cometh in the glory of his father with the holy angels. And he sayde vnto them: Verely I saye vnto you: There shal be here some, which shal not taste of death, vntill they see the Kingdome of God come with power.

The IX. Chapter.

After sixe dayes Iesus toke vnto him Peter, James and Iohn, and brought them vp in to an hye mountayne out of the waye alone, and was craffgured before them, and his clothes were brigte and very whyte as yf snowe, so wy-te as no fuller can make vpon earth. And there appeared vnto the Elias with Moses, and they talked with Iesus. And Peter answered, and sayde vnto Iesus: Rabbi, here is good beinge for vs. Let vs make thre tabernacles: one for the, one for Mose, and one for Elias. For he knewe not what he sayde, and they were very fearful. And there was a cloude, which shadowed the.
And out of the cloude there came a voyce, and sayde: This is my beare sonne, & heare him. And immediatly they looked aboute them, and sawe noman more then Iesus only with them.

But when they wente downe from the mountayne, Iesus charged them, that they shulde tell no man what they had seene, vntill the sonne of man were risen agayne from the dead.

And they kepte that sayenge by them, and asked one another: What is that rysinge agayne from the dead? And they asked him, and sayde: Why saye the scribes then, that Elias must first come? He answered and sayde vnto them: Elias shal come first in deede, and bynge all thinges to right agayne.
The sonne of man also shal suffre many things, and be despised, & so it is wyrtten.
But I saye vnto you: Elias is come, & they haue done vnto him what they wol-de, accordinge as it is wyrtten of hym.

And he came to his disciples, and saue much people aboute them, and the scribes disputynge with them. And as soone as the people sawe, they were astonnyed, and ran-ne vnto him, and saluted him. And he asked the scribes: What dispute ye with them?
And one of the peopel answered, and sayde: Master, I haue broughte vnto the my sonne, which hath a demme spaze: and when so euer he catcheth him, he teareth him, and he somet, and gnaweth with the teeth, and pyneth awaye. & I haue spoken to thy disciples that they shulde cast him out, and they coude not.

He answered him, and sayde: O thou unfaithfull generacion, how longe shal I be with you? How longe shal I suffre you?
Bynge hi hither to me. And they broughte him vnto him. And as soone as the spaze sawe him, he tare him, and fell vpon the earth, and water and fomed. And he azeb his father: how long is it, sēna this happened vnto him: he sayde: Of a childe, and of ceymes hath he cast him in to the fyre and water, to bestroye him: but yf thou canst do eny thinge, haue mercy vpon vs, and helpe vs. Iesus sayde vnto him: If thou couldest beleue: All thinges are possible vnto him that beleueth. And immediatly the father of the childe cried with teares, and sayde: LORDE I beleue: O helpe thou myn vbeloued.

To whom Iesus sawe that the people ranne to, he rebuked the foule spere, and sayde vnto him: Thou domme and deasipute, I charge the, be purre out of him, and curre nom one in to him from hence forth. And he cried, and rent him sore, and departed. And he was as though he had kene deed, in so much that many sayde: he is deed. But Iesus toke him by the hande, and set him vp. And he arose. And when he came home, his disciples azeb him secretly: Why couldest thou not cast him out? And he sayde: This kynde can go out by no meanes, but by praye and fastyng.

And they departed thence, and toke their iourney thowyn Galile, and he wolde not that any man shulde knowe of it. But he caughte his disciples, and sayde vnto them: The sonne of mā shalbe deliuered in to the handes of men, and they shal put him to death: and when he is put to death, he shal rise agayne the thirde daye. But they vnderstode not that woide, and were as sayed to aze him.

And he came to Capernaum. And when he was at home, he azeb them: What disputed ye amonge youre selues by y waye? But they helde their tūges: for they had disputed by the waye amonge them selues, who shulde be y greatesst. And he sat downe, and called the molue, and sayde vnto them: If any man wyl be the first, the same shal be the last of all, and the seruaunt of all. And he toke a childe, and set him in the myddest of them, and toke him in his armes, and sayde vnto them: Who so euer receaueth such a childe in my name, receaueth me: and who so euer receaueth me, receaueth not me, but him that hath sent me.

Then answered him, and sayde: Master, we sawe one byue our deuid in thy name, but he foloweth not vs, and we forbade him because he foloweth vs not. But Iesus sayde: For yd him not: for there is no mā that doth a mynde in my name, and can soone speake euell of me. For who so euer is agaynst vs, the same is for vs. And who so euer getteth you a cuppe of water to drynke in my name, because ye wil longe vnto Christ, verily I saye vnto you: he shal not lose his rewarde. And who so offendeth one of these litle ones that beleue in me, it were better for him, that a myllstone were haged aboute his neck, and he cast in to the see. If chy hāde offende the, cutt him of. Better it is for the to entre in to life lame, the hauyng two hondes to go in to hell in to the euerlastyng fyre, where their soules dryeth not, and their fyre goeth not out.

If thy fore offende the, cutt him of. Better it is for the to entre in to life creppell, the hauyng two feete to be cast in to hell in to the fyre euerlastyng, where their soules dryeth not, and their fyre goeth not out. If thine eye offende the, castt him from the. Better it is for the to entre in to y kyngdome of god with one eye, then hauyng two eyes to be castt in to the fyre of hell: where their soules dryeth not, and their fyre goeth not out. For euery mā must be salted w fyre, & euery offeryng shalbe seasoned w salt. The salt is good: but yf y salt be vnspary, wherwith all shal it be salted: how salt in you, y peau amonge yd selues one with another.

The X. Chapter.

And he rose up, and came from thence in to the places of Jewy beyond Jordan. And the people wote agayne vnto him by heapes, and as his maner was he taughte them agayne. And the pharisees came vnto him, and azeb him, yf it were lawfull for a man to put awaye his wife, and tempted him with all. But he answered and sayde: What hath Moses comanded you? They sayde: Moses suffered vs wyte a testimoniaill of deuo: comē, and to put her awaye. Iesus answered, and sayde vnto them: Because of y hardness of yd hert: by this ses wyte you this commaundement. But from the first creatiō God made the man and woman, for this cause spall a man leue his father & mother, and cleue vnto his wife, and they two shalbe one flesh. These are they nēt twayne the, but one flesh. Let not man therefore putt a sinder that which God hath coupled together.

And at home his disciples azeb him agayne of y same. And he sayde vnto the: Who so euer putteth awaye his wife, & marrieth another, breaketh wedlocke to her: & the which is maried to another, she comēteth aduornē

8 And they broughte childre vnto him, that 9 he mighte touch them. But the disciples re-10 uered those that broughte the. Where the-11 las when Iesus sawe it, he was displeasid, 12 and sayde vnto them: Suffre the children to 13 come vnto me, and forbyd them not, for of 14 such is the kyngdome of God. Verely I saye 15 vnto you: Who so enter receauech not the 16 kyngdome of God as a child, he shal not 17 enter therein. And he toke them vp in his ar-18 mes, and layde his handes vpon them, and 19 blessed them.

20 And whan he was gone forth vpon the 21 way, there came one tuminge, and kneled 22 vnto him, & axed him: Good Master, what 23 shal I do, that I maye inheret euerlastinge 24 life. But Iesus saide vnto him: Why callest 25 thou me good? There is no man good, but 26 God onely. Thou knowest the commaun-27 dementes: Thou shalt not breake wedlocke: 28 thou shalt not kyll: thou shalt not steale: 29 thou shalt beare no falsse wytnesse: thou 30 shalt begyle no man: Honour thy father 31 and mother. But he answered, and sayde vn-32 to him: Master, all these haue I kepte fro 33 my youthe vp. And Iesus behelde him, and 34 lood him, & sayde vnto him: Thou waneest 35 one thinge: Go thy waye, and sell all that 36 thou hast, and geue it vnto y poor: so shalt 37 thou haue a creature in heauen, and come & 38 folow me, and eate the crosse vpon y. And 39 he was discomforted at the sayenge, & went 40 awaye sory, for he had greates possessions.

41 And Iesus loked aboue him, and sayde 42 vnto his disciples: O how hardly shal the 43 ryche come vnto y kyngdome of God: And 44 the disciples were astonnyed at his wordes, 45 but Iesus answered agayne, and sayde vn-46 to them: Deare children, how harde is it for 47 them that trust in riches, to come in to the 48 kyngdome of God: It is easier for a Camell 49 to go throu the eye of a needle, then for a 50 rich man to entre in to y kyngdome of God.
 51 Are weer they astonnyed y more, and sayde 52 amonge thei selues: Who can the be saved?
 53 But Iesus behelde them, and sayde: With 54 man it is vnpossyble, but not with God: for 55 with God all thinges are possyble.

56 Then sayde Peter vnto him: Beholde, we 57 haue forsaken all, and folowed the. Iesus 58 answered & sayde: Verely I saye vnto you: 59 There is no man that forsaketh hous, or 60 brethren, or sisters, or father or mother, or wi-61 fe, or children, or landes for my sake, and 62 the gospell, that shal not receaue an hundredth 63 fold more in this tyme, houses, and brethren, 64 and sisters, and moethers and children, and landes with persecucions, and in the moode to come euerlastinge life. But many that are the first, shal be the last: and the last the first.

They were in the waye goinge vp to Jerusalem, and Iesus wente before them. And they were astonnyed, and folowd him, and were a frayde. And Iesus toke the twolue agayne, and tolde them what shulde happn vnto him. Beholde, we go vp to Jerusalem, and the sonne of man shalbe deliuered vnto the hye priestes and scribes, and they shal condanne him to death, and deliuer him vnto the heyth. And they shal mocke hi, and scourge him, and spyt vpon him, and put him to death, and on the thirde daye shal he ryse agayne.

Then wote vnto him James and Iohn y sonnes of Zebede, and sayde: Master, we desyre, that what soeuer we axe of the, thou wold do it for vs. He sayde vnto the: What desyre ye that I shal do to you? They sayde vnto him: Graunte vs, that we maye sit one at thy right hande, and one at thy left hande in thy glory. But Iesus sayde vnto the: Ye wote not what ye axe. Maye ye drin-ke the cuppe, y I shal drynke: and be baptized with the baptyeme that I shal be baptized withall? They sayde vnto him: Yes y we maye. Iesus sayde vnto them: The cup-pe that I drynke, shal ye drynke in dede: and be baptyzed with the baptyeme that I shal be baptyzed withall. Where thes to sit at my right hande and at my left, is not in me to geue you, but vnto them for whom it is prepared.

And whā the ten herde that, they disbayned at James and Iohn. But Iesus called them, and sayde vnto them: Ye knowe that the prynces of y worlde haue domynacion of the peple, and y mightie exercise auourice amonge them. So shal it not be amonge you: but who so euer wil be greates amonge you, shal be youre mynister: and who so wil be cheffest amonge you, shalbe straiter of all. For the some of man also came not to be serued, but to do seruaice, and to geue his life to a redemption for many.

And they came vnto Jericho. And whan he wente out of Jericho, and his disciples, and many people, there sat one blynde Barthimeus the some of Thimeus by y waye, and begged. And whā he herde that it was Iesus of Nazareth, he beganne to crie and saye: Jesu thou sonne of Dauid haue mercy vpon me. And many reioyced him, that he shulde holde his tynge. But he crieth moch

And he cast a waye his garment from him, stode vp, and came to Iesus. And Iesus answered, & sayde vnto him: What wilt thou that I do vnto the? The blinde sayde vnto him: Master, that I might see. Iesus sayde vnto him: Go thy waye, thy faith hath helped thee. And immediatly he had his sight, and folowed him in the waye.

The XI. Chapter.

MATHEW. 21. 1. WHEN Iesus came nye Jerusalem to Bethpage and Bethanye vnto mount Oliuete, he sent two of his disciples, and sayde vnto them: Go in to the towne that lyeth before you, and as soone as ye come in, ye shall fynde a foale bounde, wher upon no man hath sate: loose it, and bringe it hither. And if anyman saye vnto you: wherfore do yethat? Then saye ye: The LORDE hath neede therof, and forth with he shall fynde it hither. They wote their maie and founde the foale tyed by f doze without at the perryng of the waye, and so wof it. And certayne of those f stode there, asped them: What do ye, that ye loose the foale? But they sayde vnto the, like as Iesus had commaunded them. And so they let them alone. And they broughe the foale vnto Iesus, and layd their clothes thereon, and he sat thereon. But many spied their garnemets in the waye: some cut downe brouches fro the trees, and strowed the in the waye. And they that wente before, and that folowed a fter, cried, and sayde: Hosanna, blisse be he, that cometh in the name of the LORDE. blisse be the kyngdome of oure father Dauid, which cometh in the name of the LORDE. Hosanna in the heighe.

MATHEW. 21. 12. AND THE LORDE entered in to Jerusalem, and wente in to the temple, and looked vpon all. And at euen he wente out vnto Bethanye with the twolue: and on the morow wha they departed from Bethanye, he hysged, and sawe a fygge tre a farte of, which had leaues. Then came he nye, (to see) if he coude fynde any thinge thereon. And when he came to it, he founde nothinge but leaues (for the tyme of fygges was not yet). And Iesus answered, and sayde vnto it: From now forth thou shalt be fruitlesse. And his disciples herde it.

And they came to Jerusalem. And Iesus wente in to the temple, and beganne to dryue out the sellers and buyers in the temple, & ouerthrowe the tables of the money chaungers, and the stoles of the doue sellers, and suffred noe eny man to cary a vessel throughe the temple. And he taughte and sayde vnto them: Is it not wyrtene: My house shall be called a house of prayer for all people? But ye haue made it a deme of merchandise.

And the scribes and hye priestes herde of it. And they soughte how they might destroye him, but they were afrayed of him, for all the people marueled at his doctrine. And at euen he wente out of the cite. And on the morow they passed by, and sawe the fygge tre, that it was withered vnto the roote. And Peter thoughte thereon, and sayde vnto him: Master, beholde, the fygge tre f thou curstest, is withered awaye. Iesus answered, and sayde vnto them: Howe saith in God. Verely I saye vnto you: Who so saith saith vnto this mountayne: Thou be, and cast thy self in to the see, and donoth not in his hart, but beleueth that the thinge shall come to passe which he saith, the same he sayeth, it shall come to passe. Therfore I saye vnto you: What so euer ye desyre in youre prayer, beleuee that ye shall receaue it, and ye shall haue it. And when ye stonde and praye, forgewe ye ye haue oughte agaynst eny man, that your father also is in heauen, maye forgewe you youre trespasses.

And they came agayne vnto Jerusalem, and when he wente in the temple, there came vnto him the hye priestes and scribes and the elders, and sayde vnto him: By what auctorite dost thou these thinges? and who gaue the this auctorite to do soch?

But Iesus answered and sayde vnto the: I wil aske you a woode also, answer me, and I wil tell you, by what auctorite I do these. The baptyeme of Ihon, was it from heauen, or of men? Answer me.

And they thoughte in them selues: if we saye, it was from heauen, then shall he saye: Why dyd ye not then beleue him? But if we saye: He was of men, then feare we the people, for they all helde that Ihon was a true prophet. And they answered, and sayde vnto him: We can not tell. And Iesus answered, and sayde vnto them: Let herad I you, by what auctorite I do these thinges.

The XII. Chapter.

MATHEW. 23. 1. WHEN he beganne to speake vnto them by paraboles: A certayne man plantid and wyngarde, and made a hedge aboute it, and bygged a wyne presse, and buylded a tower, and let it out vnto husbände men, and wente in to a straunge countrie. And when the tyme was come, he sente a seruaunt to the husbände men, that he might receaue of the husbändmen, of the fruce of the wyngarde. But they toke him, and beat him, and sent him away emptye. Agayne, he sent vnto them another seruaunt, whom they stoned, and brake his head, and sent him away shamefully beate with all. Agayne he sent another, whom they slew, and many other: some they beat, and some they put to death.

Then had he yett one some onely, whom he loued, him he sent also vnto them at the last, and sayde: they wyl stonde in awe of my name. But the same husbändmen sayde amonge them siluys: This is the heire, Come, let vs kill him, so shal the inheritaunce be ouer. And they toke him, and slewe him, and cast him out of the wyngarde. What shal now the lord of the wyngarde do? He shal come and destroye the husbände men, and geue the wyngarde vnto other. haue ye noted this scripture: The same stone which the buylders refused, is become the headdstone in the corner: This was the LORDES wyng, and it is marvelous in oure eyes.

And they wente aboute to take him (but they feared the people) for they perceaued, that he had spokē this parable agaynst the. And they left him, and wente their waye.

And they sent vnto him certayne of the pharises and herodes officers to take him in his wordes. And they came, and sayde vnto him: Master, now knowe that thou art true and carest for no man. For thou regardest not the outward appearance of men, but makest vnto waye of God truly. So it is lawfull to geue tribute vnto the Emperoure, or not? Ought we to geue it, or ought we not to geue it? But he perceaued their ypocricie, and sayde vnto them: Why tempe ye me: Bryng me a penny, that I maye se it. And they broughte it him. Then sayde he: Whose ymage and superscription is this? They sayde vnto him: The Emperours. Then answered Iesus and sayde vnto the: What euerse thou geuest vnto the Emperoure that which is the Emperours, and vnto God that which is Gods. And they marvelled at him.

Then came vnto him the Saboces (which holde that there is no resurrection) they asped him, and sayde: Master, Moses wrote vnto vs. If any mans brother dye, and leaue a wife, and leaue no children, his brother shal take his wife, and raise vp sibe vnto his brocher. How were there seuen brethren: the first toke a wife, and dyed, and left no sibe: and the seconde toke her, and dyed, and left no sibe also: the thirde in like manner.

And they all seuen toke her, and left no sibe. At the last after them all, the wyfe dyed also. Now in the resurrection when they shal rise agayne, whose wife shal she be of them? For seuen had her to wife.

Then answered Iesus, and sayde vnto them: Do not ye erre: because ye knowe not the scriptures ner þ power of God: Whan they shal rise agayne from the dead, they shal nether mary ner be married, but they are as the angelo in heauen. As touchinge the dead, that they shal rise agayne, haue ye not red in the boke of Moses, how God spake vnto him in the bush, and sayde: I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob: Yet is not God a God of the dead, but of the lyvinge. Therefore ye erre greatly.

And they came vnto him one of the scribbs, that had hekened vnto the how they disputed together, and sawe that he had answered them well, and asped him: Which is the cheffest commaundement of all? Iesus answered him: The cheffest commaundement of all commaundementes is this: Heare O Israel, the LORD is our God is one God, and thou shalt loue the LORD thy God with all thy heart, with all thy soule, with all thy mynde, and with all thy strength. This is the cheffest commaundement, and the seconde is like vnto it: Thou shalt loue thy neighbour as thy self. There is none other greater commaundement then thesē.

And the scribe sayde vnto him: Master, veray thou hast sayde right: for there is but one God, and there is none other with him, and to loue him with all the heart, with all the mynde, with all the soule, and with all the strength, and to loue a mans neighbour as himself, is more then bente sacrifices and all offerynges. But when Iesus sawe that he answered discretly, he sayde vnto him: Thou art not farre from the kyngdome of God. And after this durst no man aspe him any more questions.

And Iesus answered, and sayde, when he taughte in the temple: How saye the scribbs, þ Christ is the sonne of Dauid: But Dauid him self saith thow the holy goost: The many people herbe him gladly.

And he taught the, and sayde vnto the:
 Beware of these scribes, that loue to go in longe garmentes, and loue to be saluted in the market, and sit gladly aboue in the syna-goges and at the table: they deuoure wydowes houses, and vnder a colour they make longe prayers. These shal receaue the more damnacion.

And Iesus sat ouer agaynst the* Gods chest, and behelde how the people put money in to the Gods chest. And many that were rich: put in much. And there came a poore wydowe, and put in two myztes, which make a sarchinge. And he called vnto him his disciples, and sayde vnto them: Verely I saye vnto you: this poore wydowe hath put more in y Gods chest, then all they that haue put in: for they all haue put i of their superfluyte, but she of hir pouerte hath put in all that she had, euen hir whole iuyng.
 The XIII. Chapter.

¶ When he went out of the temple, one of his disciples sayde vnto him: Master, se, what stones and what a buyldinge is this: And Iesus answered and sayde vnto him: Seest thou all this greate buyldinge: There shal not one stone be left vpon another, y shal not be broken downe.

And when he sat vpon mount Oliuete ouer agaynst the temple, Peter and James, and Iohn, and Andriew asked him pryuarly: Tell vs, when shal all these come to passe: And what shal be the tokē, whā all these shal be fulfilled: Iesus answered them, and beganne to saye: Take heede, that no man deceaue you, for there shal many come vnder my name, and saye: I am Christ, z shal deceaue many. But when ye shal heare of the noyse of warres, be not ye afrayed: for so must it be, but y end is not yet. One people shal rise agaynst another, and one realme agaynst another, and there shal be earth quakes here and there, and death shal there be and troubles. These are the begynnynges of sorowes.

¶ But take ye heede to youre selues, for they shal deluyer you vp to the* counceils, and synagoges, and ye shal be beaten, and shal be brought before prynces and kynge: for my names sake, for a witness vnto the. And y gospel must first be preached amonge all people.

¶ When they shal lede you and deluyer you vp, take ye no thoughte a howe ye shal saye: and ymagyn ye nothinge a howe hambe, but what so euer shal be geue you the same houre, that speake: for it is not ye that speake, but the holy goost. One ether shal deluyer another vnto death, and the father the sonne, z the children shal rise agaynst their fathers and mothers, and shal helpe them to death, and ye shal be hated of all men for my names sake. But who so per-dureth to the ende, shal be saued.

¶ When ye shal see the abhominacion of desolacion (whereof it is spokē by* Dauid the prophete): stande where it oughte not (who so readeth it, let him marke it well) then let whi ch be in Jewry, flye vnto the mountaynes: and let him that is on the house cōnye not descēde into the house, nor come thence, to fetch any thinge out of the house: And let him that is in the feld, not turne backe to fetch his clothes.

¶ But wo vnto them that are in those dayes, and to them that geue succ in those dayes.
 Nevertheless praye ye, that your flighte not in the wynter, for in those dayes there shal be such trouble as was not from the begynnyng of y creatures which God created, vnto this tyme, neither shall be. And if y LORDE had not shortened those dayes, there shalde no man be saued. But for the electes sake whom he hath chosen, he hath shortened those dayes.

¶ Now if any man shal saye vnto you at tyme: lo, here is Christ: lo, he is there: be-lieue it not. For there shal arise false Christs, and false prophetes, which shal do cōtrary wonders, to deceaue euen the very chōsen, if it were possible. But take ye heede, whi ch be, I haue tolde you all before.

¶ But at the same tyme after this trouble, the Sonne and Moone shal lose their light, and the starres shall fall from heauen, and the powers of the heauens shal moue: and then shal they see the sonne of man com-inge in the cloudes with greate power and glory. And then shal he sende his angels, and shal gather together his chōsen fro the foure wyndes, from one ende of the earth to the other.

¶ Let me a similitude of the figge tre: Whi ch his bough is yet tender, and hath butte forth leaues, ye knowe that the Sommer is nye. So likewise whi ch ye see all these thinges come to passe, be ye sure, that it is nye comē to the doore. Verely I saye vnto you: this generacion shal not passe, tyll all these be fulfilled.

hauen and earth shal perishe, but my worde shal not perishe. But of that daye and howe knoweth no man, neither the angels in heauen, no not the sonne him self, but the father onely.

Take heede, watch, & praye, for ye knowe not when the tyme is. Like as a man that wente in to a straunge countre, and left his house, and gaue his seruantes aueris, vnto carry on his worke, and commaunded þe peere, that he shulde watch. Watch ye therfore, for ye knowe not when the master of y house cometh, whether he cometh in the eueninge, or at mydnight, or aboute the cock crowinge, or in the morninge, that he cometh suddenly, and fynde you slepyng. So likewise I saye vnto you, that I saye I vnto all. Watch.

The XIII. Chapter

¶ After two dayes was Easter, and the daies of sower bred. And þe hye priestes & scribes soughte howe they mighte take him with disceate, & put him to death. But they sayde: Not in the feast daye, lest there be an vproure in the people.

¶ And when he was at Bethanye in the house of Symon the leper, and sat at the table, there came a woman, which had a boze of pure and costly Myrrour oynment. And she brake y boze, & poured it vpo his heade. The whiche were some, þe disdaigned and sayde: Where to serueth this wast? This oynment mighte haue bene solde for moie then the hundred pence, & bene geue to y poore. And they grudged agaynst her.

¶ But Iesus sayde: let her be in rest. Why trouble ye her? She hath done a good worke vnto me. Ye haue allowe yet the poore with you, and whā so euer ye wil, ye maye do the good: but me haue ye not allowe. She hath done what she coulde, she is come before, to anoynt my body for my buriall. Verely I saye vnto you: Where so euer this gospell shalbe preached in all the worlde, there shal this also be sayd, that she hath now done, & be tolde for a remembraunce of her.

¶ And Judas Iscarioth one of the twolue wente vnto the hye priestes, to betraye him vnto them. Whā they herde þe, they were glad, & promysed that they wolde geue him money. And he soughte, howe he mighte come nighly betraye him.

¶ And upon þe first daye of sower bred, whā the Easter lambe was offered, his disciples sayde vnto him: Where wilt thou y we go and prepare, þe thou mayest eate y Easter lambe? And he sente two of his disciples, and sayde vnto them: Go youre waye into the cite, and there shal mee you a mā bearinge a pichet with water, followe e him, & where so euer he goeth in, there saye ye to the good man of the house: The Master sendeth the word: Where is the guest house, wher in I maye eate the Easter lambe, & my disciples? And he shal shewe you a greate parlour, which is paved & prepared, there make ready for vs. And y disciples wote forþ, & came in to y cite, & founde it as he had sayde vnto the. And they prepared y Easter lambe.

¶ And when he came to the twolue. And as they sat at the table & ate, Iesus sayde: Verely I saye vnto you: One of you þe eateth & me, shal betraye me. And they were sorry, & sayde vnto hi one after another: Je it? & another sayde: No it? He answered & sayde vnto the: One of the twolue, euen y same þe dyppeth with me in y platter. The sonne of man truly goeth forþ, as it is wyted of hi. But who vnto that mā, by whom the sonne of man is betrayed. It were better for the same man, that he had neuer bene borne.

¶ And as they ate, Iesus toke the bread, gaue thanks, & brake it, and gaue it the, & sayde: Take, eate, this is my body. And he toke the cuppe, chafed, and gaue it the, and they all brake the of. And he sayde vnto them: This is my bloude of the new Testament, which shalbe shed for many. Verely I saye vnto you, that from hence forth I wil not drynke of the frute of the wyne, vntil y daye þe I drynke it new in y kyngdome of God. And whā they had sayde grace, they wete forþ vnto mount Oliuete.

¶ And Iesus sayde vnto them: This night I shal ye all be offended in me, for it is wyted: I wil myspe the sheperde, & the shepe shal be scatred abrode. Tene heles after y I am risen agayne, I wil go before you in to Galilee. But Peter sayde vnto him: And though all men shalbe offended, yet wolde not I be offended. And Iesus sayde vnto him: Verely I saye vnto þe: Todaye in this same night, before þe cock crowe two tymes, shal thou denye me thrise. But he saide yet moie: Yea though I shulde dye w y, yet wil I not denye y. So said they all like remaner.

¶ And they came in to y selde called Bethsemane, and he saide vnto his disciples: Seye ye here, & I go yonder, and praye. And he toke with him Peter & James & Iohn, and begāne to waxe fearefull, & to be in an agony, & sayde vnto the: My soule is deuoynd vnto y death: tary ye here and watch. And he wente forth a litle, fell vpon the grounde and prayed, that, (yif it were possible) thou remigdest passe fro him, and sayde: Abba, my father, all thinges are possible vnto the, take this cuppe awaye fro me: Neuertheles not what I wyl, but what thou wilt.

And he came vnto them, and founde the slepyng, and sayde vnto Peter: Symon, slepest thou? Coudest thou not watch with me one houre? Watch and praye, that ye fall not in to temptacion. The sperte is wyllinge, but y flesh is weake. And he wote forth agayne, and prayde, and spake the same wordes, and returned, and founde them slepyng: agayne: for their eyes were heuy, & they knewe not what they shulde answer him. And he came the thirde tyme, and sayde vnto them: Slepe on now, and take youre rest, it is ynough, the houre is come: beholde, y some of man shalbe deliuered in to the handes of synners: aryse, let vs be goyng. And immediatly whyle he yet spake, came Judas one of the twolue, and with him a greete multitude, with swordes and staves from the hye priestes and scribes and elders. And the traycoute had gyven them a toke, and sayde: Whom so ever I kysse, that same is he, laye handes vpon him, and lede him awaye warily. And he had he was come, he wente straighe waye vnto him, and sayde vnto him: O master, master, and kysed him. Then laye they their handes vpon him, & toke him. But one of the that stode by, drew out his sworde, and smote the hye priestes seruant, and cut of his eare.

And Jesus answered, and sayde vnto the: Ye are come forth as it were to a murder, & with swordes and with staves to take me. I was daylie with you in the temple, and taughte, and ye toke me not. But this is do me, that the scripture maye be fulfilled. And all the disciples forsoke him, and fled. And there folowed him a yonge ma, which was clothed in lynnen vpon the bare tummye, and the yonge me toke holde of him. But he let the lynnen go, and fled naked from them.

And they led Jesus vnto the hye prest, where all y hye priestes, and elders and serydes were come to gether. As for Peter, he folowed him as farre of in to the hye priestes palace. And he was there, and sat with the seruantes, and warmed him.

Mat. 26. f

But the hye priestes and the whole counsell soughte to slaye agaynst Jesus, y they might bringe him to death, and they founde none. Many gaue falsse wytnesse agaynst him, but their wytnesses agreed not together. And some stode vp, and gaue falsse wytnesse agaynst him, and sayde: We herde him saye: I wil breake downe this temple: which is made with handes, and in thre dayes shall be another not made w handes. But their wytnesse agreed not to gether.

And the hye prest stode vp amonge them, and ayed Jesus, and sayde: Answerest thou noching vnto it, that these testife agaynst the? But he helde his tounge, and answered noching. The hye prest azed him agayne, and sayde vnto him: Art thou Chyest sonne of the blessed? Jesus sayde: I am. And ye shal se the sonne of man syt at the right hande of power, and come in the cloudes of heaue. Then the hye prest rent his clothes, & sayde: What neede we any mo wytnesse? We haue herde the blasphemy. What thyng is yet? They all cōdemned him, that he was guiltye of death. Then beganne there some to speyke vnto him, and to cover his face, and to smyte him with fistes, and to saye vnto him Prophecie vnto vs. And the seruantes smote him on the face.

And Peter was beneth in y palace. There came one of the wenches of the hye prest: And whā she sawe Peter warminge him, she looked vnto him, and sayde: And thou wast with Jesus of Nazareth also. But he denyed, & sayde: I knowe him not, neyther can I tell what thou sayest. And he wente out in to the fore cōurce, and the coke crew. And a damsell sawe him, and beganne agayne saye vnto them that stode by: This is one of them. And he denyed it agayne. And after a litle whyle they y stode by, sayde agayne vnto him: O s a trouth thou art one of them for thou art a Galilean, and thy speache smoth deeth enen alite. But he beganne to curse and sweare: I knowe not the man, that ye speake of. And the coke crew agayne. And thoughte Peter vpon the woode, that Jesus sayde vnto him: Before y coke crew tarye thyms, thou shalt denye me thrise. And he beganne to wepe.

The XV. Chapter.

And soone in the mornynge the hye priestes helde a counsell w the elders and scribes, and the whole counsell, & bounde Jesus, and led him awaye, and brynged him vnto pylate. And pylate asked him: Art thou the kynge of the Jewes? He answered, and sayde vnto him: Thou sayest it. And the hye priestes accused him sore. But pylate ayed him agayne, and sayde: Answerest thou noching? Beholde, howe they laye to y charge. Neuertheles Jesus answered nd woman, in so much þ̄ Pylate marueyled. And that feait of Easter he was wonte to wynt vnto them a prisoner, whom so euer they wolde desyre. There was ī prison with the felonious, one called Barrabas, which is the yponore had committed murder. And the people wente up, and prayed him, that he wolde do, as he wrao wolme. Pylate answered them: wyl ye that I geue louste vnto you the kynge of the Jewes? For he knew, that þ̄ hye prestes had deliuered him of envye. But the hye prestes moned þ̄ people, that he shulde rather geue Barrabas lense vnto them.

Pylate answered agayne, and sayde vnto them: What wil ye crite that I do vnto him, whan ye a crite to be kynge of the Jewes? They cried agayne: Crucifie hi. Pylate sayde moche: What euell hath he done? But they cried yet moche moie: Crucifie him. So pylate thought to satisfie the people, and gaue Barrabas a lense vnto them, and deliuered the Jesus, to be scourged & crucified.

And the sander ledde him into the comon hall, and called the whole multitude together, and clothed him with purple, and plaited a crowne of thorne, and crowned him with a whip, and beganne to saluce him: Hail kynge of the Jerreo. And smote him vpon the heade with a reede, and spyered vpo him, and saluop the ene, & wousshipped him. And whā they had mocked him, they toke þ̄ purple of him, and put his clothea vpon him, & led him out, that they might crucifye him.

And they compelled one that passed by, called Symon of Cyren (which came from the sude, and was the father of Alexander and Rufus) to beare his crosse. And they ledde him to the place Golgatha, which is by interpretation: a place of deeb mens skullis. And they gaue him xij myrred waxes, to drynke, & he toke it noc. And whan they had crucified him, they parted his garment, & cast lottes therfore, what euery one shuld haue. And it was aboute þ̄ thirde houre, they crucified him. And the cyle of his crite was reueryt ouer aboute him (namely:) The kynge of the Jewes. And they crucified him w̄ two murderers, one at þ̄ right hand, and one at the left. Then was the scrjpture fulfilled, which sa yeth: he was collect amonge the euell doers.

And they that wote by, reuyled him, and ragged their heades, and sayde: Jye vpon the, how goodly breakst thou downe þ̄ temple byuldest it agayne in thre dayes? helpe þ̄ selfe now, & come downe fro the crosse.

The hye prestes also in like maner laughed him to scoone amonge the felous, with the scriybes, & sayde: he hath helped other, himselfe can he not helpe. If he be the Chuff and þ̄ kynge of Israel, let him come downe now fro the crosse, þ̄ we maye se it, & beleue. And they þ̄ were crucified w̄ hi, thedded hi also.

And whā it was aboute the sixte houre, there was a darcknesse ouer the whole lode, tyll aboute þ̄ nyeneth houre. And aboute of nyeneth houre Jesus cried loude, and sayde: Eli, Eli, lammasabachani: which is interpreted: My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? And some that stode by, whan they herde þ̄, they sayde: Beholde, he calleth Elias. Then rāne there one, & filled a spige w̄ wynegr, & sticte it vpo a reede, & gaue hi to drynke, & sayde: holdo styll let se, whether Elias wil come, and take him downe. But Jesus cryed loude, and gaue vp the gooff. And the wile of the ciple trent in two peces, from aboute tyll beneath.

The captayne that stode thereby ouer agaynst him, whā he sawe þ̄ he gaue vp the gooff with such a crye, he sayde: Verly this man was Gods sonne.

And there were xij men there also, which behelded this affare of a widge w̄s mastrary Magdalene, & Mary of James þ̄ litle, & the mother of Joses, & Salome, which had solored him whā he was in Galile, and mynistered vnto hi: & many other þ̄ wote vp w̄ hi to Jerusalem. And at eueni (in so much as it was the daye of preparinge, which is the fore Sabbath) there came one Joseph of Arimathea, a worshipfull Senatoure, which ledde also for the kyngdome of God; & toke us boldly vnto Pylate, & ased þ̄ body of Jesus. But Pylate marueyled þ̄ he was deeb all ready, & called of capayne, & ased hi, whether he had lōge bene deeb. And whā he had gotten knowlege of the captayne, he gaue Joseph þ̄ body. And he boughe a lynnē cloth, & toke him downe, & wrapped hi in þ̄ lynnē cloth, & layed him in a sepulcre, which was hōmed out of a rocke, & rolled a stone before þ̄ bore of þ̄ sepulcre. But Mary Magdalene and Mary Joses behelde, whether he was layed.

The XVI. Chapter.

And whan the Sabbath was pass, Mary Magdalene, & Mary James, and Salome, boughe spices, þ̄ they might come, & anoynte hi. And they came to the sepulcre vpo a daye of þ̄ Sabbathes very early, whā þ̄ Sonne arose, & fynde one to another: Who shal rolle oue þ̄ stone fro þ̄ bore of the sepulcre? And whan they ploted, they sawe, that the stone was rolled awaye: for it was a very greate one. And they wente in to the sepulchre, and on the right hande they sawe a yonge man sittinge, which had a longe whyte garment upon him, and they were abashed. But he sayde unto the: Be not ye afrayed, ye seeke Iesus of Nazareth which was crucified: he is risen, he is not here. Beholde, ye place, where they layed him. But go ye your waye; and tell his disciples and Peter, that he wil go before you in to Galilee, there shall ye see him, as he sayde unto you. The prologe of S. Luke.

OK so much as many haue taken in hande, to set forth y wordes of the actes that are come to passe amonge vs, like as they deliue- red the vnto vs, which from the begynnyng sawe them that selues, and were mynistres of the worde, I thought it good a fer that I had diligently searched out all from the begynnyng to wyte the some oherly wro- te the (good Theophilus) that thou mightest knowe the certete of y wordes, wherof thou art in fourmeth.

The first Chapter.

I the tyme of Hero- the kynge of Ierory, there was a prest named Zachary of the course of Abias and his wife of the doughter of Aaron, & his name Elizabeth. They were both righteous before God, and walked in all the commandmentes and statutes of the LORD vnto reprochably. And they had no childe, for Elizabeth was barren, and they were both well stricken in age.

And it came to passe as he executed the prestes office before God when his course came (according to the custome of the presthode) he filled his lotte to burne incense. And he went in to the temple of the LORD, and the whole multitude of the people was without in prayer, whyle the incense was aburnyng. And the angel of the LORD

DE appeared vnto him, and stode on the righte syde of the altare of incense. And when Zachary sawe him, he was abashed, & there came a feare vpon him.

But the angell sayde vnto him: Feare not Zachary, for thy prayer is herde. And thy wife Elizabeth shall beare the a sonne, whose name thou shalt call Iohn, & thou shalt haue ioye and gladnesse: and many shall reioyce at his birth, for he shall be greate before the LORDE. Wyne and stronge drink shall he not drinke. And he shall be filled wth the holy goost, euen in his mothers wombe. And many of the children of Israel shall be wth me vnto the LORDE their God. And he shall go before him in the sperte and power of Elias, to turne the hartes of fathers vnto the children, and the vnfaithfull vnto the wysdomme of the righteous, to make the people ready for the LORDE.

And Zachary sayde vnto the Angel: Whereby shall I knowe this: for I am olde, and my wife well stricken in age. The angell answered, and sayde vnto him: I am Gabriel that stande before the face of God, and am sente to speake vnto the, and to shewe the these glad tydings. And beholde, thou shalt be borne, and not able to speake, vntill the daye that this come to passe, because thou hast not beleued my wordes, which shall be fulfilled in their season.

4 Re. 2. a

And the people w^{erred} for Zachary, and maruelled, that he taried so longe in the temple. And when he w^{rote} out, he coude not speake unto them. And they perceaued, that he had sene a vision in the temple. And he beckened vnto them, and remayned speechlesse.

And it turnede whate tyme of his office was out, he wente home in to his house. And a fter those dayes Elizabeth his wife conceived, and had hir full tyme monethes, & sayde: Thus hath the LORDE done vnto me in these dayes, wherein he hath looked vpon me, to take awaye from me my rebuke amonge men.

Mat. 1. c

And in the sixte moneth was the angell Gabriel sent from God in to a cite of Galilee, called Nazareth, vnto a virgin that was spoused vnto a man, whose name was Joseph, of the house of David, and the virgins name was Mary. And the angell came in vnto her, and sayde: Hail thou full of grace, the LORDE is wth the: blessed art thou amonge women.

What she sawe him, she was abashed at his salutation: and thought: What manner of salutation is this? And the angell sayde vnto her: Feare not Mary, for thou hast founde grace with God. Beholde, thou shalt be with us in thy wybe, & beare a sonne: & shall call his name Iesus: he shall be gracie, & shall be called the sonne of the gyft. And the LORDE God shall geue him thy feare of Dauid his father, & he shall beinge ouer thy house of Iacob for euer: & there shall be no ende of his kyngdome. Then sayde Mary vnto the angell: How shall this be, seeinge I knowe not a man? The angell answered, & sayde vnto her: The holy goost shall come vpon the, & the power of the gyft shall ouer shadowe the. Therefore that holy also w^{ch} shall be borne of the, shall be called the sonne of God. And beholde, thy cosen Elizabeth she also hath conceiued a sonne in hir olde age, & this is the first borne of her, which is reported to be borne for the God is not in the impossible. And Mary sayde: Beholde, here am I, vnto the: the hand accept of the LORDE: be it vnto me, as thou hast sayde. And the angell departed fro her.

And Mary arose in those dayes, and wente in to the medietee with her haist, into the cite of Ieremy, and came in to thy house of Zachary, and saluted Elizabeth. And it seemed as Elizabeth herde the salutation of Mary, she babe spang in hir wombe. And Elizabeth was filled with the holy goost: & cried loude, and sayde: Blessed art thou amonge women, and blessed is the fruite of thy wybe. And how happeneth this to me, that I mother of my LORDE commeth vnto me? Beholde, when I herde the voyce of thy salutation, the babe spang in my wombe with ioye, and blessed art thou that hast beleued, for thy thynges shall be performed, which were tolde of the LORDE. And Mary sayde: My soule magnifieth the LORDE.

And my sperte reioyseth in God my Saviour. For he hath looked vpon the lowe degree of his hande maye. Beholde, fro hence forth shall all generations call me blessed.

For he that is in Mygier, hath done great thynges vnto me, and holy is his name.

And his mercy endureth thorow all generations, vpon them that feare him.

He sheweth strenght with his arme, and scattereth them that are proud in the imagination of their hart.

He putteth downe the mighty from the seate, and exalteth them of lowe degree.

He fylleth the hongrie wth good thynges, and letteth the rich go emptye.

He remembereth mercy, and helpeth vnto the seruant Israel.

Euen as he promised vnto our fathers, Abraham and to his syde for euer.

And Mary abode with her aboute the mo neth, and then returned home agayne.

And Elizabethes tyme was come, that she shoulde be deliuered, & she broughte forth a sonne. And his neighbours & kynnesfolke hard, & the LORDE had shewed greate mer cy vnto her, & they reioyced with her. And it happened vpon the eighte daye, they came to anunciate of a childe, and called him Zachary after his father. And his mother answered, and sayde: No, but he shalbe called Ihon.
And they sayde vnto her: There is none in this countrey, & in all Iudea, that hath this name. And they made signes vnto him, how he wolde haue him called. And he was able to speake, & prayed God.
And there came a feare vpon all their neighbours. And all this acte was noyced abode thowout vnto all the hill countreye of Iewry: And all they & herde thereof, toke it to here, and sayde: What maner of man will this childe be: For the hande of the LORDE was with him.

And Zachary his father was fylled with the holy goost, and prophesied, and sayde: Blessed be of LORDE God of Israel, for he hath visyted and redemed his people.
And hath set vp an home of saluacion in the house of his seruaunt Dauid.
Euen as he promysed afore tyme, by the mouth of his holy prophetes.

That he wolde deliuer vs fro oure enemyes, & from y^e hande of all such as hate vs.
And & he wolde shewe mercy vnto oure fathers, & chynne vnto his holy covenante.
Euen the ooch & he swaure vnto oure father Abraham, for to geue vs.

That we deliuered out of y^e hande of demenite, mighte serue him without feare all the dayes of oure life, in such holynes and righteuousnes as is acceptyde before him.

And thou childe shalt be called a prophet of the highest: for thou shalt go before the LORD, to prepare his waye.

And to geue knowlege of saluacion vnto his people, for the remission of their synnes.

Thowou the tender mercy of oure God, wherby the daye springe from an hyl: hath visyted vs.

That he mighte geue light vnto them, & in darthe and shadowe of deathe, and to geue oure feete in to the waye of peace.

And the childe grew, and waxed stronge in spere, and was in the wyrdernes, tyll the tyme that he shoulde shewe him self vnto the people of Israel.

The ii. Chapter.

It fortuneth at the same tyme, that there reioyced out a circumciser first Augustus the Emperoure, that the whiole world shoulde be taxed. And this taxinge was the first that was executed, when Syrenius was leutenant in Siria. And they wente all, every one to his owne cite to be taxed. Then Joseph gat him vp also first Galile, out of the cite of Nazareth, in to Jewry, to y^e cite of Dauid, which is called Bethleem, (because he was of y^e house and lynage of Dauid) that he mighte be taxed wth Mary his spoused wyfe, which was wth childe.

And it cometh to passe, that she was deliuered, and she broughte forth her first begotte sonne, & wasp dressed him in swaddynge clothes, and layed him in a manger: for they had no roome in the ymme.

And there was in y^e samer region shepherdes in the silde by the solde, and watchynge their flocke by nyght. And beholde, y^e angell of the LORDE stode by the, and y^e boughtes of the LORDE shone rounde aboute them, and they were sore astayed. And the angell sayde vnto them: Denoe astayed. Beholde, I bringe you tydynges of great ioye, which shall happen vnto all people: for vnto you this daye is borne y^e Saviour, our Christ y^e LORDE, in the cite of Dauid. And take this for a token: Ye shall fynde the babe swaddled, and layed in a manger.
And straight waye there was by the angell a multitude of heavenly hostes, which praysed God, and sayde: Glory be vnto God an hyl, & peace vpon earth, and vnto men a good will.

And it fortuneth whā the angells were gone from the, in to heauē, the shepherdes sayde one to another: Let us go now euen vnto Bethleem, and se this thing that is happened, which y^e LORDE hath shewed vnto vs. And they came wth haist, & founde both Mary & Joseph, & the babe layed in y^e manger. And whan they had sene it, they publi shed abroad the sayenge, & was tolde the of this childe. And all they that herde it, wondered at the reioyces, which the shepherdes had tolde them. But Mary kepte all these sayenges, and pondered them in hir heart. And the shepherdes returned, praising and lauding God, for all that they had herde and sene, euen as it was tolde them.

And whan eighte dayes were ended, that the childe shoulde be circumcised, his name was called Iesus, which was named of y^e angell, before he was concoued in his mothers wombe.

D And whā the dayes of their purification after the lawe of Moyses, were come, they brouge him to Ierusalem, that they might present him vnto the LORDE. As it is wrytten in the lawe of the LORDE. Every māchyldre that first openeth the Matrix, shalbe called holy vnto ꝑ LORDE. And that they might geue the offerynge, as it is wrytē in the lawe of the LORDE (namely) a payre of turtle doves, or two yonge pigeons.

And beholde, there was a man at Jerusalem, whose name was Symeon, and the same mā was iust, and feared God, and loꝝed for the consolaciou of Israel, and the holy goost was in him. And an answer was geuē him of the holy goost, that he shulde not se death, before he had seē ꝑ LORDES Chylf.
 And he came by inspiration into the temple.

E And whā the elders broughe the chyldre Jesus in to the temple, to do for him after ꝑ custome of the lawe, then toke he him vp in his armes, and prayed God, and sayde: LORDE, now lettest thou thy seruaunt depart in peace, according to thy promisse.

For myne eyes haue seue thy Samours, whō thou hast prepared before all people.
 A light for the lightenynge of the they:
 the ꝑ for the prayse of ꝑ people of Israel.

And his father and moether marueled at the thynges that were spokē of him. And Symeon blessed them, and sayde vnto Mary his moether. Beholde, this (chyldre) shalbe set to a fall, and to an vpryng agayne of many in Israel, and for a taken, which shalbe spokē agaynst. And the swerde shal pearce thy soule, that the thynges of many heres maye be opened.

S And there was a prophetesse, one Anna, the daughter of Phanael of the trybe of Aser, which was of a greates age, and had ly-ued seuen yeares with hir husbāde from hir virgynite, ꝑ had now bene a widowe aboute foure score ꝑ foure yeares, which came neer to the temple, seruyng God w̄ fastynge and prayenge, daye and nyght: the same came forth also the same houre, and prayed the LORDE, and spake of him vnto all that loked for the redempciē at Jerusalem.

And whā they heꝑ performed all accoding to the lawe of the LORDE, they returned i to Galile, to their owne cite Nazareth.
 And the chyldre grewe, and reued stronge in spere, full of wysdom, ꝑ the grace of God was with him.

And his elders wente to Jerusalem every yeare at the feast of Easter. And whā he was twolue yeare olde, they wente vp to Jerusalem, after the custome of the feast. And whā they had fulfilled the dayes, and were gone home agayne, the chylde Jesus changed styll at Jerusalem. And his elders sawe it not, but thought he had bene in the company, and they came a dayes iourney, and soughte hi amonge their kynfolkes ꝑ acquithe teachers, hearyngē the, and opposyngē them. And all they that herde him, miracled at his vnderstandynge and answers. And whā they sawe him, they were astonysed.

 And his moether sayde vnto him: My son, why hast thou done this vnto vs? What haue thy father and I haue soughte the is it that ye haue soughte me? Whylly not, ꝑ I must go aboute my fathers busynesse. And they vnderstode not the sayenge, ꝑ he spake vnto them. And he came do w̄ them with them, and came to Nazareth, and was obedient to them. And his moether kepte all these thynges in hir hert. And Jesus increased in wysdom, age, and fauoure with God and mā.

The III. Chapter.

In the fiftenth yeare of the reigne of Tiberius the Emperour, it was that Pontius Pilate was lictenānt in Jewry, and herode one of the foure princes in Jewry, and his brocher Phylippe one of the re prynces in Iudaea, ꝑ in the coastes of Lu-conica, and Lysanias one of the foure princes of Abilene, when Sanna and Caius were hye prestes, the came ꝑ wode of Bethan. Then the sonne of Zachary in the wilderness. And he came in to all ꝑ coastes aboute Jordan, and preached the baptyse in penitence for the remission of synnes. And it was in ꝑ wode of ꝑ sayenges of the prophet, which sayeth: The voyce of cryer in the wilderness: prepare the waye of the LORDE, and make his pathes straight.
 Every valley shalbe fylled, and every mountayne byll shalbe broughte lowe. And what so is croked, shalbe made straight: and what rough is, shalbe made smooth, and all they shal se the Sauoure of God.

Then sayde he vnto the people, ꝑ want out to be baptyed of him: The generation of vipers, in ho hath certified you, that ye shal scape ꝑ wraoth to come. Take heede, forsooth the frutes of repentance, ꝑ they want to saye: We haue Abrahā for our father. He saye vnto you: God is able of these thynges use vp children vnto Abraham. The eye is as into the tre alreedy; so that euery tre which bringeth not forth good fruce, shal be hewen downe, and cast in to the fyre. And the people asked him, and sayde: What shal he do then? he answered, & sayde vnto the:

 he that hath two coates, let him parte w his; he that hath none; and he that hath meate, let him do likewise.

The publicans came also, to be baptysed and sayde vnto him: Master, what shal we do? he sayde vnto them: Requyre nomore, then is appointed you. Then yf soub your and him likewise, and sayde: What shal we do then? And he sayde vnto the: Do no man violence ner wronge, and be content with your wages.

But when the people were in a doute, & thought all in their hartes, whether he were Christ. Thon answered, and sayde vnto the all: I baptysse you with water, but after me there cometh one stronger the I, whose speache I am not worthy to louse: he shal baptysse you with the holy goost, and with fyre. Whose fanne is in his hande, and he shal purge his stooke, and shal gather y wheat in to his barn, and shal burne the chaffe with vnquenchable fyre. And many other chynge more extorted he, & preached vnto the people.

But Herode the Tetrarcha, when he was wroth of him because of Herodias his bro thers wife, and for all the euils that Herodu had doone, he desired all this he layed Ihu in prison.

And it fortuned when all the people re ceaued baptysme, and when Iesus also was baptysed and prayed, that heauen opened, and the holy goost came downe in a bodely shappe like a dove vpon him. And out of heauen there came a voyce, which sayde: Thou art my beare sonne, in whos I balyte.

The fourth Chapter

¶ This full of the holy goost, came againe from Iordane, and was led of y spierce into wyldernes, & fourty dayes lge was he cepted of y beuell. And in these dayes ate he nothinge. And when they were ended, he hongred a sterward. And the deuell sayde vnto him: If thou be y sonne of God, commaunde this stone, y it be bick. And y Jesus answered & sayde vnto hi: It is writen: Man shal not lyue by bick only, but by every worde of God. And y deuell toke him vp into an hye moctia yue, and shewed him all the kyngdomes of y whole worlde in y twinkeling of an eye. & sayde vnto him: All this power wil I geue vnto the, and the glory therof, for it is geue ouer vnto me, and I geue it, to whom I wil. If thou now wilt wooshippe me, they shal all be thine. Jesus answered him, and sayde: Auoide fro me thou Satan. It is writen: Thou shalt wooshippe the LORDE thy God, and him onely shalt thou serue.

¶ And he caried him to Ierusalem, and set him vpon a pyrnacle of the temple, and sayde vnto him: If thou be y sonne of God, cast thy self downe from hence. For it is writen: He shal geue his angels charge ouer the, to kepe the, and with their handes they shal helde the vp, that thou dash not thy forec agaynst a stone. And y Jesus answered, and sayde vnto him: It is sayde: Thou shalt not tempte the LORDE thy God. And when y deuell had ended all the temptacions, he departed from him for a reason.

¶ And y Jesus came a gayne in the power of the sperte in to Galile. And the fame of him was noyfed thoro oue all y region rounde aboute. And he taught in their synagoges, and was commended of every man.

¶ And he came vnto Nazareth where he was nourish, and as his custome was, he went in to the synagoge vpon y Sabbath, and stode vp for to rede. Then was there deliuered vnto him the booke of y prophet Esay. And when he had turned ouer the booke, he founde the place where it is writen: The sperte of the LORDE is with me, because he hath anoynted me: to preach the Gospell vnto y poore hath he sent me: to heale the broken harted: to preach deliuerance to the captiue, and sight to the bynd: and frely to set at liberty them that are trust: and to preach the acceptable yeare of the LORDE.

And when he had closed the booke, began he to saye vnto y mynster: set sat him downe. And the eyes of all that were in the synagoge, were fastened on him. And he began to saye vnto them: This daye is this scripture fulfilled in your eares. And they all gaue him wyrtesse, and woddid at the gracious wordes, which proceeded out of his mouth, and they saide: Is not this y Josephs sonne?

And he sayde vnto them: Doubtes ye wil saye vnto me this power be: Physician, heale thyself. For how greates things haue me bene done at Capernaum? Do the same here also in thine owne countr. But he saide: Verily I saye vnto you: There is no prophes acceptid in his owne countr. I wenterethes of a trouth I saye vnto you: There were many wredowes in y land in y tyme of Elias, whi the heau was shut che yeares and sixe monethes, and when there was a greates beris in all the lande: & to none of the was helpe sent, but onely vnto Sarepta of the Syryans to a wredowe. And many lepers were there in y land in the tyme of Elisaa y prophet, and none of the was cleafid, save onely Naaman of Syria.

¶ And as many as were in the synagoge, when they herde y , were filled with wrath. And they rose vp, and chafid him out of the cite, and led him vp to the edge of the hill wher vps their cite was builded, that they might cast him downe headlyng. But he rente his waye enen thoro the myddes of then, and came to Capernaum a cite of Galile, and taught the vps the Sabbath. And they wondred at his doctrine, for his preachinge was with power.

¶ And in the Synagoge there was a man possessed with a foule deuil, & he cryed loude, and sayde: Let me alone, what haue me to do with thee thou Iesus of Nazareth: Art thou come to destroye me? I knowe y who thou art, thou the souly of God. And y Jesus rebuked him and sayde: holde thy tounge, and departe out of him. And the deuil was bid in the myddest amonge them, and departed from him, and dyd him no harme. And there came a feare ouer the all, and they spake amonge them selues, and sayde: What manner of thinge is this: he commaundeth the foule spertes with auocies and power, and they departe out. And y place of him was noyfed thoro oue the all, and they spake rounde aboute.

And he rose vp out of the synagoge, and came in to Symons house. And Symon was ther in Lawe was take with a greates feuer, & they prayde him for her. And he wote vnto her, & commaunded the feuer. And it left her, & immediatly she rose vp, & mynistrd vnto che.

E And whan the Serme was gone downe: ab all they that had sicke of dyuerse diseases, ab broughte the vnto him. And he layde his handes vpon euery one of che, & made the whole. The deuils also departed out of many, and grand vsyngre: ab Thou art Christe the sonne of God. And he rebuked che, & sufferd them: ab not to speake: for they knewe that he was Christ. But whā it was daye, he wote out into the deserte place. And the people soughte hi, and came vnto him, & kepte him, & he shulde not departe frō che. But he sayde vnto che: I must preache the Gospill of the Kyngdome of God to other cities also: for there to am I sent. And he preached in the synagoges of Galde.

The V. Chapter.

E It came to passe, & the people preas ab sed vpon him to heare the woide of God, and he stode by the lake of Genesereth, and sawe two shippes stode by the lake side, but y fishers were gone out of che, and had wasshet their nettes. Then wente he into one of the shippes, which was Symons, and prayed him, & he wolde thurst out a lide frō the londe. And he sat him doune, and taughte the people out of the shippe.

And whan he had leste of talkyng, he sayde vnto Symon: ab I aundch out in to the depe & lette the nettes, to make a draughte. And Symon answered, and sayde vnto him: ab Master, we haue laboured all the nyght, and taken nothinge. But vnto thy woide, I wil lette forth the nette. And whā they had so done, they roke a great emulcitude of fishes, & thairnet brake. And they made synnes to their shippes, which were in y ether shippe, & they shulde come, & helpe che. And they came, & fylled both the shippes full, so chey ab founde. Whan Symon Peter sawe the, he fell doune at Iesus knees, & sayde: ab LORDE, go frome, for I am a synfull man: for he was astonnyed with all that were w him, as they broughte of fishes, which they roke, and so were James and Iohn also the sonnes of Zebedee, which were Symons companions. And Iesus sayde vnto Symō: ab Feare not, for frō hence forth thou shalt take men. And they broughte the shippes to londe, and left all, and folowed him.

And it fortuned as he was in a cite, beholde there was a man full of leprosy. Whā he sawe Iesus, he fell vnto his face, & besoughte him, and sayde: ab LORDE, if thou wilt, thou caust make me cleane. And he stretchd out his hande, and touched him, and sayde: ab I wil be thou cleane. And immediatly the leprosy departed from him. And he charged him, & he shulde tell nonā, but go thy waye (sayde he), and shewe thy self vnto y priest, and offre for the cleansinge, as Moses commaunded, for a witnesse vnto che. But y same of hi wote one farther abide, & there came many people together, to heare him, & to be healed by his frō their sicknesses. And he departed into the wyldernes, & gaue him self to praye.

And it fortuned vnto a daye, & he taughte, and there sat y Pharisees and scriebes, which were come out of all the countres of Galile, and Jewry, and frō Ierusalem, and the power of the LORDE were frō him, & healed every man. And beholde, certayne men broughte vpon a bed, a man y had y palsy, and they soughte how they mighte bryng him in, and laye him before him. And whan they coude not fynde by what waye they mighte bryng him in, for y people they clymmed vnto y toppe of the house, & lette him downe thro w the rylinge w the bed, and ge che before Iesus. And whan he sawe their faith, he sayde vnto hi: ab Man, y synnes are forgouē. And the scriebes and pharisees beganē to thynke, & saide: ab What is he thus, y speakech blasphemie. Who can forgive synnes, but onely God?

Then certaynes whā Iesus perceived cheir e thoughtes, he answered, and saide vnto che: ab What thynke ye in yō herces? Whether is easier to saye: Thy synnes are forgouē. Or to saye: Arise, and walke. But that ye maye knowe, that the sonne of mā hath power to forgive synnes vpon earth, he sayde vnto y sicke of the palsy: ab I saye vnto the: Arise, take vp y bed, and go home. And immediatly he rose vp, & foie che, & roke up the bed, & he had syn vnto, and roke home, and prayed God. And they were all astonnyed, and gaue God y prayse, and were fylled w feare, and sayde: ab We haue sene maradous thynges to daye.

And afterwarde he roke out, and sawe a publican named Leui, springe at y reuente of custome, & he sayde vnto him: ab Followe me. And he left all, rose vp, & folowed him. And Leui made hi a greates feasts his house. And many publicans & ocher sit w hi at y table. And the scriebes and pharisees murmured agaynst his disciples, & saide: ab Why besote do ye eate & drynke w publicans & synners? And Iesus answered, & sayde vnto che: ab The neede nos y phisician, but they y are sicke. I am not come to call y righteous, but synners to reponaunce.

But they sayde vnto him: Wherfore fast þe disciples of Ihsu so moch, and praye so moch, and the pharisais likewise, but þe disciples eate and drynke? And he sayde vn to them: Can ye make the weddyng childe fast, so lōge as the bydegrome is with the?
But the tyme wil come that the bydegrome shalbe takē frō the, then shal they fast.

And he sayde vnto them a synnlike:de:
It is man purtech a peece of new cloth in to an olde garment: for els he renteth the newe, and the peece of the newe agreeth not with the olde. And no man purtech new wyne in to olde vessels, for els þe newe wyne bursteth the vessels, and runneth out it self, and the vessels perishe. But newe wyne must be put in to newe vessels, and so are they both perfected. And there is no man that dryn keth the olde, and wolde straight waye ha ue the newe, for he sayeth: the olde is plea

The VI. Chapter.

AND it fortuned vpon an after prynci pall Sabbath, that he wente vnto the cōne selye, and his disciples plucked the eares of corne, and ate, and rubbed the with their hādes. And certayne of the pha risais sayde vnto them: Wherfore do ye that, which is not lawfull to do vpon the Sab bath? And Iesus answered, and sayde vnto the: Hane ye not red what Dauid dyd, whā he was hongrie, and they that were with him, how he wente in to the house of God, and toke the shewbrōd, and ate, and gaue also vnto them that were with him, which was lawfull for no man to eate, but for the prieses onely? And he sayde vnto them: The sonne of man is LORDE ouer the Sab bath.

It came to passe vps another Sabbath, that he wente in to the synagoge, and taught and there was a man, whose right hande was withered. But yf saydes and pharisais marked him, whether he wolde heale vpon the Sabbath, that they might fynde an oc casion agaynst him. And wherheles he percea ued their thoghtes, and sayde vnto the mā with the withered hande: Arise, and steepe forth here. And he arose, and steepped forth.
Then sayde Iesus vnto the: I wil aske you a question: What is it lawfull to do vps the Sabbath? good, or euell? to saue life, or to destroie it? And he behelde the all rounde aboute, and sayde vnto the mā: Stretch out thine hande. And he dyd so. Then was his hande restored him to right, enen as whole as the other. But they were fylled full of madnes, and commoned together, when they wolde do to him.

And it fortuned at the same tyme, that he wente out in to a mountayne to praye, and continued all nyght in prayer to God. And whā it was daye, he called his disciples, and chose twelue of them, whom he called apostles. Symon, whom he named pete, and Andrew his brother, James and Iohn, Phylippe and Bartolomeu, Mathew and Thomas, James the sonne of Alphesus, Symon called Zelotes, Judas the sonne of James, and Judas Iscariot, which was the traytoure.

And he wente downe with them, and he de open a playne in the felde, and the com pany of his disciples, and a greete multitu de of people, from all Jewry, and Jerusalem, and from Tyre and Sidon by the sea coast, which were come to heare him, and to be healed of their diseases, and they that were wept with foulespirtes, were healed. And all the people sought to touch him, forthen he wente vertue frō him, and healede the all.

And he lise vps his eyes vps his disciples, and sayde: Blessed are ye poore, for yours is the kyngdome of God. Blessed are ye that honger here, for ye shalbe satisfied. Blessed are ye that wepe here, for ye shall laugh. Blessed are ye, when men hate you, and put you out of their companye, and reuyle you, and call our youre name as an euell thinge, for the sonne of man sake. Reioyse ye then, and be glad: for beholde, your reward is greete in heauen. Euenthus dyd theyr fathers vnto the prophetes also.

But wo vnto you riche, for ye haue your consolation already. Wo vnto you that are full, for ye shal hunger. Wo vnto you that laugh here, for ye shal wepe and waille. Wo vnto you when euery man prayseth you, Euenthus dyd their fathers vnto the false phtes also.

But I saye vnto you that heare: Love your enemies: do good vnto them that ha te you: blese them that curse you: praye for them that wrongfully trouble you. And who so smyteth the on the one cheeke, offer him yf other also. And who so takech away thy cloake, subyd him not yf core also. Wo so ever aseyd of the, geue him: and who takech awaye thyme, are it not agayne?
And as ye wolde that men shulde do vnto you, euenthus do ye vnto them likewise.

And yf ye loue them that loue you, whā thāke haue ye therfore? For synners also use their louers. And yf ye do good for your good doers, what thanke haue ye therfore? Synners also do euen the same. And yf ye lende vnto them, of wch ye hope to receaue what thanke haue ye therfore: For synners also lende vnto synners, what they may receaue as moch agayne. But rather loue ye y^e carnicke, do good, and lende, lofynge for nothing therof agayne: so shal ye remarde be grate, and ye shal be the children of the heuyn: for he is kynde, tward the vntowardly and to the euill.

¹ Be ye therfore mercifull, as youre father also is mercifull. Iudge not, and ye shal not be iudged. Couet not, and ye shal not be adonprised. Forgeue, and ye shal be forgoen: Goe, and to you shalbe geue. A good measure, pierced downe, shalen together, & runyng ouer, shal mē geue in to youre bosome. For with what measure ye meeete, with the same shal it be measured to you agayne.

And he sayde a similitude vnto the: Can the kynde streme the naye to bynde: Do they not both the fall in to the drye? The disciple is not aboue his master. But whoso maketh a man perfect, yf same shalbe as his master. But why seest thou a moote in thy brothers eye, and considerest not the beame, that is in thine owne eye: Or how canst thou saye vnto thy brother: holde thyll brother, I wil plucke y^e moate out of thine eye, and thou thyll seest not yf beame in thine owne eye: Thou ypoctyte, ystiff cast the beame out of thine owne eye, and the shalbe thou se clearly to pull the moote out of thy brothers eye.

³ But why call yemel LORDE LORDE, & do not that I saye vnto you? Who so ener cummeth vnto me, and heareth my wordes and doeth the, I wil shewe you to whom he is lyke. He is lyke vnto a man which bylded a house, and digged depe, and layed y foundation vpon a rocke. When the waters came, the floodes ber vpon that house, and coude not moue it: for it was grounded vpon y rocke. But he that heareth and doeth not, is lyke vnto a man the bylded his house vpon the earth without foundation, and the streames beer vpon it, and it fell immediatly, and grate was the fall of that house.

The VII. Chapter.

When he had ended his talkyng vnto the people, he wente in to Capernaum: and a captayne seruante laye deed sicke, whom he loued. Whā he herde of Iesus, he sent the elders of the Iewes vnto him, and prayed him, that he wolde come, and make his seruante whole. But whā the y came to Iesus, they besoughe him instantly, & sayde: he is worthy y thou shuldest here this for him, for he loneth oure people, & hath bylded vs y synagoge. And Iesus wente w them.

Now when they were not farre from y house, y captayne sente siedes vnto hi, sayng vnto him: O LORD, trouble not thy self, I am not worthy, y thou shuldest enter vnder my rofe, and therfore I thought not my self worthy to come to y: but speake y worde, & my seruante shalbe whole. For I myself also am a mā. Subiecte to the bygger authority, & haue soub yers vnder me. And I saye vnto one: Go, & he goeth, And to another: Come, & he cometh. And to my seruante: Do this, & he doeth it. When Iesus herde y, he marueyled at hi, & turned hem abowte, & saye vnto y people y foloweth hi: I saye vnto you: So grate faith haue I not founde, no not in Israell. And whā they that were sent, came home agayne, they founde the seruante that was sicke, whole.

And it fortuned afterwarde, that he wente in to a cite called Naïm, and many of his disciples wente with him, and moche people. When he came nye to the gate of the cite, beholde, there was caried out one deed, which was the onely sonne of his mother, and she was a wyddowe, and moche people of the cite wente with her. And when the LORDE sawe her, he had compassion on her, and sayde vnto her: Wepe not. And he came nye, and toucheth the Coffin. And they that bare him, stode still. And he sayde: Young man, I saye vnto the: Arise. And the deed sat vp, and beganne to speake. And he belyured him vnto his mother. And they came a feare on them all, and they payed God, and sayde: A grate prophete is risen among vs, and God hath wifited his people. And this same of him was noyed in all Jewry, and in all y regions that laye round aboute.

And the disciples of Ihs shewed him of all these thynges. And Ihs called vnto him two of his disciples, and sent the vnto Iesus sayyng: Arise thou be that shal come, as is we loke for another: When the men came to him, they saye: Ihon y baptist hath sente vs vnto the, sayinge: Art thou he that shal come, or shal we loke for another?

C As the same houre he healed he many from sicknesses, & plagues, and fro euell spieres, and vnto many that were blynde, he gaue sight. And Iesus answered, & sayde vnto the: So ys waye, shewe Ihon, what ye haue sente herde. The blynde se, the halt go, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf heare, the deef cryse, the Gospell is preached vnto y poore, and blessed is he, that is not offended at me.

When the messengers of Ihs were departed, Iesus began to speake vnto y peple concerninge Ihs: What are ye gone out for to se in y wyldernes? Wolde ye se a rebe, that is shate w the wynde? Or what are ye gone out for to see? Wolde ye se a mā clothed in soferament: Beholde, they that are gorgeously arrayed, & lyue delicately, are in kynge courtis. Or what are ye gone out for to se: Wolde ye se a prophete? Yea I saye vnto ye: one tharis more the a prophete. This is he, of whom it is reueren: Beholde, I sende me myssaunger before y face, which shal prepare thy waye before the. For I saye vnto ye: A monge the y are borne of women, there is no greater prophete the Ihon the baptist. For with stonnyng he that is lesse in the kyngdome of God, is greater then he.

And all the people that herde him, and y publicans, iustified God, and were baptysed with the baptyne of Ihon. But the Pharisies and scriebes despyed y counsell of God, & gaunff the selues, & were not baptysed of hi.

D But the LORD E saide: Where vnto shal I iudg in the men of this generacion? And whom are they like: They are like vnto childe which sit in the market, and crye one to another, and saie: We haue pyppd vnto you, and ye haue not daunfed: we haue mourned vnto you, & ye haue not wept. For Ihon y baptist came, and a ce no bled, and diate no wyne, and ye saie: he hath y dwell. The sonne of man is to come, eateth and drynketh, & ye saie: This man is a glutton and a wyne bebr. Iesus sae at the table in the Pharisies and wyrdome is iustified of all his children.

And one of the Pharisies despyed him, & he wolde cease with him. And he wente in to the Pharisies house, and sat him downe at y table. And beholde, there was in the cite a woman, which was a synner. When she knewe that Iesus sae at the table in the Pharisies house, she broughte a boxe with oymment, & sate behynde at his feet, and wept, and be-ganne to water his feet with teares, and he drye the w the hayres of his heade, and he sed his feet, & anoynted the with oymment.

But when the Pharisie which had called to him sawe that, he spake within himself, and sayde: If this mā were a prophete, he wolde knowe who, & what maner of woman this is that toucheth him, for he is a synner. And Iesus answered, and saide vnto him: Simo, I haue somwhat to saye vnto the. He sayde: Master saie on. A certayne lender had two detters, the one oughe fyue hundred pennis, the other fyfity: but when they had nought to paye, he forgaueth both. Tell me which of them wyl loue him most: Symon answered, and saide: he. I suppose, to whom he forgaueth most. Then sayde he vnto him: Thou hast iudged right.

And he turned him to the woman, and sayde vnto Symo: Seest thou this woman? I am come in to thine house, thou hast giuen me no water vnto my feet, but she hath watered my feet with teares, and dryed the w the hayres of hir heade: Thou hast giuen me no kysse, but she kysse the fyne: she came in, hath not ceassed to kysse my feet: Thou hast not anointed my heade w oyle, but she hath anoynted my heade with oymment. Therefore I saye vnto the: Many synnes are forgiven her, for she hath loued much: But to whom lesse is forgiven, the same leueth the lesse.

And he sayde vnto her: Thy synnes are forgiven the. Then they that sae at the table with him, beganne to saye within themselves: What is he this, that forgiveth synnes also? But he sayde vnto the women: Thy faith hath saved the, so thy way is peace.

The VIII. Chapter.

And it is forewedd afterwarde, that he wente thorow the cities and townes, and preached, and shewed y Gospell of the kyngdome of God, and the wolde it him. And certayne women also, whi he had in healed fro euell spieres and infirmities: Namely, Mary which is called Magdalene, out of whom wente seven deuils, and Joanna y wife of Chynis herodes steward, and Susanna, and many other, that mystified vnto them of their substance.

Now whā noth people were gathered together, and had sed vnto him one of the articles, he spake by a synilitude: There wente out a sowre of some his seeds, & whyte he sowynge, some fell w the waye syde, and was trodde vnder foot, and the fowles of the spange it vp. And some sell on stone, and upon it was spounge vp, it weyched awaye; because it had no moyntnesse. And some sell amonge thornes, and the thornes spange vp with it, and choaked it. And some sell vpon a good grounde, and spange vp, and bare frute as handreth folde. Whā he sayde this he cryed: Who so hath eares to heare, see him heare.

B And his disciples asked him, and sayde: Why thus similitude is this? And he sayde: Vnto you it is geue, to knowe the mysteryes of the kyngdome of God, but vnto the other is parable, & though they see it, they shuld not see it, and though they heare it, they shuld not vnderstande.

This is the parable: The seede is the worde of God: As for those that are by & waye syde, they are they that heare it, a fterwarde cometh the deuell, and eateth awaye the worde out of their hertes, that they shulde not beleue, and be saued. But they on & stony are such as when they heare it, receaue the worde with ioye, and these haue no roote: they beleue for a whyle, and in the tyme of temptacion they fall awaye. As for it that fall amonge the thornes, are such as heare it, and go forth amonge the cares, riches and voluptuousnesse of this life, and are choaked and bringe forth no frute. But that on the good grounde, are they that heare the worde, and receiue it in a pure good hert, and bringe forth frute in pacience.

A Lo man lighteth a candle, and couereth it with a vessel, or putteth it vnder a table, but setteth it vpon a candlesticke, that soch as go in maye see light. For there is nothing hid, that shal not be openly shewed: and there is nothing secrete, that shal not be knowen, and come to light. Take hede therefore how ye heare. For who so hath vnto him halfe an eare: but who so hath not, from him halfe shall eaken awaye, eue the same that he hath to haue.

C There wente vnto him his mother and his brethren, and coude not come at him for the people. And it was tolde him. Thy mother and thy brethren stande without, and wote se the. But he answered, & sayde vnto this: My mother and my brethren are these, which heare the worde of God, and do it.

A And it fortuned vpon a certayne daye, & he wente in to a shippe, and his disciples with him: & he sayde vnto the: Let vs passe ouer to the other syde of & lake. And they burst of fro the lode. And as they sayled, he slepe. And there came a storme of wynde vpon & lake, and the waves fill vpon the, and they stode in greate ioperdy. Then wote they vnto him, and waked him vp, & sayde: Master, we perishe. Then he arose, and rebuked the wynde, and the rest of water, and they ceased, and it was calme. But he sayde vnto the: Where is youre faith? Then leuethes they were of frayed, and wddnt, and sayde one to another: What is he this? For he commaundeth the wyndes and the water, and they are obedient vnto him. And they sayled forth in to the countree of the Gadarenes, which is ouer agaynst Galile.

And when he wente our to londe, there met him out of & cite a mā, which had a deuell long tyme, & ware no clothes, & tarried in no house, but in the graues. Then rebuked whā he sawe Iesus, he cried, and fell to worshippinge him, and cried loude, & sayde: What haue I do with the Iesus, thou sonne of the hyest God? I besee the, that thou wilt not torment me. For he commaunded the foule spire, that he shulde departe out of the mā, for he had plagued hi a lōge season. And he was bounde with cheynes, and depe wyfferetes, and he brake the bondes in order, and was carried of the deuell in to the wilderness.

And Iesus asked him, and sayde: What is thy name? He sayde: Legion. For there were many deuils entred in to him. And they besought him, that he wolde not commaunde the to go in to the depe. But there was there a greate heerd of swyne fydynge vpon the mountayne, and they besought him, that he wolde geue them leue, to entre in to & same. And he gaue the leue. Then departed & deuels out of the mā, and entred in to the swyne. And the herd rusheth headlynge with a storme in to the lake, and were drowned. But whā they herden saie what had chaunfed, they fled, and tolde it in the cite and in the wildernesses.

Then wente they our, for to see what was done, and came to Iesus, and founde the mā (out of whom the deuils were departed) syttinge at Iesus feet, clothed, and in his right mynde, and they were of frayed. And they & had sene it, tolde the howe he possessed was healed. And the whole multitude of & countree of the Gadarenes besought him, that he wolde departe from them, for there was a greate feare come vpon the. And he gaue him in to & shippe, and turned agayne. And the man out of whō the deuels were departed, besought him, & he might be with him. But Iesus sent him awaye, and sayde: Go horns agayne, and shewe how greate things God hath done for the. And he wente his waye, & preached thensout all y^e cite, how greate thinges Iesus had done for hi.

And it forcomed whā Iesus came agayne, the people receaued him, for they wayted for him. And beholde, there came a man named Jairus (and he was a ruler of the synagoge) and fell at Iesus feet, & besoug he him, that he wolde come in to his house. For he had but one daughter (upon a troule yeare of age) and she laye at y^e poynt of death.

¶ And a womā haauyng the blondyssue twolue yeares, (which had spent all hir substance upon physicians, and coude be healed of none) came behynde, & touched the hemme of his garment, and immediadly hir yssue of bloud was stancht.

And Iesus sayde: Who hath toucht me? But whan they all denyed, Peter sayde, and they that were with him: Master, the people thronged the and thurst the, and thou sayest: Who hath toucht me? Iesus saide: Some body hath toucht me, for I fel, that there is vertue gone out fro me. But whan they the woman sawe that she was not hyd, she came triblyng, and fell downe before him, and tolde him before all the people, for what cause she had toucht him, & how she was healed immediatly. And he sayde vnto her: Daughter, be of good comforte, thy faith hath made the whole, go thy waye in peace.

Whyle he yet spake, there came one frō y^e ruler of y^e synagoges house, and sayde vnto him: Thy daughter is deed, discaise not the master. Whan Iesus herde that, he answered him, and sayde: Feare not, beleue onely, and she shal be made whole. But whan he came in to the house, he suffred no man to go in, save Peter, and James and Ihs, and the father and mother of the mayden. They wepte all, and so to we for her. But he sayde: Wepe not, for she is not deed, but slepeth. And they laughed hit to some, knoowyng well that she was deed. But he thrust them all out, and tolde her by the hande, and cryed, and sayde: Maide arise. And hir spue came agayne, & she arose straighte waye. And he commaunded to geue her meate. And hir elbers were astonnyed. But he charged them, that they shalde tell no man, what was done.

The XL Chapter.
¶ It he called the twolue together, and gaue them power and authoritee ouer all deuals, and that they might heale diseases. And he sent the out to preach the kyngdome of God, and to heale y^e sick, and sayde vnto them: He shal take nothinge with you by the waye, neither staff, ne scryppe, nee shoo, nee money: nee shal ye coare. And in to what house soeuer ye enter, there abyde, vntill ye go thence. And whē so ever receaue you not, departe out of the same cite, and shake o^f the dust from your feet, for a wytnesse ouer them. And they departed, and wente throughe the townes, preachinge y^e Gospel, & healinge euery where.

¶ Herode the Tetrarcha herde of all that was done by him. And he toke care, for so much as it was sayde of some: Ihs is risen agayne from the deed: of some, Elias hath appeared: of some, One of the olde prophetes is risen agayne. And herode sayde: I haue I beheaded, who is this then, of which I heare such thinges? And he besoug in his him.

And the Apostles came agayne, and tolde him how greate thinges they had done. And he toke them to him, and wente asyde in to a solitary place by the cite called Bethsaida. Whan the people knew of it, they followed him. And he receaued them, and spake vnto them of the kyngdome of God, and healed such as had neede there. But the daye beganne to go downe. Then came the twelue to him, and sayde vnto him: In the people departe frō the, that they maye gi in to the townes rounde aboute, and in to y^e villages, where they maye fynde lodgyng & meate, for we are here in y^e wilderness. But he sayde vnto them: Geue ye them to eat. They sayde: We haue nomore but fye loanes and two fyfthes. Excepte we shal go & bye meate for so much people (for they were vpon a fyue thousand men)? But he sayde vnto his disciples: Cause them to syt downe by fyfthes in a company. And they so, and made them all to syt downe. Then tolde he the fyue loanes and two fyfthes, and lette vp towarde heauē, and sayde grace ouer them, brake them, and gaue them to the disciples, to set the before the people. And they ate, and were all satisfied. And there was taken vp of that remayned to them, twolue basketes full of broken meate.

And it forcomed whan he was alone, and at his prayer, and his disciples with him, he tolde them, and sayde: Whom saye the people that I am? They answered, and sayde: They saye, thou art Ihon the baptist: Some, that thou art Elias: Some, that one of the olde prophetes is risen agayne. But 17 he vnto them: Whom saye ye that I am?

 18 Then answered Peter and sayde: Thou art the Christ of God. And he charged them 19 secretly, and commaunded them, that they shoulde tell this vnto no mā, and sayde: For 20 the sonne of man must suffre many thinges, and be cast out of the Elders, and of y^e hye 21 iustices, and scribes, and be put to deaht, and rise agayne the thirde daye.

22 Then sayde he vnto them all: Wheremy mā wil folowe me, let him deny himselfe, & take vp 23 his crosse daylye, & folowe me. For who so 24 wyl saue his life, shall lose it. But who so loseth his life for my sake, shall saue it. For what anawtage hath a man, though he 25 wanne the whole worlde, and loseth himselfe, or runneth in daunmage of himselfe? Who 26 so is ashamed of me and of my sayenges, of his shall the sonne of mā also be ashamed, when he cometh in his glory, and in the 27 glory of his father, and of the holy angels.
 28 I saye vnto you of a tenech: there be some 29 of them that stonde here, which shall not taste of deaht, tyll they se the kyngdome of God.

30 And it fortuned, that aboute an eight 31 dayes after these wordes, he toke vnto him 32 Peter, Iohn and James, and wente up in 33 to a mount for to praye. And as he prayed, the shappe of his countenance was chaun-34 ged of another fashion, and his garment was whyte, and shyned: and beholde, two men talked with him, which were Moyses and Elias, that appeared gloriously, and spake of his departyng, to which he shoulde fulfill at Jerusalem. As for Peter and them that were with him, they were full of slepe.
 35 But when they awoke, they saw his glory, and the two men stondyng with him.

36 And it chaunfed, when they departed frō 37 him, Peter sayde vnto Jesus: Master, here is good dryng for vs. Let vs make thre ta-38 bernacles: one for the, one for Moyses, and one for Elias, and wyll noe what he sayde.
 39 But whyle he thus spake, there came a cloude, and ouershadowed them. And they were 40 afrayed, when the cloude conered them.
 41 And out of the cloude there came a voyce, 42 which sayde: This is my beare sonne. heare him. And whyle this voyce came to passe, they sawe Jesus alone. And they kepte it 43 close, and tolde no mā in those dayes any of the thinges which they had seene.

44 And it chaunfed on the nexte daye after, 45 when they came downe from the mount, much people met him, and beholde, a man amonge the people cryed out, and sayde:

Master, I beseeke the, loke vpon my sonne, for he is my only sonne: beholde, the spere 46 taketh him, and suddenly he crieth, and he 47 reareth him, that he someth, and with pay-me departeth he from him, when he hath 48 reue him. And I besoughte my disciples to cast him out, and they coulde not. Then an-49 swered Jesus, and sayde: Oh thou unfaithfull and croked generacion, how longe shall 50 I be with you, & suffre you? Whyng heret thy sonne. And when he came to him, the 51 deuell rente him and care him. But Jesus rebuked the soyle spere, and healed the chy-52 lde, and deliuered him vnto his father agayne.
 53 And they were all amazed at the myghty power of God.

54 And whyle they wondred enery one at all thinges which he doyd, he saye vnto his 55 disciples: Comprehende these sayenges in your eares, for the sonne of man must be 56 deliuered in to the handes of men. But they 57 wyll not what that worde meant, and it was hyd from them, that they vnderstode it not. And they were afrayed to aske him of 58 that worde. There came a thought also amonge them, which of them shoulde be the 59 greatest. But when Jesus sawe the thoughtes 60 of their hert, he toke a chyld, & set him 61 harde by him, and sayde vnto them: Who-62 soeuer receauech this chyld in my name, receaueth me: and who so euer receaueth me, 63 receaueth him that sent me. But who so 64 leest amonge you all, & same shal be greete.
 65 Then answered Ihs, and sayde: Master, 66 we sawe one dryue out devils in thy name, and we forbade him, for he followed the not 67 with vs. And Jesus saide vnto him: For hyd 68 him noe, for he that is noe agaynst vs, is 69 for vs.

70 And it fortuned when the tyme was ful-71 lled that he shoulde be receaued vp from 72 hence, he turned his face to go straighte to 73 Jerusalem, and before him he sent messan-74 gers, which wente their waye, and came in 75 to a towne of the Samaritans, to prepare 76 lodgyngs for him. And they wolde not receave him, because he had turned his face to 77 go to Jerusalem. But when his disciples Ja-78 mes and Iohn sawe that, they sayde: LORD, 79 wille thou, that we commaunde, that sye 80 shall come from heauen, and consume 81 them, as Elias dyd? Then rebuked Jesus 82 turned him aboute, and rebuked them, and 83 sayde: Howe ye not, what maner of spere 84 ye are of? The sonne of man is noe come to 85 be stroye mens soules, but to saue them. And 86 they wente in to another towne.

Mat. c. And it fortuned as they went by the way, one sayde vnto him: I will folowe the, wher so euer thou go. And Iesus sayde vnto him: The foxes haue holes, and the byrdes vnder the heauē haue nestes: but the sonne of man hath not wheron to laye his head.

Mat. c. And he sayde vnto another: Folowe me. He sayde: Syr, geue me leue first to go, and bury my father. But Iesus sayde vnto him: Let the deed burye their deed. But go thou by waye, and preach the kyngdome of God.

Mat. c. And another sayde: Syr, I will folowe the, but geue me leue first, to go byd them farme, which are at home in my house. Iesus sayde vnto him: Who so putteth his hand to the plow, and looketh backe, is not meete for the kyngdome of God.

The X. Chapter.

Mat. c. ¶ And sturwarde the LORDE appoynted out other seuentie, and sent them two and two before him in to euery cite and place, whither he himself wolde come, and sayde vnto them: The harvest is greate, but the labourers are fewe. Praye therfore the LORDE of the harvest, to sende forth la bourers in to his harvest. So youre waye: he holde, I sende you forth as the labes amonge y wolues. Beate nether waller, ner scryp pe, ner thurs, and salute no mā by the waye. In to what so euer house ye entre, first saye: Peace be in this house. And if the childe of peace be there, youre peace shal rest vpon him. If no, then shal youre peace turne to you agayne. But tary ye still in the same house, eatinge, and dayntinge such as they haue. For the labourer is worthy of his rewarde.

Mat. c. Go not from house to house. And in to what so euer cite ye entre, and they receaue you, eate such thinges as are set before you. And heale the sicke that are there, and saye vnto them: The kyngdome of God is come nye vnto you. But in to what so euer cite ye come, and they receaue you not, go youre waye out in to the streets of the same, and saye: Euen the very dust which cleaueth vpon vs of youre cite, wyse we of vpon you. But of this ye shal be sure, that the kyngdome of God was come nye vnto you. I saye vnto you: Ye shalbe easer for Godome in that daye, then for that cite.

Mat. c. ¶ And vnto the Chorazin, wo vnto the Bethsaida: for yf the miracles which haue bene done amonge you had bene done at Tyre and Sidon, they had done penance longe agoo, syttinge in sacke cloth and in ashes. I euertheless it shalbe easer for Tyre and Sidon at the iudgment, then for you. And thou Capernaum which art exaltd vnto the heauen, shalt be thurst downe to hell. He that heareth you, heareth me: and he that despiseth you, despiseth me: but who so despiseth me, despiseth him y sent me.

The seyntye came agayne with ioye, and sayde: LORDE, the devils also are subdued vnto vs in thy name. But he sayde vnto them: I same Sathan shall come from heauen as a lightenyng. Beholde, I haue geuen you power to treade vpon serpentes and scorpions, and ouer all power of the enemy, and noching shall hurt you. Neuertheles, reioyce not ye in this, that the spites are subdued vnto you: but reioyse, that theyre names are wyrtten in heauen.

At the same houre reioysid Iesus in spite, and sayde: I praye the O father and LORDE of heauen and earth: that thou hast byd these thinges from the wyse and prudent, and hast opened them vnto babes. Euen so father, for so it pleased the. All thinge are geuen ouer vnto me of my father: and no man knoweth who the sonne is, but onely the father: nether who the father is, save onely the sonne, and he to whome the sonne wil open it.

And he turned him vnto his disciples, and sayde in especiall: Blessed are the eyes, which se that ye se. For I saye vnto you: Many prophetes and kynge, wolde haue seue the thinges that ye se, and haue not sene them: and to haue herde the thynges that ye heare, and haue not hade them.

And beholde, there stode up a scrybe: and tempted him, and sayde: Master, what must I do, to inheret everlastinge life? He sayde vnto him: What is wyrtten in the lawe? How readest thou? He answered and sayde: Thou shalt loue thy LORDE God with all thy heart, and with all thy soule, with all thy strenght, and with all thy myght, and thy neighbour as thy self. He saye vnto him: Thou hast answered right: this do, and thou shalt lyue. But he wolde haue iustified himself, I sayde vnto Iesus: Why is then my neighbour?

Then answered Iesus, and sayde: Attayne man wente downe from Jerusalem vnto Jericho, and fell amonge warthstones, which stryped him out of his clothes, and wounded him, and wente their way, and left him half dead. And by chauce there came downe a priest the same waye: and when he sawe him, he passed by. And likewise a Levite, whā he came nye unto the same place and sawe him, he passed by. But a Samaritan was goinge his journey, and came that waye. And when he sawe him, he had compassion upon him, wente unto him, bounde up his woundes, and poured oyle and wyne therein, and lifte him up upon his beast, and broughe him into the tynne, and made prouysson for him. Upon the next daye when he departed, he take out two pears, and gaue them to the oose, and sayde vnto him: Take cure of him, and what so euer thou spendest more, I wil paye it the, when I come agayne. Which of these the now thinkest thou, was neygbboure vnto him, that fell amonge the murderers? He sayde: He that shewed mercy vpon him. Then sayde Iesus vnto him: So chy waye then, and do thou likewise.

It fortuned as they were, that he entred into a towne, where there was a woman named Martha, which receaued him in to hir house. And she had a sister, called Mary, which sat hir borne at Iesus feet, and beramed vnto his wordes. But Martha was be hir self moche to do, set to serue him. And she strepe vnto him, and sayde: LORDE, carest thou not, that my sister leaueh me seruic alone: And yet therfore, that she helpe me. But Iesus answered, and sayde vnto her: Martha Martha, thou takest thought, and combest thy self aboute many thynges: there is but one thinge nede full. Mary hath chosen a good parte, which shal not be taken awaye from her.

The XI. Chapter.

WHEN it fortuned that he was in a place, and prayed. And when he had ceased, one of his disciples sayde vnto him: LORDE, teach vs to praye, as thou also taughte his disciples. He sayde vnto the: When ye praye, saye: O oure father which art in heauen, halowed be thy name. Thy kyngdome come. Thy wil be fulfilled vpon earth, as it is in heauen. Geue vs this daye our dayly bread. And forgate vs oure synnes, for we also forgate all them that are deare vnto vs. And lede vs not into temptation, but deliuer vs from euill.

And he sayde vnto them: Which of you is it that hath a frende, and shulde go to him at mydyght, and saye vnto him: frende, lende me thre loaves, for a frende of myne is come to me out of the waye, and I haue nothinge to set before him: and he within shulde answer and saye: Disquiete me not, the doer is shure already, and my children are with me in the chamber, I can not ryse, and geue the. I saye vnto you: and though he wolde not arise and geue him, because he is his frende. Yet because of his vnshamefast begginge he wolde arise, and geue him as many as he needed.

And I saye vnto you also: Ye, and it shal be geuen you: Take, and ye shal fynde knocke, and it shalbe opened vnto you. For whoso euer ariseth, receaueth: and he that seeketh, fyndeth: and to him that knocketh, shal it be opened. If the sonne aret of any of you that is a father, wyl he geue him a stone therfore? Or yf he are a fysher, wyl he for the fish offre him a serpent? Or yf he are an egg, wyl he profer him a scorpion? If ye then which are euill, can geue youre children good giftes, how much more shal the father of heauen geue the holy spere vnto them that are him?

And he diuice out a beuell that was borm me: and it came to passe when the deuill was departed out, the domme spake, and the people wondered. But some of them sayde: He diuiceth out the deuils, throug Beelzebub the chefe of the deuils. The other answered him, and desired a token of him from heauen. But he knewe their thoughtes, and sayde vnto them: Every kyngdome deuyded within it self, shal be desolate, and one house shal fall vpo another. If Saiban then be at variance within himself, how shal his kyngdome endure? Because ye saye, that I diuice out deuils throug Beelzebub,

And yf I diuice out deuils throug Beelzebub, by whom the do youre children diuice them out: Therfore shall they be youre iudges. But yf I cast out the deuils by the synner of God, then is the kyngdome of God come vnto you.

When a stronge harnessed man kepeth his house, that he posseseth it in peace: but when a stronger then he cometh vpo him, and ouercometh him, he taketh fro him all his weapons, wherin he trusted, and deuydeth the spoyle. He that is not with me, is agaynst me: and he that gathereth thereth nor with me, scattereth abroad.

161.11.12 When the vndercappete is gone out of a man, he walketh chorowdye places, feyng rest, and fyndeth none. Then sayeth he: I wil curne agayne in to my house, from whence I wente out. And when he cometh, he fyndeth it strepte, and garnished. Then goeth he, and taketh vnto him seuen other cappetes, more the himself. And when they are entred in, they dwell there. And the ende of that man is worse then the beginninge.

And it fortuned when he spake such, a certayne woman amonge the people lift vp hir voyce, and sayde vnto him: Blessed is yf wombe that bare thee, and the pappes that thou hast sucked. But he sayde: Yee blessed are they that heare the woordes of God, and bepeire.

161.12.1 When the people were gathered thidre together, he beganne to saye: This is an euell generacion, they desyre a colke, and theye shal no colke be geuen them, but the colke of the prophet Jonas. For like as Jonas was a colke vnto the Ninuities, so shal the sonne of man be vnto this generacion. The queene of the south shal aryse at the iudgment with the men of this generacion, and shall condemne them: for she came from the ende of the worlde, to heare the wysdome of Salomon. And beholde, here is one more then Salomon. The men of Ninus shal aryse at the iudgment with this generacion, and shall condemne them: for they dyd penance after the preachinge of Jonas: and beholde, here is one more the Jonas.

161.12.2 A man lighteth a candell, and putteth it in a peny place, nether vnder a bushell, but vpon a candlestick, that they which come in, maye se yf light. The eye is the light of the body. If thine eye then be synge, all thy body shal be full of light: but yf thine eye be wadded, then shal all thy body be full of darcknesse. Take heede therfore, that the light which is in thee, be not darcknesse. If thy body now be light, so that it haue no parte of darcknesse, then shal it be all full of light, and shall lighte the euen as a cleare lightenyng.

D But whyle he yet spake, a certayne pharise prayed him, that he wolde dyne with him. And he wente in, and sat him downe at the table. When the pharise sawe that, he marueyled, that he was bed not suffe before dynere. But the LORD E sayde vnto him: How do ye pharises make cleane the oute syde of the cuppe and platter, but your inward partes are full of robbery and wickednesse. He sooles, is a thinge made cleane within, because the carys is closed: Therbykes geue almesse of that ye haue, and beholde, all is cleane vnto you.

But now vnto you pharises, ye threwe the mynt and rewe, and all maner herbes, and passe ouer iudgment and yf love of God. These ought to haue bene done, and not to leaue the other vndone.

Wo vnto you pharises, for ye loue to sitte vppermost in the synagoges, and to be saluted in the market.

Wo vnto you scribes and pharises, ye hypocrites, for ye are like coered sepulchres, where out men walke, and are not aware of them.

Then answered one of the scribes, and sayde vnto him: Master, with chese wordes thou puttest vs to rebuete also. But he saide: And now vnto you also ye scribes, for ye lade men with uncollerable burthens, and ye youre selues touch them not with one of yf fyngers.

Wo vnto you, for ye layde the sepulchres of the prophetes, but youre scarpes put them to death. Doubles ye beate ymself, and confesse vnto the dedes of yo fathers for theye steepe them, and ye byrde their sepulchres.

Then fore sayde the wysdome of God: I wil sende prophetes and Apostles vnto the, and some of them shal theye put to death and persecute, that the bloude of all the prophetes which hath bene shed vnto the foundation of the worlde was layed, maye be requyred of this generacion: from the bloude of Abel, vnto yf bloude of Zachary, which perished betwene the altare and yf temple. Yee I saye vnto you: it shall be requyred of this generacion.

Wo vnto you scribes, for ye haue receyued yf keye of knowlege. Ye are not come in youre selues, and haue sold ydden them: your wolde haue bene in.

When he spake thus vnto them, the scribes and pharises beganne to passe sore vpon him, and to stoppe his mouth with many questions, and layd waye for him, and sought to hunte out some thinge out of his mouth, that they mighte scape him.

The XII. Chapter,

Here were gathered together an innumerable multitude of people, in so much that they trode one another: Then beganne he, and sayde first vnto his disciples: Bewarre of the leuen of the Pharisies, which is hypocrysie. But there is nothinge hye, that shal not be discovered: neither secret, that shal not be knowne. They for what soeuer ye haue spokt in darknesse, that same shal be herde in lighte: and that which ye spokt in to the eare in the chāber, shal be preached vpon the house toppes.

But I saye vnto you my frendes: De not be afrayd of them that kyll the body, and after that haue nomore that they can do. But I wil shewe you, whom ye shal feare. Feare him, which after he hath kylled, hath power also to cast in to hell: Yea I saye vnto you: Feare him. Are not fyue sparowes bought for so fewe sarchynges: Yet is not one of them forgotten before God. The very hayres of youre heade also are numbered eery one. Feare not therefore, for ye are better then many sparowes.

I saye vnto you: Who so euer knowlegeth me before men, him shal the sonne of man also knowlegeth before the angels of God: But he that denyeth me before men, shal be denyed before the angels of God. And who so euer speaketh a worde agaynst the sonne of man, it shalbe forgiven him: But who so blasphemeth the holy goost, it shal not be forgiven him.

When they byngne you into their synagoges, and to the rulers: officers, take ye no thought, how or what ye shal answer, or what ye shal speake: for the holy goost shal teach you in the same houre, what ye ought to saye.

But one of the people sayde vnto him: Master, by my bidder beynde the encheuance rebt me. Neuertheles he sayde vnto him: Man, who hath set me to be a iudger or heretike: ze partur ouer you: And he sayde vnto them: Take heede, and beware of contouersie, for no man lyueth therof, that he hath aboundance of goodes. And he tolde them a similitude, and sayde: There was an euideman, whose selde had brought foich frum plentiously, and he thought in himself and sayde: What shal I do: I haue nothinge wher in to gather my frutes. And he sayd: This wil I do, I wil breake downe my barnes, & bylde greater, and therein wil I gather all myne increase, & my goodes. And saye vnto my soule: Soule, thou hast much goodes layed up in store for many yeares, take now thine ease, eat, drinke, and be merry. But God sayde vnto him: Thou fool, this night shal they requyre thy soule from thee, and whose shal it be that thou hast prepared? Thus goeth it with him y gathereth treasure for himself, and is not rich in God.

But he sayde vnto his disciples: Therfore I saye vnto you: Take ye no thought for youre life, what ye shal eat: neither for youre body, what ye shal put on. The life is more then meate, and the body more then raiment. Considre the rauen, they neither sowe nor reape, they haue also neither storehouse nor barn, and yet God feedeth them. But how much better are ye then the fowles?

Which of you (though he take thought therfore) coulde put one cubyte vnto his stature: Beinge then ye be not able to do that which is leass, why take ye thought for the other: Considre the lilies vpon the felde, how they growe: they labour not, they soynne not. But I saye vnto you: that euen Salomon in all his royaltie was not clothed like one of these. Wherefore ys God so cloth the grasse, his is eodaye in y felde, and tomorrow shalbe cast into the fornace, how much more shal he clothe you, o ye of little faith: Are not ye therefore what ye shal care, or what ye shal buyde, and clymme not up an hye: The heichen in the worlde sete after all such thinges. But sete ye the Kingdome of God, and all these shal be mynistrd vnto you.

Feare not: thou little flocke, for it is youre fathers pleasure to geue you the Kingdome. Sell that ye haue, and geat almeste. Make you bagges, which waxe not olde: euen a treasure that neuer fayleth in heauen, where no theif cometh, and no moche corrupcion: for where your treasure is, there wil youre heart be also.

Let youre loynes be girded aboute, and youre lightes burnyng, and be ye like vnto men that waxe for cheir lord, a gaynst he returne from the marriage, that when he cometh & knocketh, they maye straight waxe open vnto him. Blessed are those seruantes, whom the LORDE (when he cometh) shal fynde waxyng. Verely I saye vnto you: he shal gyde up him self, and make cheryt downe at the cable, and shal go by them, and mynistr vnto them. And yf he come in the seconde watch, and in the thirde watch, and fynde them so, blessed are those seruantes. But be sure of this, that yf the good man of the house knowe, what houre the chiefe wolde come, he wolde surely watch, and not suffice his house to be doctes vp. Therefore be ye ready also, for at an houre when ye thynke not, shall come some of man come.

22 But Peter saye vnto him: LORDE, telleft thou this synilitude vnto vs, or to all men also? The LORDE sayde: How greace a charge is a faithfull and wyse steward, whom his lord setteth ouer his householde, to geue the their dewtie in due season? Blessid is that seruante, whom his lord (whan he cometh) shal fynde so doynge. Verely I saye vnto you: he shal set him ouer all his goodes. But of the same seruante shal saye in his herte: Lorde, it wil be longe or my lord come, and shal begynne to smyre of seruantes and maybens, yet to eate and drynke, & to be drouthe: the same seruantes lord shal come in a daye whan he lokech not for him, and in an houre that he is not aware of, & shal hew him in peces, and geue him his reward with the vnbelievers.

23.46 The seruante that knewe his lordes will and prepared not himself, nether dyd accordinge to his will, shal be beaten with many strypes: But he that knewe it not, and yet dyd thinges worthy of strypes, shal be beaten with few strypes. For loke vnto whom mochi is geuen, of him shal mochi be soughe: and loke to whom mochi is commyted, of him shal mochi be requyred.

3 I am come to kynde fyre vpon earth, and what wolde I rather, the charite were kyndled allready. For withstandinge I must first be baptised with a baptyme, and how am I payned till it be ended: Thynke ye, that I am come to brynge peace vpon earth? I tell you nay, but rather debate. For from hence forth there shal be at varyance in one house thre agaynst two, and two agaynst thre. The father shal be deuyded agaynst the sonne, and the sonne agaynst the father: the mother agaynst the daughter, & the daughter agaynst the mother: the mother in lawe agaynst hir daughter in lawe, and the daughter in lawe agaynst hir mother in lawe.

4 And he sayde vnto the people: Whan ye se a cloude ryse out of the west, straight waye ye saye: there cometh a shower, and so it is: and whan ye se the southwynde blowe, ye saye: It wil be hote, and it cometh so to passe. O ye hypocrytes, ye can discerne the fauon of the skye and of the earth: Why can ye not discern this tyme also? Yee and why sayde ye not of youre selues, what is right?

While thou goest with thine aduersary vnto the Dynce, geue diligence by the waye, that thou mayest be quyte of him, lest he brynge the before the iudge, and the iudge deliuer the to the iaylor, and the iaylor cast the in to prison. I tell the, thou shalt not come out thence, till thou paye the vntill mye.

The XIII. Chapter.

1 There were present at ierusalem I cerarene, that sheweth him of y. Galileans, whose bloude pilate had mingled with their aunc sacrifice. And Iesus answered, and sayde vnto them: Suppose ye, that these Galileans were greater sinners then all the other Galileans, because they suffred such punishment? I tell you nay, but excepte ye amende youre selues, ye shal all perishe likewise. Or thinke ye that y. signen (vpon whom the tower in Siloe fell and felle: them) were guiltie above all men that dwell at Ierusalem? I tell you nay: but excepte ye amende youre selues, ye shal all perishe likewise.

And he tolde them this synilitude: Or maye ma hab a figge tre, which was plantid in his vyrgarde, & he came and soughe fruite thereon, and founde none. Then saye he vnto the wyngardener: Beholde, this thre yearre longe haue I come eury yearre, and soughe fruite vpon this figge tre, and fynde none: cut it downe, why hyndreth it the grounde? But he answereth, and saye: Sir, let it alone yet this yearre, till I digge roude aboute it and donger it, yf it wyll brynge forth fruite: If no, then cut it downe afterwarde.

And he taught in a synagoge vpon the Sabbath: and beholde, there was a woman which had a spere of infirmyte eighten yearre, and was croked, and coulde not well loke vp. Whan Iesus sawe her, he called her to him, and sayde vnto her: Woman, be dyuored from thy distace. And he layed his handes vpon her, and immediately she was made straight, and praysed God. Then answered the ruler of the synagoge, and toke indignacion: because Iesus healed vpon a Sabbath: and sayde vnto the people: There are synayes, wherein men ought to worke, in the same come and be healed, and not on the Sabbath.

Then the LORDE answered him, and sayde: Thou hypocrite, doth not euery one of you louse his ox or asse fro the crybbe vpon Sabbath, and leade him to the water? And shalbe not this, which is a woman boughe to y. whom Sathan hath bounde now thretyne yearre, be loosed from this boude?

the Sabbath: And when he thus sayde, all his audyances were ashamed. And all the people reioysed over all the excellent dedes, that were done by him.

¹⁴ And he sayde: What is the kyngdome of God like? Or wher vnto shal I compare it? It is like a greyne of muscard sibe, which a man sowe, and cast in his garden: and it growe, and waxed a greete tre, and the foules of the ayre dwelt amonge the boughes of it.

¹⁵ And agayne he sayde: Where vnto shal I liken the kyngdome of God? It is like two leuen, which a woman toke, and myxt it amonge three peeces of meele, tyll it was all leuened. And he wote thow cities and townes, and taught, and toke his journey towards Jerusaleim.

¹⁶ And one sayde vnto him: LORDE, are the re scow (thinkest thou) that shalbe sated?

¹⁷ But he sayde vnto them: Ser ye ye to entre in at the straye gate, for many (I saye vnto you) shal sate to come in, and shal not be able. Item from that tyme forth, when the good man of the house is ryfen vp, and hath shut the doore, then shal ye begynne to stonde without, and to knocke at y doore, and saye:

¹⁸ LORDE LORDE E, open vnto vs. And he shal answere, and saye vnto you: I knowe yeu not whence ye are.

Then shal ye begynne to saye: We haue eatte and dronken be fore the, and thou hast taughte vs vpon yf streetes. And he shal saye: I tell you, I knowe you not whence ye are.

¹⁹ Departe fro me all ye workers of iniquyte.

²¹ Vpon the same daye there came certayne of y pharises, and sayde vnto him: Get the out of the waye, and departe hence, for we wote weyl tyll the. And he sayde vnto the: We ye and tell that foye: beholde, I cast out deuides, and heale the people todaye and to morrow, and vnto the thirde daye shal I make it an ende: for it can not be, that a prophet perishe without Jerusaleim.

²² O Jerusaleim Jerusale, thou that killest the prophetes, and stonest the that are sent vnto y, how oft wolde I haue gathered thy chylde together, even as the hewe gathereth hir nest vnder hir wynges, and ye wolde not: Beholde, yd habitacion shal be lost vnto you desolate. For I saye vnto you: ye shal not see me, tyll y tyme come that ye shal saye: blessed be he, y cometh in y name of the LORDE. The XIII. Chapter.

And he tolde a similitude vnto y gestro, wha he marked how they chose the byest seetes, & sayde vnto the: When thou art bydde of omy man to a weddinge, se not borne in the byest roume, lest a more honorable man the thou be bydde of him, and he that haue boeth the and him, come & saye vnto y: geue this ma roume, and thou the begynne with shame to take y lowest roume. But rather wha thou art bydde, go and se in y lowest roume, that wha he that haue the, cometh, he maye saye vnto the: frende, se vp hyer: then shalt thou haue worshippe in the presence of them that se at the table. For who so ener exalterth himself, shalbe brought lowe: and he y humblyeth himself, shalbe exalted.

He sayde also vnto him that had bydden him: Wha thou makest a dyner or a supper, call not thy frendes, ner thy brethren, ner thy kynfolkes, ner yf riche neighbours, lest they call the agayne, and recompice be made y. But wha thou makest a feast, call the poore, the crepell, the lame, the bynde, then art thou blessed, for they can not recompice y. But it shalbe recompiced the in the resurrection of the righteous.

When one of them that sat by at the table herde this, he sayde vnto him: Blessed is he, that eateth brett in y kyngdome of God. But he sayde vnto him: A certayn man made a greete supper, and called many ther to. And in y hoore of the supper he sent his man to saye vnto the yf there bydder: Come, for now are all thinges ready. And they began all together to excuse the: the first one of them anothur: The first sayde vnto hi: I haue bought a ferme, and I must needs go forth and se it. I praye yf haue me excused. And yf seconds sayde: I haue boughte frue yoke of oxen, and now I go to plowe thym, I praye the haue me excused. And the thirde sayde: I haue married a wife, therfore can I not come. And the seruante came, and broughte his lord woode agayne therof.

Then was the good man of the house displeasid, and sayde vnto his seruante: So our quoyly in to the strettes and quarters of yctice, and bringe in hither the poore and crepell, and lame and blynde. And the seruante sayde: seide, it is done as thou hast commaunded, and there is yet more to come. And the lord sayde vnto the seruante: Go out into the hye wayes, and to the hedges, and compelel hym to come in, that my house maye be fylled. But I saye vnto you: that none of these men which were bydden, shal cast of my supper.

There wente moche people with him, and he turned him aboute and sayde vnto them: If any man come vnto me, and hate not his father, mother, wyffe, chylde, brether, sisters, yet and his owne selfe also, he can not be my disciple. And whosoeuer hateth not his crosse, and foloweth me, can not be my discipyle.

Whiche of you is it, that wil buyde a tower, and stretch not doume first and countech yf coste, whether he haue sufficite to persequre me, it is lest after he hath layed the foundation, and is not able to perfourme it, all they that se it, begyne to laugh him to scorne, & to saye: This man beganne to buyde, and is not able to perfourme it. Or what bynge wyl go to make battayll agaynst another bynge, and stretch not doume first, and castech in his mynde, whether he be able wuth ten thousande, or meeke him that cometh agaynst him with twenty thousande? Or els, whyle the ocher is yet a greete waye of he sendeth embassage, and desyret peace. So likewise euery one of you that forsaketh not all that he hath, can not be my discipyle.

There foretoke vnto him all the publicans and synners, that they mighte heare him. And yf phariseis and scrybes murmured, and sayde: This man receaueth synners, and eateth with them. But he colde the this synlicode, and sayde: What man is he amonge you, that hath an hundred shepe, and yf he loose one of the, that leaureth not the nyne and nyntyne in the wyldernes, and goeth after that which is lost, tyll he fynde it? And whan he hath founde it, he layeth it vpon his shuldres, and calleth it, and whan he cometh home, he collecth his fridres and neighbours, and sayeth vnto the: Reioyce with me, for I haue founde my shepe, that was lost. I saye vnto you: Lest thou shal there be ioye in heauen ouer one synner that doth penance, more then ouer nyne and nyntyne righteous, which nedes not repen- tance.

Or what woman is it that hath ten gretes, yf she loose one of them, that lighteth not a candle, and sweepeth the house, and seeketh diligently, tyll she fynde it? And whan she hath founde it, she collecth her fridres & neighbouresses, and sayeth: Reioyce with me, for I haue founde my grette, which I had lost. Lest so (I tell you) shal there be ioye before the angels of God, ouer one synner that doth penance.

147.2. b

And he sayde: A certayne man had ten somes, and the yonger of them sayde vnto the father: Father, geue me the portion of thy goodes, that belongeth vnto me. And he deuoyded the good vnto childe. And not longe thereafter, gathered the yonger some all together, & toke his iourney in to a farr countre, and there waisted he his goodes with ryccous luynges. Towrwhan he had spent all that he had, there was a greete wante thow oute all the same lode. And he began to lacke, and wente his waye, and came to a cysterne of that same countre, whiche saw him in to his felde, to kepe swyne. And he wolde sayne haue fylled his belly with the coddes, that the swyne ate. And no man gaue him there.

Then came he to him selfe, and sayde: How many hyred seruantes hath my father, which haue had ynough, and I perishe of hongre? I wil gett vp, and goe to my father, and saye vnto him: Father, I haue synned agaynst heauen and tefore the, and am now worthy to be called thy sonne, make me as one of thy hyred seruantes. And he gat him vp, & came vnto his father. But whan he was yet a greete waye of, his father saw him, and had compassion, and ranne, and fell aboute his neck, and kysed him. Then sayde the some vnto him: Father, I haue synned agaynst heauen, and be ioye the, I am now more worthy to be called thy sonne. But he father sayde vnto his seruantes: Brynge forth the best garment, and put it upon him, and geue him a ryng vpon his hande, and shoo on his fete, and brynge hither a shew calf, and byll it, lac vs eate and be mery: for this my sonne was deed, and is alyue agayne: he was lost, and is founde. And they began to be mery.

D But the elder sonne was in the felde. And when he came, and drewe nye to the house, he herde yf mynstrelle and daunsyng, and called one of the seruantes vnto him, and aske what it was. He sayde vnto him: Thy brother is come, and thy father hath slayne a shew calf, because he hath receaued him safe and sounde. Then was he angry, and wolde not go in. Then wente his father out, and prayed him. But he answered, and sayde vnto his father: Lo, thus many yeares haue I done the seruyce, neither haue I yet taken thy commaundement, and thou gaust me neuer one peny, & I might make mery with my frendes. But now that this thy sonne is come, which deuoured his goodes with harlottes, thou hast slayne a shew calf. But he sayde vnto him: My sonne, thou art alwaye with me, and all that is myne, is thine: thou shouldest be mery and glad, for this thy brother was deed, and is alyue agayne: he was lost, and is founde agayne.

The XVI. Chapter.

I C. He sayde also vnto his disciples: There was a certayne riche man, which had a steward, that was accused vnto him, that he had wasted his goodes. And he called him, and sayde vnto him: How is it, that I heare this of thee? geue a compo of thy stewardshipe, for thou mayest be no longer steward. The steward sayde within himself: What shal I do? My lordes wil take awaye the stewardshipe fro me, I am not bygge, and to begg I am ashamed. I wote what I will do, that whā I am put out of the stewardshipe, they may receaue me vnto their houses.

And he called vnto hy all his lordes deuites, and sayde vnto the first: How much owest thou vnto my lord? He sayde: an hundred connes of oyle. And he sayde: Take thy byll, sitte downe quyetly, & wyte fifty. Then sayde he vnto another: How much owest thou? He sayde: an hundred quarters of wheat. And he sayde vnto him: Take thy byll, and wyte foure score. And the lordes comended the vnrighteous steward, because he had done wysly. For the children of this wolde be in their kynde wyser, the the child ofen of this wr. And I saye vnto you: Make you frendes with the vnrighteous Mammon, for whan ye shal haue neede, they may receaue you in to euerylastinge Tabernacles.

D He that is faithfull in the least, is faithfull also in much: and he that is vnrighteous in the least, is vnrighteous also in much. If ye then haue not bene faithfull in the vnrighteous Mammon, who wyll beleue you in that which is true? And if ye haue not bene faithfull in anothers mans busyngnesse, who wil geue you that which is youre owne?

No seruant can serue two masters: for either he shal hate the one, and loue yf other: or els he shal leane to the one, and despise the other. Ye can not serue God and Mammon.

All these thynges herde the Pharisees, which were couetous, and they mocked hy. And he sayde vnto them: Ye are they that in synne ye selue before men, but God knoweth youre heltes. For that which is hye amonge men, is an abhominacion before God.

The lame and yf prophetes prophesied vnto Ihon, and from that tyme forth is the kyngdome of God preached throug yf Gospel, and euery man presseth in to it by violence. But easier is it, for heauen and earth to passe, then one tittle of that to fall. Who so ouer putteth awaye his wife, & marrieth another, breaketh matrimony: and he that marieth her which is deuoured of his husbande, breaketh wedlocke also.

There was a certayne riche man, which clothed him self with purple and costlynynen, and satred beliciously euery daye. And there was a poore man named Lazarus, which laye at his gate full of sores, and desyred to be fylled with the crottes, that fell from the riche mans table. There came the dogges, and licked his sores. But it fortuned, that the poore man dyed, and was caried of the angels in to Abrahams bosome. The riche man dyed also, and was buried.

Then when he was in the hell, he lift up his eyes in the payne, and sawe Abrahams sarre of, and Lazarus in his bosome: and he cryed, and sayde: Father Abraham, haue mercy vpon me, and sende Lazarus, that he maye byp the tpype of his fynger in water, & coole my tonge, for I am tormented in this flame. But Abrahā sayde: Remember sonne, thou hast receaued good in thy lyf, & now trary wyse Lazarus receaued euell. But now is he comforted, and thou art comforted. And beside all this, there is a greatespace set betwene vs and you: so þ they which wolde go downe from hence vnto you, can not: neither maye they passe ouer from thence vnto vs.

Then sayde he: I pray the then father, that thou wilt sende him vnto my fathers house, for I haue yet fyne brethren, that he maye warne them, lest they also come in to this place of coment. Abiham sayde vnto him: They haue Moses and the prophetes, let them beare them. But he sayde: My father Abiham, but yf one wente vnto them fro the dead, they wolde do permanence. These wordes he sayde vnto him: If they beare not Moses & the prophetes, then shal they not beleue also, though one rose agayne fro the dead.

The XVII. Chapter.

Ghe sayde vnto his disciples: It is impossible that offences shulde not come: but to vnto him by whom they come: It were better for him, that a mylstone were hangd aboute his neck, and he cast in to the see, then that he shulde offende one of these litle ones. Take hede to youre selues. If thy brother trespass agaynst the, rebulke him: and yf he amende, forgiue him. And though he sygne agaynst the seuen tymes in a daye, and come seuen tymes in a daye to yf agayne, and saye: I repentech me, forgiue him.

And the Apostles sayde vnto yf LORD E: Increase oure saith. The LORD E sayde: If ye haue saith as a grayne of mustarde seide, and saye vnto this Molberry tree: Plucke thy self vp by thy rotes, and plante thy self in the see, it shalbe obedient vnto you. Which of you is it, that hath a seruaunt which ploweth, or feedeth the cattell: whā he commeth home from yf side, that he wil saye vnto him: Go quyetly, and fro the downe to meate: Is it not thus: that he sayeth vnto him: I am ready, that I maye suppe, gynde vp thy self, and serue me, cyll I haue eaten and dronken, a fterward: shalst thou ease and drynte also. Thankest he the same seruaunt also, because he byd that was commaunded him: I troue not. So likewise ye, whā ye haue done all that is commaunded you, saye: We are vnprofitable seruaunts, we haue done that we were bounde to do.

And it fortuneth, whan he toke his journey towards Ierusalem, he wente thowen the myddest of Samaria and Galile. And as he came in to a towne, there met him ten leporous men, which stode a farte of, and lifte vp their voyce, and sayde: Iesu maister, haue mercy vpon vs. And whan he sawe them, he sayde vnto the: Go, and shew your selues vnto yf prestes. And it came to passe, as they wente, they were clesed. And one of them whā he sawe that he was clesid, he turned backe agayne, and prayed God with loude voyce, and fell downe on his face at his feet, and gaue him thanke. And the same was a Samaritane. Iesus answered and sayde: Am there not ten clesed: But wher are thow nyne: There were cle none founde, that turned agayne, and gaue God the prayse, save onely this stranger. And he sayde vnto him: Verily, go thy waye, thy faith hath made yf whole.

But whan he was benyngd of yf pharises: Whan cometh the kyngdome of God: he answered them, and sayde: The kyngdome of God cometh not with outward appearance, neither shal it be sayde: lo, here it is there it is. For beholde, yf kyngdome of God is inward in you.

And he sayde to the disciples: There myne shal come, whā ye shal desire to see a daye of the sonne of man, and shal see it. And they shal saye vnto you: Se here, se here. Go not ye, neither folowe, for as the lightynyngs shyneth aboue from the heauen, and lighteth ouer all that is vnder the heauē, so shal the sonne of mā be in his daye. But first must he suffre many chinges, and be despised of this generation.

And as it came to passe in the tyme of Noe, so shal it come to passe also in yf daye of the sonne of man. They ate, they dranke, they married, and were married, euen vnto yf daye that Noe went in to the Arke, and yf floude came, and destroyed them all.

Likewise also as it came to passe in the tyme of Lot, they ate, they dranke, they bought, they solde, they planted, they builded. But euen the same daye that Lot went out of Sodom, it rained fyre and brimstone from heauē, and destroyed them all. After this maner also shal it go, in the daye whan the sonne of man shal appeare.

In that daye, who so is vpp the rofe, and his stuffe in yf house, let him not come downe to fetch it: Likewise he that is in the feld, let him not turne backe, for it that is behynde him. Remember Lottes wyfe. Whoso ever touch aboune to saue his life, shall lose it: and who so ever shal lose it, shal saue it. I saye vnto you: In yf night shal men he upon one bed, the one shalbe receaved, the other shalbe forsaken. Two shalbe gyven together, the one shalbe receaved, the other shalbe forsaken. And they answered, and sayde vnto him: Where LORDE: he saye vnto the: Where so euer y beed carcase is there wil y Angles be gathered together.

The XVIII. Chapter.

He tolde them a similitude, signifyinge, y men oughte alwayes to praye, and not to leaue of, & sayde: There was a iudge in a cite, which feared not God, and stode in awe of no man. And in the same cite ther was a wedde me, which came vnto him, and sayde: deliuer me fro myne aduersary. And he wolde not a greate while. But afterwarde bet thoughte wthin his self: Though I feare not God, & stonde in awe of no man, yet feynge this weddome is so importune vpon me, I wil deliuer her, lest she come at the last, and rayle vpon me.

Then sayde the LORD: heare what y vnghesous iudge sayeth. But shall not God also deliuer his choyse, that crye vnto hi daye and night, though he differe the? I saye vnto you: he shal deliuer them, and that shaldey. Tene tribes, whan the sonne of man cometh, shal suppose ye, that he shal synbe faith vpon earth.

And vnto certayne which trusted in the floure, that they were perfecte, and bespyed ether, he spake this similitude: There wente vnto men in to the temple, to praye: the one a pharise, the other a publican. The pharise stode, and prayed by himselfe after this maner: I thank the God, that I am not as other men, robbers, vnrighteous, aduorters, or as this publican. I fast twyse in the weke, I geue the tythes of all that I haue. And the publican stode a farr of, and wolde not lifte vp his eyes to heauen, but smote vpon his brest, and sayde: God be thou mercifull vnto me sinner. I tell you: This man wente doune in to his house iustified more than the other. For who so euer exalteth himselfe, shalbe broughte lowe: and he that humbled himselfe, shalbe exalted.

They broughte yonge children also vnto him, that he shalde conch them. But whan the disciples sawe that, they rebulde them. Therfore Iesus called them vnto him, and sayde: Suffre childre to come vnto me, and seiue the, not for of such is y kyngdome of God. Verely I saye vnto you: Whoso receaueh not y kyngdome of God as a child, shal not enter therein.

And a certayne ruler aspredd, and sayde:

Good master, what must I do, that I maye inherite euerlastinge life? But Iesus sayde vnto him: Why callest thou me good? There is no man good, but God onely. Thou knowest the commandmentes: Thou shalt not breake wedlocke: Thou shalt not kill: Thou shalt not steale: Thou shalt not beare false testimony: Thou shalt reuerence thy father and y mother. But he sayde: All these haue I kepte fro my youth vp. What Iesus herde that, he sayde vnto him: Yet lackest thou one thing, sell all that thou hast, and geue it vnto y poore, and thou shalt haue a treasure in heaue, and come & folow me. Whan he herde that, he was sory, for he was very rich.

Whan Iesus sawe that he was sory, he sayde: howe hardy shal the rike come in to the kyngdome of God? It is easyer for a Camel to go thorow the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to entre in to the kyngdome of God. Then sayde they y herde that: Who can then be saued? But he sayde: loke what is impossible wth men, is possible wth God.

Then sayde Peter: Beholde, we haue forsak all, and folowed the. He sayde vnto the: Verely I saye vnto you: There is no man y forsaketh house, or elders, or brethren, or wife, or childre, for the kyngdome of Gods sake, which shal not receaue much more in this tyme, and euerlastinge life in the world to come.

He toke vnto him the twelue, and sayde vnto them: Beholde, we go vp to Ierusalem, and it shal all be fulfilled, that is wyrtren by the prophetes of the sonne of man. For he shal be deliuered vnto y heythen, and shalbe mocked, and bespytfullye treated, and spited vpon: and whan they haue scourged him, they shal put him to death, and vpon the thurde daye shal he aryse agayne. And they vnderstode nothyng of these thinges. And this sayenge was hyd from them: and they perceaued not the thinges that were spoken.

And it came to passe, whan he came nye vnto Jericho, there sat one blynde by the waye, and begged. And when he herde the people pass by, he ased what it was. Then sayde they vnto him, that Iesus of Nazareth passed by. And he cryed, and sayde: Iesu thou some of Dauid, haue mercy vpon me. But the people that wente before, rebulde him, that he shalde holde his tounge. Therfore he cryed much more: Thou some of Dauid haue mercy vpon me. Iesus stode still, & commaunded hi to be broughte vnto hi. And whan he was come neare, he ased him and sayde: What wilt thou, that I do vnto thee? he sayde: LORD E, that I may receaue my sight. And Iesus sayde vnto him: Receaue thy sight, thy faith hath sau'd thee. And immediately he sawe, and folowed him, & prayesid God. And all the people that sawe it, gaue God the praye.

The XIX. Chapter.

AND he entred in, and wente thero vnto Jericho: & beholde, there was a man named Zachaeus, which was a ruler of the publicans, and was riche, and desired to se Iesus what he shalbe, and he coude not for the people, for he was lowe of stature. And he raine beside, and clymmed vp in to a wyde figge tre, that he might se him: for he shalbe come þ waye. And whan Iesus came to the same place, he looked vp, and sawe him, and sayde vnto him: Zachae, come downe hastily, for to daye must I tuerne in to thy house. And he came downe hastily, and receaued him - with ioye. Whan they sawe that, they murmured all, and sayde, þ he was gone in, to a synner.

Act. 18. 2

But Zachaeus stode forth, and sayde vnto the LORD E: Beholde LORD E, the half of my goodes geue I to the poore: and yf I haue defrauded eny man, I restore him foure folde. Iesus sayde vnto him: This daye is healeth happened vnto this house, for so much as he also is Abrahams sonne. For the some of mā is come, to see and to saue that which was lost.

Matt. 11. 9

Now whye they herkened, he tolde a synnitude also, because he was nye vnto Jerusalem, and because they thought, that the Kingdome of God shalbe appere immediately. And he sayde: A certayn noble mā wte in to a farre countre, to receaue his Kingdome, and then to come agayne. This man called ten of his seruantes, and delyered them ten pounde, and sayde vnto them: Occupy, eyll I come agayne. But his certayns had him, and sent a message after him, and sayde: We wil not haue this man to raigne ouer vs.

AND it fortun'd whan he came agayne, after that he had receaued the Kingdome, he bad call for the seruantes, vnto whom he had geue his money, þ he might knowe, what euery one had don. Then came the first and sayde: Syr, thy pounde hath wone ten pounde. And he sayde vnto him: Well thou good seruant, for so much as thou hast bene faithfull in the least, thou shalt haue auocrite ouer ten cities. The seconde came also, and sayde: Syr, thy pounde hath wone ten fyue pounde. And to him he sayde: And thou shalt be ouer fyue cities. And yf thide came, and sayde: Lo syr, here is thy pounde, which I haue kepte in a napyn. I was afrayed of thee, for thou art an harde man, thou takest vp þ thou hast not layed downe, and respect that thou hast not sowne. he sayde vnto him: Of thine sowne mouth shalt thou geue I the thou call seruant. Answerst thou thou that I am an harde man, sayinge vnto that I layde not downe, and reapeing that I do not sowe? Wherefore thou hast thoue not delyered my money to the exchangement bank? And at my commyng might I haue requyred myne arne with swaige.

And he sayde vnto them that stode by: Take yf pounde from him, and geue it vnto him that hath ten pounde. And they sayde vnto him: Syr, he hath ten pounde already. But I saye vnto you: Whosoouer hath, vnto him shal be geue: but from him that hath not, shal be taken awaye euery tyn that he hath. As for those myne enemies, which wode not that I shalbe raigne ouer them, bringe them hither, and slaye them beside me. And whan he had thus sayde, he wete on somer be, and rote his iourney vp to Jerusalem.

And it fortun'd whan he came nye to Bethphage and Bethanias vnto mount Oliuete, he sent two of his disciples, and sayde Go in to the towne that lieth ouer agaynst you, and assone as ye are come in, ye shal see a foale tyed, wheron yett neater man sitt, lose it, and bringe it hither. And yf myn asse you wherfore ye lose it, saye thus vnto him. The LORD E hath neded thee.

And they that were sent, wete their waye, and founde euen as he had sayde. But whil they lomsed yf foale, the owners thereof sayde vnto the: Why lose ye the foale? They sayde: The LORD E hath neded thee. And they broughte it vnto Iesus, and cast their clothes vpo the foale, and set Iesus thereon. Now as he wente, they spied their garments in the waye.

And whan he sette downe fro mount Oliuete, yf whole multitude of his disciples began to praye God with loude voyce, ouer all the miracles that they had seen, and sayde: Blessed be he, that cometh a Kinge in the name of the LORD E. Praisen heauen, and praye in the heighe. And som of the pharisee amonge the people sayde vnto him: Master, rebulde thy disciples. And he answered and sayde vnto them: I tel you, yf these holde their peace, yet shal the kyngdome crie.

And whan he was come nere, he beheld he the cite, and wepte vpo it, and sayde: if thou knewest what were for thy peace, thou shouldst remember it euen in this present daye of thine. But now is it hid from thine eyes.
 In the tyme shal come vpon the, that thine enemies shal cast vp a baile aboute the, and aboute thy children with the, and besiege y, and kepe the in on every syde, and make the euen with the grounde, and shal not leaue in one stone vpon another, because thou hast not knowen thy tyme, wherein thou hast bene wisest.

And he wente into the temple, and began to reuere out them that bought and solde therein, and sayde vnto them: Jeio wyeten: My house is an house of prayer, but ye ha uen made it a denne of murderers. And he taughte daylie in the temple. But the hie prie stes and the scribes and the chiefe of y^e peo ple wente aboute to destroye him, and founde not what to do vnto him. For all the peo ple stude by him, and gaue him audience.

The XX. Chapter.

And it fortuned one of those dayes, whan he taughte the people in the temple, and preached the Gospell, the hie priestes and scribes came to him with the elders, and spake vnto him, and sayde: Tell vs, by what auctour doest thou these thinges?
 Or who gaue the this auctour? But he answered, & sayde vnto the: I wil aue you a worde also, tell me: The baptyeme of J^hs was it from heauen, or of men? But they thought in them selues, and sayde: A free s^{er}u, from heauen, then shal he saye: Why byd ye not the beleue him? But yf we saye, of men, then shal all the people stone vs, for they be perswaded, that J^hon is a prophet.
 And they answered, that they coulde not tell, whence it was. And J^hesu sayde vnto them: Teach ye tell I you, by what auctour I do these thinges.

And he beganne to tell the people his sym bol: A certayne man planted a vynyard and lett it out vnto husbandmen, and went himself into a straunge countre for a grea t season. And whan his tyme was come, he sent a seruaunt to the husbandmen, that they mighte geue him of the frute of the vynyard.
 But the husbandmen bet him, and sent him awaye emptye. And agayne he sent yet another seruaunt: but they bet him also, and increased him shamefully, & sent him awaye emptye. And besides this, he sent the thirde: but they moued him also, and thrust him out. Then sayde the lord of the vynyard:

What shal I do? I wil sende my deare son. peraduenture they wil stonde in awe of him, whan they se him.

But whan the husbandmen sawe the sonne, they thought in thei selues, and sayde: This is the heire, come, let vs kyll him, y^e the inheritance maye be oure. And they thrust him out of the vynyarde, and slew him.
 What shal now the lord of the vynyarde do vnto them? He shal come, and destroye those husbandmen, and lett out his vynyard vnto ocher. Whan they herde that, they sayde: God forbid.

But he beheld the, and sayde: What is this then that io wyeten: The same stone which the builders refused, is become the head corner stone. Who so ever fallt h vpon this stone, shal be broken in smiter: but vpo who so ever he falleth, he shall grinde him to powder. And the hie priestes and scribes wente aboute to laye handes vpon him the same honre, and they feared the people: for they perceaued, that he had spokt this sym bolde aga ynst them.

And they watched hi, & sent forth spyes, which shoulde sayne thei selues perfecte, that they mighte take him in his wordes, to deli uer him vnto the power and auctour of y^e debite. And they ased him, & sayde: Master, we knowe that thou sayest & teachest righte, and regardest thei ourwarde appareance of no man, but teachest the waye of God truly, so it lan fall, that we geue tribute vnto the Emperoure, or not? But he perceaued their craftynes, and sayde vnto them: Why t^{er}pe ye me? Shewe me the peny. Whose ymage and superscription hath it? They answered, and sayde: The Emperours. Then sayde he vnto them: Geue the vnto the Emperoure, that which is the Emperours: & vnto God, that which is Gods. And they coulde not re p^{ro}ue his worde before the people, and mar uelled at his answers, and held their peace.

Then came vnto him certayne of the Sa duces, which holde that there is no restitu tion: and ased him, and sayde: Master, Mo ses wrote vnto vs, yf any mans brother dye hauynge a wife, and dyeth withoute childen, then shal his brother take his wife, and ray se vp s^{er}de vnto his brother. Now were the se sent therat: the first toke a wife, and dyed childlesse: and the seconde toke the wife, and dyed withoute children also: and the thirde toke her s^{er}uise all the first, and left no chil dren behynde the, and dyed. At the last a ster ce: then all the women dyed also. Now in the resurreccion, whose wife shal she be of them

For sinnen had her to wife. And Jesus answered and saide vnto them: The child of this world marrye, & are maried, but they shall be wo: they to enioye that world and the resurrection from the dead, shall neither marrye nor be maried, for they can dye no more. For they are like vnto the angels, and are the children of God, in so much as they are children of the resurrection.

But that the deed ryse agayne, hath Moyses also signified besydes the bush, when he called the LORD E, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. But God is not a God of the dead but of the liuyng, for they lyue all vnto him. When answered carayme of the scribes, and sayde: Master, thou haist sayde well. And from that tyme forth they durst axe him no more questions.

But he sayde vnto them: How saye they that Christ is Dauides sonne? And Dauid himself sayeth in the booke of the Psalmes: The LORD E sayde vnto my LORD E: Sit thou on my right hande, tyll I make thine enemies thy soce foete. Dauid calleth him LORD E, how is he then his sonne?

Now why all the people gaue audience, he sayde vnto his disciples: Bewarre of the scribes, which wyl go in longe garmetes, and loue to be saluted upon the market, and desyre to syt byst in the synagoges, and at the table. They wearre widowes houses and that vnder a colour of longe prayenge: These shall receaue the greater damnacion.

The XXI. Chapter.

It is he lobed vp, and behalde of riche, how they put in their offerynges in to the Gods chest. He saue also a poore widowe, which put in two myses, and he sayde: Vnuly I say vnto you. This poore widowe hath put in more the they all. For these all haue of their excessse put in vnto the offeryng of God, but she of hir pouerte hath put in all hir lyuynge that she had.

And whā some spake of the temple, that it was garnished with goodly stones and Jewels, he saide: The time shall come, when in of all this that ye see, there shall not be left one stone vpon another, which shall not be broken downe. They axed him, and sayde: Master, whā shall these be? and what shall be the token, when these shall come to passe? He sayde: Take heede, that ye be not deceaued: For many shall come in my name, and saye, I am he, & the tyme is come hard by. Soloue them nec.

But when ye heare of warres and insurrections, be not ye afrayed, for such must come to passe, but the ende is not yet there. So soome. Then sayde he vnto them: One people shall ryse agaynst another, and one realme agaynst anoether, & shall be greace earthquake here and there, pestilence, and beryth, and fear full chinges, and greace totes shall there be frō heauē. But before all these, they shall laye handes vpon you, and persecute you, and deliuer you vp in to their synagoges and pasions, and bryng you before kynges & prynces for my names sake. But this shall happen vnto you for a wyenefite. Be at a payne therfore in youre herttes, that ye take no thoughte, how ye shall answer: for I wil geue you mouth & wysdome, & gaue you the which all youre aduersaries shall not be able to speake ner to resist. But ye shall be deliuered vponen of youre elders, brethren, & kynfolkes and frendes, and some of you shall they put vnto death, and ye shall be hated of every man for my names sake, and yet shall not one haue of youre heare perishe. Solde fast youre soules with patience.

But when ye shall see Jerusalem besyged with an host, then vnderstonde, that the desolation of it is nye. Then let them which be in Jewry, flye vnto the mountaynes: and let such as be in the myddist thereof departe out: and let such as be in the countrees, not come therein. For these are the dayes of vengeance, that every chinge which is wyrtten, maye be fulfilled. But wo vnto them that are with child, and to them that geue sucke in those dayes: for these shall be greaue trouble vpon earth, and wrath ouer this people, and they shall fall chooson the edge of the swerde, and be led captiue amonge all nations. And Jerusalem shall be troden downe of the heathen, vntyll the tyme of the end then be fulfilled.

And there shall be tokens in the Sonne and Moone, and starres, and vpon earth the people shall be in such perplexite, that they shall not wyl which waye to turne them selues. And the see and the waters shall roare, and men shall fyne awaye for feare, and in lootinge a fer the thinges which shall come vnto earth. For euery the very powers of heauen shall moue.

And then shall they see the sonne of man commynge in the cloude with power and greaue glory. But when these chinges begynne to come to passe, the lette vp, and steypp your heades, for youre redemption draweth nye.

And he tolde them a synllike: Behol-be the fygge tre, and all the trees, whā they app shewe forth their budbes, yest by them, and because, that Sommer is now at han-de. So likewise ye, whan ye se all these thin-ges come to passe, be sūre that the kyndome of God is nye. Verely I saye vnto you: this generacion shal not passe, yll all be fulfilled. heauen and earth shal passe, but my wordes shal not passe.

But take hede vnto youre selues, that ye be not ouerladē with excessē of eatyn-ge and rich dionennes, and with talkynge of thoughte for bynyng, and so this daye come vnto you vnwares. For as a snare shal come on all them that dwell vpon earth.
 Watch therfore cōtynually, and praye, that ye maye be worthy to scape all this that shal come, & to stōde before yf some of man.

And on the daye tyme he taughte in the temple, but in the nyght season he wente out and abode all nyght vpon mount Oliuete.
 And all the people gat them vp early vnto him in the temple, for to heare him.

The xxxij. Chapter.

The fast of swete bled (which is called Easter) was nye. And yf hys pief steas and Scrybes soughte how they myght put him to death, and were afrayed of the people. But Sathan was entred in to Judas, named Iscarioth (whiche was of y nombre of y twelve) and he retye his waye, and talked with the hys piefsteas and with y officers, how he wolde betraye him vnto them. And they were glad, and promysed to geue him monney. And he consented, & soughte oportunitie, yf he myght betraye hi without any rauoure.

Then came yf daye of swete bled, wherein the Easter lambe must be offered. And he saw Peter and Iohn, and sayde: Go youre waye, prepare vs the Easter lambe, that we maye eate. But the sayde vnto him: Wherein thou, that we prepare it? he saide vnto them: Beholde, whā ye come in to y cite, there shal meete you a man, bearyng a picture of water, folowē him in to the house y be entred in, and saye vnto the good man of the house: The master sendeth y worde: Where is y nesthouse, wherein I maye eate the Easter late with my disciples? And he shal shewe you a greates parlour pazed.
 They wente their waye, and founde as he had sayde vnto them, and made readye the Easter lambe.

And whā in the houre came, he sat him doun, and the twolue Apostles with him, and he sayde vnto them: I haue herely desired to eate this Easter late with you before I suffre. For I saye vnto you: that hūc forth I wil eate no more therof, yll it be fulfilled in the kynngdome of God. And he toke the cuppe, gaue thankes, and sayde: Take this and deuoyde it amonge you. For I saye vnto you: I wil not drynke of the frute of y wyne, vntyll the kynngdome of God come.

And he toke the bled, gaue thankes, and drake it, and gaue it them, and sayde: This is my body, which shalbe giuen for you.
 This do in the remembraunce of me. Likewise also the cuppe, after they had supped, and sayde: This cuppe is the new Testament in my bloude, which shalbe shed for you.

But lo, the hande of him that betrayeth me, is with me on the table. And the sonne of man trulye goeth forth, as it is appoynered. But who vnto that man, by whom he is betrayed. And they beganne to eate amonge them selues, which of them it shalbe, that shalbe do that.

There rose a strife also amonge the, which of them shalbe be take for the greatest. But he sayde vnto them: The kynges of y woulde haue donnyon ouer y people, and they that beare rule ouer the, are called gracious lordes. But ye shal not be so: But the greatest amonge you, shalbe as the yngest, and the chesest, as a seruante. For which is the greatest: he that syteth at the table, or he that serueth? Is not he that syteth at the table? But I am amonge you as a mynister.
 As for you, ye are they, that haue byddē to me in my temptacions. And I wil appoyne the kynngdome vnto you, euen as my father hath appoynted me, that ye maye eate and drynke at my table in my kynngdome, and ye vpon thrones, and iudge the twelue trybes of Israel.

But the LORDE sayde: Simon Simon, beholde, Sathan hath desirede after you, that he myght suffre you euen as hebeate: but I haue prayede for y, that thy faith faile not.
 And whā thou art conuerted, strengith thy brethren: But he sayde vnto him: LORDE, I am readye to go with thee in to prison, and in to death. Nevertheless he sayde: Peter, I saye vnto thee: The cock shal not crowe this daye, yll thou haue thys denyed, y thou knowest me.

And he sayde vnto them: Whā I sent you without wallet, without scryppe, and without shues, lacked ye any thinge: They sayde: No. Then sayde he vnto them: But now, he that hath a wallet, let him take it up, likewise also the scryppe. But he that hath nor, let him sell his coat, & bye a sroer de. For I saye vnto you: Ye must yet be fulfilled on me, that is wyrt: he was counted amonge the euill doers. For loke what is wyrt of mee, he hath an ende. But they sayde: LORD E, beholde, here are two sroer de. he sayde vnto the: It is ynough.

And he wente out (as he was wonte) vnto mount Oliuete. But his disciples folowed him vnto the same place. And whan he came thither, he sayde vnto the: Praye, that ye fall not in to trespacion. And he gat him frome them aboute a stonys cast, and knyled downe. prayed, & sayde: Father, if thou wilt, take awaye this cuppe fro me: Neuertheless, not my wyll, but thyme be fulfilled.

And there appeared vnto him an angell fro heauen, and comforted him. And it came so, that he was filled with death, and prayed the longer. And his sweate was like droppes of blood, runnyng downe to the grounde. And he rose up fro prayer, and came to his disciples, and founde them sleepinge for heuy nesse, and sayde vnto them: What, slee ye? rise up and praye, that ye fall not in to trespacion.

But whyle he yet spake, beholde, the multitude, and one of the twolue called Judas wente before them, and he came nye vnto Iesus, to kysse him. But Iesus sayde vnto him: Judas, betrayest thou the sonne of man with a kysse? Whan they that were aboute him, sawe what roolde folowe, they sayde vnto him: LORD E, shal we smyte with the swerde? And one of the stroke a seruante of I hye prestes, & smote of his eare. But Iesus answered, and sayde: Suffre the thys farre forth. And he touched his eare, & healed him.

But Iesus sayde vnto the prestes and rulers of the temple, and to the Elders that were come vnto him: Ye are come forth as it were to a murderer with swerdes, & with staues. I was byllie with you in the temple, and ye layed no handes vpon me. But this is youre home, and the power of darkness. Neuertheless they toke him, and led him, and broughte him in to the hye prestes house. As for Peter, he folowed hi a farre off.

Then kyndled they a fyre in the myddell of the palace, and sat them downe together. And Peter sat him downe amonge them. Then a damselfe sette him sittinge by the light, and behelde him well, and sayde vnto him: This same was also with him. But he denyed him, and sayde: Woman, I knowe him not. And a fier a hyle whyle, another sawe him, and sayde: Thou art one of them also. But Peter sayde: Man, I am not.

And aboute the space of an houre after, another affirmed, & sayde: Verly this was with him also, for he is a Galilean. But Peter sayde: Ma, I wote not what thou sayest. And immediatly whyle he yet spake, I cold crewe. And the LORD E turned him aboute and looked vpon Peter. And Peter remembred the wordes of I LORD E, how he sayde vnto him: Before the cocke crowe, thou shalt denye me thryse. And Peter wente out, and wepte bitterly.

The men that helde Iesus, mocked him, and stroke him, & blindfolded him, and smote him on the face, and ased to hym: Prophecie, who is it that smote the? And many other blasphemies sayde they vnto hi.

And whan it was daye, there gathered together the Elders of the people, the hye prestes and scrybes, and led him up before, their counsell, and sayde: Art thou Christ? Tell vs. But he sayde vnto them: If I call you, ye wyl not beleue: But if I asse you, ye wyl not answers me, necher wyl ye let me go. From this tyme forth shal the sonne of man sitte at the righte hande of the power of God. Then sayde they all: Art thou then I sonne of God? he sayde vnto them: Ne saye it, for I am. They sayde: What neede we anye farther witness? We our selues haue herde it of his owne mouth.

The XXXIII. Chapter.

And the whole multitude of the arte, and led him vnto Pilate, and began to accuse him, and sayde: We haue founde this sallowe peruerteringe the people, and sobydinge to greue tribute vnto the Emperoure, and sayeth, that he is Christ a kynge. But Pilate ased him, and sayde: Art thou the kynge of the Jewes? he answered him, and sayde: Thou sayest it, Pilate sayde vnto I hye prestes and to the people: I haue no cause in this man. But they were the more farrde, and sayde: he hath moved the people, in that he hath taughte here & there in all the londe of Jewey, and hath begonne at Galile vnto this place.

Whan Pilate herde mencion of Galile, he ased nether he were of Galile. And whan he perceaued that he was vnder the robes iurisdiction, he sent him to Herodes, which was also at Ierusalem in those dayes. Whan Herode sawe Iesus, he was exceddyng glad, for he had longe bene desyrous to see him: because he had herde much of him, & hoped to see a miracle of hi. And he ased many things. Nevertheless he answered him nothinge. The hye prestes and scribes stode, and accused him sore. But herode to his man of warre drisped him, and mocked him, put a whyte garment vpon him, and sent him agayne vnto Pilate. Vp vpon some daye more Pilate and herode made frendes together, for asfore they had bene at variance.

Pilate called the hye prestes, and the rulers, and the people together, and sayde vnto the: Ye haue broughte this man vnto me, as one that peruertereth the people, and behelde, I haue examyned him before you, & fynde in the mā none of the causes, wherof ye accuse him: For yet herode: for I sent you to him, and behelde, there is brought vpon hi nothinge, that is worthy of death. Let us therefore wil I chasten him, and let him go: for he must haue let one loose vnto them a fter the custome of the feast.

Then cried the whole multitude, and sayde: Awaye with him, and deliuer vnto vs Barabab, which for insurreccion made in the cite, and because of a murder, was cast in to prison. Then called Pilate vnto them agayne, & wolde haue let Iesus loose. But they cried, and sayde: Crucifye him, Crucifye him. He sayde he vnto them, the thirde tyme: What euell hath he done? I fynde no cause of death in hi, therfore wil I chasten him, and let him go. But they laye still vpon him with greate crye, and requyred he broughte be crucified. And the voyce of the and of the hye prestes petybled.

And Pilate gaue sentence, that it shoulde be as they requyred, and let loose vnto the, him, that for insurreccion and murder was cast in to prison, whom they desired, but gaue Iesus ouer vnto their will. And as they led him awaye, they toke one Simon of Cyrene which came from the side: and layed vpon him, to beare it after Iesus.

And there folowed him a greate multitude of people and of women, which bewailed and lamented him. But Iesus turned him aboute vnto the, and sayde: Ye boughte of Ierusalem, wepe not ouer me: but wepe ouer youre synes, and ouer youre chylde. For behelde, the tyme wil come, when it shal be sayde: Blessed are the barens, and the wombes that haue not borne, and the papies that haue not gesen sucke. Then shal they begynne to saye vnto the mountaynes: Fall vpon vs. And to the hylles: Cover vs. For if this be done to a greene tre, what shal be done then to the drye?

And two ocher (whiche were myddoers) were led ouer also, to be put to death with him. And whā they came to y place, which is called Caluery, they crucified him euen there, and the t wo myddoers with him, the one on the righte hande, the other on y left. But Iesus sayde: Father, forgive them, for they wote not what they do. And they parted his garmentes, and cast lottes therfore. And the people stode and behelde.

And the rulers mocked him with them, and sayde: he hath helped othe, let him helpe him self now, yf he be Chast y chosen of God. The souldyers also mocked him, wite vnto him, & broughte him vnyner, and sayde: If thou be the kynge of the Jewes, then helpe thy self. And aboute ouer him was this superscription wyrtzen with letters of Greke, Latin, and Hebrew: This is the kynge of the Jewes.

And one of the myddoers that hanged there, blasphemed him, and sayde: If thou be Chast, then helpe thy self and vs. Then answered the ocher, rebuked him, and sayde: And thou fearest not God also, which art yet in like banacion. And truly we are therein be righte, for we receaue accordinge to our dedes. As for this man, he hath done nothinge amysse. And he sayde vnto Iesus: LORD, remember me, when thou commest in to thy kyngdome. And Iesus sayde vnto him: Verely I saye vnto the: To daye shalt thou be with me in Paradyse. And it was aboute the sixte houre, and there was darkness ouer y whole londe vntill the nyght houre. And the Sonne was darkened, and the vayle of the temple rente in two, wch thow the myddes.

And Iesus cryed loude, & sayde: Father, in to thy handes I commende my spytte. And when he had so sayde, he gaue vp the gooff. But when the Capteyne sawe what had happened, he prayed God, and sayde: Verely this was a iust mā. And all the people that stode byr behelde, when they sawe what was done, since vpon their breistes, & turned backe agayne. But all his acquaintance, and the women that had folowed him out of Galile, stode a farte of, and beheld all these thinges.

And behelde, a mā named Joseph, a Senatour, which was a good iust mā, the same had not consented vnto their counsell, and bede, which was of Animatebia a cite of the Jewes, which same also wayted for the kyngdome of God: he wete vnto Pilate, and axed the body of Iesus. And the rote him downe, wrapped him in a linnen clothe, and layed him in a beuen sepulcre, wherein neuer man was layed. And it was the daye of preparinge, and the Sabbath dinc on.

14. 1 The women that were come with him out of Galile, followed him, and behelde the Sepulcre, & how his body was layed. But they returned, and made ready the spices & aromuntices. And upon the Sabbath they rested, accordinge to the lawe.

The XIII. Chapter.

15. 1 But one of the Sabbathes very early in the morninge, they came vnto the Sepulcre, and broughte yf spices which they had prepared, and certayn reuemen with the. And when theye they founde the stone rolled awaye from the sepulcre, and wente in, and founde not the body of yf 15. 2 LORDE Jesu. Then sayde they vnto the: 15. 3 What see ye? He is risen amōge the dede: he is not here. He is risen vp. Remember, how yf he tolde you whā he was yet in Galile, and sayde: The sonne of man must be deliuered in to the hādes of synners, and be crucified, and the thirde daye rise agayne.

And they remebred his wordes, and wente from the sepulcre, and tolde all this vnto the eluen, and to all the other. 15. 4 It was Mary Magdalene, and Johanna, and Mary James, and the other with them, that tolde this vnto the Apostles. And they woude scind vnto them, as though they had bene but fables, and they belened them not. But Peter arose, and ranne to the sepulcre, and stooped in, and sawe the linnen clothes layed by them selues, and departed. And he returned within himselfe as that which had happened.

15. 5 And beholde, two of them wente that same daye, to a towne (which was thre score furlonges from Ierusalem) whose name was called Emmaus. And they talked together of all these thinges yf had happened. And it chancede as they were thus talkyng and reasonyng together, 15. 6 Jesús himselfe diue nye, and wente with them. Then answered the one, whose name was Cleophas, and sayde vnto him: Art thou onely a stranger at Ierusalem, not knowyng what is come to passe there in these dayes? And he sayde vnto the: What? They sayde vnto him: That of 15. 7 Jesús of Nazareth, which was a prophete, mightie in dede and word, before God and all yf people, how our the prestes and rulers deliuered him to the cōdemnation of deathe, and crucified him. And besides all this, todaye is the thirde daye that this was done. 15. 8 And certayne women also of oure company which were early at the Sepulcre, and founde not his body, came and tolde, that they had sene a visō of angells, which sayde were was alwe. And certayne of them that were with us, wente vnto the sepulcre, and founde it empty as yf women sayde, but hi founde they not.

And he sayde vnto the: O ye fooles and slowe of hart to beleue all that the prophetes haue spoken: Oughte not 15. 9 Christ to haue suffred these thinges, and so enter in to his glory? And he beganne at Moyses and at all the prophetes, and expounded vnto them all the scriptures, that were spoken of him. And they diue nye vnto the towne, which they were vnto, and he made as though he wolde haue gone farther. And they compelled him, and sayde: Abide with vs, for it draweth towardes night, and the daye is farre passed. And he wente in to tary with the. And it came to passe when he sat at the table with the, he toke the bred, gaue thanks, brake it, and gaue it them. Then were their eyes opened, and they knewe him. And he vanished out of their sight. And they sayde, betwene the salues: Why not our heart burne with us, when he talked with vs by the waye, while he opened the scriptures vnto us? And they rose vp the same houre, turned agayne to Ierusalem, and founde yf cleue gathered together, and them that were with them, which sayde: The 15. 10 LORDE is risen of a crueth, and hath appeared vnto Symon. But they were abashed and afrayeb, supposinge that they had sene a spere. And he saide vnto the: Why are ye abashed? & it herfore rise them such thoughtes in yd hereto? Whether my hādes & my feete, it is euen I myselfe. Handle me, and se, for a spere hath no flesh and bones, as ye se me haue. And when he had thus spokt, he shewed the his hādes and his feete. But whye they yet belened not? 15. 12

S. Iohn.

The first Chapter.

In the begynnyng was the worde, and the worde was with God, and God was of worde. The same was in the begynnyng of God. All thinges were made by the same, and without the same was made nothinge that was made. In him was the life, and the life was the light of men: and the light shyneth in the dark-nesse, and the dark-nesse comprehended it not.

There was sent from God a man, whose name was Iohn. The same came for a wit-nesse, to beare wytnesse of the light, that they might beleue. He was not that light, but that he might beare wytnesse of the light. That was the true light, which lighteth all men, that come in to this world. He was in the world, and the worde was made by him, and yet they knewe him not.
He came in to his awne place, and his awne place receaued him not. But as many as receaued him, to them gave he power to be the children of God:
even such as beleue in his name. Which are not borne of blonde, ner of the wyll of man, but
of God.

And the worde became flesch, and dwelt amonge vs: and we sawe his glory, a glory as of the onely begotten sonne of the father, full of grace and trouth.

Iohn bare wytnesse of him, and cryed, and sayde, He was this, of whom I spake:
I sawe the glory, as of the onely begot-
ten sonne of the father, and the glory was full of grace and trouth.

of S. Iohn.

me by Iesus Christ. No man hath seen God at any tyme. The onely begotten sonne, which is in the bosome of the father, he hath declared the same vnto vs.

And this is the recorde of Iohn, when the Jewes sent priestes and Leuites fro Ierusalem, to aske him: Who art thou? And he confessed and denyed not. And he confessed, and sayde: I am not Christ. And they aske him: What then? Art thou Elias? he sayde: I am not. Art thou the prophet? And he answered: No. Then sayde they vnto him: What art thou then, for we maye geue answer vnto the that sent vs? What sayest thou of thyself? he sayde: I am the voyce of a crye in the wyldernes. Make straighe the waye of the LORD. As a prophet I say sayde.

And they that were sent, were of the pharisees. And they aske him, and sayde vnto him: Why baptisest thou then, if thou be not Christ, ner Elias, ner a prophet? Iohn answered them, and sayde: I baptise with water, but there is one come in amonge you, whom ye knowe not. It is he that cometh after me, which was before me: whose shoelatchet I am not worthy to vntouch. This was done at Bethabara beyonde Iordane, where Iohn byd baptise.

The nexte daye after, Iohn sawe Iesus comeing vnto him, and sayde: Beholde the labe of God, which taketh awaye the synne of the world. This is he, of whom I sayde vnto you: I seee me cometh a man, which was before me. For he was ouer me, and I knewe him not: but that he shal be declared in Israel, therefore am I come to baptise with water.

And Iohn bare recorde, and sayde: I sawe the spere descende from heauen like vnto a dove, and abode vpon him, and I knewe him not. But he that sent me to baptise with water, and sayde vnto me: Upon whom thou shalt see the spere descende and tarrye shal on him, the same is he, that baptiseth with the holy gost. And I sawe it, and be-re recorde, that this is the sonne of God.

The nexte daye after, Iohn stode amonge, and two of his disciples. And whi he sawe Iesus walkyng, he sayde: Beholde the labe of God.
And two of his disciples hege him spake, and followed Iesus. And Iohn turned him aboute, and sawe them followinge, and sayde vnto the: What see ye? They sayde vnto him: Rabbi, which is so sayde interpretation, Master.
Where art thou at lodginge? he sayde vnto them: Come and see it.
They came and sawe it, and abode with his the same daye. It was aboute the tenth pore.

One of the two, which herde Iohn speake, and folowed Iesus, was Andrew the brother of Symon Peter: the same founde first his brother Symon, and sayde vnto him: We haue founde Iesus (which is by interpretacion, y Anoynted) and broughte him to Iesus. When Iesus behelde him, he sayde: Thou art called the sonne of Ionas, * thou shalt be called Cephas, which is by interpretacion, a stone.

The next daye after, wolde Iesus go agayne to Galile, and founde Philippe, and sayde vnto him: Follow me. Philippe was of Bethsaida the cite of Andrew and Peter.
Philippe founde Tarthanael, and sayde vnto him: We haue founde him, of whos. Mose is in the lawe, and y prophetes haue wyte ma, euen Iesus the sonne of Ioseph of Nasareth. And Tarthanael sayde vnto him: What good can come out of Nazareth?
Philippe sayde vnto him: Come, and se.

Iesus saide Tarthanael comynge to him, and sayde of him: Beholde, a righte Israelite, in whom is no guyle. Tarthanael sayde vnto him: From whence knowest thou me? Jesus answered, and sayde vnto him: Before y Philippe called the, when thou wast vnder the figge tre, I saide the. Tarthanael answered, and sayde vnto hi: Rabbi, thou art y some of Gods, thou art y kynge of Israel. Iesus answered, & sayde vnto him: Because I sayde vnto the, that I saue the vnder the figge tre, thou beleuest: thou shalt se yet greater thinges the. And he sayde vnto him: Verely werdy I saye vnto you: If y this tyme forth shal ye se the heauen open, and the angels of God goynge vp & downe ouer the sonne of man.

The II. Chapter.

And upon the thirde daye there was a marriage at Cana in Galile, and the mother of Iesus was there. Iesus also and his disciples was called vnto y ma-riage. And when the wyne fayled, the mother of Iesus saide vnto him: They haue no wyne. Iesus sayde vnto her: Woman, what haue Ie do w the. My tyme houre is not yet come. His mother sayde vnto y mynisters: Whatsoeuer he sayeth vnto you, do it. There was ther eber sixe water pottes of stone, after y maner of the purifingge of y Jewes, eery one cōteynynge two or thre measures.

Iesus sayde vnto the: Fyll the water pottes with water. And they fylled the vp to y bryme. And he sayde vnto the: Drawe out now, & brynge vnto the Maister of the feast.

And they bare it. Whā the maister of y feast had called y wyne which had bene water, and knewe not whence it came (but the mynisters that drew y water, knewe it) the Master of the feast called the bynegrome, and sayde vnto him: Every man at the first geueth the good wyne: & when they are draw-ken, thē that which is worst. But thou hast kept backe the good wyne vntill now.

This is the first cōten that Iesus dyd at Cana in Galile, and shewed his glory, and his disciples belened on him. Afterward went he downe to Capernaum, he, his mother, his brether, and his disciples, and taried not longe there.

And the Jewes Easter was at hande.
And Iesus wote vp to Ierusalem, and foun-de fyring in the temple, those that solde oxen, shepe, and doves, and changinge of money.
And he made a scourge of small cordes, and drew them all out of the temple with the she-pere and oxen, and poured out the changinge money, and ouerthrew the tables, and sayde vnto them that solde the doves: Changethe things here, and make not my fathers house an house of marchaunte. His disciples remembred it, that is mytten: The zele of thine house hath euen eaten me.

Then answered the Jewes, and sayde vnto him: What token shewest thou vnto vs, that thou mayest do these thinges? Iesus answered & sayde vnto the: Destroye downe this temple, and in thre dayes wol I sic it up agayne. Then sayde the Jewes: Sixe and fourtye yere was this temple abuydinge, and thou set it up in thre dayes? But he spake of y temple of his body. Towrds he was risen agayne from the dead, his disciples remembred that he thus sayde, and they beleued the scripture, and the wordes which Iesus spake.

Whā he was at Ierusalem at Easter in y feast, many belened on his name, when they saw y tokens y he dyd. But Iesus comyng not himself vnto the, for he knewe the all, & neded not y any mans shilde testifye of man, for he knewe well what was in man.

The III. Chapter.

There was a man of the pharises, named Nicodemus a ruler amonge the Jewes. The same came vnto Iesus by night, & sayde vnto hi: Maister, we knowe y thou art come a teacher frō God: for no man can do these tokens y thou doest, excepte God be with him. Iesus answered, and sayde vnto him: Verely verely I saye vnto the

But he that beleueth not, is condemned already: because he beleueth not on the name of the onely sonne of God. But this is y^e condempnacion, that the light is come into the worlde, and men loued the darknesse more the y^e light: for their workes were euell. Whosoeuer doth well, hateth the light, and cometh not to the light, that his dedes shalde not be reposed. Afterward came Iesus & his disciples in to the lode of Ieremy, and had his bryngge there with them, and baptyed. Iohn baptyed also in Enon besyde Salcm: for there was much water there. And they came thither, and were baptyed: for Iohn was not yet put in prison.

Then arose there a question amonge the disciples of Iohn with the Iames aboute the purifingge, and they came vnto Iohn, and sayde vnto him: Master, he y^e was with the beynde Jordan, of whom thou hast wyrtesse, beholde, he baptyseth, and every man cometh vnto him. Iohn answered and sayde: A man can receaue nothyng, excepte it be geuen him from heauē. Ye your witness are my witness, how that I sayde, I am not Chast, am I sene before him. Iohn hath the byde, is the bydegreome: but the frende of the bydegreome standeth, and baptyseth vnto him, and cryeth greatly ouer the voyce of the bydegreome, this some tyme of myne is now fulfilled. He must increase, but I must decrease.

He that cometh from an hye, is aboue all, he that is of the earth, is earthly, and speaketh of the earth. He that cometh fro heauen, is aboue all, and testifieth what he hath sene & herde, and no man receaueth his wyrtesse. But he that receaueth it, hath sene to his scale, that God is true. For he who God hath sent, speaketh y^e wordes of God: for God geueth not the sperte vnto him by measure. The father loueth the sonne, and hath geuen him all thinges in to his hande. He that belueth on the sonne, hath euerlasting life: he that belueth not the sonne, shal not see the life, but y^e wrath of God shal be upon him.

The III. Chapter.

Now when Iesus had knowlege, y^e it was come to the eares of the pharisies, that Iesus made and baptyed no disciples the Iohn (howbeit Iesus himself baptyseth not, but his disciples) he left the londe of Ieremy, and departed agayne in to Galilee. But he must needs go throug Samaria. Then came he in to a cite of Samaria, called Sichar, nye vnto y^e peece of lode, y^e Jacob gaue vnto Joseph his sonne. And there was Jacobs well. Now when Iesus was wearye of his iourney, he sat he downe so vpo the well. And it was aboute the sixth houre. Then came there a woman of Samaria to drawe water. Iesus sayde vnto her: Geue me drynke. (For his disciples were gone their waye in to y^e cite, to buye breade.) Then the woman of Samaria sayde vnto him: how is it that thou askest drynke of me, I ge thou art a Iew, and I a woman of Samaria? For the Iewes meane not with the Samarians.

Iesus answered, and sayde vnto her: Thou knowest the gifte of God, and whoso that sayeth vnto the, geue me drynke, thou wilst see of him, and he wolde geue the, the water of life. The woman sayde vnto him: Sy, thou hast nothinge to drinke withall, and the well is depe, from whence hast thou then that water of life? Art thou greater then our father Jacob, which geue us this well? And he him self dranke thereof, and his children, and his cattell. Iesus answered, and sayde vnto her: Who so ever thirsteth of this water, shal thurst agayne: But whosoever shal drinke of the water that I shal geue him, shal neuer be thurst: but the water that I shal geue him, shal be in him a well of water, which springeth vp in to everlastinge life.

The woman sayde vnto him: Sy, geue me that same water, that I thurst not, wnder neede to come hither to drinke. Iesus sayde vnto her: Go, call thy husbande, and come hither. The woman answered, and sayde vnto him: I haue no husbande.

Iesus sayde vnto her: Thou hast sayde well, I haue no husbande: for thou hast had fyve husbande, and he whom thou hast now, is not thine husbande: there sayst thou right. The woman sayde vnto him: Sy, I see that thou art a prophet. Our fathers worshipped upon this mountayne, and ye saye, that at Jerusalem is the place, where men ought to worshippinge. Iesus sayde vnto her: Woman, beleue me, the tyme cometh, that ye shal neither upon this mountayne nor at Jerusalem worshippinge the father. Ye wote not what ye worshippinge, but we knowe what we worshippinge, for the tyme cometh, and is now already, that the true worshippers shal worshippinge the father in spirit and in the truth: for the father wil haue such so to worshippinge him. God is a spirit, and they that worshippinge him, must worshippinge in spirit and in the truth.

The woman sayde vnto him: I wote that Messias shal come, which is called Christ. When he cometh, he shal tell vs all thinges. Iesus sayde vnto her: I that speake vnto the, am he. And in the meane season came his disciples, and they marueyled that he talked with the woman. Yet sayde no man: What arest thou, or what talkest thou with her? Then the woman let hir pot from her, and wente in to the cite, and sayde vnto the people: Come, see a man, which hath tolde me all that euer I dyd, is not he Christ?

Then wente they out of the cite, and came vnto him: In the meane while his disciples payed him, and sayde: Master, eate. But he sayde vnto them: I haue eate to eate, what ye knowe not of. Then sayde the disciples amonge them selues: Hath eny man broughte him meate? Iesus sayde vnto the: My meate is this, that I do the will of him that sent me, and to finish his worke. Saye not ye youre selues: There are yet foure monethes, and then cometh the harvest: Behold, I saye vnto you: lift vp youre eyes, and loke vpon the selde, for it is whyle allready vnto the harvest.

And he that reapeth, receaueth reward, and gathereth frute to everlastinge life, that both he that soweth and he that reapeth, maye reioyse together. For hein is the plover the true: One soweth, another reapeth. I haue sent you to reap that, whereon ye bestowed no labour. Other haue laboured, and ye are come in to their laboure.

Many Samaritans of the same cite beleued on him, for the sayenge of the woman, which testified: she hath tolde me all that euer I dyd. Now when the Samaritans came to him, they besought him, that he wolde tary with them. And he abode there two dayes, and many mo beleued because of his worde, and sayde vnto the woman: We beleue now hence forth, not because of thy sayenge, we haue herde him our selues, and knowe, that this of a truth is Christ the Sauoure of the worlde.

After two dayes he departed thence, and wente in to Galile. For Iesus himself testified, that a prophet is nothinge seer by at home. Now whā he came in to Galile, the Galileans receaued him, which had sent all that he dyd at Jerusalem in the feast: for they also were come thither in the feast. And Iesus came agayne vnto Cana in Galile, where he turned the water vnto wyne.

And there was a certaine ruler, whose sonne laye sicke at Capernaum. This herde that Iesus came out of Ierusalem to Galile, and wente vnto him, and besought him, that he wolde come downe, and helpe his sonne, for he laye dred sicke. And Iesus sayde vnto him: Excepte ye se tokens and wonders, ye beleue not. The ruler sayde vnto him: Come downe Sy, or euer my childre dye. Iesus sayde vnto him: Wo thy waye, thy sonne lyeth. The man beleued the woode, that Iesus sayde vnto him, and wente his waye. And as he was goinge downe; his seruantes mett him, and tolde him, and sayde: Thy chyld lyueth. Then enquired he of them the houre, wherein he beganne to amende. And they sayde vnto him: Yesterdaye aboute the seuenth houre the fever left him. Then the father perceaued, that it was aboute the same houre, wherein Iesus sayde vnto him: Thy sonne lyueth. And he beleued with his whole house. This is now the seconde token that Iesus dyd, whan he came from Jewry in to Galile.

The V. Chapter.

¶ Afterwarde, there was a feaste of the Jewes, and Iesus wente vnto Jerusalem. There was at Jerusalem by the slaughter house a pole, which in hebreue is called Bethsaida, & hath fyue porches, wherein laye many sicke, blinde, lame, wretched, which wayed, whan the water shoulde moue. For the angell wente downe at his tyme in to the pole, and stremed the water. Who so euer now wente downe first, a fter that the water was stremed, yf same was made whole, whan soeuer disese he had. And there was a man, a which had yren sicke eight and thirtie yeres. Whan Iesus saue him lyfe, & knewe that he had yren so longe, he sayde vnto him: While thou hast bene sicke, thou art answerd him: Sye, I haue no man, whan the water is moued, to put me in to the pole. And whan I come, another sleppeth downe in before me.

Iesus sayde vnto him: Arise, take vp thy bed, and go thy waye. And immediatly the man was made whole, and toke vp his bed and wente his waye. But vpon the same daye it was the Sabbath. Then sayde the Jewes vnto him that was made whole: To daye is y Sabbath, it is not lausfull for the to carry the bed. He answered them: He that made me whole, sayde vnto me: Take vp thy bed, and go y waye. Then axed they him: What man is that, which sayde vnto thee: Take vp thy bed, and go y waye? But he that was healede, it ysll not who he was: for Iesus had gonze him self awaye, because there was moche people.

¶ Afterwarde founde Iesus him in the temple, and sayde vnto him: Beholde, thou art made whole, synne remoue, lest a worse thinge happen vnto thee. The man departed, and tolde the Jewes, that it was Iesus, which had made him whole. Therfore dyd y Jewes persecute Iesus, and soughte to slaye him, because he had done this vpo y Sabbath. But Iesus answered them: My father worketh hither to, and I worke also. Therfore soughte the Jewes the more to slaye: because he brake not onely y Sabbath, but sayde also, that God was his father, and made him self equall with God. The answered Iesus, and sayde vnto them: Verely verely I saye vnto you: The sonne can do nothinge of himself, but that he seeth the father do. For what soeuer he doeth, that doeth y sonne also. The father loueth the sonne, & honereth him all that he doeth, and will heare him yet greater woordes, so that ye shall marueyle. For as the father rayseth vp the dead, and maketh them lyue, eue so the sonne also maketh lyvinge whom he wyll. For the father iudgeth no man, but hath gyven all iudgment vnto the sonne, that they all might honoure the sonne, euen as the y honoure y father. Who so honoureth not the sonne, the same honoureth not the father, which hath sent him.

Verely verely I saye vnto you: Who so heareth my worde, and beleueth that I sent me, hath everlastinge life, and cometh not in to damnacion, but is passed thowm from death vnto life.

Verely verely I saye vnto you: The heere cometh, & is now allready, y hee hath heard y voyce of y sonne of God: and they that heare it, shall lyue. For, as the father hath lyfe in him self, so likewise hath he gyven vnto the sonne, to haue lyfe in him self: & hath geue hi power also to receiue iudgment because he is the sonne of man. Whosoever not ye at this, for y houre cometh in y which all that are in y graue, shall heare his voyce, and shall go forth, they that haue done good, vnto the resurrection of life: but they that haue done euill, vnto the resurrection of damnacion.

I can do nothinge of my self. As I heare, so I iudge: & my iudgment is iust. For I like not myne owne wyll, but the wyll of the father which hath sent me. If I heare wyntesse of my self, my wyntesse is not true. There is another that beareth wyntesse of me, and I am sure, that the wyntesse which he beareth of me, is true.

Ic sent vnto Iohn, and he bare wyntesse of the truth. As for me, I talke no record of man, but these thinges I saye, that ye might be saued. He was a burninge and shynynge light, but ye wolde haue receiued a litle wntle in his light. Neuertheles I haue a greater wyntesse then the wyntesse of Iohn. For hee worketh which the father hath gyven me to finish, the same recordes which I haue borne wyntesse of me, that the father hath

1. After this wente Iesus ouer the see vnto the cite Tiberias in Galilee. And mody people folowed him, because they sawe the tokens that he dyd vpon the which were dycaised. But Iesus wote vp in to a mountayne, and there he sat with his disciples. And Easter yf feaste of the Ierues was nye. Then Iesus lift vp his eyes, and sawe that there came mody people vnto him, and he sayde vnto Philippe: Whence shal me the bryd, for thesye maye eate? But this besayde to prouoc him, for he him self knewe, what he wolde do.

Philippe answered him: Two hundred penny worth of bryd is not ynough amonge the, for euery one maye take a litte. The sayde vnto hi one of his disciples, Andrew yf his brother of Symon Peter: There is a labe here, that hath fyue barlye loanes, and two fishes, but what is that amonge so many? Iesus sayde: Make the people syt downe. There was mody grass in the place. Then they sat the downe, aboure a fyne thousande men. Iesus wote the loanes, and gaue them to the disciples: the disciples (gaue) to them that were syt downe. And euen yf also of the fishes as much as they wolde.

1. Whan they were fylled, he sayde vnto his disciples: Gather vp the broken meate that remaineth, that nothinge be lost. The they gathered, and fylled twolue baskets with the broken meate, that remained of the fyn barlye loanes, vnto them which had eaten. Now whan the men sawe the tokens that Iesus dyd, they salde: This is no a trauel the Diophter, that shulde come into the woulde. Whan Iesus now perceaued that they wolde come, and take him vp, to make him kyng, he gat him awaye agayne in to a mountayne him self alone.

1. At euen wente his disciples downe to yf see, and entred in to the shippe, and came to the other syde of yf see vnto Capernaum. And it was darke already. And Iesus was not te wynde. Now whan they had rowed vps a fyue and twelue or thirte first longes, they sawe Iesus goynge vpon the see, and came nye to the shippe. And they were a frayed.

But he sayde vnto them: It is I, be not afrayed. Then wolde they haue receaued him in to yf shippe. And immediatly yf ship was at the londe whither they wente.

1. The nexte daye after, the people which stode on the other syde of the see, sawe that there was none other shippe there: sawe one, wherinto his disciples were entred: and that Iesus wote not in with his disciples in to the shippe, but that his disciples were gone awaye alone. Howbeit there came other ship-pes from Tiberias, nye vnto yf place where they had eate the bryd, a ffar from the ORDRE had geynt chynke. Now whan the people sawe that Iesus was not there, neither his disciples, they toke shippe also, and came to Capernaum, and soughte Iesus.

1. And whan they founde him on the other syde of the see, they sayde vnto him: Master, whan camest thou hither? Iesus answered the, and sayde: Verely verely I saye vnto you: Ye sike me not because ye sawe yf tokens, but because ye ate of the loanes, and were fylled, and aboure not for the meate which perissheth but that endureth vnto everlastinge life, which the some of man shal geue you: for him hath God the father sealed.

Iesus answered, and sayde vnto the: This is the worke of God, that ye beleue on him, him: What token doest thou the, that we maye see and beleue yf? What woerdest thou?

Oure fathers ate Manna in the wyldernesse,

This is þ wyll of the father, which hath sent me, that of all that he hath geueh me, I shulde lose nothinge, but shulde rayse it vp agaayne at the last daye. This is the wyll of him which hath sent me, that, who somer seyth the sonne and beleueth on him, haue euerlastinge life, and I shal rayse him vp at the last daye.

The murmured the Jewes theron, that he sayde: I am þ bled which is come downe from heaue, and they sayde: Is not this Jesus, Josephes sonne, whose father and mother we knowe? How sayeth he then, I am come downe from heaue? Iesus answered, and sayde vnto them: Murmur not amonge yourselues. No man can come vnto me, excepte the father which hath sent me, drawe him. And I shal rayse him vp at the last daye. It is wytyen in the prophetes: They shal all be taught of God. Who so euer now heareth it of the father, and lerneth it, cometh vnto me. Not that any man hath sene the father, save he which is of the father, the same hath sene the father.

¶ Verdy verdy I saye vnto you: he that beleueth on me, hath euerlastinge life. I am that bled of life. Your fathers are Maama in the wyldernes, and are deed. This is that bled which cometh from heaue, that who so eateth thereof, shulde not dye. I am that luyunge bled, which came downe fro heaue: Who so eateth of this bled, shal lyue foreuer. And the bled that I wil geue, is my fleshy which I wil geue for lyfe of the worlde.

Then sproue the Jewes amonge them sel-ues, and sayde: How ca this soloure geue vs his fleshy to eat? Iesus sayde vnto the: Vere-ly verdy I saye vnto you: Excepte ye eate of fleshy of þ sonne of man and drynke his blou-de, ye haue no life in you. Who so eateth my fleshy, and drynkeh my bloude, hath euerlastinge life: and I shal rayse him vp at the last daye. For my fleshy is þ very meate, and my bloude is þ very drynke. Who so eateth my fleshy, and drynkeh my bloude, abydeth in me, and I in him. As the luyunge father hath sent me, and I lyue for the fathers sake: Euen so he that eateth me, shal lyue for my sake. This is þ bled which is come fro heaue: Not as yome fathers are Maama, and are deed. he that eateth of this bled, shal lyue for euer.

These thinges sayde he in the synagoge, wha he taught at Capernaum. Many now of his disciples that herde this, sayde: This is an harde sayenge, who maye abyde the hearynge of it? But when Iesus perceaued in hi self, that his disciples murmured thereat he sayde vnto them: Doch this offende you?
What and yf ye shal se the sonne of man as-cende vp thither, wher he was afore? It is yf spuce that quydeneh, þ fleshy professeth nothinge. The wordes that I speake, are spere, and are life. But there are some amon-ge you, that beleue not. For Iesus knewe well from the begynnyng, which they were that belued not, and who shalde betraye him. And he sayde: Therefore haue I sayde vnto you: No man can come vnto me, excepte it be geuen him of my father.

From that tyme forth, many of his disciples wente backe, and waldeh nomore with him. Then sayde Iesus vnto the twelue: Wyll ye also go awaye? Then answered Silmon Peter. LORD, Whither shal we go?
Ther is nare the wordes of euerlastinge life, and we haue beleued & knowe, that thou art Christe the sonne of the luyunge God. Jesus answered them. Haue I not chosen you twelue, and one of you is a deuell? But he spake of Judas Symon Isariot: the same betrayed him after wards, and was one of the twelue.

The VII. Chapter.

¶ Ierthac wente Iesus aboute in the lile, for he wolde not go aboute in Jewry, because the Jewes sought to kyl him. But the Jewes feast of Tabernacles was at hand. Then sayde his dachun vnto him: Get the hère, and go in to Jewry, that thy disciples also maye se thy moites, that thou doest. he that seith to be openly knowne, doth nothings in secreete. If thou do such thinges, the shere þ self be sene the worlde: For his awne dachun also belued not in him.

Then sayde Iesus vnto them: My tyme is not yet come, but youre tyme is alwaye ready. The worlde can not hate you, but me it hateth: because I tes-tifie of it, that the wordes of it are, well.

So ye vp vnto this feast, I will not go vp yet vnto this feast, for my tyme is not yet fulfilled. When he sayde this vnto them, he doodeffyll in Galile. But as soone as his bre than were gone vp, then went he vp also vnto the feast, not openly, but as it were se crately. Then sought him J^h Ierues at y^e feast, and sayde: Where is he? And there was a great murmur of hym amonge the people.
 Some sayde: He is good. But ocher sayde: No, he doeth but deceaue the people. How beit no man spake frely of him, for feare of the Iemes.

5 But in the myddes of the feast wote Je sus vp in to the temple, and taught. And the Iemes maruyled and sayde: How can he y^e scripture, seing he hath not lerned it? Je sus answered them, and sayde: My doctry ne is not mine, but his that hath sent me.
 If any man wyl do his will, he shal knowe, whether this doctryne be of God, or whe ther I speake of my self. He that speaketh of himself, seeketh his owne payse: but he that seeketh the payse of him that sent him, the sa me is true, & there is no vnrighteousnes in him. Hath not Moses geuen you the lawe?

4 and none of you keepeth the lawe? Why go ye aboute to kyll me? The people answered, and sayde: Thou hast the deuill, who goest aboute to kyll the? Jesus answered and say de: One worke haue I done, and ye all mar uyle. Moses gaue you the circumcision, (not because it cometh of Moses, but of) 3 fathers: Yet do ye circumcise a man vpon the Sabbath. If a man receaue circumcision vpon the Sabbath, that the lawe of Mo ses shal not be broken, disdayne ye then at me, because I haue made a man eury whye whole on the Sabbath? Iudge not after the veyer appearance, but iudge righteous iudgment.

6 Then sayde some of them of Ierusalem:
 Is not this he, who they goe aboute to kyll?
 And boldely, he speaketh boldely, and they synnoching to him. Do our rulers knowe in deede, that he is very Christ? Howbeit 1 we knowe, whence this is. But wha^t Christ cometh, no man shal knowe whence he is.

Then cryed Iesus in the temple as he taught, and sayde: Kee ye knowe me, and knowe I am yet knowe, and of my self am I not come, but he y^e sent me, is true, whom ye knowe not. But I knowe him, for J^hans 1 of him, and he hath sent me. Then sought they to take him, but no man layed handes 1 vpon him, for his houre was not yet come.
 But many of the people beleued on him, and sayde: When Christ cometh, shall he do mo coken, then this doeth?

And it came to the Pharises eares, that y^e people murmured such thinges of him. D And the Pharises and hye priestes sent out seruauntes, to take him. Then sayde Iesus vnto them: I am yet a litle whyle with you and then go I vnto him that hath sent me.
 Reshal see me, & not fynde me: and where I am, thither can ye not come. Then say de the Ierues amonge them selues: Whye 1 ether wil he go, that we shal not fynde him?
 Wyl he go amonge the Grekes that are scat tered abrode, and teach the Grekes? What manner of sayenge is this, that he sayeth: ye shal see me, and not fynde me: and where I am, thither can not ye come?

But in the last daye which was of most solompne daye of the feast, Iesus stode vp, cryed, and sayde: Who so thirsteth, let him come vnto me, and drynke. He that beleneth on me, as the scripture sayeth, out of his bo dy shal flowe ryuers of the water of life.
 (But this spake he of the spize, which they that beleue on him, shal receaue. For the holy gost was not yet there, because Je sus was not yet glorified.) Many of the peo ple now rohan they herde this sayenge, say de: This is a very prophete. Ocher sayde: He is Christ. But some sayde: Shal Christ come out of Galile? Sayeth not the scrip ture, that Christ shal come of the cite of Da uid, and out of the towne of Bethleem, where David was? Thus was there discen sion amonge the people for his sake. Some of them wolde haue taken him, but no man layed handes on him.

The seruauntes came to the hye priestes and pharises, and they sayde vnto them: Why haue ye not brought him? The ser uauante answered: Neuer maⁿ spake as this man doeth. Then answered them the phari ses: Are ye also diseaured? Doeth eny of the rulers or pharises beleue on him? But the comon people which knowe not the lawe, are cursed. Nicodemus sayde vnto them, he that came to him by night, which was one of them: Doeth our lawe iudge eny man, before it heare him, and knowe what he hath done? They answered and sayde vnto him: Art thou a Galilean also?
 Searche and loke, our of Galile arsest no prophete. And so euery man wente ho me.

Jesus wente vnto mount Oliuete, and early in the morninge came he agayne in to the temple, and all the peoplc came vnto him. And he sat downe, and caught them. And þe scribes and pharisees brought vnto him a woman taken in adoultre, and set her there openly, and sayde vnto him: Master, this woman was taken in adoultre, as as the dede was adouynge. Moses in the lawe commanded vs to stone such. What sayest thou? This they sayde, to tempte him, that they might haue wherof to accuse him. But Iesus stouped downe, and wrote with his fygner vps the grounde. Now whye they cormyned at fygne him, he lift him self vp, and sayde vnto them: he that is amonge you without synne, let him cast the first stone at her. And he stouped downe agayne, and wrote vpon the grounde. But when they herde that, they wente ouer, one after another: the eldest first, and laste Iesus alone, and the woman standinge before him. Iesus lift himself vp, and when he sawe a woman but the woman, he sayde vnto her: Woman, where are thine accusers? hath noman condemned the? She sayde: LORD, no man. Iesus sayde: Neither do I condemn the, Go thy waye, and synne no more.

Then spake Iesus agayne vnto them, and sayde: I am the lighte of the woulde. he that followeth me, shal not walke in darknesse, but shal haue the lighte of life. Then sayde the pharisees vnto him: Thou bearest recorde of thy self, thy recorde is not true.

Iesus answered, and sayde vnto them: Though I beare recorde of my self, yet my recorde is true: for I knowe whence I came, and whither I go: but ye can not tell whence I come, and whither I go. Ye iudge after the flesh, I iudge no man: but yf I iudge, my iudgment is true: for I am not alone, but I and the father that hath sent me. His wyrtens also in youre lawe, that the testimony of two men is true. I am one that beare wyrtensse of my self: And the father that sent me, beareth wyrtens of me also. Then sayde they vnto him: Where is thy father? Iesus answered: He neither knowe me ner ye my father. If ye knowe me, ye shulde knowe my father also. These wordes spake Iesus vpon the Gods chiefe, as he caught in the temple. And noman toke him, for his houre was not yet come.

Then sayde Iesus agayne vnto them: I go in my waye, and ye shal see me, and shal bye in youre synnes: whither I go, thither can not ye come. Then sayde þe Iewes: Why he kyll him self then, that he sayeth whither I go, thither can not ye come? And he sayde vnto them: Ye are from beneath, I am from aboue: Ye are of this woulde, I am not of this woulde. Therfore haue I sayde vnto you, that ye shal dye in youre synnes. For yf ye beleue not that I am he, ye shal dye in youre synnes.

Then sayde they vnto him: Who art thou then? And Iesus sayde vnto the: I am the very same thinge that I saye vnto you. I haue many thinges to saye and to wyde of you. But he that sent me, is true: and so is he what I haue herde of him, that speaketh before the woulde, & orobeth they vnderstode not, that he spake of the father.

Then sayde Iesus vnto them: When ye haue life vp an hye the sonne of man, then shal ye knowe that I am he, and that I do nothinge of my self: but as my father hath caught me, euen so I speake. And he that sent me, is with me. The father leueth me not alone, for I do alwaie that pleaseth him. When he thus spake, many beleued on him. Then sayde Iesus vnto the Iewes, that beleued on him: If ye cormynne in my reorde, then are ye my very disciples, and ye shall knowe the trouth, and the trouth shal make you free.

Then answered they him: We are Abrahams seds, we were neuer bonde to any man, how sayest thou them: Ye shal be fre. Iesus answered them, and sayde: Verely yeady I saye vnto you: Who so euer doth synne, is the seruaunt of synne: As for the seruaunt, he abydeth not in the house for ever, but the sonne abydeth ever. If the sonne therefore make you fre, then are ye fre in dede: I knowe that ye are Abrahams seds, but ye sette co to kyll me. For my worde saith not amonge you. I speake that I haue sene of my father, & ye do that ye haue sene of youre father.

They answered, and sayde vnto him: Abrahams is oure father. Iesus sayde vnto them: If ye were Abrahams children, ye wolde do the dedes of Abraham. But now ye go aboute to kyll me, a man, that haue tolde you the trouth, which I haue receyved of God, this dyd not Abraham. And the dedes of youre father. Then sayde they vnto him: We are not borne of fainctioun, we haue one father, euen God. Iesus sayde vnto them: If God were youre father, then wolde ye loue me. For I am preached forth, and come from God. For I am not come of my self, but he hath sent me. Why knowe ye not the my speech? But because ye can not abyde the hearinge of my word.

Ye are of the father the deuill, and after the luste of youre father wil ye do. The same was a murderer from the begynnyng, and abode not in the trueth: for the trueth is not in him. When he speaketh a lye, then speaketh he of his aunte: for he is a liar, and a father of the same. But because I saie the trueth, ye beleeue me not.

Which of you can rebuke me of one synne? If I saie the trueth, why do ye not beleeue me? He that is of God, heareth Gods word. Therfore heare ye not, because ye are not of God.

Then answered the Jewes, and sayde vnto him: Saye we not right, ehat thou art a Samaritane, and hast the deuill? Iesus answered: I haue no deuill, but I honoure my father, and ye haue dishonoured me. I see not myne awne piety, butt here is one that seeketh it, and iudgeth. Verily verily I saie vnto you: If any man kepe my word, he shal neuer se death.

Then sayde the Jewes vnto him: Thou knowe me, that I thou hast the deuill. And his him is dead and the prophetes, and thou sayest: If any man kepe my word, he shal neuer taste of death. Art thou greater then our father Abraham: which is dead, and the prophetes are dead? Whose maketh thou thy self? Iesus answered: * If I praie my self, then is my praie nothinge. But it is my father that praieth me, whiche ye saie is your God, and ye knowe hi not: but I knowe him, and ys I shulde saie, I knowe him, I shulde be a liar, like vnto you. But I knowe him, and kepe his word.

Abraham youre father was glad, that he shulde se my daye. And he sawe it, and reioysed. Then saie the Jewes vnto him: Thou art not yett fiftie yeare olde, and hast thou sene Abraham? Iesus sayde vnto the: Verily verily I saie vnto you: Of euer Abraham was. * I am. Then toke they vp stonnes to cast at him. But Iesus hyd himself, and wente out of the temple.

The IX. Chapter.

¶ And Iesus passed by, and sawe a man that was borne blynde. And his disciples aske him, and sayde: Master, who hath synned: this, or his elders, that he was borne blynde? Iesus answered: Neither hath this synned, nor his elders, but that of God shulde be shewed on him. I must worke the workes of him that hath sent me, while it is daye. The night cometh, when no man can worke. As long as I am in the worlde, I am the lighte of the worlde.

When he had thus sayde, he spat on the grounde, and made claye of the spede, and rubbed the claye on the eyes of the blynde, and sayde vnto him: Go thy waye to the pole of Syloha (which is interpreted, sent) and wash the. Then wote he his waye and washed him, and came seynge. The neighbours and they that had sene him before, that he was a beggar, sayde: Is not this he that sat, and begged? Some sayde: Ye is he. Other sayde: he is like him. But he himself sayde: I am euen he. Then sayde they vnto him: How are thine eyes opened? he answered, and sayde: The man that is called Iesus, made claye, and anoynted myne eyes, and sayde: Go thy waye to the pole of Syloha, and wash the. I wente my waye, and washed me, and receaued my sighte. Then sayde they vnto him: Where is he? he sayde: I can not tell.

Then broughe they vnto the pharisies, him that a litle before was blynde. * He was the Sabbath, when Iesus made the claye, and opened his eyes. Then agayne the pharisies also aske him, how he had receaued his sighte. he sayde vnto the: he put claye vpon myne eyes, and I washed me, and now I see. Then sayde some of the pharisies: This man is not of God, seynge he kepeth not of Sabbath. * But the other sayde: How can a synfull man do such tokenis? And there was a stryfe amonge the. They sayde agayne vnto of blynde: What sayest thou of him, that he hath opened thine eyes? he sayde: he is a prophet.

The Jewes beleeued not he, that he was blynde, and had receaued his sighte, till they called the elders of him, that had receaued his sighte, and they aske them, and sayde: Is this youre sonne, whom ye saie, was borne blynde? how doeth he now se then? his elders answered them, and sayde: We knowe, that this is our sonne, and that he was borne blynde. But how he now seyth, we can not tell: or who hath opened his eyes, can we not tell. He is olde ymagined himself, as he himself sayde.

This sayde his elders, because they feared the people. ¶ Then sayde one of them, that was called the sonne of man, that he hath receaued his sighte, and he sayde: We knowe, that this is our sonne, and that he was borne blynde. But how he now seyth, we can not tell: or who hath opened his eyes, can we not tell. He is olde ymagined himself, as he himself sayde.

maticate. Therefore sayde his elders: He is elde ynough, are him.

Then called they the mā agayne & was blynde, and sayde vnto him: * Geue God & praye, we knowe that this man is a synner. He answered, & sayde: Whether he be a synner or no, I can not tell: one thinge am I sure off, that I was blynde, and now I see. The sayde they vnto him agayne: What byd he vnto the? how opened he thine eyes? he answered them: & sayde: I tolde you right now, herde ye it not? What, wil ye heare it agayne? Will ye also be his disciples? Then rayred they him, and sayde: Thou art his discipule. We are iure that at God spake w̄ Moses: As for this felowe, we knowe not whēce he is.

Then man answered, and sayde vnto the: This is a maruelous thinge, that ye wote not whence he is, and he hath opened mine eyes. For we knowe that God heareth not synners: but yf any mā be a feare of God, and doth his will, him heareth he. Sens & woulde begonne was it not herde, that any man opened the eyes of one that was borne blynde. Yf this man were not of God, he coulde haue done nothinge. They answered, and sayde vnto him: Thou art altogether borne in synne, and teachest thou vs? And they thrust him out.

Jesus herde, & they had thrust him out, and whā he had founde him, he sayde vnto him: Belouest thou on the some of God? he answered, and sayde: LORD E, who is it, & I might beleue on him? Jesus sayde vnto him: Thou hast sene him, and he is, that talketh with the. he sayde: LORD E, I beleue. And he worshipped him.

And Jesus sayde: I am come to iudgment in to this world, that they which se not, might se: and that they which se, might be made blynde. And some of the pharise & iudee wēch him, herde this, and sayde vnto him: Are we then blynde also? Jesus sayde vnto the: Yf ye were blynde, ye shalde haue no synne. But now that ye saye, we se, therefore your synne remaineth.

The X. Chapter.

And yf wercly I saye vnto you: he & wercly not in at the doie in to the shepefolde, but clymmech vp some other waye, the same is a thefe & a murthurer. But he that goeth in at the doie, is the shephe of the shepe: to him yf power openeth, and the shepe heare his voyce, and he calleth his owne shepe by name, and ledech them out. And whan he hearech his owne shepe, he calleth by name, and he is voyce,

As for a stranger, they folowe him not, but fyre from him: for they knowe not the voyce of strangers. This pionere spake Iohn vnto them, but they vnderstode not whā it was, that he sayde vnto them.

Then sayde Jesus vnto them agayne: Verely wercly I saye vnto you: I am the doie of the shepe. All they that are come before me, are thees and murthures. But yf shepe hartened not vnto them. I am the doie. Yf any man entre in by me, he shal be saued, and shal go in and out, and fynde pasture. And these cometh not, but for to steale, kill, and destroye. I am come, & they might haue life, and haue it more abundantly.

I am a good shepherde. A good shepherde geeth his life for the shepe. But an hyred seruante, which is not the shepherde, neither the shepe are his owne, seeth yf wolfe comyng, and leauech yf shepe, and flieth. And the wolfe catcheth yf catcheth yf shepe. But the hyred seruante flieth, because he is an hyred seruante, and careth not for the shepe. I am a good shepherde, and knowe myne, and am knowne of myne. And as my father knoweth me, and I knowe yf father. And I geue my life for my shepe. And I haue yet other shepe, which are not of this folde, and those same must I brynge also, and they shal heare my voyce, and then shal be one flocke and one shepherde.

Therefore doeth my father loue me, because I leaue my life, that I maye take it agayne. Tomā catcheth it fro me, but I leaue it of myself. I haue power to leaue it, and haue power to take it agayne. This commanment haue I receaued of my father. When was there discension amonge the Jewes for thefe sayenge. Many of the sayde: he hath the deuell, and is madd, why heare ye him? Other sayde: These are not wordes of one that is possibled. Can the deuell also open eyes of the blynde?

It was the dedication of the temple at Ierusalem, & was wynter, and Jesus walked in Salomōs porche. The came yf Iames rode de at ouer hi, & saide vnto hi: how longe dost thou make vs dance? Yf thou be Christ, tell vs plainly. Jesus answered the: I tolde you, & ye beleue not. The woites yf I do in myfithere name, they beare wytnesse of me. And ye beleue not, because ye are not of my shepe as I sayde vnto you. My shepe heare my voyce, & I knowe the, & they folowe me. And I geue the everlastinge life, & they shal neuer perishe, and noumā shal plucke the out of my hande. My father which gaue the me, is greater the all: & no man is able to plucke then out of my fathers hande. And the father are one. Then the Iewes toke vp stones agayne, to stone him. Iesus answered them many good wordes haue I shewed you from my father, for which of the stone ye me?

The Iewes answered hi, and sayde: For the good worke sake we stone the not, but for the blasphemye: and because thou brynge a man, makest thyselfe God. Iesus answered the: Is it not written in your lawe: I haue sayde, Ye are Goddes. If he call them Goddes, vnto whom the worde of God came, the scripture can not be broken: saye ye vnto hi, whos father hath sanctified & sent in to the world: thou blasphemest God, because I sayde: I am the sonne of God. If I do not the wordes of my father, beleue me not: but if I do the, the which ye beleue not me, ye beleue the wordes, that ye maye knowe & beleue that the father is in me, & I in the father.

They wente aboute agayne to take him, but he escaped out of their handes, and wente awaye agayne beyonde Iordane, in to the place where Ihs had baptyzed before, & there he abode. And many came to hi, and sayde: Ihs byd no toke, but all that Iohn spake of this man, is true. And many beleued on him there.

The XI. Chapter.

There laye one sick, named Lazarus of Bethania, in the towne of Mary & her sister Martha. It was Mary which anoynted the LORD with oymment, & dried his feet with hir heere, whose brother Lazarus laye sick. The sister sent her to vnto hi, & sayde: LORD, behold, he whos thou leuest is sick. Whan Iesus heide that, he sayde: This sickness is not vnto death, but for the paye of God, that the sonne of God maye be payed there for. Iesus loved Martha his sister, & Lazarus. Now whan he herde that he was sick, he abode two dayes in the place where he was.

After worde sayde he vnto his disciples: Let us go agayne to Ieremy. His disciples sayde vnto him: Master, lately wolde the Iewes haue stoned the, & wilt thou go thither agayne? Iesus answered: Are there not twelue houres in the daye? If I walke in the daye, I stumble not, for the seerth & lighte of this worlde. But he that walke in the night, stumbleth: for there is no lighte in him.

This he spake, & after worde sayde he vnto the Lazarus & friends: slepe, but I go to wake him out of slepe. The sayde his disciples: LORD, if he slepe, he shal do well though he dwelle. Iesus spake of his death: but they thought that he had spok of his bodie ly slepe. The sayde Iesus vnto the planely: Lazarus is dead, & I am glad for yd sake, that I was not there, that ye maye beleue. Ne wertheles let us go vnto hi. The sayde Thomas (which is called Didymus) vnto the disciples: Let us go also, that we maye dye with hi.

The came Iesus, & founde that he had lye in the grave foure dayes already. Bethania was nye vnto Ierusalem, aboute fiftene furthgen. And many of the Iewes were come to Martha & Mary, to comforte the ouer their brother. Now whan Martha herde that Iesus came, she wente to meete him. But Mary satte still at home.

The sayde Martha vnto Iesus: LORD, if thou haddest bene here, my brother had not bene dead. But neuertheles I knowe also, what soeuer thou wilst do, God wyl geue it the. Iesus sayde vnto her: Thy brother shal rise agayne. Martha sayde vnto hi: I knowe, that he shal rise agayne in the resurrection at the last daye. Iesus saide vnto her: I am the resurrection & the life: he that belieueth on me, shal liue, though he were dead already: & whosener liueth and beleueth on me, shal neuer dye. Belouest thou this? She saide vnto him: Yea LORD, I beleue, that thou art Christ the sonne of God, which shulde come in to the worlde. And whan she had sayde this, she wente hir waye, & called Mary her sister secretly, & saide: The master is come, & calleth for the. She whan she herde that, rose vp quickly, and came vnto him: for Iesus was not yet come in to the towne, but was yet in the place, where Martha met him. The Iewes that were with her in the house and comforted her, when they sawe Mary, that she rose vp hastily, & wente out, they followed her, & saide: She goeth to the grave, to wepe there.

Now whan Mary came where Iesus was, she saue him, she fell downe at his feet, & sayde vnto hi: LORD, if thou haddest bene here, my brother had not bene dead. Whan Iesus saue her wepe, & the Iewes weeping also, that came with her, he groned in the spere, & was sorry in himselfe, & sayde: Where haue ye layed him? They sayde: LORD, we come, & se. And Iesus wepte. Then sayde the Iewes: We holde how he loued him. But some of the sayde: Coude not he, which opened the eyes of the blind, haue made also, that this man shoulde not haue dyed? But Iesus groned agayne in himselfe, and came to the grave. It was a caue, and a stone layed on it. Iesus saide: Take awaye the stone. Martha the sister of him was dead, saide she: LORD, if he had Jesus sayde vnto her: Sayde I not vnto the, that yf thou wyldest beleue, thou shaldest see the glo: of God?

E Then toke they awaye the stone, where the deed laye. Jesus lift up his eyes, and sayde: Father, I thanke yf, that thou hast herde me. Howbeit I knowe, that thou hearest me allwaye: but because of yf people that stonde by, I sayde it, that they maye beleue, that thou hast sent me.

When he had sayde this, he cryed loude: Lazarus come forth. And yf deed came forth bounde hande & foote wth grave clothes, & his face bounde wth a naphthyn. Jesus sayde vnto thes Lazarus, let him go. Many now of yf Jewes which were come vnto Mary, and sawe what Jesus dyd, beleued on him. But some of thes wente their waye vnto the phariseis, and tolde the what Jesus had done.

Then the hye prestes, and the phariseis gathered a counsell, and sayde: . What do we? This man does many tokens. If wellet him go thus, all me wyl beleue in him: thesshal the Romaynes come, and take awaye oure londe and people. But one of them, named Caiphas, which was hye prest that same yere, sayde vnto them: Ye knowe nothinge nether conside ye any thinge at all. . It is better for us that one ma dye for the people, then that all the people shulde perishe.

This spake he not of himself, but for so moch as he was hye prest of the same yere, he prophesied. For Jesus was for to dye for the people, and not for the people onely, but that he shulde gather together the childuen of God, which were scatered abroad: from that daye forth they toke coucell, how they mighte put him to death. Jesus walked no more openly amonge the Jewes, but wente from thence in to a countre by the wyldernesse, to a cite called Ephraim, & there had he his beyng wth: his disciples.

The Jewes after was nye at hande. And ther wente up many to Jerusalem out of that countre: fore yf Easter, to purifie them selues. Then stode they up, and axed after Jesus, and make amonge them selues in the temple: What thinke ye, that he can nich not so yf frest? The hye prestes & phariseis had geuen a commaundement, that yf any man knewe to where he were, he shulde h^{ow}: it, that they mighte take him.

The XII. Chapter.

Six dayes before Easter came Jesus vnto Bethany, where Lazarus was, whi I was deed, whom Jesus raised from the deed. There they made him a supper, and Martha stred. But Lazarus was one of them, that sat at the table wth him. . Then toke Mary a poumte of oynment of pure and costly Nardos, and annoynted Jesus feet, & dryed his feet wth hir heer. The house was full of the sauntes of the oynment. . Then Iohn of his disciples, Judas Iscarioth Symons sone, which afterwarde betrayed him: Why was not this oynment solde for the hundred pene, and geuen to the poore? This sayde he not that he cared for the poore, but because he was a thefe, and . had the bagge, and bare that which was geue. Then sayde Jesus: Let her alone, this hath she kepte agaynst the daye of my buryenge. For the poore haue ye allwaye wth you, but me haue ye not allwaye.

Then moch people of the Jewes had knowledge, that he was there, and they came not for Jesus sake onely, but also yf they mighte se Lazarus, whom he had rayed from the deed. But yf hye prestes were aduysed to put Lazarus to death also: because yf for his sake many of the Jewes wete awaye and beleued on Jesus.

Opon the nexte daye moch people which were come vnto the feast, whan they heare that Jesus came towarde Jerusalem, they toke b^{ra}unches of palme trees, and wente out to meete him, and cryed: Hosanna. . Blessyd be he, that in the name of the LORD cometh kynge of Israel. Jesus gat a yonge Assis, and rode thereon, as it is wyrted: . Sitte not thou daughter of Zion, beholde, thy kynge cometh rydinge vpon an Assis foak. . Whereby his disciples outwardlye did not these thinges at the first, but whan Jesus was glorified, then remembred they that sod thinges were wyrted of him, and that they had done sod thinges vnto him.

The people that was wth him whan he called Lazarus out of yf grave and rayed him from the deed, commended the act. Therfore the people met him, because they herde, that he had done sod a miracle. But the phariseis sayde amonge them selues: We see, that me p^{er}uayle no thinge, he behold, all yf woulde runneth a ster him.

There were certayne Grekes, amonge thes that were come up to Jerusalem to worship at the feast: the same came vnto Philippe, which was of Bethsaida out of Galile, & prayed him, and sayde: Syr, we wolde see the face of Jesus. Philippe came, & tolde Andrew. And agayne, Philippe and Andrew tolde Jesus. Jesus answered thes, and sayde: Th be glorified.

2 Werily I saye vnto you: Excepte the wheat come fall in to the grounde, and be, it byeth alone: But yf it dye, it beyn-geth forth much frute. He that loueth his life shall lose it: and he that hateth his life in this worlde, shall kepe it vnto life euerslastinge. He that wyl serue me, let him folowe me.
And where I am, there shall my seruante be also: and he that seruet me, him shall my father honoure.

3 Now is my soule heuy, and what shall I saye: Father, helpe me out of this hoare.
But therfore am I come in to this hoare.
Father, glorify thy name.

4 When came there a voyce from heauen:
I haue glorified it, and wyl glorifye it agayn.
Then sayde the people that stode by and herde: It thondereth. Other sayde: As an gell spake vnto him. Iesus answered, and sayde: This voyce came not because of me, but for youre sakes.

5 Now geeth the iudgment ouer the worlde.
I knowe that the prynce of this worlde be-cometh our. And Iohnan I am life vpon the earth, wyl diuine all vnto me. But this he sayde, to signifye, what death he shalbe de. Then answered him the people: We haue herde in the lawe, that Christ endureth soure: and how sayest thou then, that the sonne of man must be lifte vp: Who is this sonne of man?

6 Then sayde Iesus vnto them: The light is yet a litle whyle with you, walke whyle ye haue the light, that the darknesse fall not vpon you. He that walketh in the darknesse, woteth not whither he goeth. Beleue ye in the light, whyle ye haue it, that ye maye be the children of light.

7 These thinges spake Iesus, and departed away, and hyd himself from them. And though he had done such tokens before the, yet beleued they not on him, that the sayenge of Esay the prophet might be fulfilled, which he saith: ORDE, who beleueth oure preachinge: Or to whom is the arme of the ORDE opened: Therfore coulde they not belue, for Esay sayde agayne: He hath blynded their eyes, and hardned their heert, that they shulde not see with the eyes, ner under-stande with the heert. It shulde be conuerted, and he shulde heale them. This sayde Es-ay, when he sawe his gloiy, and spake of him.

8 Netherles many of these rulers belued on him, but because of the phari-ses they wolde not be acknowne of it, lest they shulde be excommunicate. For they loued more the prayse with men, then with God.

9 Jesus cryed and sayde: He that beleueth on me, beleueth not on me, but on him that sent me. And he that seeth me, seeth him that sent me. I am come a light in to the worlde, that whosoever beleueth on me, shulde not lyde in darknesse. And he that hateth my wordes and beleueth not, I iudge him nor, for I am not come to iudge the worlde, but to saue the worlde. He that refuseth me, and receaueth not my wordes, hath one already that iudgeth him. The worde that I haue spoken, that shall iudge him at the last daye, for I haue not spoken of myself: but the father that sent me, hath geuen me a commantement, what I shulde do and saye. And I knowe that his commanment is life euerslastinge. Therfore loke what I speake, that speake I can so, as the father hath sayde vnto me.

The XIII. Chapter.

BE fore the fest of iehan whan Jesus knewe that his tyme was come, that he shulde departe out of this worlde vnto y father, as he loded his which were in the worlde, euensoiued he them vnto the ende. And after supper, whan the bell had already put into y hert of Judas Iscariot Symons sonne, to betraye him, Iesus knowinge that the father had geuen all thinges in to his handes, & that he was come from God, and wente vnto God, he rose from supper, and layed asyde his upper garmentes, and toke a towell, and gyde it aboute him. Afterwarde poured he water in to a basin, and beganne to washe the disciples feet, and dryed them with the towell. It was gyved w ithall.

2 When came he vnto Symon Peter, and yf same sayde vnto him: ORDE, shalke thou washe my fete: Iesus answered and sayde vnto him: What I do, thou knowest not now, but thou shalt knowe it hereafter. The saye Peter vnto him: Thou shalt neuer wash my fete. Iesus answered him: If I wash yf not, thou shalt haue no parte with me. Symon Peter sayde vnto him: ORDE, not the fete onely, but the handes also and the heade.

3 Jesus sayde vnto him: He that is washe, nedeth not, save to washe yf fete, but is clea-ne cuery wyse. And ye are cleane, but not all. For he knewe this betraye, therfore sayde he: ye are not all cleane.

Now when he had washen their feet, and taken his clothes, he sat him downe agayne, and sayde vnto the: Woce ye what I haue done vnto you? He call me master and LORDE, and ye saye righe therein, for so I am. If I then youre LORDE and master haue washen youre feet, ye oughte also to wash one anothers feet. I haue gene you an ensample, that ye shulde do as I haue done vnto you. Verely verely I saye vnto you: the seruante is not greater then his lord: neither is the Apostell greater then he that sent him. If ye knowe these thinges, blessed are ye if ye do them. I speake not of you all, I knowe whom I haue chosen, but that the serpent might be fulfilled: he that catcheth my heed, hath lift up his heele against me. I tell it to you now, before it come, that when it is come to passe, ye maye beleue, that I am he.

¶ Verely verely I saye vnto you: he that receaueth me, receaueth I sende, receaueth me, and he that receaueth me, receaueth him that sent me. When Iesus had thus sayde, he was heuy in spire, and testified, and sayde: Verely verely I saye vnto you: One s-monge you shal betraye me. Then the disciples lokt one vpon another, and were in doute, of in whom he spake. But there was one amonge his disciples, that leamed at the table on Iesus bosome, whos Iesus leucht to him: and Symon Peter, that he shulde are, who it was, of whom he spake. For the same leucht vnto Iesus briefe, and sayde vnto him: LORDE, who is it? Iesus answered: It is he, vnto whom I byppe the sopppe and gaue it. And he byppe in the sopppe, and gaue it vnto Iudas Icarioth Symons some. And after that sopppe the duell entred in to him.

¶ Then sayde Iesus vnto him: That thou dost, do quydly. But if some wyll no man at the table, for what intent he sayde it vnto him. Some thought: for so much as Iudas had the bagge that Iesus had sayde vnto him: By that it necessary for us agaynst the sea: Or that he shulde gene some thinge vnto the poor. When he had receaued the sopppe, he went out immediately, and it was night.

¶ When he was gone forth, Iesus sayde: It cometh some of ma glorified, and God is glorified in him. If God be glorified in him, the shal god glouise him also in his self, and straight waye shal he glouise him. Deare child, I am yet a litle thylye with you. He shal sitte me, and (as I sayde vnto of Iesus) as he that I go, whether can ye not come. And now I saye vnto you, A new comanment haue I gene you, that ye loue together as I haue loued you, if euen so ye loue one another. By this shal euery man knowe that ye are my disciples, if ye haue loue one to another. Symon Peter said: vnto him: LORDE, whither goest thou? Iesus answered him: Whither I go, thou canst not folowe me now, but thou shalt folow me hereafter. Peter sayde vnto him: LORDE, why sayest thou I shall folowe thee? I will gene my life for thy sake. Iesus answered him: Wilt thou gene thy life for my sake? Verely verely I saye vnto thee. The ceof shal not crowe, if thou haue denyed me thys.

The XIII. Chapter.

¶ Now he sayde vnto his disciples: Let I not youre here be a frayde. If ye beleue on God, the beleue also on me. In my fathers house are many dwellinges. If it were not so, I wolde haue tolde you: I go to prepare the place for you. And though I go to prepare the place for you, yet not I come agayne, and receauo you vnto my self, if ye maye be where I am. And whither I go, ye knowe, and the waye knowe ye also.

¶ Thomas sayde vnto him: LORDE, we knowe not whither thou goest, and how can we knowe the waye? Iesus sayde vnto him: I am the waye, and the trouth, and the life. Thomas cometh to the father but by me. If ye knowe me, ye knowe my father also. And so hece forth ye knowe hi, I haue sent him. Philippe sayde vnto him: LORDE, showe vs the father, and it sufficeth vs. Iesus sayde vnto him: Thos longe am I wish you, and hast thou not knowne me? Philippe, he that sayeth me, seyth the father. And how sayest thou then: Showe vs the father? Belueth thou not that I am in the father, and that the father is in me? The woordes that I speake vnto you, those speake not of myselfe, but the father that dwelleth in me, he doth the woordes. Belue me, that I am in the father, and that the father is in me: Or if he leue me at the least for the woordes sake.

¶ Verely verely I saye vnto you: he that belueth on me, shal do the woordes that I do, and shal do greater then these: for I go to the father, and what soeuer ye are of father in my name, that ye will do, that the father maye be prayid in the sonne. If ye are any thinge in my name, it will do it.

¶ If ye loue me, kepe my comanmentes. And I will praye the father, and he shal gene you another comfoter, that he maye abyde with you for eueren of the spire of trouth.

whom y^e wolde can not receaue, for se I sayth hat not, neither doth ic knowe him: but ye knowe him, for he abydeth wth you, & shalbe wth you. I wil not leaue you or forsake, I come vnto you. It is yet a litle whyle, the shal the wolde se me nomore, & but ye shal se me: in I Iyue, and ye shal lyue also. In y^e daye shal ye knowe, that I am in the father, and the father in me. He that hath my com-mandementes, and kepeth them, the same he that loneth me: and he that loneth me, shal be loned of my father: & I wil loue him, and wil shewe myne awne self vnto him.
 Iohas sayde vnto him: (not that I fearioch) LORDIE, What is the cause the, that thou wilt shewe thy self vnto vs, and not vnto the wolde?

Iohas answered, and sayde vnto him: He that loneth me, wil kepe my woide, and my father wil loue him: and my wil come vnto him, and will make our dwellinge with him. But he that loneth me not, kepeth not my saynges. And the woorde that ye heare, is not myne, but the fathers which hath sent me.

Who haue I spoken vnto you, whyle I was with you. But that comfoter euen y^e holy goost, whos my father shal sende in my name, he shal teache you all thinges, & bringe alle your remembraunce, what soeuer I haue tolde you.

I praye I leaue vnto you my peace. I gene you: I geue not vnto you, as the wolde geue. Let not y^e hart be troubled, neither let ic be afrayed. We haue herde, that I say-be vnto you: I go, & come agayne vnto you.
 If ye loued me, ye wolde reioyse, because I sayde, I go to the father: for y^e father is greater the I. And now haue I tolde you, before ic come, that when ic is come to passe, ye maye beleue: here after wil not I talke much with you. For the prynce of this worlde knoweth, and hath nothinge in me. But that the wolde maye knowe that I loue y^e father. And as the father hath commaunded me, so do I. Arise, let vs go hence.

The XV. Chapter.

I Am a true v^eryne, and my father is an husbunde man. Every band that bringeth not forth fruce in me, shal be cut of: and every one that bringeth forth fruce, shal be pouрге, & ic maye bringe forth more fruce. Now are ye cleare, because of the woide, that I haue spokt vnto you. Y^e dyde ye in me, and I in you. Like as y^e husband can not bringe forth fruce of ic self, except ic byde in the vyne, & then so necher ye also, except ye abyde in me.

I am the vyne, ye are the banches, he that abydeth in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruce: for without me can ye do nothinge. He that abydeth not in me, is cast out as a wyne bannocke, and ic rotyeth, and men gather ic vp, and cast it in to the fyre, and ic burneth. If ye abyde in me, and my woide abyde in you, ye shal are what ye wil, & ic shal be done vnto you.
 Herin is my father pleased, that ye bringe forth much fruce, and become my disciples.
 Like as my father hath loued me, and so ha-I I loued you. Cōfyrme ye i my loue. If ye kepe my commaundementes, ye shal cōfyrme in my loue: like as I haue kepte my fathers commaundementes, and cōfyrme in his loue.

These thinges haue I spoken vnto you, that my loye mighte be perfect. This is my commaundement, that ye loue one another, as I haue loued you. To man hath greater loue, then to set his life for his frende. Are my frendes, yf ye do that I commaunt y^e you.
 Henceforth call I you not seruantes, for a seruaunt knoweth not what his lord doeth. But I haue sayde that ye are fren-des: for all that I haue herde of my father, haue I shewed vnto you. Ye haue not chosen me, but I haue chosen you, and otheyned ye, that ye go, and bringe forth fruce, and that your fruce contynue, that what soeuer ye as: the father in my name, he shalde geue ic you.

This I commaunde you, that ye loue one another. If the wolde hate you, then knowe, that ic hath hated me before you. If ye were of the wolde, the wolde wolde loue his vyne. Howbeit because ye are not of the wolde, but I haue chosen you from the wolde, therfore the wolde hateth you. Remember my woide, that I sayde vnto you: My seruaunt is not greater then his lord.
 If they haue persecuted me, they shal persecute you also: if they haue kepte my woide, they shal kepe yours also.

But all this shal they do vnto you for my names sake, because they knowe not him y^e sent me. If I had not come & spokt vnto the, the shulde they haue no synne. But now haue theye nothinge to cloake their synne in. Shall he y^e hate me, hateth my father also. If I had not done and geue the the woke to which no ocher mā byd, they shulde haue no synne. But now haue they sent ic, and yete haue they hated both me & my father, & therefore that the sayenge mighte be ful filled, which is wyrtzen in their lawe: They haue hated me without a cause.

But wher the comfoster commeth, whos I shal sende you from the father, and the spirite of trouth, which shall procede of the father, he shall testifie of me: and ye shall beare wyrtneffe also: for ye haue bene with me from the begynnyng.

The XVII. Chapter.

And these things haue I sayde vnto you, that ye shal not be offended. They shal excommunicate you. The tyme commeth, that who soeuer purtzech you to death, shal chyntie that he doth serue vnto God. And such thinges shal they do vnto you, because they haue neither knowe of father nor yet me. But these thinges haue I sayde vnto you, that when the tyme commeth ye maye chyntie thereon, that I tolde you. But these thinges haue I not sayde vnto you from the begynnyng: for I was with you.

But now I go vnto him that sent me, & now of you aske me: Whither goest thou: but because I haue sayde these thinges vnto you, youre heart is full of sorowe. Therefore I tell you the trouth, It is better for you if I go awaie: for if I go not awaie ye that comfoster commeth not vnto you: but if I departe, I will sende hi vnto you. And when he commeth, he shall rebuke the worlde of synne, and of righteousnes, & of iudgment. Of synne, because they beleue not on me. Of righteousnes, because I go to the father, and ye shall see me no more. Of iudgment, because the prynce of this worlde is iudged already.

But I haue yet much to saye vnto you, but ye can not now beare it awaie: howbeit when he (the spirite of trouth commeth) he shall lede you in to all trouth, for he shall not speake of himself, but what soeuer he shall heare, that shall he speake: and he shall shewe you, what is for to come. He shall glorifie me: for he shall receaue of myne, and shall shewe on to you. All that the father hath, is myne. Therefore haue I sayde: he shall receaue of myne, and shewe vnto you.

After a litle whyle, and ye shall not see me: and agayne after a litle whyle, and ye shall see me: for I go to the father. The saide some of his disciples amonge them selua: What is to this that he sayeth vnto vs. After a litle whyle, and ye shall not see me: agayne after a litle whyle, & ye shall see me: for I go to the father. Then sayde they: What is to this, that he sayeth: After a litle whyle: We can not tell what he sayeth. Then perceaued Iohn that they wolde aske him, and he sayde vnto them: Receaue ye of his amonge you: for he saies, that I sayde: After a litle whyle, and ye shall not see me: agayne after a litle whyle, and ye shall see me.

Verely verely I saye vnto you: I shall wepe and lamente, but the worlde shall reioyce. He shall be sory, but youre sorowe shall be turned in to ioye. A woman when she manyeth, hath sorowe, but hit hour is come. But when she is deliuered of the childe, she thinketh no more of the angurys, for she thas a man is borne in to the worlde. And now haue ye sorowe also: but I will see ye agayne, and youre heart shall reioyce, and youre ioye shall no man take from you. And when that daye shall ye aske me questions. Verely verely I saye vnto you: If ye aske of such oughten in my name, he shall geue it you: whether to haue ye aske nothyng in my name. Aye, and ye shall receaue, if youre ioye maye be perfecte. These thinges haue I spoken vnto you by: prouerbe. Therefore the tyme commeth, that I shall speake vnto you by prouerbe, but I shall shewe you plainly of my father.

In that daye shall ye aske in my name. And I saye not vnto you, that I will pray vnto the father for you: for the father himself looeth you, because ye haue loved me: belized that I am come out from Gods: I wente out from the father, and came in to the worlde: Agayne, I leaue I wolde, and go to the father.

His disciples sayde vnto him: Beholde, now talkest thou plainly, and speakest by prouerbe. How are we sure if thou knowest all thinges, and needest not that any man shall be aske thee. Therefore beleue we, that thou muste ouer come from Gods: Iesus answered them: How ye do beleue: Beholde, the houre draweth nye, and it come already, that he which is scatted, every man in to his owne, and shall leaue me alone: and yet am I not alone, for the father is with me.

These thinges haue I spoken vnto you, that in me ye might haue peace. In yf I should haue ye trouble, but be of good comfort, I haue ouer come the worlde.

The XVII. Chapter.

And these things spake Iesus, and he lift up his eyes toward heauen, and sayde: Father, the houre is come, that thou glorifie thy sonne, that thy seruante maye glorifie thee. And as thou hast giuen him power ouer all flesh, that he should in everlastinge life to as many as thou hast 1 given him. But this is the life everlastinge that they knowe thee (that thou only art the true God) and whom thou hast sent, Ie-sus Christ.

1 I have glorified y^e w^orde of earth, & s^uffred y^e w^orde, y^e thou gauest me to do. And now glorifye me thou father by thine owne self with y^e glory which I had ouer the wo-2 lde. I have declared thy name vnto y^e men whom thou gauest me from the wo-lde. They were thine, and thou gauest them 3 me, and they haue kept thy woide.

3 Now knowe they, that all thinges what sener thou hast giuen me, are of thee. For y^e 4 woordes which thou gauest me, haue I giue vnto them, and they haue receiued them, & knowe of a truth, that I am come forth 5 from thee, and haue beloued, that thou hast sent me. I praye for them, and praye not for 6 the w^olde, but for them whom thou hast giuen me, for they are thine. And all that in 7 myne, is thine: and what thine is, that is myne. And I am glorified in them. And 8 now am I alone in the w^olde, and they are in y^e w^olde, and I come to thee, holy fa-9 ther, kepe in thy name, those whom thou 10 hast giue me, that they maye be one, like as we are. Whyle I was with the in the w^ol-11 de, I kepte them in thy name. Those y^e thou 12 gauest me, haue I kepte, and none of them 13 is lost, but that lost childe, that the scrip-14 tures mighte be fulfilled. But now come I 15 vnto thee, and thou I speake in the w^olde, that they maye haue my ioye perfecte in them. I 16 haue giuen them thy woide, and the w^ol-17 de hateth the: for they are not of the w^ol-18 de, euen as I also am not of the w^olde. I 19 praye not that thou shouldest take them out 20 of the w^olde, but that thou kepe the^m fro 21 m. They are not of the w^olde, as I also am not of the w^olde.

1 Sanctifye them in thy truth. Thy wo-2 lde is the truth. Like as thou hast sent me in to the w^olde, so haue I sent them in to 3 the w^olde: and for their sake I sanctifye myselfe, that they also maye be sanctified in the truth.

4 Therefore I praye not for them only, but also for those, which thouow their woide shal beleue on me, that they all maye be one, like as thou father art in me, and I 5 in y^e, that they also maye be one in us: that the woide maye beleue, that thou hast sent me. And the glory which thou gauest me, ha-6 ue I giuen them: that they maye be one, like 7 as we are one. I in the, and thou in me, that they maye be perfecte in one, and that the woide maye knowe, that thou hast sent me and hast loued them, as thou hast loued me.

8 Father, I wil, that they whom thou hast giuen me, be with me where I am, y^e they maye see my glory, which thou hast sent me for thou hast loued me, or euer y^e woide was made. Righteous father, the woide hath not knowne y^e, but I haue knowne y^e: and these haue knowne, that thou hast sent me.
 And I haue declared thy name vnto them, 9 & wil declare it, y^e the loue wherewith thou hast loued me, maye be in the, & I in them.

The XVIIII. Chapter.

1 When Iesus had thus spokē, he wē-2 te forth with his disciples ouer the brooke Cedion, where there was a garde, in to the which Iesus entred and his disciples. But Judas y^e betrayd hi, knewe the place also. For Iesus restored the iher of 3 tyme w^o his disciples. Now when Judas had takē vnto him the copany, & mynisters of the hye priestes and pharises, he came thē 4 ther with cressettes, & lanternes, and with weapens. Iesus now knowinge all y^e shoulde come vpon him, wete forth, and sayde vnto 5 the: Whom see ye? They answered him: I asus of Nazareth. Iesus sayde vnto them: I 6 am he. Judas also which betrayd him, followed with the. Now when Iesus sayde vnto 7 the: I am he, they wete backwarde, and fell to the grounde. Then ased he the agaynes 8 Whom see ye? They sayde: Iesus of Nazareth. Iesus answered: I haue tolde you, that 9 I am he. If ye like me, then let these go their waye. That the woide mighte be fulfilled, 10 which he sayde: Of them who thou gauest 11 me, haue I not lost one. Then had Symon 12 Peter a swerde, and diuene it out, and smoe the hye priestes seruante, and cut of his right 13 eare. And y^e seruantes name was Malldon.

14 Then sayde Iesus vnto Peter: Dne vp 15 thy swerde in to the sheeth.shal I neede 16 ke of y^e cappe, which my father hath giue me: Then the company and the capayne & 17 the officers of the Jewes toke Iesus, and bounde him, & led him awa ye first vnto An-18 nias, that was fatherlawe vnto Caiphos, 19 which was hye puse y^e same yere. It was 20 Caiphos, which gaue coucell vnto y^e Jewes 21 that it were good, that one man shoulde dye for the people.

22 As for Symon Peter, he and another dis-23 ciple followed Iesus. The same disciple was knowne vnto the hye puse, and wrote in with 24 Iesus in to the hye pusses palace. But Peter 25 stode without at the doore. Then y^e other disciple which was knowne unto the hye priest, wente out, and spake to the damnell & kepte the doore, and brought in Peter. Then the damnell that kepte the doore, sayde vnto Peter: Art not thou also one of this mans disciples? he sayde: I am not.

C The seruantes & officers stode, and had made a fyre of coles (for it was colde) & warmed the selues. Peter also stode with them, and warmed him self. The hye priest aske Iesus of his disciples, and of his doctrine.

Ioh. 7. b Iesus answered him: I haue spoken openly before the world, I haue neuer caught in the synagoge, and in the temple, whiche all the Jewes require, & in secret haue I spokē no thinge. Why askest thou me? Art thou haue herde, what I haue spoken vnto the: beholde, they can tell what I haue sayde. But when he had thus spokē, one of the officers that stode by, smote Iesus on the face, and sayde: Answerest thou the hye priest so? Iesus answered him: If I haue well spokē, the beate wyrrisfe of well: but yf I haue well spokē, why smitest thou me? And Annas sent him bounde vnto Caiphās of hye priest.

Mat. 26. E Luc. 22. d Synes Peter stode and warmed him self. The sayde they vnto him: Art not thou one of his disciples? he denyed, and sayde: I am not. A seruante of the hye priestes, a kynsmā of his, whose eare Peter had smycken of, sayde vnto him: Dyd not I see the in the garde with him?

Ioh. 18. d Mat. 27. a Mar. 14. a Luc. 22. a Ioh. 18. d Then Peter denyed agayne. And immediately the cock crew. Then led they Iesus from Caiphās in to the comon hall. And it was early in the moynyng. And theye them selues wete not in to the comon hall, lest they shoulde be defyled, but they mighte eate & Pascall lambe. Then wente Pilate out vnto the, and sayde: What an accusation bringe ye agaynst this man? They answered, and sayde vnto him: If he were not an euill doer, we had not deliuered him vnto the. Then sayde Pilate vnto the: Take ye him, and iudge him after ye lawe. Then sayde yf Jewes vnto him: Ie is not lawfull for vs to put any mā to death. That yf woide of Iesus mighte be fulfilled, which he spake, when he signified, what death he shoulde dye.

Mat. 27. h Mar. 14. b Luc. 22. b Then entred Pilate in to the comon hall agayne, and called Iesus, & sayde vnto him: Art thou the kynge of the Jewes? Iesus answered: Sayest thou that of thy self, or haue othei tolde it the of me?

E Pilate answered: Am I a Jewe? Thy people and the hye priestes haue deliuered the vnto me. What hast thou done? Iesus answered: My kynngdome is not of this world. If my kynngdome were of this world, my ministers wolde fighte the for me, & I shoulde not be deliuered vnto the Jewes. But now is my kynngdome not from hence. The sayde Pilate vnto hi: Art thou a kynnght? Iesus answered: Thou sayest it, for I am a kynge. For this cause was I borne, and came in to the world, that I shoulde witness the trueth. Who so ever is of the trueth, heareth my voyce. Pilate sayde vnto hi: What is the trueth? And when he had sayde that he wete not agayne to the Jewes, and sayde vnto them: I fynde no gyltynesse in him. But ye haue a custome, that I shoulde geue one vnto you loose at Easter. Wyl ye haue yf I loose vnto you the kynge of y Jewes? They cryed they agayne alle together, and sayde: Not him, but Barabās. Art was Barabās a murdurer.

The XIX. Chapter.

I Then Pilate toke Iesus, and sent Iged him. And the souldiers plaid a crowne of thornes, and set it vpon his heade, and put a purple garment vpon him, and sayde: Gode kynge of the Jewes. And they smote him on the face. Then wente Pilate forth agayne, and sayde vnto the: Beholde, I bringe him forth vnto you, yf maye knowe, & I fynde no faulte in hi. So Iesus wente out, & wate a crowne of thornes and a purple robe. And he sayde vnto them Beholde, the man. When the hye priest & the ministers sawe him, they cryed, & sayde Crucifye, crucifye. Pilate saide vnto the: Let ye him, and crucifye him, for I fynde no gyltynesse in him. The Jewes answered him: We haue a lawe, & after oure lawe he ought to dye, because he made him self the sonne of God. When Pilate herde that worde, he was the more afraid, and wente agayne in to the comon hall, and sayde vnto Iesus: Whence art thou? But Iesus gaue him no answer. The sayde Pilate vnto him: Speakest thou not vnto me? A nowest thou not, I haue power to crucifye y, & haue power to loose y? Iesus answered: Thou shouldest haue no power vnto me, yf it were not geuen the from above. Therefore he that deliuered me vnto y, hath the more synne. From that tyme forth Pilate soughte meane to loose him. But the Jewes cryed, & sayde: Let him go, thou art not the Emperours souldier. For whosoeuer maketh him self kynge, he is agaynst the Emperoure.

When Pilate herde yf woide, he brought Iesus forth, & sat hi downe vpon yf ingromt fare in the place which is called the Pan-crant, but in the hebrewe, Sabbathas. It was the daye of preparinge of the Easter shewe the firste house. And he sayde vnto the Jewes: Beholde yo kynge. But they cryed: A waye to him, awaye to him, crucify him. Pilate saide vnto the: Shall I cruci-fye yo kynge? The hye priestes answered: We haue no kynge but y^e Emperour. The deuyne wold be him vnto them to be crucified.

They toke Iesus, and led him awaye. And he bare his crosse, and wente out to the place called y^e place of deed men (in alle, which in hebrewe is named Golgatha, where they crucified him, and two other with him, on either syde one, but Iesus in the myddes.
Pilate wrote a superscription, and set upon the crosse. And there was written: Iesus of Nazareth, kynge of the Jewes. This super-scription red many of the Jewes. For y^e placwhere Iesus was crucified, was nye vnto the cite. And it was written in hebrewe, Grike & Latin. Then sayde the hye priestes of the Jewes vnto Pilate: Write not kynge of the Jewes, but y^e he sayde, I am kynge of the Jewes. Pilate answered: What I haue written, that haue I written.

The souldyers, whan they had crucified Iesus, toke his garmentes, and made foure partes, to euery souldyer one parte, and the coze also. As for the coze, it was vnfolded fro above, wrought the oore and the oioore. The souldyers theye one to another: Let vs not drawe it, but cast lottes for it, who shall haue it, that the scripture might be fulfilled, which sayeth: They haue parted my garmentes amonge them, and on my coze haue they cast lottes. This dyd the souldyers in dede.

There stode by the crosse of Iesus, his moether, and his moethers sister Mary, the wife of Cleophas, and Mary Magdalene.
Now whan Iesus sawe his moether, and the disciple stonde nye by, which he loued, he sayde vnto his moether: Woman, beholde, this is thy sonne. Then sayde he to the disciple: Beholde, this is thy moether. And from that houre the disciple toke her vnto him.

After that whan Iesus knewe that all was perfourmed, that the scripture might be fulfilled, he sayde: I am a thysyl. There stode a vessell full of vynegre. They filled a sponge with vynegre and woude it aboute with yose, and helde it to his mouth. Now whan Iesus had receaued the vynegre, he sayde: Iesus finished, and bowed his heade, and saue vp the goost.

The Jewes then, for so moch as it was the daye of preparinge, that y^e bodies shoul-de not remayne vpon the crosse on the Sabbath, (for y^e same Sabbath daye was greate) besoughte Pilate, that their legges might be broken, and that they might be taken downe. Then came the souldyers, and brake the legges of the first, and of the other that was crucified with him. Now whan they came to Iesus, and sawe that he was ded already, they brake not his legges, but one of the souldyers opened his syde with a spea-re. And immediatly there wente out blou-de and water.

And he that sawe it, bare recorde, and his recorde is true. And he knoweth that he sayeth true, that ye might beleue also. For this is done, y^e the scripture might be fulfilled: He shall not breake a bone of him. And agayne, another scripture saith y^e: They shall se him, whom they haue pearfed.

After that, Ioseph of Arimathea, which was a disciple of Iesus (but secretly for feare of the Jewes) besoughte Pilate, y^e he might take downe the body of Iesus, And Pilate gaue him lycence. There came also a Tirodemus, (which afore came vnto Iesus by myght) brought of Myre & Aloes mingled together, aboute an hylberth poude weighte.

They toke they the body of Iesus, & wou-de it with linnen clothes, and with the spy-ces, as the maner of the Jewes is to burye.
And by y^e place where Iesus was crucified, there was a gard, and in the garden a new sepulchre, where in was neuer man layed: there layed they Iesus, because of the prepa-ringe daye of y^e Jewes, for the sepulchre was nye at hande.

The XX. Chapter.

Upon one daye of the Sabbath, came Mary Magdalene early (wher it was yet darke) vnto the sepulchre, & sawe that the stone was takē from the sepulchre. Then ranne she, & came to Symon Peter, and to y^e other disciple, whom Iesus loued, and sayde vnto them: They haue takē awaye the stone, and I orde out of the sepulchre, & we can not tell wher they haue layed him. The wote peter fourth and the other disciple, and came to the sepulchre. They rāne both together, and that other disciple ouer rāne peter, and came first to the sepulchre, and loke in, and sawe the linnen clothes layed. But he wote not it. The came Symon peter a fter him, and wente in to the sepulchre, & sawe the linen clothes lye, and the naptyn that was bounde aboute Iesus heade, not layed with the linnen clothes, but wrapped together in in a place by it self. The wete I also þ other discip ple, which came first to þ sepulchre, 2 he sawe 2 beland for as yet they knewe not þ scriptures, þ it behooveþ hi to ryste agayne fro þ deed. The wete þ disciples agayne together.

B As for Mary, she stode before þ sepulchre ked in to the sepulchre, and sawe two angels in whyte garments sittinge, þ one at the heade, 2 the other at þ feet, wher they had layed the body of Iesus. And they saye unto her: Woman, why wepest thou? She saide unto the: They haue taken awaye my LORDE, 2 I wote not wher they haue layed hi.

And whan she had sayde þ, she turned her self backe, 2 sawe Iesus standinge, 2 knewe not þ it was Iesus. Iesus sayde unto her: Woman, why wepest thou? Whom seekest thou? She thought þ it had bene þ gardener, 2 sayde unto him: Syr, yf thou hast benū him hence: then tell me wher thou hast layed him: and I wil fetch hi. Iesus sayde unto her: Mary. Then turned she her aboute, 2 saye unto him: Rabboni, þ is to saye: Master. Iesus sayde unto her: Touch me not, for I am not yet ascended unto my father. But go thou þ waye unto my brethren 2 saye unto the: I asider up unto my father and yo father: to my God, 2 yo God. Mary Magdalene came, 2 tolde þ disciples: I have sene the LORDE, 2 soch thinges hath he spoken unto me.

ples glad, þ they sawe þ LORDE. The sayde Iesus unto the agayne: Peace be with you.
Like as my father sent me, eal so stode I you.
And whā he had sayde þ, he brethed vpo sayde unto the: Excepte I se in his handes the prynte of the nails, and put my hāde in to his syde, I wil not beleue.

Job. 11. b

D And a fter eithe dayes agayne were his þ sayde he vnto Thomas: Reach hither þ þ hāde, 2 put it to my syde, 2 be not faulesse, but beleue. Thomas answered, 2 sayde unto him: MY LORDE, and my God. Iesus sayde vnto him: Thomas, because thou hast sene me, thou hast belimed. Blessed are they that se me, and yet beleue.

Many other tokes dyd Iesus before his discipulis, which are not wyete in this boke.
But these are wyete, 2 ye shal beleue. þ Iesus is Christ the sonne of God, 2 that ye thoerto beleue mighte haue life in his name.

The XXI. Chapter.

A fter that shewed Iesus himself agayn ne at the see of Tiberias. But on this wyse shewed he himself. There were together Symō Peter, 2 Thomas which is called Didimus, 2 Nathanael of Cana a cite of Galile, 2 the sonnes of Zebede, 2 two other of his discipulis. Symon Peter sayde unto the: I go a fshynge. They sayde unto the: We also wil go w the. They went out, 2 went in to a shippe straighe waye. And þ same nyght toke they nothyng. But whā it was now morow, Iesus stode on the shes, but his discipulis knewe not þ it was Iesus.
Iesus sayde unto the: Childre, haue ye any thyng to eate? They answered hi: No. He sayde unto the: Cast ou the net on þ right syde of the shippe, 2 ye shal fynde. The they cast out, 2 coude nomete trawle for þ meitour of fishes. The sayde þ discipul Iesus loued, vnto Peter: It is the LORDE.
Whan Symon Peter herde that it was the LORDE, he gyde his manell abou him; for he was naked; and spange in to þ see. But other discipulis came by shippe; for they were not farr fro londe, but as it was two hundred cubytes; and they drew the net with the fishes. Now whan they came to londe, they sawe coles layed, and fyll theron, and berd. Iesus sayde vnto the: Dyngre hither of the fishes, 2 haue ye hāde any now. Symon Peter stepped fowre, and bare the net to the londe, full of gryn fishes, an hundred and thie and fiftie.
And for all there were so many, yet was the net broken.

Iesus sayde unto them: Come, and dym.
But none of the discipulis durst as yet who art thou? For they knewe, that it was the LORDE. Then came Iesus, and toke þ bied, and gaue it the; and the fysh he toke se. This is now the thurde tyme that Iesus appeared vnto his discipulis, a fter that he was risen agayne frome the dead.

Iesus sayde unto them: Come, and dym.
But none of the discipulis durst as yet who art thou? For they knewe, that it was the LORDE. Then came Iesus, and toke þ bied, and gaue it the; and the fysh he toke
se. This is now the thurde tyme that Iesus appeared vnto his discipulis, a fter that he was risen agayne frome the dead.

The Gospell

Now whā they had dymed, Iesus sayde vnto Symon Peter: Symō Johāna, louest thou me more then these do? he sayde vnto him: Yee. LORDE, thou knowest I I loue thee. he sayde vnto him: Sebe my lābea, he sayde vnto him agayne the seconde tyme: Symō Johāna, louest thou me? he sayde vnto him: Yee. LORDE, thou knowest, I I loue y. he sayde vnto him: Sebe my shepe. he said vnto him: y thide tyme: Symon Johāna, louest thou me? Peter was soyy, because he sayde vnto him, louest thou me? And he sayde vnto him: LORDE, thou knowest all thyngs, thou knowest, that I loue y. Iesus sayde vnto him: Sebe my shepe.

Verely verely I say vnto the: Whan thou wast yoge, thou gerdest thyselfe, and waldest whiche thou woldest. But whē thou art olde, thou shalt stretch forth thy handes, and another shal gyde the, and lede the whither thou woldest not. But this he sayde, to signifye with what death he shalde glorifye God.

Whan he had spoken this, he sayde vnto him: I folowe me. Peter turned him about, and saue the disciple folowinge, whom Iesus loued, (whiche also leamed vpp his brest at the supper, and sayde: LORDE, who is it that betraieyth the): Whā Peter sawe him, he sayde vnto Iesus: LORDE, but what shal he do? Iesus sayde vnto him: If wil that he tary vntill I come, what is that to the? I folowe thou me. Then wente there out a sponge amonge the brethren: This disciple vnto not. And Iesus sayde not vnto him: he dyeth not, but: If wil that he tary vntill I come, what is that to the? This is the same disciple, which testifieth of these thynges, and wote these thynges, and noc doute that his testimony is true.

There are many other thynges also that Iesus dyd, which, yf they shalde be wyrted every one, I suppose the worlde shalde noc con tayne the booke, that were to be wyrted.

of The Apostles.

The Actes of the Apostles.

The first Chapter.

The first treatise beate Theophilus; thus I made of all that Jesus began to do and to teach, until the day that he was taken up, after that he had given the holy gost) had given commanndementes vnto the Apostles, whom he had chosen: to whome also he shewed himself aluys after his passion, by many tokes, and appeared vnto them foure ye dayes longe, and spake vnto them of the kyngdome of God.

And when he had gathered them together, he commaunded them that they shoulde not departe from Jerusalem, but to stay for the promys of the father, wherof sayde he: ye haue herde of mine. For Iohn baptysed with water, but ye shalbe baptysed with the holy gost, that within this few dayes.

Now when they were come together, they ased him, and sayde: LORDE, shalst thou at this tyme set up the kyngdome of Iuda agayne? But he sayde vnto them: It belongeth not vnto you to knowe the tymes or seasons, which the father hath kepyn in his owne power, but ye shal receaue the power of the holy gost, which shal come vpon you, and ye shalbe my witnesses at Jerusalem, and in all Ieruerie and Samaria, and vnto the ende of the earth.

And when he had spoken these things, while they behelde, he was taken up, and a cloude receaued him from their sight. And while they looked after him, as he went to heauen, beholde, there stode by them two men in whyte garmentes, to which also sayde men of Galile, Why stonde ye gasping up to heauen? This Iesus which is take up from you in to heauen. shal come euen as ye haue sene him go in to heauen.

Then turned they agayne from y^e mount that is called Oliuete, which is nye to Jerusalem, and hath a Sabbath dayes iourney.
And whan they came in, they wente up in to a parke, where abode Peter and James, Thon and Andrew, Philippe and Thomas, Bartolmeu and Mathew, James the sonne of Alphaeus, and Simon Zelotes, and Iudas the sonne of James. These all conyned with one accorde in prayer and supplica-cion, with the women and Mary the mother of Iesus and with his bretheren.

And in those dayes Peter stode up in the myddes amonge the disciples, and sayde: (The company of the names together, was aboute an hundred and twentye.) Remember brethren, this scripture must nedes be fulfilled, which y^e holy goost by the mouth of Dauid spake before of Iudas, which was a gyde of the char coker Iesus: for he was numbered with vs, and had opeyned the fel-lowschipp of this mynistracion. This same truly possessed the fide for the reward: of souerightnes, and hanged himselfe and bust a sunder in the myddes, and all his bowels gasped out. And it is knowne vnto all the that dwell at Jerusalem, in so much that the same fide is called in their mother tonge Achabim, that is to saye, the bloude fide.

For it is wycten in the booke of psalmes: his habitation be voyde, and noman be dwellinge therein. And: his bishoprike ceether take. Wherefore amonge these men which haue bene gathered together with us (all the tyme that the LORDE Iesus was with us, and in amonge vs, begynnyng from the baptyeme of Thon, vntyll y^e daye that he was take up from vs) must one be a wy-nesse with vs of his resurrection.

And they appoynted two (Joseph calleth Barsabas, whose surname was Justus, and Matthias, makinge their prayer and sayeng: Thou LORDE, which knowest the heartes of all men, shewe whether of these two theu hast chosyn, that the one maye take the name of this mynistracion and Apostel-shippe, from the which Iudas bytransgre-sion fell, that he mighte go awaye in to his owne place. And they gaue forth the lotte out them, and the lot fell vpon Matthias.
And he was counted with the eleuen Apostles.

The ii. Chapter.

Whan the white sondaye was fulfilled, they were all with one accorde together in one place. And soderly there came a sounde from heauen, as it had bene the cōmyng of a mighty wynde, and it fylled the whole house where they sat.
And there appeared vnto them clouen tunges, like as they had bene of fyre. And he sae vpon ech one of them, and they were all fylled with the holy goost. And they began-ne to preach with other tunges, euen as the spice gaue them veteraunce.

There were dwellinge at Jerusalem Ierues, men that feared God, out of euery nacion that is vnder heauen. Now whan this voyce came to passe, the multitude came together, and were astonyed: For eu-ery one herde, that they spake with his owne tunge. They wondered all and marue-led, and sayde amonge them selues: Behold, we are not all this which speaketh, of Galile: how beare we this euery one his owne tunge, wherein we were borne: Parthians and Medes, and Elamites, and we that dwell in Mesopotamia, and in Jewry and Capadocia, Pontus, and Asia, Phygia, and Pamphilia, Egipce, and in the partes of Lybia by Cyren, and straungers of Rome, Ierues and Proselytes, Grekes and Arabians: we heare them speake with our owne tunges the greates woikes of God.

They were all amazed, and wondered, and sayde one to another: What wil this be?
But other mocked them, and sayde: They are full of sweete wyne. Then stode Peter up with the cleuen, and lift vp his voyce, and sayde vnto them:

The men of Jewry, and all ye that dwell at Jerusalem, be this knowne vnto you, and let my woordes entre in at youre eares. For these are not drunken, as ye suppose, for it is yet but the thirde houre of y^e daye: but this is it, that was spold before by the prophete Joel: And it shal come to passe in the last dayes, sayeth God, I will poure out of my spice vpon all flesh, and youre sonnes and yours doughters shal pisphecye, and youre yonge men shal se visions, and youre olde men shall dreame dreames, and on my seruauntes and on my handmaydens wil I poure out of my spice in those dayes, & they shal pisphecye.

And I wil shewe wonders in heauen aboue, and tokens on the earth beneath, bloude and fyre, and the vapoure of smoke. The Sunne shalbe turned in to darkness, and the thirde in to bloude, before that greate and notable daye of the LORDE come. And it shall come to passe, Who so euer shall call vpon the name of the LORDE, shall be saved.

C Men of Israell, heare these wordes: Ie-sus of Nazareth, y man appoynted of God amonge you with miracles, and wonders and tokens, which God dyd by him in the mydden amonge you, as ye ys knowe more also, him (after that he was deliuered by the deserninate counsell and forknowledge of God) haue ye taken by the handes of vn-righteous perennes, and crucified him, & slayne him, whos God hath rayseed vp, and lownd the stoumes of death, sofo much as it was vnpossible that he shulde be holden of it. For Dauid speaketh of him: Afore hond haue I set the LORDE all wayes before me, for he is on my right hōde, that I shul-de not be moued. Therfore dyd my hert re-ioyse, and my ranche was glab: for my flesch also shall rest in hope. For thou shalt not leaue my soule in hell, neher shalt thou suffice y Holý to se corrupcion. Thou hast shewed me the wayes of life, thou shalt make me full of ioye with thy countenance.

Men and bretheren, let me frely speake vnto you of the Patriarke Dauid: For he is deed and buried, and his sepulchre is with vs vnto this daye. Wherefore now seinge y he was a prophete, and knewe that God had promised him with an oath, that the frute of his loynes shulde syt on his seat, he sawe it before, and spake of the resurrection of Christ: for his soule was not left in hell, neher hath his flesch sene corrupcion. This Jesus hath God rayseed vp, wherefore all are witnesses.

Seinge now that he by the right hande of God is exalted, and hath receaued of y father y promise of the holy goost, he hath shed forth this, that ye see and heare. For Da-uid is not ascended in to heauen, but he sayde: The LORDE sayde vnto my LORDE: Syt thou on my righte hande, vntill I make thine enemies y foete stole. So therfore let alle the house of Israell knowe for a shertye, y God hath made this same Jesus (whom ye haue crucified) LORDE and Christ.

When they herde this, their hert pricked them, and they sayde vnto Peter and to the other Apostles: Men and bretheren, What shal we do? Peter sayde vnto them: Amend your selues, and let euery one of you be baptysed in the name of Jesus Christ, for there is myssion of synnes, and ye shall receaue the gifte of the holy goost. For this promise was made vnto you and youre children, and to all that are farre off, whos for euery one of our God shall call. And whi man other wordes bare he witness, and crored them, and sayde: Save your selues from this vntoward generation. They that gladly receaued his preachinge, were baptyzed, & the same daye there were added vnto them aboute thre thousande soules.

They continued in the Apostles doctrine, and in the fellowshipe, and in breakyng of bred, and in praye. And feare came vpon euery soule, and many wonders and tokens were done by y Apostles. But all they that beloued, were together, and had all thinges in commen. They solde their goodes and possessions, and parred them out amonge all, accordinge as euery man had neede. And they continued daylie with one accord in the temple, and brake bred in euery house: they eat their meate with ioye & singleness of hert, praisyng God, and had fauoure with all y people. And the LORDE added to the congregation daylie souch as shulde be saved.

The lii. Chapter.

Peter and Iohn wente up togethe in to the temple aboute the nyght houre to praye. And there was a cer-tayne man halt from his mothers wombe, whom they broughed and layed daylie at the gate of the temple, which is called, the Dore full, that he mighte ake almesse of them that wete in to the temple. Now when he sawe Peter and Iohn, that they wode in to the temple, he desired to receaue an almesse. Peter behelde him with Iohn, and sayde: Lite on vs. And he gaue hede vnto them, hope-inge to receaue somethinge of them. Howbeit Peter saide: Syluer and golde haue I none, but such as I haue geue I the. In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth rise vp walke. And he toke him by the righte hande and lifte him vp. Immediately his legges & ankle bones were made strong, and he leped gode, and walked, and entred with them in to the temple, walkyng, and leapyng, and praisyng God.

And all the people sawe him walke and praise God. And they knewe him, y it was he, which sat for almesse at the bewyfull gate of the temple. And they were filled with wonderinge, and were astonysed at this, which had happened vnto hi. But as this halt which was healed helde him to Peter and Iohn, all the people ranne vnto them in to the porch, which is called Salomon, and to vendue.

When Peter sawe that, he answered vnto the people: The men of Israel, why mar-wyle ye at this, or why loke ye so at vs, as though we by oure owne power or deservyn g had made this man to walke: The God of Abraham and of Isaac, and of Jacob, y God of oure fathers hath glorified his children in Jesus, * whom ye denyered and denyed in the presence of Pilate, when he had iudged him to be lawfull. But ye denyed the holy and iust, and desired the murderer to be let gonne, but ye slawe the prync of life, whom God hath rayfed from the dead, of whom we are witnesses. And thow y faith in his name, hath be confirmed by nature vnto this man, whom ye se and knowe: and saich thow to him, hath geue this man this health before your eyes.

Now beare brethren, I knowe that ye haue done it: thow y ignouance, as byd also your rulers. But God, whych by the mouth of all his prophetes had thered before, y his Christ shulde suffer, hath so fulfilled it.
Be penance now therfore, and turne you, that your synnes maye be done awaye, whan the tyme of refreshinge shal come before the presence of the LORDE, and whan he shal sende him, which now before is pica-d vnto you, euen Jesus Christ: which will receaue heauen vntill the tyme that all thinges, which God hath spokn by the mouth of his holy prophetes kence y woulde begonne, be restored agayne.

So I Moses sayde vnto y fathers: A prophet shal the LORDE your God rayse vp vnto you, euen from amonge your brethren, like vnto me: him shal ye heare, in all that he shal saye vnto you. And it shal come to passe, what soule soeuer shal not heare the same prophet, shal be destroyed from amonge the people. And all the prophetes from Samuel, and thence forth as many as haue spoken, haue liuemye wordes of these dayes.

It are the children of the prophetes and of the covenannt, which God made vnto y fathers, when he sayde vnto Abraham: Tho-row y seede shal all y nacions of earth be blessed. First vnto you hath God rayfed up his childre Jesus, y sent hi vnto you, to blesse you foryoune shulde turne fro his wickednesse.

The III. Chapter.

As they saye to y people, there came vnto this the prestes and the rulers of the temple, and the Sabucos, whiche greued y they caughte the people, y preached in Jesus y resurrection fro the dead: and they layd handes vpon them, and put the in holde tyll the morow: for it was now euentyde. Sombeie many of the which her-de the woide, banded, and the nombre of y men was aboute fyue thousande.

And it chanced on y morow, that the rulers and Elders and scribes (as Annas y hye prest and Calphas, and Jhon y elder, and as many as were of the hye prestes Fynred) gathered them selues together at Jerusalem, and set them before them, and ayed them: By what auctorite, O in what name haue ye done this? Mat. 21. 23

Peter full of the holy goost, sayde vnto them: Ye rulers of the people, and ye Elders of Israel, If we this daye be examyned, wher cernynge this good betw upon the side man, by what meanes he is made whole, be it knowne then vnto you and to all the people of Israel, * that in y name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom ye crucified, whos God hath rayfed vp from the dead, stodech this man here before you whole. This is the stone refused of you buylders, which is become the heade corner stone, neither is there salua-cion in any other: For yett also is there ge-ue vnto nill any other name, wherin we must be saued. Act. 4. 12

They sawe the boldnesse of Peter y Jhon and maruyled, for they were iust y they were unlearned men and laye people. And they knewe the also, that they were w Jesus.
As for the man y was made whole, they saue hi stodinge by the, y coulde not fyde agaynst it. Then commaunded they the to stode asyde owt of y counsell, y commaunded amonge the sel-ues, y saide: What shal we do to these men? for a manyfest token is done by them, and is openly knowne vnto the char dwell at Jerusalem, and we can not denye it. But that it beate out no farther amonge the people, let vs threate them earnestly, that hence forth they speake of this name vnto no man. Ioh. 11. 6

And they called them, and commaunded the, that in any wyse they shulde not speake ner weache in the name of Jesu. But Peter y Jhon answered, and sayde vnto the: Judge ye your selues, whether it be righte before God, that we shulde demouise obedient vnto you, then vnto God. We can not chosse, but speake that we haue seue y herbe. But they threathened them, and let them go, and found be nothinge how to punyssh them because of y people: for they all prayed God because of that, * which was done. For the man, upon whom this token of health was done, was aboute fowte yere old. 1. 8. 11

And when they were let go, they came their folowes, and tolde them what: & hys puffed and elbers sayde vnto them. Whā they herde that, they lifte vp their voyce w one a corde vnto God, and sayde: LORDE, thou that art the God which made heauen and earth, and the sea, and all that therein is thou that by the mouth of Dauid thy seruant hast sayde: Why do the heycē rage: and y people ymagin wāne thinges: The kynges of the earth stonde vp, and the pry-ces haue gathered them selues together agāynst y LORDE, and agāynst his. Chuff.

Of a trūeth agāynst thy holy childe Iesus, whom thou hast annoynd, both herode & Pontius Pilate with the heycē and people of Iuda, haue gathered the selues together, to do w hat sener thy hande and thy councell hath determyned before to be done. And now LORDE, beholde their theateynynges, and graunte vnto thy seruantes wth all stedfast boldnesse to speake thy worde: and stretch out thine hande, that healinge and tokens and wonders maye be done by the name of thy holy childe Iesus.

Pals. a

D And whā they had prayed, the place moued where they were gathered together, & they were all fylled wth y holy goost, & spake the worde of God boldly. The multitude of them that belenech, were of one heart and of one soule. Also none of them sayde of his goodes, that they were his awne, but had all thinges cōmen. And wth greate power gave the Apostles witnessse of the reurrec-tion of the LORDE Iesu, and greate grace was wth them all. Whether was there cny amonge them that lacked. For as many as were possessors of landes or houses, solde the and brought y money of the goodes that were solde, and layed it at the Apostles fete.
And distribution was made vnto cvery mā, acording as he had neede.

Ioseph which was also called of y Apostles, Barnabas (that is to saye, the sonne of consolation) a Leuite, of the countre of Cyprus, had lande, and solde it, & brought the money, and layed it at the Apostles fete.

The V. Chapter.

A Dc a certayne man named Ananias with Sappira his wife, solde his possession, and kepte awaye parte of the money (his wife knowinge of it) and broughte one parte, & layed it at the Apostles fete. But Peter sayde: Ananias, Wherefore hath Sathan fylled thine heart, that thou hast lye vnto the holy goost, and withdrawe awaye parte of the money of the melob: Mightest thou not haue kepte it, whan thou haddest it. And whan it was solde, the money was also in thy power.

Why hast thou then concealed this thinge in thine heart: Thou hast not lye vnto me, but vnto God. Whan Ananias hearde this worde, he fell downe, & gaue vp the goost.
And there came a greate shakynge vpon all that herde of this. The yonge men rose vp, and put him asyde, and caried him out, and buried him.

And it fortuned as it were aboute y ce of the houres after, his wife came in, and knewe not what was done. But Peter assured vnto her. Tell me, solde ye the lande for somoch: She sayde: Yes, for so much, peter sayde vnto her: Why haue ye agreed together, to tempte the spere of the LORDE: Beholde, the fete of the which haue bound thy husbande, are at the doore, & shal car-ye the out. And immediatly she fell downe at his fete, and gaue vp the goost. Then came in the yonge men, and founde her dead, and caried her out, and buried her by hā hūbil-de. And there came a greate feare ouer the whole congregacion, and ouer all the churche.

Many tokens and wonders were don amonge the people by the handes of the Apostles (and they were all together wth ou-a corde in Salomons poudie: but of othethere barst no man to ync him self vnto the neuer thece the people helde word of them.
The multitude of the men and women that belenech in the LORDE, grewe more and more.) In so much that they broughte out the sytē in to the streetes, and layed them vpon beddes and barowes, that at the leest maye the shadowe of Peter (whan he cameth) might ouershadowe some of the. There came many also out of y citty rounde aboute vnto Ierusalem, and broughte the sick: and the that were weard wth uncleane spūes, and they were healed every one.

But the hycē puffed rose vp, and all they were wth him, which is the fete of the Sa-duces, and were full of indignacion, they handes on the Apostles, and put them in the common prison. But the angell of y LOR-DE by night opened the prison doores, and broughte the out, and sayde: Go your waye and steepe vp, and speake in the temple into the people all the wordes of this life. Whā they herde that, they entred in to the temple early in the mornynge, and taught.

But the hycē puffed came, and they y wth him, and called the councell together,

set to the prison to set them. The ministers came and founde them not in the prison, & were agayne, and tolde, and sayde: The prison wher we shutt with all diligence, and the keyes standinge withoute before the doore: whā we had opened, we founde no man therein. When the hye priest, and the rulers of the temple and the other hye priestes heare these wordes, they doubted of them, wherunto this wolde growe.

¶ Then came there one, which tolde them: Whosoever, whom that ye put in prison, are in the temple, standinge and teachinge the people. Then roste ʒ rulers with their ministers, and searched them withoute violence: for they feared the people, lest they shulde have bene stoned. And when they had broughte them, they stode before the counsell. And the hye priest axed them, and sayde: Why do we commaunde you stracely, that ye shalde not teache in this name. And behold, ye have fylled Jerusalem with youre doctrine, and ye intende to brynge this mans blood upon vs.

But Peter and the Apostles answered, and sayde: We oughte more to obeye God than men. The God of oure fathers hath raised up Jesus, whō ye slew, and hangd vpon the crosse. Him hath the righte hande of God ordeined to be a prync and Sauoure, to geue repentance and forgiveness of synnes vnto Israel. And we are his recordes of these wordes, and the holy goost, whō God hath geuen vnto eue that obeye him. Whā they herde that, it mente thoro the hertes of them, and they thoughte to slaye them.

¶ Then stode there vpon ʒ counsell a pharise, named Gamaliel, a scribe, had in greete reputation before all ʒ people, and had put the Apostles asyde a litle, and sayde vnto them: Ye men of Israel, take heede to youre synes, whā ye do as touchinge these men. Before these dayes rose vp one Theobas, boasting himself. (And there dewed vnto him a iube of iudg, aboute a foure hundred) which was slayne, and all they ʒ enclined vnto him, were scattered abrode, and broughe to naughte. After this stode vp Judas of Galilee ʒ dayes of tribute, and drewe awaye much people after him, & he also perished, & all they that enclined vnto him, are scattered abrode. And now I saye vnto you: refrayne yf yfles frō these men, and let the go. & If this counsell or roule be of me, it wil come to naughte: but yf it be of God, ye are not able to destroye it, lest ye be founde to be the men that wil stryne agaynst God. Then they agreed vnto him, and called the Apostles, and bett them, and commaunded them, that they shulde speake nochinge in the name of Jesus, and let them go.

But they departed from the presence of the counsell, reioysinge, that they were worthy to suffer rebute for his names sake. And daylie in the temple and in every howse they ceased not, to teache and to preach the Gospell of Jesus Christ.

The VI. Chapter.

¶ In those dayes whan the nombre of the disciples increased, there arose a grudge amonge the Grekes agaynst the Hebrewes, because their ryddowes were not looked vpon in the daylie handteachinge. Then the ewolue called the multitude of the disciples together, and sayde: It is not mete that we shalde leaue the worde of God, and to serue at the tables. Wherefore brethren, loke out amonge you seue men, that are of honeste repute, and full of the holy goost and wysdome, whom we maye appoynte to this needefull busynes. But we wil geue oure selues vnto prayer, and to the mynistracion of the worde of God. And the sayenge pleased the whole multitude. And they chose Steuen, a man full of faith and of the holy goost, and Philippe, and Procorus, and Nicand, and Timon, and Parmenas, and Nicolas the Prosclite of Antioche. These they set before ʒ Apostles, and they prayed, and layd their handes vpon them. And the worde of God increased, and the nombre of the disciples multiplied greatly at Jerusalem. And there were many priestes also obedient vnto the faith.

Steuen full of faith and power, dyd wonders and greater tokens amonge the people. Then arose there certayne of the synagoge, which is called (the synagoge) of Libertynes, & of the Cyrenites, and of the Alexandrians, and of the ʒ more of Celicia and Asia, that disputed with Steuen, & they coulde not resiste the wysdome and the sperte, out of the which he spake. Then sent they in certayne men, that sayde: We haue herde him speake blasphemous wordes agaynst Moses, and agaynst God. And they moued the people, and the Elders, and the scribes, and came vpon him, & caught him, and broughe him before the counsell, and set false witnesses thre, which sayde: This man crafteth newe to speake blasphemous wordes agaynst this holy place and the lawe. For we herde him saye: Jesus of Nazareth shall destroye this place, and chaunge the ordinances which Moses gave vs. And all they that sat in the counsell, looked vps him and sawe his face as the face of an angell.

The VII. Chapter.

When saye the hye prest: Jo it euē for the sayde: Deare brethren and fathers, herken to, The God of glorie appeared vnto father Abrahā, whyle he was yet in Mesopotamia, before he dwelt in Chanaan, and sayde vnto him: Get y our of thy cotre, and frē thy kynred, and come in to a londe whiche I will shewe y. The wente he out of the lande of the Caldees, and dwelt in Chanaan. And from thēce, when his father was dede, he brought him oer in to this londe (where ye dwell now) and gaue him no experiaūce therin, no not y breth of a fore: and promysed him, that he wolde geue it him to possesse, and to his sēde after him, when as yet he had no childe.

When saye God vnto him: Thy sēde shal be a stranger in a strange londe, and they shal make bonde men of them, and in treate the euēl four hundredth yeres: and y people whom they shal serue, will I iudge, saye God. And after that shal they go fore, and serue me in this place. And he gaue him the counsaile of circūcision. And he begat Isaac, and circūcised him the eight dayes. And Isaac begat Jacob, and Jacob begat the twelue Patriarkes.

When the patriarkes had indignacion at Joseph, and solde hi in to Egipte. And God was with him, and deliuered him out of all his troubles, and gaue him fauoure ad vsybome: the sight of Pharaos kynge of Egipte, which made him pryncce oer Egipte, and ouer all his house.

When there came a death ouer all the londe of Egipte and Canaan, and a greate trouble, and oure fathers founde no iustifiaunce. But Jacob herde that there was come in Egipte, and sent oure fathers out the first tyme. And at the seconde tyme was Joseph knowne of his brethen, and Josephs kynred was made knowne vnto Pharaos. But Joseph sent oure, and causid his father and all his kynred to be broughte, enē the scole and systens soules. And Jacob wente downe in to Egipte, and dyed, boch he and oure fathers, and were broughte oer vnto Sichem, and layd in the sepulchre, that Abraham boughte for money of the children of Hemor at Sichem.

When the tyme of the promes bane nye (whiche God had sūme vnto Abrahā) the people grewe and multiplied in Egipte, tyll there rose another kynge, which was not of Joseph. The same deale sūme: he came kynred, and increased oure fathers and made them to cast out the yonge children, that they shoulde not remayne aluē.

When the same tyme was Moses borne, and was a proper childe before God, and was nourished the monethes in his fathers house. But when he was cast out, Pharaos daughter toke him vp, and nourished him vp for his awne sonne. And Moses was learned in all maner wysdome of the Egypciens, and was mightie in dedes & wordes.

When he was fourtye yeres olde, he came in to his mynde to wyse his brethen the children of Israel. And when he sawe one of them suffre wyghe, he helpe him, and deliuered him, that had the harme done to him, and slew the Egypcian. But he thoughte that his brethen shoulde haue derfionde, how that God by his hande had made saue thē, howbeit they vnderstode it not.

When on the nexte daye he shewed himself vnto them as they sate togather, and wold haue set them at one agayne, and saye: Why ye are brethren, why hurt ye one another? But he that byd his neyghboure wyghe, thrust him awaye, and sayde: Who make the a ruler and inloge oer vs? Whiche slaye me also, as thou slewest the Egypcian yest daye: But Moses fled at that sayng, and was a stranger in the lande of Midian, where he begat two sonnes.

When after fourtye yeres, the angel of the LORD appeared vnto him vpon mount Sina, in a flamme of fyre in a bush. Whiche Moses sawe it, he wondred at the sight. But as he was nye to beholde, y voyce of the LORD came vnto him: I am the God of thy fathers, the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. Howbeit Moses trembled, and durst not beholde. But y LORD sayde vnto him: Put of thy shues from thy feet, for y place where thou stondest, is an holy grounde. I haue wolden the trouble of my people in Egipte, and haue herde their gronyng, and am come downe to deliuer them. And now come, I will sende the in to Egipte.

When Moses, whom they refused, and whiche made y a ruler and inloge oer them, had God sent to be a ruler & aduocāt by the hande of the angell, that appoynted vnto him in the bush. The same brought them out, and byd wondres and tokens in Egipte, and in the red see, and in y nyght nexte fourtye yeres. This is that Moses

142 which sayde vnto the children of Israel: A 143 prophet shal the LORDE your God raise vp vnto you euen from amonge youre brethren, like vnto me. Him shal ye heare. This is he, that was in the congregacion in the 144 wilderness with the angell, which talke with him, vpon mount Sina, and with oure fathers. This man receaued the worde of life to geue vnto vs, vnto whom oure fathers wolde not be obedient, but thrust him fro the,
 and in their heres turned backe agayne into Egypte, and sayde vnto Aaron: Make vs 145 goddes to go before vs, for we can not tell what is become of this Moses, & brought vs out of the lande of Egypte. And they made a calfe at the same tyme, and offred sacrifice vnto the ymage, and reioysed in the workes of their awne handes.

146 But God turned himselfe, & gaue them vp, so that they worshipped the boosfe of heate, as it is written in the booke of the pro-147 phete: O ye house of Israel, gaue ye me sacrifices and eated those fortye yeares in the wilderness. And yet toke vnto you & tabernacle of Moloch, and the starre of youre god Remphan, ymages which ye youre sel-mas made to worshippe the. And I will cast you out beyonde Babilon.

148 Oure fathers had the tabernacle of witness in & wilderness, like as he appoynted 149 them, when he spake vnto Moses, that he shalde make it (a cobdinge to the patrone, & he had sene.) which oure fathers also recei-ued, and brought it with Josue into the lon-150 der that the hee had in possession, whom God drewe out before the face of oure fathers, vntill the tyme of Dauid, which soue-reyn saunoure with God, and desired that he might fynde a tabernacle for the God of Jacob.

151 But Salomon buylde hi an house. Howbeit & house of all dwellinge not in temples that are made with handes: As he sayeth 152 by the prophete: house is my seate, and the tabernacle is my foote stole. What house then wil ye buylde vnto me: sayeth the LORDE: Or which is the place of my rest? hath not my hande made all these thinges?

153 As it is written of youne uncircumcised heres and eares, ye all way resiste the holy goost: For as ye fathers dyd, so do ye also. Which of the prophetes haue not ye fathers persi-154 cured? And they slawe the, which tolde before of the comynge of & righteous, whose raynours and murthurers ye are now beco-155 me. Ye receaued the lawe by the ministraci-on of angells, and haue not kepte it.

When they herde this, it wente thow y heres of the, and they gnashed vpp him with their teethe. But he beyng full of the holy goost, looked vp toward heauen, * and sawe the glorye of God, and Iesu sittyng on the righte hande of God, and sayde: He holde, & the heauens open, and the sonne of man standinge on & righte hande of God, 156 And they cried out with a loude voyce, & stopped their eares, and rane violently vpon him all at once, and thrust him out of the ci-157 te, and stoned him. And & witnesses layed downe their clothes at the feete of a yonge man, which was called Saul. And they stoned Steuen, which cryed, & sayde: LORDE Iesu receaue my spere. And he kned bowne, & cried with a loude voyce: LORDE, laye not this synne to their charge. And wha he had thus spoken, he fell a slepe.

The VIII. Chapter.

158 Saul had pleasure in his death. At & the same tyme there was a greete perse-cucion ouer the congregacion at Je-159 rusalem. And they were all scattered abode in the regions of Iewry & Samaria, excepte the Apostles. As for Steuen, men & feared God blessed him, and made greete lamena-tion ouer him. But Saul made haorde of the congregacion, entered in to euery house, and drue out men & women, & deliuered 160 to prison. They now & were scattered abode write aboure & preached the worde. The came Philippe in to a cite of Samaria, and preached Christ vnto them. And the people gaue hebe with one accorde vnto & thinges that Philip spake, hearinge him, and seynge the toke that he dyd. For the vncleane spe-161 tes cryed loude, and departed out of many were possessed. And many that were sicke of the pallie and lame, were healed. And there was greete ioye in the same cite.

162 And a fore there was in & same cite a cer-tayne ma, called Symon, which vsd with the craft, and bewitched & people of Samaria, sayenig, that he was a man which coulde do greete thinges. And they all regarded him from the lest vnto & greates, & sayde 163 This is the power of God which is greate.
 But they regarded him, because that of lon-ge tyme he had bewitched them with his socery. Howbeit when they beleued Philips 164 preachinge of & Kyngdome of God, and of the name of Iesu Christ, they were baptysed bothe m & wome. Then Symon himselfe beleued also, and was baptysed, and cleyed vnto philippe. And wha he sawe the vntes and tokens that were done, he wonderd.

When the Apostles which were at Jerusalem, herde that Samaria had receaued the woide of God, they sent vnto the Peter and Iohn. Which, whā they were come, prayed for the, & they might receaue the holy goost. For as yet he was come vpon none of them but they were baptysed only in the name of Christ Iesu. Then layed they their handes on them, and they receaued the holy goost.

But when Simon sawe, that by the layenge on of the Apostles handes the holy goost was geyue, he offered the money, and sayde: Geue me also this power, that, on whomsoeuer I put the handes, he may receaue the holy goost. To whiche Peter sayde vnto him: Perishe thou with thy money, because thou thinkest that the gifte of God may be opraied with money. Thou shalt haue nether part nor fellowship in this woide, for y here is not righte before God. Repente therfore of this thy wickednesse, and praye vnto God, yf happily the thoughte of thy heart maye be forgiven. For I see, that thou art full of bitter gall, and misappied in thy vnrightheousnesse.

Act. 19. b

Then answered Simon, & sayde: Praye ye vnto the LORDE forme, & none of these thinges whereof ye haue spoken, come vpon me. And they, whā they had testified and spokē the woide of the LORDE, turned agayne to Jerusalem, and preached the Gospell in many towne of the Samaritanes.

But the angell of the LORDE spake vnto Philippe, and sayde: Arise, & go towarde the South, vnto the waye that goeth doune from Jerusalem vnto Gaza, which is deserte. And he rose, and wente on. And beholde, a mā of the Moians (ōbe a chamberlayne and of auctouite with Candace y quene of the londe of the Moians) which had the rule of all hir treasuries, yf some came to Jerusalem to worshippe, and returned home agayne, and satte vpon his charet, and red the prophete Esay.

The spere sayde vnto Philippe: Go neare, and ioine thy selfe to yonder charet. The same Philippe vnto him, and herde him red the prophete Esay, and sayde: Vnderstōdest thou what thou readest? He sayde: How can I, excepte some mā enforme me?

Act. 19. b

And he sayed Philippe, that he wolde come vp, and syt with him. The teneur of the scripture which he red, was this: He was led as a shepe to be slayne, and as a lambe voycelesse before his sheper, so opened he not his mouth. In his humblenesse is his iudgment exalted. Who shall declare his generacion? for his life is taken awaye from the earth. Then answered the chamberlayne vnto Philippe, and sayde: I praye the, of whom speakest the prophete this of himselfe, or of some other man?

Philippe opened his mouth, and beganne at this scripture, and preached him the Gospell of Iesu. And as they were on the waye, they came to a water. And the chamberlayne sayde: Beholde, here is water, what hindereth me to be baptysed? Philippe sayde: If thou beleue from thy whole heart, thou mayest be answered, and sayde: I beleue, that Iesus Christ is the sonne of God. And he commaunded to helde fast the charet, and they wente doune in to the water, both Philippe and the chamberlayne. And he baptysed him. But when they were come vp out of the water, the spere of the LORDE toke Philippe awaye. And the Chamberlayne sawe him nomore. But he wente on his waye reioysinge. As for Philippe, he was founde at Asgoud, and walked aboute, and preached the Gospell vnto all the citie, tyll he came to Cesarea.

The X. Chapter.

Saul was yet breachinge out the waye of synge and slaughter agaynst the disciples of the LORDE. And he wente vnto yf he prest, and desired of him letters to Damascon vnto the synagoge, that yf he foude any of this waye (whether they were men or women) he mighte drynge the bonnde vnto Jerusalem. And as he was goinge on his iourney, it fortunede, that he came nye vnto Damascon, and suddenly ther shyned rounde aboute hi a lighte fro heauē, and he fell to the earth, and herde a voyce, which sayde vnto him: Saul Saul, why persecutest thou me? He sayde: LORDE, who art thou? The LORDE sayde: I am Iesus, whō thou persecutest. He shall haue saye to thyse agaynst the pryde. And he was both tremblinge and astonnyed, sayde: LORDE, what wilt thou that I shall do? The LORDE sayde vnto him: Arise, and go into the cite, there shall it be tolde the what thou shalt do.

As so: yf me that iourneyed with him, they stode and were amazed: for they herde a voyce, but sawe noman. Saul rose from the earth, and when he had opened his eyes, he sawe noman. Then reached they toke him by the hande, & broughte him to Damascon, and he was thre dayes without sighte, and necher ate necher drank. A Damascon ther was a disciple named Ananias, and when him sayde the LORDE in a vision: Ananias

And he sayde: behold, here am LORDE.
The LORDE sayde vnto him: Arise, and go into the streete which is called straight, and go in the house of Toba aforesaid one called Saul of Tarsus: for behold, he prayeth, & hath sent in a vision a man named Ananias dunying vnto him, & launge the habde vpon him, that he might receaue his sighte.

Ananias answered: LORDE, I haue her by many of this man, how much euell he hath done to thy sayntes at Ierusalem. And hath had the approouice of the hie prestes, to binde all those that call vpon thy name. The LORDE sayde vnto him: What thy waye, for this man is a chosen vessel vnto me, that he may beare my name before the heathen, and before kynge, and before the children of Israel. I will shewe him, how greate thinges he must suffer for my names sake.

And Ananias wente his waye, and came into the house, and layed the habde vpon him, and sayde: Brother Saul, the LORDE which appeared vnto y in the waye as thou comest, hath sent me, that thou mightest receiue thy sighte, and be fylled with the holy goost. And immediatly there fell from his eyes as it had bene scales, and he receaued his sighte, and rose, and was baptyzed, and ate meate, and was comforted.

Then was Saul a certayne dayes with the disciples that were at Damascus. And straight waye he preached Christ in the synagogues, how that he was of sounce of God.
But all they that herde him, were amased, and sayde: Is not this he, which at Ierusalem spoyleth all those that called on his name: and came hither to the intent that he shoulde bringe them bounde vnto the hie prester? But Saul increased in strength, & disfounded the Jewes which dwelt at Damascus, and affirmed that this was very Christ.

And after many dayes the Jewes held a counnill togeether to kyll him. But it was told Saul, that they layed wayes for him.
And they wayed at that gaza daye & nighte, that they might kyll him. Then the disciples tooke him by nighte, & put him thorothe wall, and let him downe in a baskett.

But when Saul came to Ierusalem, he asked to ioyne himselfe to the disciples. And they were all afrayed of him, and beleued not, that he was a disciple. Then heles Barnabas tooke him, and broughte him to the Apostles, and tolde them how he had sene the LORDE in the waye, and how he spake to him, & how he had done boldly at Damascus in the name of Iesu. And he was with them, and wente out and in at Ierusalem, and quyte himselfe boldly in y name of y LORDE Jesu. He spake also, and disputed with y Greces. But they were aboute to slaye him.

When the brethren knewe that y, they broughte him to Cesarea, and sent him forth to Thersias. So the congregacions had rest thoroout all Jewry, and Galile, and Samaria, & were edified, and walked in the feare of the LORDE, and were fylled with the comforte of the holy goost.

It chaunced that as Peter walked thro-row all quarters, he came also vnto y sayn-tes which dwelt at Lydda. There founde he a man named Aeneas, which had layed vpon his bedde eighte yeres sicke off palsy. And Peter sayde vnto him: Aeneas, Iesus Christ make the whole, arise, and make thy bedde for y self. And he arose immediatly. And all they that dwelt at Lydda and at Straton, sawe him, and turned vnto the LORDE.

At Joppa there was a certayne woman that was a disciple, named Tabitha, which by interpretation is called Dorcas: for she was full of good woikes and almesse dedes, which she dyd. But it chaunced at the same tyme, that she was sicke, and dyed. Then was shed they her, and layed her in a chamber.
But for so much as Lydda was nye vnto Joppa, and the disciples herde that Peter was there, they sent two men vnto him, and besred him, that he wolde take hit to his grese to come vnto them.

Peter rose, and came with them. And wha he was come, they broughte him in to the chamber, and all the wydowes stode rounde aboute him, wepyng, and shewed him the coores and garnettes, which Dorcas made while she was with them. And wha peter had put them all forth, he kneled downe, made his prayer, and turned him vnto the body, and sayde: Tabitha, rise vp. And she opened hir eyes: and whan she sawe Peter & she sat hir downe agayne. But he gasse her the hande, and lifte her vp, and called the sayntes and the widowes, and shewed her things that were done. And it was knowne thoroout all Joppa, & many beleued on y LORDE.
And it fortuned, that he carried a lerge charter at Joppa by one Simas, which was a carner.

The X. Chapter.

There was a man at Cesarea, named Cornelius (a captayne of y company, which is called y Italianyshe) a de-uout man, & one that feared God w all his house, & gaue moche almesse to the people, and prayed God allwaye. The same saine in a uision openly (aboue the nyenth honre of the daye) an angell of God entringe in to him, and sayenge vnto him: Cornelius. He loke vpon him, and was afrayed, and sayeth. LORDE, what is it? He sayde vnto him: Thy prayes z thine almeses are come vp in to remembrance before God. And now sende men vnto Ioppa, z call for Simo, whose synname is Peter, which is at lodgings with one Symon a tanner, whose house lyeth by y^e seayde: he shal tell y^e, what thou oughtest to do. And whā the angell which spake to Cornelius, was departed, he called two of his household seruantes, z a deuoute souldyer, of wh^oche that wayted vpon him: and tolde them all, and sent the to Ioppa.

On the nexte daye after whan these were goinge on their iourney, and came nye vnto the cite, Peter wente vp in to a chamber to praye aboue the sixte houre. And whan he was begyne, he wolde haue eate. But whyle they made ready for him, he fell in to a trance, and saw heaue open, and a vessell comynge downe vnto him, as it had bene a greatesymme clothe, knyt at the foure corners, and was let downe to y^e earth, wherein were all maner of foure footed bestes of the earth, z wyld bestes, and womes, and foules of the ayre. And there came a voyce vnto him: Ryse Peter, slaye, z eate. But Peter sayde: Whā no, LORDE, for I neuer ate any comen or vnclene thyng. And the voyce spake vnto him agayne y^e seconde tyme: What God hath clenfed, y^e make not thou vnclene. This was done thryse. And y^e vessell was receaued vp agayne in to heauen.

But whyle Peter was combed in hys selfe, what maner of vision this shalbe to whiche he had sene, beholde, the men y^e were sent from Cornelius, enquired after Simons house, and rode before the doore, and called, and cryed to herber Simon (whose synname was Peter) were lodged there. Whyle Peter was musinge of the vision, the sperte sayde vnto him: beholde, the men seke the. Arise therfore, and get the downe, z go with the, and denye not, for I haue sent them.

Then wente Peter downe to the men, y^e were sent vnto him from Cornelius, and sayde, I am he whom ye seek: what is y^e cause, wherfore ye are come? They sayde: Cornelius the captaigne, a iust man and one that feared God, and of good reporte amonge all the people of the Jewes, was warned by an holy angell, to sende for the in to his house, and to heare wordes of the. Then called he them in, and lodged them.

The nexte daye a fter wente Peter forth with them, and certayne bretherun of Ioppa bare him company. And y^e daye followinge came they to Cesarea. Cornelius was wated for the, and had called together his friends, and speciall frendes. And as it chaunced y^e Peter came in, Cornelius meet him, and fell downe at his fete, z worshipped him. But Peter toke him vp, and sayde: Stande vp, for I am a man also. And as he called to him, he wente in, and founde many that were come together, and he sayde vnto them: Knowe, that it is not lawfull for a man to be a Jewe to ioyne him selfe to come to a stranger. But God hath shewed me, y^e I shulde call no man comen or vnclene. Therefore haue I not daied to come, as soone as I was sent for. I see you thet are, for what intent haue ye sent for me?

Cornelius sayde: It is now foure dayes I agoe, then fasted I, and at the nyenth houre I prayed in my house, and behelde, than shode a ma before me in a dryghte clothinge, and sayde: Cornelius, y^e prayer is heere, and thine almeses dedes are had in remembrance in the sighte of God. Sende therfore to Ioppa, and call for one Simon (whose synname is Peter) which is at lodgings in y^e house of Simon y^e tanner, by the seefore: y^e same whiche commeth, shal speake vnto y^e. Then sent I vnto the immediately, and thou hast done well, that thou art come. Now are all here present before God, to heare all thyng that art commaunded the of God.

Peter opened his mouth, z sayde: Men percayne I of a truer, that God hath respect of personnes, but in all people he feareth him, and receiveth righteousnes, and accepted vnto him. We knowe of y^e preachinge that God sent vnto the children of Israhel, preachinge the word of Iesus Christ (which is LORDE ouer all) which preachinge published the word ouer all Jewry, and broughte in Galile after y^e baptyme that Iohn preached, how God anoynted the same Iesus of Nazareth with the holy goost, and with power, which wente abouze, z dyd good, and healed all those that were oppreste of the deuill, for God was with him. And we are witnesses of all that he dyd in the look of the Jewes, z at Ierusalem. Whom they slew, and hanged on tre.

Whiche God raised vp on the thirde daye, and caused him to be openly shewed, not only to the people, but to y^e chosen witnesses of God euen vnto vs, which are z dwelt with him, after he was risen vp from the dead. And ¹³ he commaunded vs to prech unto the people, and to testify, that it is he which is ordained of God a wage of the synne and of the deeth. Of him beare all the prophetes witness, that thouw his name all they b bade in him, shal receave remission of synne. While Peter was yet speakyng these wordes, the holy goost fell vps all the that hearkned vnto the worde. And the faith full of the circucision which came with Peter, were astonnyed, because that the gifte of y holy goost was shewd out also vpon the theythen. For they herde that they spake with tonges, and magnified God. The answerd ¹⁴ Peter: Maye any man foibydde water, that thes shulde not be baptyfed, which haue receaued the holy goost as well as we? And he commaunded them to be baptyfed in the name of the LORDE. The prayed they him, that he wolde tary there certayne dayes.

The XI. Chapter.

The Apostles and the brethren that were in Ieruyse, herde saie, that the theythen also had receaued the worde of God. And when Peter was come vnto Jerusalem, they that were of the circucision, chode with him, and sayde: Thou wostt ist in to men that are vncircumcysed, and hast eaten with them. But Peter beganne, and recounted the thinge in order vnto thes and sayde: I was in y cite of Joppa playyng, and in a draunce I sawe a vision, a vessell cmanynge downe, as it had bene a greate henen clothe with foure corners, and let downe from heauen, and came vnto me. In it the which I loket, and considered, and sawe foure footed bestes of the earth, and wyde bestes, and wyomes, and foules of the ayr. And I herde a voyce, which sayde vnto me: Rise Peter, slaye, & eat. But I sayde: Oh no, LORDE, for there neuer entred any comen or vncleane thinge in to my mouth. Tene rebow the voyce answerd me agayne from heauen: What God hath cleyned, that call not thou vncleane. This was done thre tymes, and all was eaten vp agayne vnto heauen.

And beholde, immediately stode there this ¹⁵ man before the dore of the house that I was in, sent from Cesarea vnto me. But the spere sayde vnto me, that I shulde go with the and bouce nothyng. These sixe brethren also came with me, and we entred in to the mans house.

¹⁶ And he shewed vs, how he had sene an angell standinge in his house, which sayde vnto him: Sende men to Joppa, and call for Simon (whose synamme is Peter) he shal tell y wordes, wherby thou and all the house shal be sated. But when I beganne to speak, the holy goost fell vps vpon them, like as vpon vs at y begynnynge. Then thoughte I vpon the worde of the LORDE, how he sayde: Iohn baptyfed with water, but ye shalde baptyfed with y holy goost. Forasmuch then as God hath geuen them like giftes, as vnto vs, which beloue on the LORDE Iesus Christ, who was I that I shulde be able to withstode God? When they herde this, they helde their peace, and prayed God, and sayde: Then hath God al to the theythen granted repentance vnto life.

They that were scatered abrode througout y trouble y rose abouze Steuen, walked on euerysyde vntyll Phenices, and Cipres, and Antioche, and spake the worde vnto noman but onely vnto y Jewes. Tene rebow some of the were men of Cipres and Cyria, which came to Antioche, and spake also vnto the Grekes, & preached the Gosspall of the LORDE Iesu. And y bande of the LORDE was with the. And a greate nombre belaced, and turned vnto the LORDE.

This rydinges of them came to y cates of the congregacion at Jerusalem. And they sent Barnabas, that he shulde go vnto Antioche. Which when he was come thither, y same the grace of God, he was glad, and ¹⁷ exoned them all, that with purpose of herte they wolde continye in the LORDE. For he was a good man, full of the holy goost and faith. And there was a grete multitude of people added vnto the LORDE. But Barnabas departed vnto Charus, to selle Saul. And wha he had solde hi, he broughe hi to Antioche. It chauced, that a whole yeare they were there cōuersaunt together in the congregaciō, & taughte moche people, so that the disciples at Antioche were first called Chresten.

In those dayes came there prophetes fro Jerusalem vnto Antioche. And one of them (whose name was Agabus) stode vp, and declared by the spere a greate dert, that shalde come ouer the whole compass of the earth: which came to passe vnter the Emperoure Claudius. But the disciples cōcluded (euery one accordinge to his abylyte) to sende an handmaichinge vnto y brethren that were in Ieruyse: which thinge they also yd, and sent it by the handes of Barnabas and Saul.

The XII. Chapter.

A The same tyme layed kynge Herode handes vpon certayne of the congregacion, to vexe them. As for James the brother of Ihon, him he slew with the swerde. And when he sawe that it pleased the Jewes, he proceeded farther to take Peter also. But it was after. Now when he had taken him, he put him in prison, and delynered him vnto foure quaterions of soldiers, to kepe him: and thought a fter. After to bringe him forth to the people. And Peter was kepte in the prison. But prayer was made without ceasinge of the congregacion, vnto God for him. And when He-rode wolde haue broughte him out vnto the people, in the same nyghte slepe Peter betwene two sonners, bounde with two cheynes. And the keepers befor the doore kep to the prison.

B And beholde, the angell of the LORDE was there presente, and a lighte shyned in the habicacion, and he smote Peter on the syde, and waked him vp, and sayde: Arise vp quickly. And the cheynes fell of from his bondes. And the angell sayde vnto him: Gye de the, and put on thy shues. And he dyd so.
 And he sayde vnto him: Cast thy mantle abouce the, and folow me. And he wente out, and folowed him, and wist not, that it was truely that was done by 3 angell but thoughte he had sene a vision. Theretheles they wente thowr the first and seconde watch, and came to the yron gate, that le-dech vnto the cite, which opened to the by his awne acorde. And they wente out, and passed thowr one street, and immediatly the angell departed from him.

C And when Peter was come to himselfe, he sayde: Now I knowe of a truely, that y LORDE had sene his angell, and deliuered me out of the hande of Herode, and from all the mayninge for the people of the Jewes. And as he considered the thinge, he came to the house of Marye the mother of one Ihon, (which after his surname was called Marthe) where many were gathered together, and prayed. As Peter knocked at the entry doore, there came forth a damsell of heretters, named Rhoda. And when she heere Peters voyce, she opened not the en-trye for gladnes, but raue in, and tolde, that Peter stode before 3 entrye. But they sayde vnto her: Thou art mad. Theretheles she abode by it, that is was so. They sayde: it is his angell. But Peter continued knockinge.
 When they opened the doore, they sawe him, and were astonnyed. But he beckned vnto them with the hande, to holde their peaces: tolde them, how the LORDE had broughte him out of the prison. And he sayde: These thin vnto James, and to the brethren. And he departed, and wete in to another place.

When it was daye, there was not a litte a doo amoge the iudayers, what was become of Peter. When Herode had called for him, and founde him not, he caused the se-pers to be examyned, and commaunded the to be caried awaye, and he wente downe Jeruy vnto Cesarea, and there abode. But he was displeasid with the of Tyre and Sidon. Theretheles they came vnto him with one accorde, and made intercession to Blasius the kynge chamberlayne, and desired peace, because their countre was mouby the kynge of londe. But vpon a daye ap-poynted, Herode put on 3 kingly apparel, sat him downe vpon the iudgmente seat, and made an oracion vnto them. As for the people, they cried thereto: This is a voyce of God, and not of a man. Immediatly the angell of the LORDE smote him, because he gaue not God the honoure: And he was eaten vp of wormes, and gaue up the goost. But the wordes of God grewe, and multiplied. As for Barnabas and Saul, they came agayne to Jerusalem, and deli-uered - the handiexchange, and toke with them Ihon, whose surname was Mark.

The XIII. Chapter.

T Here were at Antioche in the congregacion, prophetes and teachers, as Barnabas, and Simon called Mggcr, and Lucius of Cyren, and Manasserus the Tetrachas noisfelowe, and Saul. As they stued y LORDE, and fasted, the holy goost sayde: Separate me out Barnabas and Saul for the worke, where so I haue called them. Then fasted they and prayed, and layed the handes on them, and let them go. And they beyng sent of the holy goost, came vnto Seleucia, from thence they sayled vnto Cypers. And when they were come in to the cite Salamis, they shewed the wordes of God in the synagoga of y Jewes. And they had Ihon to their mynister.

And when they had gone thowr out the yle vnto the cyte of Paphos, they sawe a certayne Sorcerer and false prophet, a Jewe (whose name was Barjesu) which was with Sergius Paulus the ruler of the countre, a mā of vnderstandinge. The same called Daridabas and Saul vnto him, and Saul which is also called Paul, beinge full of the holy goost, looked vpon him, and sayde: O thou childe of the desell, full of all stur-yll and all dyceat fulnesse, and enemye of all ryghteousnes, thou crossest not to p^{er}uerte the straight wayes of y^e LORDE. And now beholde, the hāde of the LORDE cometh vpon the, and thou shalt be blynde, and nor sethe Sonne for a season, And immediatly there fell on him a myst and darknesse, and he wente aboute, and songhe them that shalde lede him by the hande. Whan the ruler sawe what was done, he beleued, and w^o led at the doctryne of the LORDE.

b. Whan Paul and they that were with him, were departed by shippe frō Paphos, they came to Perga in the londe of Pamphilia. But Jhon departed from them, and wente agayne to Jerusalem. Teneth the les they wandred thowm from Perga, and came to Antioche in the londe of Siria, and wote in to the synagoge vpon the Sabbath daye, and sat doune. But after the lecture of the lawe and of the prophetes, the rulers of the synagoge sent vnto them, say-yng: Good brether, ys ye haue any sermon to exorte the people, saye ou. Then stode Paul vp, and b^eckened with the hande (that they shulde holde their peace) and sayde:

Men of Israell, and ye that feare God, heere to: The God of this people chose our fathers, and exalted the people, whan they were strangers in the lode of Egipte, and with a mighty arme brought hee the most of it. And by the space of fortye yeres sustained he their maners in the wyldernes, and destroyed ieiernacions in the lande of Can-anan, and parted their londe amonge them by lot. After that gaue he them iudges by the space of foure hundred and fiftye yea-res, vnto the prophet Sauiuel. And after that they desired a kynge, and God gaue vnto them Saul the sonne of Cis, a man of the crybe of Beniamin, foureyeares lon-ge. And whan he had put him doune, he set vp Dauid to be their kynge, of whom he reported sayenge: I haue founde Dauid the sonne of Jesse, a man after myn hert, he shal fulfill all my wyll.

c. Of this man sode hath God (* a combingeto the promysse) broughte forth vnto the people of Israell, y^e Sauoure Jesus: whan

Jhon had first preached before his comyng the baptyeme of repentance vnto Israell.
 But whan Jhon had fulfilled his course, he sayde: I am not he, that ye take me for.
 But beholde, there cometh one after me, whose shoes of his feete I am not worthy to losse. Men and brether, ye children of the generacion of Abiaham, and they that feare God amonge you, vnto you is y^e worde of this saluacion sent. For the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and their rulers, for somuch as they knewe him not, nor yet the voyces of the prophetes (which are redde eue-ry Sabbath) haue fulfilled them in condemnyng him. And though they founde no cause of death in him, yet desired they to late to kyll him. And n^o han they had fulfilled all that was wyrtten of him, they toke him doune from the tre, and layed him in a sepulcre. But on y^e thirde daye God rayfed him vp from the dead, and he appeared many dayes vnto the, that wente vp with him from Babilone to Jerusalem, which are his witnesses vnto the people.

And we also declare vnto you y^e promys, which was made vnto our fathers, how that God hath fulfilled the same vnto vs their children, in y^e he rayfed vp Jesus agayne.
 As it is wyrtten in the seconde Psalme: Thou art my sonne, this daye haue I bego-ten thee. But that he hath rayfed him vp frō the dead, nom nomore to returne to corruption, he sayde on this wyse: The grace promysed to Dauid, wyl I saith fully kepe vnto you. Therfore sayeth he also in another place: Thou shalt not suffre thy holy rote corruption. For Dauid, whan he in his tyme had serued the wyll of God, he fell a slepe, and was layed by his fathers, y^e sawe corruption. But he w^o God rayfed vp agayne, sawe no corruption.

De it knowe vnto you therfore ye men and brether, y^e theowm this man is preached vnto you y^e foureynes of synnes, and ser-all y^e thynges, whereby ye mighte not be iustyfied in the lawe of Moses. But whosoe-beluech on this man, is iustified. Bewarre therfore, that it come not vpon you, which is spoken in the prophetes: Beholde ye despi-sero, and wonder at it, and per:se, for I do a wote in youre synne, which ye shal not beleue, ys cry man tell it you.

Whan the Jewes were gone out of the synagoge, the heythen besonghe the. y^e they wolde speake y^e worde vnto them be-twene the Sabbath dayes. And whā the cōgregacion of the synagoge was broken vp, many Jewes and Proselytes & serued God, folowed Paul and Barnabas, which spake to them, and exorted them, that they shulde continue in the grace of God.

AC. II. C

E On y Sabbath followinge, came almost the whole cite together, to heare the worde of God. But whan the Jewes sawe the people, they were full of indignacion, and spake agaynst that which was spoken of Paul, speakinge agaynst it, & blasphemynge. But Paul and Barnabas wared bolde, and sayde: It behoued first the worde of God to be spoken vnto you: but now that ye thrust it fro you, and counte youre selues unworthy of everlastinge life, we turne to the Gentyles. For so hath the LORDE commaunded vs: I haue set the to be a lighte vnto y Gentyles, & thou be y Saluacion vnto the ende of the earth. Whan the Gentyles herde that, they were glad, and praysed the worde of the LORDE, and blessed, as many as were ordeymed to everlastinge life. And the worde of y LORDE was spred abrode thowout all the region. Howbeit the Jewes moued the deuotione and honorable women, and the dysciples of the cite, and raysed vp a persecution agaynst Paul and Barnabas, and expelled them out of their countie. But they shoke of the dust of their feet agaynst them, and came to Iconium. And the bisciples were fylled with ioye and with the holy goost.

T he foruned at Iconium, that they wete boch together in to the synagoge of the Jewes, and spake so, that a greate multitude of the Jewes & of the Grekes belised. But the vnbelyuyng Jewes moued and dysquayed the soules of the heathen agaynst the birth. So they had their beyng there a longe season, and quyte them selues boldly in the LORDE, which gaue testimony vnto the worde of his grace, and caused tokens and wonders to be done by their handes. Howbeit the multitude of the cite was deuoyded, some helde w the Jewes, and some w the Apostles.

MARC. I. C

But whan there rose vp an insurrection of the heathen and of y Jewes, and of their rulers, to put them to shame, and to stone the, they perceaued it, and fled vnto Lystra and Derba cities of y countie of Liconia, and vnto y region that lyeth rounde aboute, and therer they preached the Gospell.

MARC. I. C

And amonge them of Lystra, there was a man, which was beyng impotent of his feet, and was crept fro his mothers wombe, and had neuer walked, the same he had heard speake. And whan he behelde him, and perceaued that he had faith to be made whole, he sayde w a loude voyce: Stande vpon thy feet. And he sprang vpon and walked. But whan the people sawe what Paul had done, they lifte vp their voyce, and saye in y speache of Liconia: It he goddes art become like vnto men, and are come downe vnto vs. And they called Barnabas Iupiter, and Paul Mercurius, because he was the preacher. But Jupiters prest which dwelt before that cite, broughte oken and garlandes before the gate, and wolde haue doned a cruce w the people.

Whan y Apostles Barnabas and Paul herde that, they rent their clothes, and ranne in amonge the people, cryenge and sayng: We me, Why do ye this? We ate men and me also like vnto you, & preach vnto you y Gospell, that ye shulde turne from these waynethinges vnto y luyng God, which made heaue and earth, and the see, and all that therein is, which in tymes past suffered all y heythen to walke a fter their owne waye. It teacheth us he hath not lefte his selfe wthout wyneffe, in y he hath shewed his benefices, and given vs raine from heauen, and fructfull seasons, fyllinge oure bettes wth fode and gladnesse. And whan they sayd this, they scarce refrayned the people, that they byd not sacrifice vnto them.

But there came thither certayne Jewes from Antioche and Iconium, and persued the people, and stoned Paul, and drew him out of the cite, supposinge he had bene dead. Howbeit as y discipules stode rounde aboute him, he rose vp, & came in to the cite. And on the nexte daye he departed wth Barnabas vnto Derba, and preached the Gospell vnto the same cite, and taughte many of them. And they wete agayne vnto Lystra, and Iconium and Antioche, strengtheninge the soules of y discipules, and exhortinge the to cōtinue in the faith: and that we wthout much tribulacion must entre in to the kingdome of God. And whā they had ordeymed them selfers by election thowout all the congregacions, they prayed and fasted, and commaunded them vnto the LORDE, as whā they belised.

And they wente thowout Paphia, and came to Pamphilia, and spake the worde at Perga, and wete downe to Attalia, and thence departed they by shippe vnto Antioche: from whence they were belyueues of the grace of God vnto y now, which they had fulfilled. When they came there, they gathered the congregation together, & showed them, how great things God had done with them, and how he had opened the booke of scripture unto the heathen. And there they stood a longe tyme with the disciples.

The XV. Chapter.

¶ Now there came certayne frō Jewry, and taughte the brethren: Excepte ye be circumcysed after the maner of Moses, ye can not be saved. Now whā these were of a discision, and Paul and Barnabas had set them stiles harde agaynst them, they agreed, that Paul and Barnabas and certayne other of them shulde go up to Jerusalem unto the Apostles and Elders, aboute this questio. And they were brought in their waye by congregacion, & wente throughe Phenicia and Samaria, & declared the communicacion of the heathen, and broughte great ioye unto all the brethren.

¶ When they came to Jerusalem, they were receaved of congregacion, & of the Apostles, and of the Elders, and they tolde how great things God had done with them. Then rose there up certayne of the secte of Phariseis (which believed) and sayde: They must be circumcysed and commaunded, to kepe the lawe of Moses. But the Apostles and Elders came together, to reason vpon this matter.

¶ Now when there was inoch disputinge Peter rose up, and sayde vnto the: Ye men and brethren, ye knowe that a good while agoe, God chose amonge vs, of the heathen by my mouth shulde heare the worde of the Gospel, and beleue. And God the knower of herthes bare witness ouer the, and gaue the holy gost, like as vnto vs, & put no difference betwene vs & them, and purified their herthes throughe saych. Now therfore why tempte ye God, with layenge vpon the disciples neede the yoke, which neither our fathers nor we were able to beare? But we be liane to be saved throughe the grace of the LORD Iesu Christ, like as they also. Thus all the multitude helde their peace, and gaue audience vnto Paul and Barnabas, which tolde howe great tokens and wonders God had done by them amonge the heathen. After wards when they helde their peace, James answered, and sayde: Ye men and brethren, heere is one, Simō hath tolde, howe God at the first visyted to receaue a people vnto his name from amonge the heathen. And now this agree to wordes of the prophetes, as it is wyrted: After this wyl I retorne and wyl buyde agayne the tabernacle of Dauid, that is fallen downe, and that which is fallen in decaye therof, wyl I buyde agayne, and wyl set it vp, that the residue of men maye seeke after the LORD. For the heathen vnto whom my name is named, sayeth the LORD, which doth all these thynges. And nowe vnto God are all his wyrtes from the begynnyng of the worlde. Wherefore my sentence is, that they which from amonge the heathen are turned vnto God, be not disquyeted, but to wyte vnto them, that they absteyne them selues from such thynges of Idoles, from whoredome, and from strangling, and bloud. For Moses hath of olde tyme in every cite them that teach him; and he is red in the synagoges euery Sabbath daye.

And the Apostles and Elders with the whole congregacion thoughte it good, to chose out men of them, and to sende them vnto Antioche with Paul and Barnabas, namely Judas, whose surname was Barsabas, and Silas (which were the best men amonge the brethren) and gaue the letters in their handes after this maner:

We the Apostles and Elders & brethren, wish health vnto the brethren of the heathen which are at Antioche, and Syria and Cilicia. So so much as we haue herde that certayne of oures are departed, and haue troubled you, and combred youre mynde, sayenge: ye must be circumcysed, and kepe the lawe (to whom we gaue no such commaundment) it seemed good vnto vs, beyuge gathered together with one accorde, to chose out men, and to sende them vnto you, with oure beloved Barnabas and Paul, men that haue observed their lynes for the name of soore LORD Iesu Christ. Therfore haue we sent Judas and Silas, which shal also tell you the same with wordes. For it pleased the holy gost and vs, to laye no charge vpon you, more then these necessary poyntes: That ye absteyne from the offeringes of Idoles, and from bloude, and from strangling, and from whoredome. From the which if ye absteyne youre selues, ye shal do well. Fare ye well.

When these were sent forth, they came vnto Antioche, and gathered the multitude together, and deliuered the epistle. When they had red it, they were glad of that exhortacion. As for Judas & Silas (which were prophetes also) they departed from the brethren inoch preachinge, and streyged them. And when they had taried there for a season, they were let go of the brethren in peace.

row Mysia, they came downe to Troada, and there appeared a vision vnto Paul by night, that there was a man of Macedonia which stode and prayed him, and sayde: Come downe to Macedonia, and helpe vs.
When he had sene yf vision, we soughte immediately to go, vnto Macedonia, beinge certified, that yf LORDE had called vs thither, to preache the Gospell vnto them. The departed we from Troada, and came the straight course vnto Samothracia, on the nexte daye to Neapolis, and from thence Philippos, which is the cheefe cite of the londe of Macedonia, and a sit cite. In this he abode we certayne dayes.

¶ On the daye of the Sabbathes wente we out of the cite beyde the water, wher many were wonte to praye, and we sat downe, and spake vnto the women that resorted thither.
And a deuoute woman (named Lydia) a seller of purple, out of the cite of Thracia, herkened to, whose heart the LORDE opened that she gaue heede vnto the thinges that Paul spake. When she was baptysed, she broughte vs, and sayde: My house is open, I beleue on the LORDE, then came in to my house, and a byde thow.

¶ It founde when we wente to praye, yf there met vs a damisell, which had a spere of syrachyng, and broughe hit master and mastrisse greate waunage with syrachyng ge: yf same folowed Paul and vs, and cryed, and sayde: These men are the seruantes of the most hye God, which shewe vs yf way of saluacion. This byd she many dayes. But Paul was not content with hit, and toke him aboute, and sayde vnto the spere: I maunde the in the name of Ihu Christ, that thou departe out of her. And he departed out at the same houre.

¶ But whā hit master and mastrisse saw that the hope of their waunage was gone, they toke Paul and Sylas, broue them in to the marke place before yf rulers, and broughe thē vnto the officers, and sayde: These men trouble our cite, and are Jewes, and teach an obdyaunce, which is not lawfull for vs to receaue, ner to observe, syngce we are Romayns. And the people rāse on them, and the officers rente their clothes, and commanded them to be beaten with roddes. And when they had beaten them sore, they cast thē in prison, and commanded the keeper to kepe them diligently. Whiche when he had receaued such commandement, he called thē in to the ymer prison, and put their sin the fodes.

¶ But at midnight prayed Paul and Sy-las, and prayed God. And the prison was broken open. And suddenly was there a great earthquake, so that the foundations of the prison were shaken, and immediatly were all the doores open, and all their bondes loosed.
Whiche when the keeper wolded out of slepe, and sawe the prison doores open, he drew his swerde, and wolde haue kyllid him selfe.

first thoughte of prisoners had bene fled. But Paul cryed loud, and sayde: Do thy self no harme, for we are all here.

he called for a lighte, and sprange in, and climbed, and fell at the feet of Paul and Syllas, and broughte them out, and sayde: Sires, what must I do, to be saved? They sayde: Believe on the LORDE Iesus, and so shalt thou and thy housholde be saved. And they preached the worde of the LORDE vnto him, and so all that were in his house.

And he toke them to him in the same house, and washed their stropes. And immediatly was he baptysed, and all his. And he broughte them in to his house, and set them a table, and reioysed with all his housholde, that he was become a beleuer on God.

And when it was daye, the officers of the cite sent mynisters, and sayde: Let these men go. And the keeper of the prison tolde this sayenge vnto Paul: The officers haue sent for her, that ye shoulde be loose. Now therefore see you hie, and go in peace. But Paul sayde vnto them: They haue becomen openly vncorrupted, where as we are yet Romanyes: and haue cast vs in prison, and shoulde they now thrust vs out proudly? No, so, but let them come them selues, and bringe vs out. The mynisters tolde these wordes vnto the officers. And they feared, when they herde that they were Romanyes, and came and besoughte them, and purged the to departe out of the cite. Then wrote they out of the prison, and entered in to the house of Lydia. And when they had sent the brethren and comforted them, they departed.

The XVII. Chapter.

As they made their iourney thow Amphiopolis and Apollonia, they came to Thessalonica, where was a synagoge of the Jewes. And Paul (as his maner was) went in vnto them, and vpon the Sabbathes he spake vnto them of the scriptures, opened in vnto the, and alleged, that Christ must needs haue suffered, & rise agayne from the dead: and this Iesus, whom I preach vnto you (sayde he) is of same Christ. And some of the beloued, and were ioyned vnto Paul and Syllas, a greates multitude of other deuoute Grekes, and of the chiefe women not a fewe.

But the stiffnecked Jewes had indignation, and toke vnto them certayne euill men which were vagabondes, and gathered a company, and set the cite in a rout, and pressed vnto the house of Jason, and soughte to bringe them out vnto the comon people. But when they founde them not, they brake Jason, and certayne brethren vnto the rulers of the cite, and cryed: These that trouble all the worlde, are come hither also, whom Jason hath receaued privately. And these all do contrary to the decrees of the Emperoure, sayenge, that there is another kynge, one Iesus. They troubled the people, and the rulers of the cite, that herde this. And when they had receaued a sufficient answer of Jason and of the other, they let them go.

But the brethren immediatly sent away Paul and Syllas by night vnto Berea. When they came there, they went in to the synagoge of the Jewes (for they were the best amonge the at Thessalonica) which receaued the worde maruelously willingly, and searched the scriptures daylie, whether it were euen so. Then beloued many of them, and worshipfull women of the Grekes, and men not a fewe. But when the Jewes of Thessalonica had knowlege, that the worde of God was preached off Paul at Berea, they came, and moued the people there also. Howbeit the brethren sent Paul awaye then immediatly, to go vnto the see. As for Syllas and Timotheus, they abode there still.

They that conueyed Paul, broughte him vnto Athens. And when they had receaued a comm. vnto Syllas and Timotheus, that they shoulde come vnto him in all the haist, they wente their waye. But whyle Paul wayed for them at Athens, his spere was moued in him, when he sawe the cite gaue so to the worshippinge of ymagges. And he spake vnto the Jewes and deuoute persons in the synagoge, & in synagoge daylie vnto the that came to him. But certayne philosophers of the pictures and Stoikes disputed with him. And some sayde: What wilt this babbler saye? But some sayde: he seemeth to be a rindger bynnger of newe goddes. (That was, because he had preached vnto the the Gospell of Iesus, & of the resurrection.) And they toke him, and broughte him before the counsell house, and sayde: Wylde we not knowe, what newe doctrine this is that thou teachest? For thou bringest strange rindgers to oure eares. We wolde knowe therefore, what this meaneth. As for all they of Athens, and strangers also, they gaue the silens to stryngers, but either to tell, or to heare some newes.

D Paul stood on the myddes of the common place, and sayde: Ye me of Athens. I fe that in all thinges ye are to superstitious. I haue gone throught, & fene youre gods seruyce, and founde an altare, where vps was wrytten: To the unknowne God. Now wherewith vnto you I same, whom ye worshippe ignorantly. God which made I woulde, and all that therein is, fo so much as he is LORDE of heauen and earth, dwelleth not in temple made of handes, neither is he worshipped with mens handes, as though he had neede of eny mans seuyce he himselfe genereth life and breath vnto all men every where: and hath made of one bloude all the generation of men to dwell vps all the face of y earth: and hath assigned beiders appoynted before, how longe and farre they shalbe dwell, that they shoulde feele the LORDE, yf they might feele and fynde him.

E And truly he is not farre from every one of vs. For in him we lyue, moue, and haue our beinge, as certayne of youre arene Poesets also haue sayde: We are his generation. For as much then as we are the generation of God, we oughte not to thinke that the Godhead is like vnto golde or silver, or ymagery worke of the crafte or ymaginacion of man. And truly God hath ouersene the cyme of ignorance: But now he commaundeth all men every where to repent, because he hath appoynted a daye, in the which he wyl iudge the copass of the world, with righteousnesse, by that one man in whō he hath appoynted it: and offered faith vnto all men, a feere that he had raysed him vp from the dead.

When they herde of the resurrection of the dead, some mocked. But some sayde: We wyl heare the agayne of this matter. So Paul departed from amonge them. Howbeit certayne men clawe vnto him, and beleued: amonge whom was Dionysius, one of the counsell: and a woman named Damaris, and other with them.

The XVIII. Chapter.

21 After that departed Paul fro Athens, and came to Couinchum, and founde a Ience named Aquila, domein pōtiae, which was lately come out of Italy: and his wife Priscilla (because the Emperōr Claudius had commaunded all Iewes to departe from Rome) and he dwelt vnto the. And because he was of the same crafte, he abode with the, and wroughte. Their crafte was to make tentes. And he preached in the synagoge every Sabbath daye, and exhorted the Jewes and the Greekes.

When Syllas and Timotheus were come fro Macedonia, Paul was constrained by the spūite to testifye vnto y Jewes, that Iesus was very Christ. But whā they sayde contrary and blasphemet, he shote his rayment, and sayde vnto them: Your bloude be vpon youre owne heade. From hence forth I go blamelesse vnto the Gentyles. And he departed thence, and came in to the house of a man named Justus, which feared God, and his house was nexte vnto the synagoge. Howbeit Crispus the chiefe ruler of the synagoge, beleued on y LORDE with all his household. And many of the Couinchums that gaue audience, beleued, and were baptised.

The LORDE spake vnto Paul by a vision in y night: Be not afraid, but speake, and holde not thy peace, for I am with the, and no man shal inuade the that shal hurt the, for I haue much people in this cite. So cōtynued there a yere and sixe monethes, and taught them the worde of God.

But when Gallio was ruler of the countre of Achaja, the Jewes made insurrection vnto one acorde agaynst Paul, & broughte him before the iudgment seate, and sayde: This felow conuinceleth men so worshippe God contrary to the lawe. When Paul was aboute to open his mouth, Gallio sayde vnto y Jewes: If it were a matter of wronge or an euell dede (O ye Jewes) reason wylde that I shoulde heare you: but yf it be a questiō of wordes, and of names, and of y lawe amonge you, lette ye to it youre selues. I thinke not to be iudge there ouer. And he doote them from the iudgment seate. Then all the Greekes toke Sosthenes the ruler of the synagoge, and smote him before the iudgment seate. And Gallio cared for none of the thinges.

Paul after y he had caried a good whyle, wrote his leue of the bishoppen, and sayde vnto Syria, Priscilla & Aquila bearing his company. And he shote his heade at Caesarea: for he had a woman: & came downe to Ephesus, & lefte them there. But he himselfe wete in to the synagoge, and reasoned with the Jewes. And they desired him, that he woulde tary with them a longer season. And he cōfessed not, but bad them farewell, and sayde: I must needs ineny wyse deperte this feast that commeth at Jerusalem: but God wyl, I wyl returne agayne vnto you.

And he departed from Ephesus, and unto Caesars, and wente up, and saluted of congregacion, and toke his iourney downe to Antioche, and taried there a certayne tyme, and departed, and walked throu all y^e countrey of Galacia and Phrygia by order, and strenghted all the disciples.

¶ There came vnto Ephesus a certayne Jewe named Apollo (borne at Alexandria) an eloquent man, and mightie in the scriptures: the same was instructed in the waye of the LORDE, and spake sternely in the synagoge, and taughte diligently the thinges of the LORDE, and knewe but the baptyeme off Ihon only. The same beganne to speake boldly in the synagoge. When Aquila and Pucilla a herde him, they toke him vnto the, and espoused the waye of God vnto him more perfectly. For when he wolde go in to Asia, the brethren wrote, and troated the disciples to ceasse him. And when he was come thither, he helped them much which belated throu grace. For the ouercame the Jewes mightely, and shewed openly by scripture, that Iesus was Christ.

The XIX. Chapter.

When Iohn Apollo was at Coarinthum, that Paul walked throu the upper coastes, and came to Ephesus, and founde certayne disciples, vnto whom he sayde: haue ye receaved y^e holy goosfence ye beleue? They sayde vnto hi: We haue not herde, wher her there be an holy goosf. He sayde vnto them: Where with then were ye baptyesed? They sayde: With the baptyeme of Ihon. Paul sayde: Ihon baptyesed with the baptyeme of repentance, and spake vnto y^e people, that they shulde beleue on him, which shulde come a fter him, that is, on Iesus, that the same is Christ. When they herde that, they were baptyesed in the name of the LORDE Iesu. And when Paul ayled the heade on the, the holy goosf came vpon them, and they spake with tunge, and prophesied. And all the men were aboute vnto.

¶ He wente in to y^e synagoge, and preacheb boldly thre monethes longe, teachinge, and strayinge than exortacions of the Kingdome of God. But when byeris waxed herde proud, and beleued not, and spake euell of the waye of the LORDE before the multitude, he departed from them, and separated the disciples, and disputed daye in the scole of one called Tyrannus. And this was done two yeres lōge, so that all they which dwelt in Asia, herde the worde of the LORDE Iesu, both Jewes & Gentes. And God wroughte no small miracles by the handes of Paul, so that from his body there were broughte napplyms or parcelces vnto the sicke, and the diseases departed from them, and the euell sprees wente out of them.

¶ But certayne of the vagabondes Jewes which were contumacious, undertooke to name y^e name of the LORDE Iesus, ouer those that had euell sprees, and sayde: We charge you by Iesus whom Paul preacheth. They were silent fornes of one Sereia a Jewe the hye priest, which bydd so. The euell spree answered, and sayde: Iesus I knowe, and Paul I knowe, but who are ye? And the man in whō the euell spree was, ranne vpon them, and ouercame them, and cast them vnder him, so that they fleyd out of the same house naked and wounded. This was knowen vnto all the Jewes and Gentes which dwelt at Ephesus, and there fell a feare vpon them all. And y^e name of the LORDE Iesus was magnified. Many of these also that beleued, came and confessed, and shewed their roctes. But many of them that had vsed carious craftes, broughte the booke together, and burnt them openly: and they counted the pryce of them, and founde it of mony sixtye thousande pens. So mightely grew y^e worde of the LORDE, and ptuayled.

¶ When this was done, Paul purposed in the spere to take his iourney throu Macedonia and Asia, and to go to Iersusalem, and sayde: After that I haue bene there, I muste se Rome also. And he sent in to Macedonia two that mistrust vnto him, Timotheus and Erastus. But he himselfe remayned in Asia for a season. At the same tyme there was no litle doo aboute that waye. For a certayne man named Demetrius a goldsmith, which made silver shrines for Diana, and broughte them of the craffe no small vantage. To him he gathered together, and the felloweworkers of the same occupation, and sayde: Syn, ye knowe that by this craffe we haue vantage, and yett and beare: that not onely at Ephesus, but almoste also throu out all Asia, this Paul earnestly awaie much people with his persuaynge, and sayeth: They be not goddes that are made with handes. Howbeit it shal not onely bringe our occupation to this pointe to be set at naughte, but also the temple of greete Diana shal from hence forth be despyed, and hir maiestie also shalbe destroyed, notwithstandinge all Asia and the wilde westpeth.

¶ When they herde this, they were full of D wich, cried out, and sayde: Great is Diana of the Ephesians. And all that cite was on a roare, and they rushed in with one assent in to the open place, and toke Gaius and Aristarchus of Macedonia, Pauls company ons. When Paul wolde haue gone in among the people, the disciples suffred him not. Certayne also of that of Asia which were Pauls good frendes, sent vnto him, and besued him, that he shoulde not passe in to the open place. Some cried one thinge, some another. And the congregation was out of quyre, and the more parte knewe not wherfore they were come together. Some of the people came forth Alexander, when of Jewes chaust him forward. Alexander beckened with the hande, and wolde haue given the people an answer. But when they knewe that he was a Jewe, there arose a shout of all, and cried the space of two houres: Great is Diana of the Ephesians.

¶ When the rowne Clarke had stilled the people, he sayde: Ye men of Ephesus, what man is it which knoweth not, that the cite of Ephesus is a worshipper of the great goddess Diana, and of the heavenly ymage: Seinge now that this can not be sayde agaynst ye, oughte to be contente, and to do nothinge without aduysment. We haue broughte hither these men, which are neither churchrobbers ner blasphemers off youre goddess.

But yff Demetrius and they that are craftsmen with him, haue oughte to saye vnto any man, the lawe is open, and there are rulers, let them accuse one another. But yf ye wil go aboute any other thinge, it maye be determined in a lawfull congregation. For we stande in feare to be accused of this daye uppon: and yet is there no man gyle of it, whom we mighte geue a reuengynge of this uppon. And when he had sayde this, he let the congregation departe.

The XX. Chapter.

¶ Now when the uppon was crasid, Paul called the disciples vnto him, and toke his leaue of them, and departed to go in to Macedonia. And when he had gone thow those partes, and exhorted them with many wordes, he came in to Bithonia, and there abode thie moethes. But when the Jewes layed waye for him, as he was aboute to sayle in to Syria, he purposed to turne agayne thow Macedonia. There accompanied him in to Asia, Gopater of Berea: and of Thessalonica, Archarchus and Secundus: and Gaius of Derba, and Timotheus: but of Asia, Trypho and Trophimus. These wente before, and caried for vs at Troada: but he sayled after the Easter dayes from Phillippos, vnto the fifth daye, and came to them vnto Troada, and caried there seven dayes.

¶ Upon one of the Sabbathes, when the disciples came together to heare him, Paul preached vnto them, wishinge to departe on the morow, and contynued the preaching vnto mydnyght. And there were many lightes in the chamber, where they were gathered together. There sat a yonge man named Eurycho, in a wyndow, and fell in to a depe slepe (why he Paul was speakinge) and was ouer come with slepe, and fell downe from the chaire lofte, and was taken vp dead. But Paul wente downe, and fell on him, and embraced him, and sayde: Make nothinge a doo, for his soule is in he. Then wente he vp, and brate the bed, and arose, and talked much with the, vntill the daye brake, and so departed. As for the yonge man, they broughte him alyue, and were not a litle comforted.

But we wente afore in to the shippe, and sayled toward: Asson, willinge there to see ceane Paul. For so had he appointed, and wolde himselfe go on foot. When he was come to vs vnto Asson, we toke him in, and came to Mitylene, and sayled from thence, and came on the nexte daye ouer agaynst Chios, and on the daye followinge we aryued at Samos, and taried at Tragilion, and on the nexte daye came we to Miletion: for Paul had determined to sayle ouer by Ephesus, that he woude not to sende them in to Asia: for he haisted to be at Jerusalem vpo the Whitsundaye, yf it were possible for him.

But from Miletion he sent vnto Ephesus, and called for the Elders of the congregation. When they were come to him, he sayde vnto them: Ye knowe since the first daye that I came in to Asia, after what manner I haue bene with you at all tyme, and strucke I LORDE with all humbleness of mynde, and with many teares and wealdions, which happened vnto me by I saynges of wayte of the Jewes, howe I haue kepte backe nothinge ymas profitable, but that I haue shewed you, and taughte you openly, and patiently from house to house. And haue testified both vnto the Jewes, and to the Grekes: the repentance to turne

God, and saith towarde oure LORDE Ie-su.

And now beholde, I go bounde in y^e spie unto Jerusalem, not knowinge what shal happen there vnto me, but y^e holy goost witnesseth in every cite, and sayeth, that torment and trouble shal be to me there. But I regard none of them, neither counte I my life dearer then my selfe, that I maye fulfil my charge with ioy, and the office y^e I haue receaued of the LORDE Iesu, to testifie the Gospell of the grace of God.

And now beholde, I knowe that ye shal se my face nomore, all ye, thowro whom I haue gone, and perached the Kingdome of God. Wherefore I take you to recorde this daye, that I am pure from the bloude of all men: For I haue receyued nothinge backe, but haue shewed you all the counsell off God.
Take heed therfore vnto youre selues, and to all the flock, amonge the which the holy goost hath set you to be Bishoppes, to se the congregation of God, which he hath purchased thowro his owne bloude. For this I knowe, that after my departinge there shall encreas in amonge you greuous wolues, which shal not spare the flocke. Ye eue-ry one amonge youe awne selves shal mention, speakinge perscute doctrine, to diuine disciples after them. Therfore awake, and remember, that by the space of thre yeares I ceasid not to warne every one off you both nighte and daye with teares.

And now brethren I commend you vnto God, and to y^e woide of his grace, which is mightie to edifie you, and to geue you the obediencie amonge all them that are sanctified. I haue not desyred syluer, golde, or ray-ment off any off you. For ye youre selues knowe, that these handes haue ministered vnto my necessities, and them that were with me. I haue shewed you all thinges, how that so labouringe ye oughte to recea-ue the weak, and to remember the woide of the LORDE, how that he sayde: It is more blessed to geue, then to receaue.

And whan he had sayde this, he knelid downe, and prayed with them all. Where-the man moche respectinge amonge them all, and they fell aboute Pauls necke, and kysid him, and were sory, most of all because of the woide which he had sayde, that they shalde se his face nomore. And they accompaned him vnto the shippe.

The XXX. Chapter.

And whan it was founde that we had launched forth and were departed from them, we came with a straighe course vnto Coon, and on the daye followinge ge vnto the Rhodes, and from thence vnto Patara. And whan we founde a shippe ready to sayle vnto Phenice, we wente aboard and set forth. But whan we came within the sighte of Cyprus, we left it on the lefte han-de, and sayled vnto Syria, and came vnto Tys: for there the shippe shalde laye forth the ware. And whan we had founde disciples, we taried there fewen dayes. And they tolde Paul thowro the spere, that he shalde not go vp to Jerusalem. And it souened whan we had fulfilled those dayes, we departed, and wente oure wayes, and they all broughte vs on oure waye with wyues and chilred, tyll we were come out of y^e cite, and we knelid downe vps the spere, and prayed.
And whan we had taken oure leue one off another, we toke shippe, but they turned agayne vnto theire. As for vs we ended the course from Tys, and came to Prolomarda, and saluted the brethren, and abode with them one daye.

On the nexte daye we y^e were with Paul, departed, and came vnto Cesarea, & entered in to the house of Philippe the steangeld (which was one of the seuen) and abode with him. The same had foure daughter, which were virgins, and propheted. And as we taried there mo dayes, there came downe from Jewry a prophete, named Agabus.
Whan he was come vnto vs, he toke Pauls girdell, and bounde his handes and feet, and sayde: Thus sayeth y^e holy goost: The man whose girdell this is, shal the Jewes hymde thus at Jerusalem, and shal deliuer him in to the handes of the he yeh. Whan we her-de this, both we and they that were of the same place, besoughte him, that he wolde not go vp to Jerusalem. Then answered Paul and sayde: What do ye, mespyng, and breakyng my heart? For I am reioye not onely to be bounde, but also to dye at Jerusalem for y^e name of the LORDE Iesu. But whan he was not perswaded, we ceased, and sayde: The will of the LORDE be fulfilled. And after those dayes we were ready, & wente vp to Jerusalem: There came with vs also certayne of the disciples off Cesarea, and broughte with them one of Cyprus, named Mnason, an olde disciple, with whom we shalde lodge. Now whan we came to Jerusalem, the brethren receaued vs gladly.
But on the nexte daye Paul wente in with wa unto James, and all the Elders came together. And whan he had saluted them, he tolde by order what God had done amōge the heythē by his ministracion.

C Whan they herde that, they playjed the L O R D E, and sayde unto him: Brother, thou seyst how many thousande Jewes there are which beleue, and are all zelous ouer yf same. But they are enourmed agaynst the, that thou teachest all the Jewes which are amōge the heythē, to forsake Moses, and sayest that they oughte not to circumcise their chyldren, ner to walke after the same custome. What is it therfore: The multitude must nedes come together, for they shal heare that thou art come. Do this therfore that we saye vnto the: We haue foure men, which haue a .v. voue on them, take them vnto y, and purifise thyselfe with them, and do the cost on them, that they maye haue their heades: and they shal knowe, that it is nothyng, wherof they are enourmed agaynst the, but that thou also walkest and kepest the lawe. So as touchinge them that beleue amonge the heythē, .v. we haue wyttē, and concluded, that they shulde obserue no sōch, but onely to kepe them scles from the offeringes of Idols, from bloude, from strangled, and from whoribome. Then Paul toke the men vnto him, and was purifised with them on the nexte daye, and entred in to the temple, declaringe that he fulfilled the dayes of purification, yll there was an offeringe offered for euery one of them.

D But whan the seven dayes were almost fulfilled, the Jewes of Asia sawe him in the temple, and moued all the people, layed handes vpon him, and cryed: Xemen of Israell helpe, this is the man, that teacheth all men euery where agaynst our people, the lawe, and this place. He hath broughte Grekes also in to the temple, and hath defyled this holy place. For they had sene .v. Trophimus the Ephesian with him in the cite, him they thoughte y Paul had broughte in to the temple. And all the cite was moued, and the people ranne together. And they toke Paul, and drewe him out off the temple, and forch with the doores were shut to.

But whan they wete aboute to kill him, tynges came to the cheif captayne of the company, that all Ierusalem was moued. Which immediately toke souldyers and captaynes vnto him, and ranne in amōge them. Whan they sawe the captayne and the souldyers, they lete sayyng of Paul.

Whan the captayne came nye, he toke him, and commaunded him: to be bounde with two cheynes, and ased what he was, and what he had done. One criad this, anothe that amonge the people. But whan he coulde not knowe the certēne because of the rumoure, he commaunded him to be caried in to the castell. And whā he came to the stepes, it fortuned that he was borne of y souldyers because of the violence of the people. For the multitude off the people followed after, and cryed: Awaye with him. Whan Paul was now to be caried in to the castell, he sayde vnto y captayne: I speake vnto the: he sayde: Canst thou speake: Are not thou the Egypcian, which before thei dayes was wydest an vspoure, zledest out in to the mydemesse foure thousande prey murthurers? Paul sayde: I am a man which am a Jewe off - Tarsis, a citeyn of a famous cite in Celicia: I besee the, let fre me to speake vnto the people. Whan he had geuen him lycence, Paul stode on the stepes, and bedened with the hande vnto the people. For whan there was made a greatesy lence, he spake vnto them in hebrewe, and sayde:

The XLII. Chapter.

V Men, brethren, and fathers, heare I myne answer which I make vnto you. Whan they herde that he spake vnto them in the hebrewe, they kepe the more silence. And he sayde: I am a man which am a Jewe, borne at Tarsis in Celicia, and broughte vp in this cite at the free off - Gamaliel, enourmed diligently in the lawe of the fathers, and was seruent mynded to God warde, as ye all are also this daye. And I persecuted this waye vnto the death. I bounde them and deluyered them vnto prison, boch men and women, as y by prest also doeth beate me wrynesse, and all y Elders: of whom I receaued letters vnto the brethren, and wente towarde Damascus, that I mighte bynyge them which were there, and boonde to Jerusalem, and to be purifised.

But it fortuned as I made my iourney, and came nye vnto Damascus, aboute noone, sodenly there shone a greates lighte aboute me from heauen, and I fell to the earth, and herde a voyce which sayde vnto me: Saul Saul, why persecuest thou me? I answered: Who art thou? L O R D E: And he sayde vnto me: I am Iesus of Nazareth whom thou persecuest. He them that were with me, they sawe of lighte and were affrayed, but they herbe not the voyce of him that spake with me. I sayde: LORDE, what shal I do: The LORDE sayde vnto me: Arise, and go in to Damascus, there shal it be tolde ʒ of all that is appoynted to thee do. But when I sawe nothinge for the bryghtnesse of the lighte, I was led by the hande of them that were with me, and came to Damascus.

3 There was one Ananias, a deuoute man after the lawe, which had a good repute of all the Jewes that dwelt there, the same came, and steepte vnto me, and sayde: Brother Saul, loke vp. And I looke vp upon him the same houre. He sayde: The God of oure fathers hath ordeyned the before, that thou shouldest knowe his will, and see the thinge it is rightfull, and heare the voyce out of his mouth: for thou shalt be his wytnesse vnto all men, of the thinges which thou hast seene and herde. And now why tariest thou? Arise, and be baptysed, and wasse awaye thy synne, and call vpon the name of the LORDE.

But it fortuned, that when I was come agayne to Ierusalem, and prayed in the temple, I was in a trance, and sawe him. Then he sayde vnto me: Take haist, and get thee some out of Ierusalem, for they wyl not receaue the witness that thou bearest of me. And I sayde: LORDE, they the selfes knowe that I put in prison and bete in euery synagoge them that beleued on the. And whā the bloude of Steuen thy witness was shed, I stode by alſo, & consented vnto his death, and kepte the clothes of them that slew him. And he sayde vnto me: So thy maye. I wil sende the safte amonge the they then.

4 They gaue him audience vnto this word, and lifte vp their voyce, & sayde: Awaye with such a fellowe from the earth, for it is no reason that he shoulde lyue. But as they crew, and cast of their clothes, & thruw dust in to the ayre, the capayne bad brynge him in to the castell, and commaunded him to be beaten with roddes and to be scamynd, that he mighte knowe, for what cause they crew so vpon him. And when he hadde hit him with thonges, Paul sayde vnto the vndercapayne that stode by: Is it lawfull for you to scourge a man: that is a Romaine, and vncorrupted? When the vndercapayne herde that, he wene to the upper capayne, and tolde him, and sayde: What wilt thou do: This man is a Romaine. Then ca me of upper capayne, and sayde vnto him: Tell me, art thou a Romaine? He sayde: Yee. And the upper capayne answered: With a greate summe of paynted I this freedom. But Paul sayde: As for me, I am a Romaine borne. The straight waye departed from him, they that shoulde haue scamynd him. And of chiefe capayne was a frayed, when he knewe that he was a Romaine, and because he had bounde him. On the next daye wolde he knowe the certentyes wherefore he was accusid of the Jewes, and he letted him from the bondes, and commaunded the hye prestes and all their counsell to come together, and broughes Paul forth, and set him amonge them.

The XXX. Chapter.

1 And behelde the counsell, and sayde: 2 Remen and brethren, I haue lyued with all good conscience before God vnto this daye: But the hye prest Ananias commaunded them that stode aboute him, to smyte hi on the mouth. Then sayde Paul vnto him: God shal smyte the thou paynted wall. Scryest thou and iudgest me after the lawe, and commaundest me to be smytten contrary to Iawe: And they that stode aboute hi, sayde: A wylest thou wode hye prest? And Paul sayde: Brethren, I wyl: for that he was the hye prest. For it is myrte: The ruler of thy people shalt thou not curse.

But when Paul knewe that the one parte was Saducees, and the other parte Pharises, he cried out in ʒ counsell: Ye men and brethren, I am a Pharise, and the sonne of a Pharise. Of hope and resurrection of the dead am I iudged. And when he had so sayde, there arose a dissencion betwene ʒ Pharises and the Saducees, and the multitude was diuided: for the Saducees saye that there is no resurrection, neher angell, ney spete: but the Pharises graunte both. And there was made a greate crye. And of Scrybes of the Pharyses sece, stode vp, and strow, and sayde: We fynde no euill in this man. But ysa spete or an angell haue spoke vnto him, let vs not stryue agaynst God.

But when the dissencion was greate, of upper capayne feared, that Paul shoulde haue bene placete a senter of them, and commaunded the souldyers to go downe, and to take him from them, and to brynge him in to the castell. But in the nighte followinge, the LORDE stode by him, and sayde: De of good cheate Paul, for as thou hast testified of me at Ierusalem, so must thou testifye at Rome also.

Now when it was daye, certayne of the Jewes gathered them selues together, and made a wome nether to eate ner drynke, tyll they had kyled Paul. They were mo then fortye, which had made this conspacion. These came to the hye prestes and Elders, and sayde: We haue bounde oure selues w a wome, that we wil eate nothinge, tyll we haue slayne Paul. Now therfore geue ye knowlege to the upper captaene and to the counsell, that he maye brynge him forth vnto you comon, as though ye wolde heare him yet better: As for vs, we are ready to kyll him, or euer he come nye you.

C But when Pauls sisters sonne herbe of their saynge awaye, he came, and entred in to the castill, and tolde Paul. So Paul called vnto him one of y under captaenes, and sayde: Brynge this yonge man to the upper captaene, for he hath somewhat to saye to him. So toke him, and brougher him to the upper captaene, and sayde: Paul the prisoner called me vnto him, and prayed me to brynge to the this yonge man, which hath somewhat to saye vnto the. Then the hye captaene toke him by the hande, and wente a lyde with him out of the waye, and sped him: What is it, that thou hast to saye vnto me? he sayde: The Jewes are agreed together, to desyre the, to lye Paul be brougher forth comon before the counsell, as though they wolde yet heare him better. But solome nochtou their mynde, for there laye waye for him mo then fortye men off them, which haue bounde them selues with a wome, nether to eate ner drynke, tyll they haue slayne Paul: and enen now are they rebye, and loke for thy promies.

Then the upper captaene let the yonge man departe, and charged him to call noman, that he had shewed him this. And he called vnto him two vndercaptaens, and sayde: Make rebye two hundred souldyers, that they maye go to Cesarea, and thre score and ten boymen, and two hundred speare men at the thirde houre of the night, and deliuer the beastes, that they maye see Paul thron, and brynge him safe vnto Felix the debyte, and be wrote a letter on this maner:

C Claudio Lysias, vnto the most mightie Debyste Felix, gretyng. The Jewes had taken this man, and wolde haue slayne him, then came I with souldyers, and rescued him, and perceaued that he is a Roman. And when I wolde haue knowne the cause, wherfore they accusyd hi, I brough ed him in to their counsell: then perceaued I, that he was accusd aboute questions of their lawe. But there was no accusacion worthy of death or of bondes. And when it was shewed me, that certayne Jewes layed waye for him, I sent him straight waye vnto the, and commaunded the accusers also, that loke what they had agaynst him, they shalbe tell the same before the. Fare well.

The souldyers (as it was commaunded them) toke Paul, and brougher him to Andraecas. But on the nexte daye, they lef of boymen to go with him, and turned agay me to the castell. When these came to Cesarea, they deliuered the letter vnto the Debyste, & presented Paul before him also. When the Debyste had red the letter, he sped off what countrie he was. And wha he vnderstoode that he was of Cilicia, he sayde: I wil heare the, when thine accusers are come also. And he commaunded him to be kepte in Herodes iudgment house.

The XXXII. Chapter.

After fyue dayes the hye prest Ananias came downe with the Elders, and w the Orator Tertullus, which appeared before the Debyste agaynst Paul. When Paul was called forth, Tertullus began to accuse him, and sayde: Seyngs that we lyue in greace peace by the meanes of y, and that many good thinges are done for this people throu thy goodyeuce (most mightie Felix): that alowe me euer and in all places with all thankes. We wish to denye y I be nomocuous vnto the, I praye the, that of thy curtesy thou woldest heare vs a fewe wordes.

We haue founde this man a pestilent fellowe, and a sterer up of sedicion amonge all the Jewes throu our all the world, and a maneyner of the secte of the Tiasarans, and hath taken in hande also to suspende the temple, whom we toke, and wolde haue indged him acordinge to oure lawe. But Lysias the hye captaene came vnto vs, and with greate violence deliuered him out of our handes, and commaunded his accusers to come vnto the: for born yf thou wilt enquire: thou mayest haue knowlege of all these thinges, wherof we accuse him. The Jewes likewise affirmed and sayde, that it was euen so.

But Paul (when the debyste had bedd ned vnto him, that he shulde speake) answ re: Seynge I knowe that thou hast bene idge now many yeares amonge this people, I wil not be afraide to answer to my self, because that thou mayest knowe, that there are yett no more but twolue dayes sence I came up to Jerusalem for to worshippe, and that they neither sounde me in the temple displeasinge with any man, or makynge any uproare amonge the people, ner in y synagoges, ner in the cite: neither can they prove the thinges, w^{ch} herof they accuse me.

 But this I confesse unto the, that after this waye which they call heresy, so worshippe I the God of my fathers, that I believe all that is wyrtten in the lawe and in the prophetes, and have hope towardes God, that the same resurrection of the deede (whiche they them selves loke for also) shal-be, boch of the just and unjust. Therfore stande ye I to have allwaye a cleare conscience towardes God and towardes men.

But after many yeares I came and 12 bringe allmesse unto my people, and offer 13 ringes: w^{ch} upon they founde me purified in the temple without any manner of murdre or unquietnesse. Howbeit there were certaine Jewes out of Asia, which shulde be here presente before the, and accuse me, yf they had oughte agaynst me: or els lets the same here saye, yf they have founde any unrighteousnes in me, whyle I stonde here before y^r counteyle: cepte it be for this on worde, that I cried stoninge amonge them: Of the resurrection of the deede am I judged of your this daye.

When Felix herde this, he byffered the (the Kneze very well of that waye) and sayde: Whan I was the upper capeayne cometh downe, I wyl knowe y^r veternost of your matter. But he commaunded the undercapayne to kepe Paul, and so let him be here, and that he shulde saye none of his acquaintaunce to mynister unto him, w^{ch} come unto him.

After certayne dayes came Felix his wife Drusilla, which was a Jewesse, and called for Paul, and herde him of the faith in Christ. Howbeit whan Paul spake of righteounesse, and of chastite and of the iudgment to come, Felix trembled, and answered: Go thy waye for this tyme. Whan I have a convenient tyme, I wil sende for the: he hoped also, that money shulde have bene given him of Paul, therfore called he for him, and commened with him. But after two yeares came Pontius Festus in to the romme. Yet Felix wyllinge to shewe the Jewes a pleasure, lest Paul bounde.

The XXV. Chapter.

Whan Festus was come in to the counte, our this dayes he wen-te up from Cesarea to Jerusalem.
 Then appeared the hye prestes and the chiefe of the Jewes before him agaynst Paul, and increated him, and desired favour agaynst him, that he wolde sende for him to Jerusalem, and layde wayes for him, that they mighte slaye him by the waye. Then answered Festus, that Paul shulde be kepte at Cesarea, but that he himselfe wolde shortly go thither agayne. Let them therfore (sayde he) which are able amonge you, come downe with us to accuse the man, yf there be oughte in him.

Whan he had taried amonge them more then ten dayes, he wente downe to Cesarea.
 And on the next daye he sat downe on the iudgment seate, and commaunded Paul to be broughte. Whan he was come, y^r Jewes which were come downe from Jerusalem, stode rounde aboute him, and broughte up many and greuous quarrels agaynst Paul, which they coude noe prove, whyle he answered for himselfe: I have neither offer-red oughte agaynst the lawe of the Jewes, ner agaynst the temple, ner agaynst the Em-perour.

But Festus wyllinge to shewe the Jewes a pleasure, answered Paul, and sayde: Wilt thou go up to Jerusalem, and there be iudged of these thinges before me: But Paul sayde: I stonde at the Emperours iudgment seate, where I oughte to be iudged: to the Jewes have I done no harme, as thou also knowest very well. If I have hurte any man, or committed any thinge worthy of death, I refuse not to dye. But yf there are no such thinges as they accuse me off, then maye no man deliuer me unto them. I ap-peale unto the Emperour. Then spake Festus with the Councell, and answered: Thou hast appealed unto the Emperour, to the Emperour shalt thou go.

After certayne dayes came Tyring Agrippa and Bernice to Cesarea to welcome Festus.
 And whan they had taried there many dayes, Festus rehearsed Pauls cause unto the Tyring, and sayde: There is a man left bounde of Felix, for whose cause the hye prestes and Elders of the Jewes appeared before me whan I was at Jerusalem, and desired a sentence agaynst him. Unto whom I answered: It is not the matter of the Romaynes to deliuer any man: but he shal be penite, before that he which is accused, haue his accusers presente, and receaue libertye to answer for him selfe to the accusation. Whā they were come higher together, I made nooday, but sae the nexte daye in iudgement, and commaunded the man to be broughte forth. Of whom, whom the accusers stode up, they broughte no accusations of such thinges as I supposed: But had certayne questions agaynst him of their anone superstitions, and of ones Jesus deed, whom Paul affirmed to be alayne. howbeit because I vnderstode not the question, I asked hi, whether he wolde go to Ierusalem, and there be iudged of these matters. But whā Paul had appealed, that he mighte be taken vnto the knowlege of the Emperoure, I commaunded him to be kepte, till I mighte sende him to the Emperoure.

D Agrippa sayde vnto Iesus: I wolde sayne heate the man also. He sayde: Tomorrow shalt thou heare him. And on the nexte daye came Agrippa ⁊ Bernice with greace pompe, and were in to the comon hall with the captaynes ⁊ the chiefes of the cite. And at Iesus commaundement, Paul was broughte forth. And Iesus sayde: A ynge Agrippa, and all ye men which are here with vs, ye see this man, aboute whom all the malicimbe of the Jewes haue entreated me, both at Ierusalem and here also, and cried, that he oughte not to lyue any longer. But whā I perceaued that he had done nothinge worthy off death, and that he himselfe also had appealed vnto the Emperoure, I decerned to sende him, of whō I haue no certayne thinge to saye vnto my lorde. Therefore haue I caused hi to be broughte forth before you, specially before the O ynge Agrippa, that after examination had, I mighte haue somewhat to saye. For me thynke it an vnreasonable thinge to sende a prisoner, and not to shewe the causes which are layed agaynst him.

The XXVI Chapter.

Agrippa sayde vnto Paul: Thou hast leue to speake for thy selfe. The Paul freed his hande, and answered vnto himselfe: I thinke my selfe happye (O ynge Agrippa) because I shal answer the daye before the, of all the thinges wherof I am accused of the Jewes: specially for so much as thou art experie in all customes and questions, which are amonge the Jewes. Wherfore I beseeche the, to heare me patiently.

My lyuynge truly from youth vp (how it was led from the begynnynge amonge this people at Ierusalem) knowe all the Jewes which knewe me afore at the first, yf they wolde testifie, for afeer the most straitlye te of oure Jewissh lawe, I lyued a Pharise. And now stonde I, and am iudged because of the hope of the p'omes, that was made of God vnto oure fathers, vnto the which (p'omes) oure twolue trybes hope to come, seruyng God in iustlye daye and nighte. For the which hopes sake (O ynge Agrippa) I am accused of the Jewes. Wherfore in this iudged amonge you not to be belated, that God rayseth vp the deed.

I also verely thoughte by myselfe, that I oughte to do many contrary thinges cleane agaynst the name off Iesus off Nazareth, which I byd at Ierusalem, whā I shuc vp many synnes in prison, wherupon I receaued auctorite of y he p'iestes, and whā they shalbe put to death, I thoughte the sentence. And thow all the synagoges I punyshed them ofte, and compelled the to blasphemie, and was excheatinge mat upon them, and persecuted them euen vnto strange cities. Aboute which thinges as I wente to warde Damascos with auctorite and licence of the hie p'iestes, euen at my daye (O ynge) I sawe in the waye, that a lighte from heauē (clearer then the brightnesse of the Sonne) shyned rounde aboute me, and then that I am nyed with me.

But whā we were all fallen downe to the earth, I heerde a voyce speakinge vnto me, and sayde in hebreue: Saul Saul, why persecuest thou me. It shalbe harde for the to byd agaynst the pryde. But I sayde: LORD, who art thou? he sayde: I am Iesus, whom thou persecuest. But ryse vp, and stonde vpon thy feete, for therfore haue I appeared vnto the, that I mighte odyne the to be a mynister and witness of it that thou hast sene, and that I will yett cause to appeare vnto the. And I will deliuer the from the people, and from the heythen, amonge whō I will now sende the, to ope their eyes, that they maye turne from the darthe into the lighte, and from the power of y dwell vnto God, that they maye receaue forgiveness of synnes, and the embertanment with them that are sanctified by faith in Iesus.

Wherfore (O ynge Agrippa) I was not faithlesse vnto y heantly vision, but shewd it first vnto them at Damascos, and at Ierusalem, and in all the coastes of Jewry, and to the heythen, that they shalbe do penance, and turne vnto God, and to do other wordes of penance. For this cause the Jewes toke me in the temple, and wente aboute to kill me. But thow in the helpe of God lent vnto me, I stonde vnto this daye, and refuse both vnto small and greate, and saye no ocher thinge, thet that y prophete haue sayde, that it shalde come to passe; and Moses, that Christ shulde suffre, and be the first of the resurrectione from the dead, and shew light vnto the people, and to the Gentren.

When he thus answered for himselfe, Felix sayde with a loude voyce: Paul, thou art besides thy selfe, moche lettyng make thy selfe madde. But Paul sayde: I am not madde, most deare Iesus; but speake the wordes of truth and sobernesse: for y koweth this well, vnto whom I speake freely. For I thinke that none off these thinges is hid from him: for this was not done in a corner. Defendethou the prophetes, O kynge Agrippa: I knowe that thou beleeuest. Agrippa sayde vnto Paul: Thou persuadest me in a parte to become a Christian. Paul sayde: I wolde to God, that (not onely in a parte, but altogether), I mighte perswade not the only, but all them that heare me this daye, to be sath I am, thet bondes excepte. And when he had spoken this, the kynge rose vp, and the Debye, and Bernice, and they that sa with them, and wente asyde, and talket together, and sayde: This man hath done nothinge that is worthy of death or of bondes. But Agrippa sayde vnto Iesus: This man mighte haue bene loosyd, yf he had not appealed vnto the Emperoure.

The XXVII. Chapter.

¶ When it was concluded that we shulde sayle in to Italy, they deliuered Paul and certayne ocher prisoners to the vndercaptayne named Julius, of the Emperours souldiers. And when we were entered in to a shippe of Adramitium, to sayle by Asia, we loosed from Ionde. And there was with vs one Aristarchus ouer of Macedonia off Thessalonica, and on the nexte daye we came vnto Sidon. And Julius inuited Paul courteously, and gaue him libertye to go to his frendes, and to refresh himselfe. And from thence launched we, and sayled hard by Cyprus (because the wyndes were agaynst vs) and sayled ouer the see of Cilicia and Pamphilia, and came to Myra in Lycia.

And there the vndercaptayne founde a shippe of Alexandria, ready to sayle in to Italy, and put vs therein. And when we had sayled slowly, and in many dayes were scarcely come ouer agaynst Sidon (for the wyndes were with stode vs) we sayled by Candy nye vnto the cite off Salmo, and came scarily beyonde it. Then came we to a place, which is called Goodhauen, nye where vnto was the cite Lausa. Now when moche tyme was spent, and saylinge was now operdous, because that they also had fasted ouerlonge, Paul exhorted them, and sayde vnto them: Syes, I se that this saylinge wyl be with hurte and moche dammage, not onely of the Ladnyng and of the shippe, but also of our lyues.

¶ Nevertheless y vndercaptayne beleued the gouernour of the shippe and yf master, more then it that was spoken of Paul. And for somoch as the haul was not combersome to wynter in, the more parte off them toke counsell to departe thence, yf by any meanes they mighte come to Phoenice to wynter there, which is an haue of Candy, toward the South west and North west wynde. When the South wynde blewe, they supposinge to haue had their purpose, loosyd vnto Asson, and sayled past all Anby.

But not longe after, there rose agaynst their purpose a flame of wynde, which is called the North east. And when the shippe was caught, and coulde not resist y wynde, we let her go, and braue with the wedder. But we came to an Isle named Claudia, where we coulde scarce get a boze. Which they toke vp, and vnder helpe, and bounde ic under harde to the shippe, fearinge lest they shulde haue fallen in to the Syes, and let downe the vessell, and so were caried. And when we had bydden a greace thess, on the nexte daye they made an overcastinge. And on the thirde daye with oure awne handes we cast ouer the castlyng of the shippe. But when neither Some nor starres appeared in many dayes, and no small tempest laye vpon vs, all the hope of oure life was taken awaye.

¶ And after longe abstinence, Paul stode forth in the myddes of thet, and sayde: Syes, ye shulde haue herkened vnto me, and not to haue broughte vs to this harme and losse. And now I exhorte you to be of good cheare, for there shal none of oure lyues perishe, but the shippe only.

For this night stode by me the angell off God, whose I am, and whose I serue; and sayde: Feare not Paul, thou must be broughte before the Emperoure. And so, God hath given vs to the all the that saile with the. Wherefore this be of good cheare: for I beleue God, y^e it shal come so to passe, as it was tolde me. Therefore we must be cast in to a certayne ylonde.

But whan the fourteenth night came, as we were caried in Asia aboute mydnight, y^e shipmen demed that there appeared some countre vnto them, and they cast out the leade, and founde it twelue faddoms: and whā they were gone a litle farther, they cast out the leade agayne, and founde fyfene faddoms.

Then fearinge lest they shulde fall on some rocke, they cast foure anchors out of the stern, and wished for the daye. Whan the shipmen were aboute to flye out of the shippe, and let downe the boce in to the see, vnder a coloure as though they wolde cast anchors out of the fore (shippe) Paul sayde to y^e vndercaptaine and to the soudyers: Except these byde in the shippe, ye can not be saued. Then the soudyers cut of the rope from the boce, and let it fall. And whan it began to be to daye, Paul exhorted them all to take meate, and sayde: To daye is the fourteenth daye that ye haue taried and contyned fasting, and haue receaued nothinge: Wherefore I praye you to take meate: for your health: for there shal not one heer fall from the heade of any of you. And whan he had thus spoken, he toke bread, and gaue thanks to God before them all, and brake it, and began to eate. Then were they all of good cheare, and toke meate also. We were all together in the shippe two hundred and threescore and sixtene soules. And whan they had eaten ymough, they lightened the shippe, and cast out the wheate in to the see.

Whan it was daye, they knewe not the ylonde. But they spyed an haven with a banke, in to which they were mynded (yf it were possible) to thrust in the shippe. And whan they had takē vp the anchors, they commytteed them selfe to the see, and loosed the rubber bandes, and hoysed vp the mayne saile to the wynde, and due towarde londe. And whan we came on a place which had the see on both the sydes, the shippe dashed vpon it. And the fore parte abode fast vnto the land, but the hynder parte brake thow the violence of the waves.

The soudyers counsell was to kyll y^e prisoners, lest any of them whan he had returned out, shulde flye awaye. But the vndercaptaine willinge to saue Paul, kep them from their purpose, and commaunded that they whiche coulde swimme, shoulde cast them selves first in to the see, and escape vnto londe: and the other, some on boards, some on broken peces of the shippe. And so it came to passe, that all the soules came safe vnto londe.

The XXXVIII Chapter.

And whā we were escaped, we knewe that the Ile was called Melite. As for the people, they shewed vs no litle kyndnesse: for they kyndled a fyre, and receaued vs all because of the rayne that was come vps vs, and because of the colde. Whan Paul had gathered a bondell of stiches, and layed them on the fyre, there came a wynde out of the heate, and leape on Pauls hande. Whan the people sawe the beest hang on his hande, they sayde amonge them selves: This man must nedes be a murderer, whi vengeaunce suffreth not to lye, though he haue escaped the see. But he shoote of y^e beest in to the fyre, and felde no harme. Howbeit they wayted, whi he shulde haue stolten, or fallen downe dead vnder y^e wheel. But whan they had looked a greate while, and sawe y^e there happenēd no harme vnto him, they chaunged their mynde, and sayde that he was a God.

In the same quarters the dyete man of the Ile whose name was Publius had a lorde shippe: the same receaued vs, and lodged vs the dayes curiously. It fortuned whil Publius saech laye sick of the feuers whil of a bloody fluxe, Paul wente in vnto him, and prayed, and layed the handes on him, and healed him.

Whan this was done, other also which had diseases in the Ile, came, and were healed. And they dyd vs greate honoure. And whan we departed, they laued vs with the greatest necessity.

After the monethes we sayled in a shippe of Alexandria, which had wynter in the Ile, and had a badge of Escorion and Poller. And whan we came to Syracusa, we taried there thre dayes. And whan we had sayled aboute, we came to Rhegium: and after one daye whan the south wynde blew, we came to Panias, where we founde breache and were desyred of them to tarie there foure dayes, and so came we to Rome. And from thence whan the breethen herde of vs, they came forth to mete vs to Appisforum and to the Tiber cauerne. Whan Paul sawe them, he thaled God, and waded bold. But whi we came to Rome, the vndercaptaine and the prisoners to the captayne. As for Paul, he had leue to hyde alone with one squier that keepe him.

After this dayes it fortuned, that Paul calleth the chief of the Jewes together. And whā they were come, he sayde vnto thei: Ie me I beseech. I haue comyted nothinge agaynst the lawe, nor agaynst the lawes of my fathers, as was I bounde, deliuered out of Ierusalem in the name of Kormanyes, whā they had examyned me, so wold haue let me go, if so much as there was no cause of death in me. And whā the Jewes spake of contrary, I was assured to appeale vnto the Emperour: not as though I had ought to accuse my people of. For this cause haue I called you, that I might see you, and speake wth you: because I hope of Israel. I am bounde wth this theyre.
They sayde vnto hi: We haue neither recou-ered letter out of Jewry concerninge the, nor came there any of the brethren. He showed vs what he had sayd, and he shewed vs what he had sayd. But we wyl heare of you, what thou thinkest: for we haue herde of this secte, that eueri where. it is spoken agaynst. And whā they had appoynted hi adayes, there came many vnto hi in to his lodginge: vnto whō he exposited the Kingdome of God, and preached vnto the of Iesu, out of the lawe, and out of the prophetes, and from manyng one wth the othe. And some be-leued, and some not. And whā they agreed not amonge thei selfe, they departed. Whā Paul had spokē one word: I will tell both the holy goost spōkē by the prophet Isaia vnto the of fathers, and sayde: Hereuen to this people, and saye: With eares they shall heare, and not vnderstande: and with eyes they shall see, and not perceiue.
For of here of this people is wazed grossly, and they heare hardly, and their eyes are closed, and they shall not see: and their eares are, and vnderstande i their heartes, and be obscured. For I mighte beate the. Be it knowen therfore vnto you, that this saluacion is sent vnto the of Iesu, and they shall heare it. And whā he sayde this, the Jewes departed, and had a great diuision amonge thei selues. But Paul abode two whole yeares in his owne house, and receaued all that came in vnto hi, preachinge the kingdome of God, and teachinge those things which concerne the. ORDE Iesus

The Summe of this Epistle.

- Chap. i. Paul declareth his loue towards the Romaynes, sheweth what the gospell is wth the fauile thereof, and rebuketh the despityng of the fleshe.
- Chap. ii. He rebuketh the Jewes, whā they saye they are like the Gentyls, yet they are not.
- Chap. iii. He sheweth what precept the Jewes haue, and that both the Jewes and Gentyls are vnder synne, and are iustified only by the grace of God in Christ.
- Chap. iiiii. He doctoreth by the example of Abraham, that faith iustifieth, and not the lawe.
- Chap. v. The power of faith, hope, and loue, and how they are wrought in the soules of the faithful.
- Chap. vi. So much as we be deliuered from synne, we must fashion our selues to lyeue as the seruantes of God, and not after oure carnall lusts.
- Chap. vii. Christ hath deliuered us from the lawe, and death. Paul sheweth what the lawe is, and howe it is the lawe of the members.
- Chap. viii. The lawe of the fleshe groweth liuely. The spirit of God maketh vs Gods children, and buyeth vs from the lawe, and byeth vs with Christ. The abandonment of God can not

WHILE the seruante of Iesus Christ, called to be an Apostle, & put aparte to preach the Gospell of God (which he promysed a fore by his prophetes) off his sonne, which was begotten of y^e side of Dauid after the fleshy: and mightely declared to be the sonne of God a fore the sperte which sanctified him, since the tyme that he rose agayne from the dead, namely, Iesus Christ oure LORDE, by whom we haue receaved grace and Apostelshipp amonge all theychen, to set vp the obediens of faith vnder his name, of whom ye are a parte also, which are called of Iesus Christ.

To all you that be at Rome, beloued of God, and sayntes by callinge. Grace be to you and peace fro God oure father, and the LORDE Iesus Christ.

First, I thanke my God that I know Iesus Christ for you all, that youre faith is spoken of heuoune ouer all the worlde. For God is my witness: whom I serue in my sperte in the Gospell of his sonne: that without ceassynge I make mencion of you: beseking all wayes in my prayers, that I mighte once haue a prosperouse iourney: by the will off God) to come vnto you. For I longe to se you, that I mighte bestowe vpon you some spirituall gifte, to strengthe you (that is) that I mighte be comforted with you, thozow y^e faith z myne, which we haue together.

23 But I reioice ye shalde knowe (rather) how that I haue oftentimes purposed to come vnto you: but haue bene lettethir to that I mighte do some good amonge you, like as amonge other Gentiles. I am decreed both to the Grekes, and to the Iewes, to the wylse and to the vnwylse. Wherefore (as much as in me is) I am ready to preach the Gospell vnto you at Rome also.

For I am not ashamed of the Gospell of Christ: for it is the power of God, which doeth all that belongetheron, the Iewes first, also the Grekes: for in it y^e righteousnes is of valye before God, is opened, which cometh out of faith to faith. As it is written: The iust shall lyue by his faith. For y^e myght of God is declared from heauen vpon all godlynes and vnrightheousnes of men, which withholdeth the trouth of God in vnrightheousnes: because that it, which maye be knowne of God, is manifest with the. For God hath shewed it vnto the, that the inuisible thynges of God (that is, his eternall strengthe power and Godhead) mighte be seen: whyle they are considered by the woordes from the creatioun of the worlde: so that they are without excuse, in as much as they knewe, that there is a God, and bene not praysed him as God: ner thanked him, but be came wayne in their ymaginations, and their foolish hert was blynded. Whan they couened them selues wylse, they became fooles: and turned y^e glory of the incomprisable God in to y^e ymage of y^e ymage of a corruptible man, z of hydes, z of foure foote, z of creaping bestes. Wherefore God likewise gaue them vnto their hertes lustes in to vncleannes, to defyle their awne bodies in them selues, which turned the trouth of God vnto a lye, z worshipped and serued the creature more than the maker, which is blessed for euer Amen.

Therefore God gaue the vnto shamefull lustes. For their reines chaunged y^e naturall vse in to the vnnatural. (I say) I me also I see the naturall vse of the woman, and bent in their lustes one on another, as man with man wounghe fleschlynes, and ceased in them selues the remorde of that erreure, as it was accounging. And as they regarded not to knowe God, even so God gaue the vnto a lewde mynde, to both y^e things which were more comly, but full of all vnrightheousnes, whoredome, wylkynes, concouyses, maliciousnes, full of enuye, murder, strife, discorde, enell edicions, wylspere, backbiters, despyfiers of God, doers of wronge, proude, boofsters, bynging vpon of euill thynges, disobedient to their fathers, without vnderstandyng, without feelinge, stubborne, vnmercifull which men, though they knowe the righte-ousnes of God: that they which do soch, are worthy of death: yet not onely do the same, but also haue pleasure in those that do the.

The II. Chapter.

Therefore canst thou not excuse thy selfe: (O man) who seest thou be that iudgest: for loke whether thou iudgest another, thou condemnest thy selfe, in so much as thou that iudgest, doest euen the same. For we are sure that the iudgment of God is (accordinge to the tructh) ouer them that do soch. But thinkest thou this O thou man, that iudgest them which do soch thinges, and doest euen the very same thy selfe, that thou shalt escape if iudgment of God: O despisest thou the riches of his goodnes: his patience, and his long suffering. Knowest thou not, that if loouing kindness of God keeth thee to repentance:

But thou after thine hard and imperi-tent heart, beapest vnto thy selfe a treasure of wrath, agaynst the daye of wrath and of the openinge of the righteous iudgment of God, which shal rewarde euery man acor-dinge to his deedes: namely, paye & honoure, and vncorruption, vnto them that with patience in doinge good, seeke euertlasting life: But vnto them that are contentious & not obedient vnto the tructh, but obeye unrighteousnes, shal come indignacion and wrath, tremble and anguyshe vpo all the sou-les of me that do euell, of the Jewe first and also of the Greke: But vnto all the that do good (shal come) paye and honoure, and peace, vnto the Jewe first, and also to the Greke.

For there is no respecte of persones before God: Who so euer haue sinned without lawe, shal perish also withoute lawe: and whosoeuer haue sinned in the lawe, shal be iudged by the lawe. For as before God, they are not righteous, which beare the lawe: but they that do the lawe, shal be iustificed. For if the Gentyles which haue not the lawe, do of nature the thinges conteyned in the lawe, then they hauinge not the lawe, are a lawe vnto them selues, in that they shewe, that the worke of the lawe is written in their hearts: whyle their conscience beareth wit-nesse vnto the, and also the thoughts which accuse or excuse them amonge them selues, in the daye when God shal iudge the secretes of men by Iesus Christ, accordinge to my Gospel.

But take heede, thou art called a Jewe, and trustest in the lawe, & makest thy booke of God, and knowest his will: & for so much as thou art enformd out of the lawe, thou prouest what is best to do, and presumest to be a leader of the blinde: a lighte of them that are in darcknes: an enformer of the vnwise: a teacher of the simple: which hast the enjample of knowlege & of the tructh in the lawe.

Now teachest thou ocher, and teachest not thy selfe. Thou preachest that a man shulde not steale, and thou stealest. Thou sayest, that a man shulde not breake wedloc-ke, and thou breakest wedlocke. Thou abhorrest ymages, and robbest God of his honoure. Thou makest thy booke of the lawe, and thou hast breakeinge of the lawe: thou disho-norest God. For thou art vnto the name of God euell spoken of amonge the Gentyles, as it is written.

The circumcision verely awayeth, if thou keepe the lawe: but if thou breake the lawe, then is thy circumcision become vncircumcision. Therefore if the vncircumcision keepe the righte thinges conteyned in the lawe, shal not his vncircumcision be con-ted for circumcision: And so ite that of nature is vncircumcision, and fulfilleth the lawe shal iudge the, which vnder the letter and circumcision transgresseth the lawe. For he is not a Jewe which is a Jewe outwardly: nether is that circumcision which is done outwardly in the flesh: But he is a Jewe, which is inwardly. And the circumcision of the heart is the circumcision, which is done in the spete and not in the letter: Whose paye is not of men, but of God.

The III. Chapter.

What furtheraunce then haue the Jewes: Or what a vantage hath cir-cumsion: Surely very much. Iust vnto them was commytted what God spake. But where as some of them bye not believe thereon, what then shulde they not leue make the promise of God of none effect: God forbid. Let it rather be thus, that God is true, and all men liers. As it is wryten: That thou mayest be iustificed in thy sayenges, and shuldest overcome, wha thou art iudged.

But if it be so, that our vnrighteousnes proueth the righteousness of God, what shal we saye: Is God then vnrighteous, that he is angrie therfore: (I speake thus after the manner of men) God forbid. How mighte God the iudge be wronge: For if the tructh of God be theowen in thye iniquite: excuseth vnto his paye, why shulde the be wronge yet as a sinner: & not rather to do the same (as

Tit. 1. 15
Gal. 3. 12

we are euell spoken of, and as some reporte, that we shalde saye, Let vs do euill, y good maye come therof. Whose dāntis is iuste.

D What saye we then: Are we better then they: No, in no wyse: for we haue proued a foie, y boch the Jewes and Grekes are all vnder synne. As it is wyette: There is none righteous, no not one. There is none y vnderstondech, there is none that seeketh after God. They are all gone out of the waye, they are altogether become vnprofiteable: there is none that doeth good, no not one. Their throte is an open sepulchre, with their tunyng they haue disceaued, the poyson off Aspes is vnder their lippes. Their mouth is full of cursynge and byternesse. Their seze are swifte to shed bloude. Destruction & wrechidnes are in their wayes, and y waye of peace haue they not knowne. There is no feare of God before their eyes.

But we knowe, y, what fouer the lawe sayeth, it sayeth vnto them which are vnder the lawe, y euer y moche maye be stoped, & y all the worlde maye be better vnto God, because y by y dedes of the lawe no flesh maye be iustified in his sighte. For by the lawe cometh but the knowlege of synne. But now without addinge to of y lawe is the righteousnes which awayeth before God, declared, hauinge witness of y lawe and the prophete: but I speake of y righteousness before God, which cometh by the faith on Iesus Christ, vnto all, and vpd all them that beleue.

C For here is no difference. For they are all synners, and wache the prayse that God shalde haue of ebe, but without destruyng e they made righteous eue by his grace, thoro the redemption that is done by Christ Iesu, whom God hath set foith for a vltter cytace thoro faith in his bloude, to shewe the righteousnes which awayeth before him, in that he fougeth the synnes, which were done before vnder the sufferance of God, which he suffred, that at this tyme he mighte therew y righteousness which awayeth before him: y he onely mighte be righteous, & the righteous maker of him which is of the faith on Iesu.

Where is now then thy reioysynge: It is excluded. By what lawe: By the lawe of woites: Nay, but by the lawe of faith. We holde therefore that a man is iustified by faith, without the woites of the lawe. Or is God the God of the Jewes onely: Jo he not also the God of the heathen: Yes were by the God of the heathen also, for so moche as he is the God onely that iustifieth the circumcision which is of faith, and the uncircumcision thoro faith. Destroys we then the lawe thoro faith: God forbyd. But we maneyne the lawe.

The fourth Chapeer.

What shal we saye, that Abraham is father as pertaininge to y flesh, & byd symde: This me saye: As Abrahā were made righteous thoro woites, then hath he wherin to reioyce, but not before God. But what sayeth y scripture: Abraham beloued God, & y was counted vnto him for righteousness. Vnto hi y goeth abouete is woites, is the rewarde not rekoned of fauoure, but of durye: Howbeit vnto him, y goeth not abouete with woites, but beloued on him y iustifieth the vngodly, is his faith counted for righteousness. Euen as Dauid sayeth also, that beliffence is onely that man, vnto whō God counteth righteousness without addinge to of woites, when he sayeth: Blessed are they, whose vngittonesses are fougaun, and whose synnes are couered. Blessed is the man, vnto whom the LORDE imputeth no synne.

Now this beliffence, goeth it ouer the circumcision, or ouer the vn-circumcision: We must nedes graunte, y Abraham faith was coured vnto hi for righteousness. How was it theraken vnto him: In the circumcision, or in the vn-circumcision: Doubtes not in the circumcision, but in the vn-circumcision. As for the rokk of circumcision: he receaued it for a scale off the righteousness off faith, which he had yet in y vn-circumcision, y he shalde be a father of all thē y beleue, bein gein y vn-circumcise, y it mighte be coured vnto the also for righteousness: & that he mighte be a father of circumcision, not onely of ebe that are of y circumcision, but of ebe also that walke in the foreshettes of the faith, which was in the vn-circumcision of oure father Abraham.

Jo the promes (that he shalde be y father of the woite) was not made vnto Abraham or to his side thoro the lawe, but thoro the righteousness of faith. For if they which are of the lawe be bynes, the is faith wayne, and the promes of none effecte, iust so moche as the lawe cansteth but wrath. For where the lawe is enoe, there is also no transgression. Therefore was the promes made thoro faith, that it mighte come off fauoure, wherby the promesse myghte be made sure vnto all the iude: not onely vnto him which is off the lawe, but also vnto him that is of the faith of Abrahā, which is the father of vs all. As it is written: I haue made the a father of many which be before God, whom thou hast belened: which quenech the deed, and calleth it which is not, that is maye be.

And be belened vpo hope where nothinge was to hope, that he shalbe be a father of many whichen. Accordinge as it was sayd vnto him: I thinke so shal thy se be. And he was not saynt in faith, neither obscured his awne body, which was deed already, whyle he was almost an hundred yearre olde, neither the deed wombe of Sara. So: he deuoted not in the promes of God choiow vnbelene, but was stroge in faith, and gaue God the praye: I was sure, that loke what God promyseth, he is able to make it good. And therfore was it rekened vnto him for a righteousnes. But this is not saynt only for his sake, it was counted vnto him, but also for our sake: vnto whos it shalbe counted, yf we beleue en him, that raysted vp oure LORDIE Iesus from the deed. Which was geuen for oure synnes, and raysted vp for oure righteousnes sake.

The V. Chapter.

Because therefore that we are iustified by faith, we haue peace with God choiow oure LORDIE Iesus Christ, by whos also we haue an instaunce in faith vnto this grace, wherein we stonde, & reioy in the hope of y Ioye for to come, which God shal geue. For only y, but we reioyse also i troubles, for so much as we knowe, y trouble bringeth paciēce, paciēce bringeth experie, experie bringeth hope: As for hope, is lettech vs not come to cofusion, because the loue of God is shew abrode in oure bettes, by the holy goost which is geuen vnto vs, for whan we were yet t take acerbin getoche tyme, Christ dyed for vs vngodly.

Now byeth there feace eny man for the righteous sake: Peracture for a good man durst one dye. Therefore doech God see forth his loue toward vs, in y Christ dyed for vs, whan we were yet synners: Noch mo t then shal we be saved from wrath by him synne we are now made righteous choiow his loue.

For yf we were reconcyled vnto God by y death of his sone, whos we were yet enemies: noch more shal we be saved by him, now y we are reconcyled. For only that, but we moye also in God choiow oure LORDIE Iesus Christ, by whom we haue now reconcyled the actonment.

Wherfore as by one man synned entred in to the worlde, and death by y meane off synne: euen so wence death also ouer all men, in so much as they all haue synned. For synne was in y worlde onto the lawe: but wher no lawe is, there is noe synne regarded. Nevertheless death reigned from Adam vnto Moses, euen ouer them also that synned not with like transgression as by Adam, which is y ymage of him y was to come.

But it is not with the gifte as with the synne: for yf thowm the synne of one many be deed, yet much more plentifully came the grace and gifte of God vnto many by the fauoure that beloned vpon one man Iesus Christ.

And the gifte is not only ouer one synne, as death came thowm one synne of one that synned. For the iudgment came of one synne vnto condemnation, but the gifte to iustifye fro many synnes. For yf yf synne of one, death rayned by the meanes of one, much more shal they which receaue the abūdaunce of grace and of the gifte vnto righteousness, rayne in life by y meane of one Iesus Christ. Likewise the as by the synne of one, condemnation came on all men, euen so also by the righteousness of one, came the iustificatione off life vpon all men. For as by the disobedience of one, many became synners, euen so by the obedience of one shal many be made righteous.

But the lawe in the meane tyme entred, that synne shalbe increase. Nevertheless wher abundance of synne was, there was yet more plentifully of grace: that, like as synne had reigned vnto death, ead so mighte grace reigne also choiow righteousness to enclastinge life by the meane of Iesus Christ.

The VI. Chapter.

What shal we saye then: What we continue in synne, that there maye be abūdaunce of grace: God for byd. How shal we lyue in synne, y are deed from it: And we ye not, that all we which are baptyed into Iesu Christ, are baptyed in to his death: Therefore are we buried w him by baptye in to death, that, like as Christ was raysted vp from the deed by the glory of the father, euen so we also shalbe walke in a newe life. For yf we be grafed w him vnto glie death, then shal we be like the resurrection also: for so much as we knowe, that oure elde man is crucified with him, that the synfull body mighte cease, that henceforth we shoulde serue synne no more.

 Pet. 4.2. For hee thar is deed, is made righteous fro synne.

But if we be deed with Christ, we beleue, thar we shall lye also with him, and are sure, thar Christ is rayed from the deed, dyeth no more. Death shall haue no more power ouer him. So as touching thar he dyed, he dyed concerning synne once: but as touching that he lyeth, he lyeth vnto God. Li- uerisyf he also, couce your selues to be euen deed concerning synne, and to lye vnto God choysing Iesus Christ ouer L. O. R. D. E. Let not synne reigne therfore in youre mortall bodye. thar ye shoulde obeye vnto the lustes of it. Let ther geue ye ouer your mem- bers vnto synne to be wapens of vnrigh- teousnes, but geue ouer youre selues vnto God, as they thar off deed are become luyng, and youre members vnto God to be wapens off rightheousnes. For synne shal not haue power ouer you, in so much as ye are not on- der the lawe, but vnder gr.ace.

How then? Shall we synne, because we are not vnder y lawe, but vnder grace? God forbid. Knowe ye not, thar loke vnto whos ye geue ouer youre selues as seruauntes to obeye. his seruauntes ye are to whom ye obey, whether it be of synne vnto death, or of obediencc vnto rightheousnes: But God be thanked, thar thowghe ye haue bene the seruauntes of synne, ye are now yet obedient off here to the ensample off the doctrine, wher vnto ye are conuertyed. For now thar ye are made fre from synne, ye are become the seruauntes of rightheousnes.

I wil speake troly, because of the weaknes of youre flesh. Like as ye haue geuen ouer youre members to the fruyce of uncleanesse, from one vnto another: Now so now also geue ouer youre members to the fruyce of rightheousnes, thar they may be holy. For whan ye were the seruauntes of synne, ye were losse from rightheousnes. What frute had ye at that tyme in those thinges, wherof ye are now ashamed? For the ende off such thinges is death. But now thar ye be fre from synne, and are become the seruauntes of God, ye haue youre frute thar ye shoulde be holy: but the ende is euer- lasting life. For death is the rewarde off synne, but the gifte off God is euerlasting life.

The VII. Chapter.

Howe ye not brethren (for I speake vnto them thar knowe the lawe) how thar y lawe hath ponen vpon a man as longe as he lyeth? For the man y is in subieccion to the man, is bounde vnto the lawe whyle the man lyeth: but yf the man dye, then is he loosed from the lawe thar concerneth the man. If she be now with another man, whyle the man lyeth, she shal be called a wedlocke breaker. But yf she man be deed, then is she fre from the lawe, so thar she is no wedlocke breaker, yf she be with another man.

Then so my brethren, ye also are deed vnto the lawe by the body of Christ, thar ye shoulde be with another (namely w him which is rayed vp from the deed): thar we shoulde buyng forth frute vnto God. For whan we were in the flesh, the synfull lustes (which were stered vp by the lawe) were mightie in oure members to buyng forth frute vnto death. But now are we loosed from the lawe, and deed vnto it, thar be we captiue, so thar we shoulde serue in a new conuersacion of the spere, and not in the olde conuersacion of the letter.

What shal we saye then? Jo the lawe y synne? God forbid: For withoute I knowe not synne, but by y lawe. For I had knowe no thinge of lust, yf the lawe had not sayde: Thow shalt not lust. But then to synne occasion at the commaundement, and stered vp in me all maner off lust. For withoute the lawe synne was deed. As for me, I lyued some tyme withoute lawe. So wher whan the commaundement came, synne was yued, but I was deed. And the very same commaundement thar was geuen me vnto life, was founde to be vnto me on occasion off death. For synne toke occasion at the commaundement, and diseaued me, and slew me by the same commaundement. The lawe in deede is holy, and the commaundement holy, iust and good. Jo thar then which is good, become death vnto me? God forbid. But synne, thar it mighte appere how y it is synne, hath wrought me death thow good: thar synne mighte be cut off me as frute synfull by the commaundement. For we knowe, thar the lawe is spirituall, but I am carnall. I selde vnder synne: because I knowe not what I do. For I do not y I will, but what I hate, y do I. If I do now thar which I wil not, the gratee I, thar the lawe is good.

So then it is not I thar do it, but synne thar dwelleth in me: For I knowe thar in me (y is, in my flesh) thar dwelleth no good thinge. To wyl it pfecte th me, but ceo- for me y which is good, I synne not. For y good that I will, do I not: but the evil which I will not, that do I. If I do now that I will not, then is it not I that do it, but synne that dwelleth in me.

Thus synde I now by the lawe. & when I will do good, well is persene with me. For I dwelle in the lawe of God after the inward man: but I fe another lawe in my members, which stryuet agaynst the lawe of my mynde, and taketh me prisoner in the lawe of synne, which is in my members. O wretched man that I am, who shall deliver me from the body of this death? I thanke God thorow Iesus Christ oure LORDE. So then do the mynde I serue the lawe of God, but with the flesh the lawe of synne.

The VII. Chapter.

Then is there no no damnacion vnto the that are in Christ Iesus, which walke not after the flesh, but after the spire. For the lawe of the spire, by which Iesus Christ hath made me free fro the lawe of synne & death. For what impossible was vnto the lawe (in as much as it was made because of the flesh) & persecuted God, & ferre his synne in the similitude of synfull flesh, & by synne dained synne in the flesh: that the righteousnes requyred of the lawe, might be fulfilled in vs, which walke not after the flesh, but after the spire. For they that are fleschly, are fleschly mynded: but they that are goosly, are goosly mynded. To be fleschly mynded, is death: but to be goosly mynded, is life and peace. For to be fleschly mynded is enemye agaynst God, & syth it is not subdued vnto the lawe of God, for it can not also. As for the that are fleschlye, they can not please God. Sombeie ye are not fleschly, but goosly, yf do be that the spire of God dwell in you. But who so hath not the spire of Christ, the same is not his. Let rememberdes of Christ be in you, then is the body dead because of synne. But the spire is life for righteousness sake.

Wherfore yf the spire of him, that rayssed vp Iesus from the dead, dwell in you, then shall euen he also that rayssed vp Christ from the dead, quicken youre mortal bodies, because of his spire dwelleth in you. Therefore be dead: as are now detours, not to the flesh, to lyue after the flesh: for yf ye lyue after the flesh, ye must dye: but yf ye mortyfy the dedes of the body thorow the spire, ye shall lyue. For who so ener acted by the spire of God, are Gods chyldren: for ye haue not receaued the spire of bondage to feare eny more, but ye haue receaued the spire of adopcion, wherby we crye: Abba, deare father. The same spire certifieth oure spire, that we are the chyldren of God. If we be chyldren, then are we heires also, namely the heires of God, and heires annered with Christ, yf so be that we suffer together, that we maye be also glorified together.

For I suppose, that the afflictions off this tyme, are not worthy of the glory, which shall be shewed vpon vs. For the fervent longinge of the creature lofeth for the appearing of the chyldren of God, because the creature is subdued vnto vanyte agaynst his will, but for his will that hath subdued her vpon hope. For the creature also shall be free from the bondage of corrupcion, vnto the glorious liberte of the chyldren of God. For we knowe, that enery creature groweth, and trauaileth with vs in payre vnto the same tyme.

Not they only, but we ourse selues also, which haue the first frutes of the spire, growe within in oure selues for the chylshippe, and loke for the deliuerance of oure bodye. For we are; and i debet, hombeie in hope: but yf hope that is sens, is no hope: for hom can a man hope for that which he seeth. But yf we hope for that which we see not, the do we thorow patience abyde for it.

Letwys the spire also helpeth oure weaknesse: for we knowe not what we shall desire as we oughte: neuertheles yf spire it self maketh intercession mightely for vs with vnspesakable gronnynges. Sombeie he fearetheth the bert, knoweth what the mynde of the spire is: for he maketh intercession for the sayntes accordinge to the pleasure of God. But sure we are, that all thinges serue for the best vnto them that loue of God, which are called of purpose. For those whom he knowe before, hath he ordeyned also before, & they shal be like fashionned vnto the shappte of his sonne, & he might be the first begotet amonge many brethren. As for those whom he hath ordeyned before, them hath he called also: and whom he hath called, the hath he also made righteous: and whom he hath made righteous, them hath he glorified also.

What shall we saye then vnto the chylde: If God be on our syde, who can be agaynst vs. Which spared not his owne sonne, but hath geuen him for vs all: how shall he not with him geue vs all thinges also? Who wyl laye any thinge to the charge of Gods chosen? Here is God that maketh righteous, who wil then condemne? Here is Christ thac is dead, yee rather which is rayed vp agayne, which is also on þ righte hande of God, and maketh intercession for vs.

Who will separate vs from the loue of God? Troubler or anguyshe? or persecucion? or hunger? or nakednesse? or pained? or inuention? As it is wyrtten: For thy sake are we kylled all the daye longe, we are counted as theye appoynted to be slayne. Tuertelche fe in all these thinges we ouercome farre, for his sake that loued vs. For sure I am, that neither death, ner life, neither angell, ner rule, neither power, neither thinges present, neither thinges to come, neither heych, ner loweth, neither any other creature shalbe able to separate vs from the loue of God, which is in Christ Iesu oure L. ORDE.

The IX. Chapter.

Saye the truth in Christ, and lye not: where of my conscience beareth me witness in the holy goost: that I haue greate henynesse & conyruall sorrowe in my heart. I haue rayshed my selfe to be cursed from Christ for my brethren, that are my kynsmen after the flesh, which are off Israell: vnto whom percometh the chylshippe, and the glory, and the couenauntes and lawe, and the seruyce of God, and the promyses: whose are also the fathers, off whom (after the flesh) cometh Christ, which is God ouer all, blessed for euer, Amen. I speake not these thinges, as though the wyde of God were of none effecte: for they are not all Israelites, which are of Israell: neither are they all chylidren, because they are the sode of Abraham: but in Isaac shal the sode be called vnto thee, that is, they which are chylidren after the flesh, are not the chylidren of God, but the chylidren of the promyse are counted for the sode. For this is a worde of the promyes, where he sayeth: Abente this thyne wyl I come, and Sara shal haue a sonne.

Howbeit it is not so with this onely, but also: when Rebecca was rich childe by one (namely by our father Isaac) of euer the childe were doine, & was done neither good ner bad: that the purpose of God might stode according to the eleccion, not by the deservynge of woerke, but by the grace of the exllent: vnto whiche thus vnto her: The greater shal serue the lesse. As it is wyrtten: Jacob haue I loued, but Esau haue I hated.

What shal we saye then? Is God then unrighteous? God forbyd. For he sayeth vnto Moses: I shewe mercy, to whom I shewe mercy: and haue compassion, on whome I haue compassion. So lye it not then every mans wyl or runnyng, but in the mercy of God. For the scripture sayeth vnto Pharao: For this cause haue I shewed the vncient to shewe my power on thee, that my name might be declared in all londes. That hath he mercy on whom he wyl: and whom he wyl, he hardeneth.

Thou wilt saye then vnto me: Why blameth he vs yet? For who can resist his wyl: O thou man, who art thou, that disputest with God? Sayeth the worke to his workman: Why hast thou made me on this fashion? hath not the potter power, out of one lumps of claye to make one vessel unto honoure, and another vnto dishonoure? Therefore when God wolde shewe wrath, and to make his power knowne, he brought forth rich greace patience the vessels off wrath, which are obeynt to damnacion: that he might declare the riches off his glorye on v vessels of mercy, which he hath prepared vnto glorye, whom he hath called (namely vs) not onely of the Iewes, but also of the Gentyles. As he sayeth also by Oler: I wil call that my people, which is not my people: and my beloved, which is not þ beloved. And it shal come to passe in þ place, where it was sayde vnto them: Ye are not my people, there shal they be called the chylidren of the luyngge God. But I say crieth our Israell: Though the nombre of the chylidren of Israell be as the sode of the see, yet shal there be but a remnant be saved, for there is the worde, that synisech and stoureneth in righteousness: for a house more shal God make vpon earth. And as I say þ sayde before: I excepte the LORDE of Sabboth had lefte vs side, we shulde haue bene as Sodoma, and lye vnto Gomorra.

What shal we saye then? This wil we saye: The heychen which followed not righteounes, haue overtake: righteousness: but I speake of the righteounes that cometh of faith. Agayne, Israell followed the lawe of righteounes, and attained not vnto the lawe of righteounes. Why so? Euen because they soughte it not out of faith, but as it were out of the deservynge of woerke. For they haue stumbled at the stumblinge stone. As it is wyrtten: Behold, I laye in Sion a stoneste to stoble at: and a rocke to be offmoted at: and who so euer beleueth on him, shal not be confounded.

The X. Chapter.

Reithen, my herces desyre, & prayer vnto God for Israel, that they might be saued. For I beare them recorde, that they are zelous for Gods cause, but not wth vnderstandinge. For they knowe not the righteousnes which anaylech before God, and go abouze to nameyne thair awne righteousnes: and thus they are not subdued vnto the righteousnes, that is offered be fore God. For Christ is the ende of the lawe, vnto righteousnes for every one y^e beleueth. Moses receyued of y^e righteousnes, which cometh of the lawe, that the man which doeth y^e same, shal lyue therein. But y^e righteousnes to which cometh of faith, speaketh on this wyse: Saye not in thine heart: Who wil go up in to heauen: (that is nothin ge do thou to sech Christ downe) Or who wil go downe in to y^e deepe: (that is nothin ge do thou to sech vp Christ from the dead.) But what saiyeth the scripture: The worde is mye ebe, euen in thy mouth and in thine heart. This is y^e worde of faith y^e we preach.

For yf thou knowest Jesus with thy mouth, that he is the LORDE, and belest in thine heart, that God hath rayssed him vp from the dead, thou shalt be saued. For yf a man beleue from the here, he shal be made righteous: and yf a man knowlege with the mouth, he shal be saued. For the scripture seyth: Who so euer beleueth on him, shal not be confounded.

Here is no difference, neither of the Jewe nor of the Gentyle. For one is LORDE of all, which is true vnto all y^e call vps him. For who so euer shal call vpon the name of the LORDE, shal be saued. But how shal they call vps him, on whos they beleue not: How shal they beleue on him, of whos they haue not herde: How shal they heare without a preacher: But how shal they preach, except they be sent: As it is wytted: How beynfull are the feet of the y^e preach peace, y^e bring good tidings: But they are not all obedient vnto the Gospell. For I saye saiyeth: LORDE, who beleueth oure preaching: Or the faith cometh - by hearinge, but hearin ge cometh by the worde of God.

But I saye: Hane they not herde: Howdout their sounde wente out into all londes, and their moode in to the endes of the world. But I saye: Hath not Israel knowne: I saye saiyeth: I wil prouoke you to ruse, by them that are not in people: by a foolish nation wil I anger you. I saye saiyeth: I am founde of them, that sought me not: & haue appeared vnto them, that axed not after me. But vnto Israel he saiyeth: All the daye I sige haue I stretched forth my handes vnto a people y^e beleueth not, but I speake th^e agaynst me.

The XI. Chapter.

Saye then: Hath God thrust out his people: God forbid: For I also am an Israelite, of the side of Abrahams out of the citie of Den Jamin. God hath not thrust out his people, whom he knewe before. Or wote ye not what the scripture saiyeth of Elias, how he maketh intercession vnto God agaynst Israel, and saiyeth: LORDE, they haue slayned thy prophets, & dyedged downe thine altares, and I am lefte ouer onely, and they seke my lyfe. But what saiyeth the answer of God vnto him: I haue reserved vnto me seven thousand men, which haue not bowed their knee before Baal. And so goeth it now at this tyme also vnto what I seke my lyfe. If he be done of grace, the life is not of deseruyng: els nere grace no grace. But yf he be of deseruyng, then is grace nothinge: els nere deseruyng no deseruyng.

What the: Israel hath not optayned y^e which he soughte, but the election hath optayned it. As for y^e other, they are blynded. As it is wytted: God hath gauen them the spere of unquyetnesse, eyes that they shalde not se, and eares that they shalde not heare, eue vnto this daye. And Dauid saiyeth: Let their table be made a snare to take the rich all, & an occasion to fall, & a reward vnto the. Let their eyes be blynded that they se not, and euer downe downe their backes.

I saye them: Hane they the foresomble, y^e they shal be deame fall to naughte: God forbid: but whom they fall in saluacion happened vnto y^e heythen, that he mighte prouoke them to be zelous after them. For yf their fall be the riches of the world, and the mynnyng of the riches of the heythen: how much more shalde it be so, yf their fulnesse were there: I speake vnto you heythen: so in as much as I am y^e Apostle of the heythen, I wil playe myne office, yf I mighte prouoke them vnto zeile, which are mynnyng, and saue some of them. For yf the losse of them by the receyving of the world, what were that els, then as yf life were taken of the dead: If the begynnynge be holy, then is all y^e dome holy: and yf the roote be holy, then are the branches holy also.

But though some of y^e braunches now be boke, and thou, wha thou wast a wyde olyuete, art grafte in amonge them, and made partaker of the roote and sappe of the olyue tre, boost not thy selfe agaynst the braunches. If thou boost thy selfe agaynst them, then bearest not thou the roote, but the roote beareth the. Thou wilt saye then: the braunches are broken off, what I mighte be grafted in. Thou sayest well. They are broken off because off their vncleane, but thou standest thowm beleue. De not thou bye mynbed, but feare, serunge God hath not spared the naturall braunches, lest he also spare not the.

Beholde therfore the kyndnesse and rigourousnesse off God: on them which fell, rigourousnesse: but towarde the kyndnesse, yf thou conuynce in the kyndnesse. Wilt thou be hemy of: and they, yf they byde not still in vncleane, shal be grafted in agayne. For God is off power to grafte the in agayne. For yf thou be cut out of the naturall wilde olyue tre, and grafted (contrary to nature) in the good olyue tre, how much more shal they that are naturall, be grafted in their owne olyue tre agayne:

I wolde not that this secrete shalde be hyd from you brether (lest ye shoulde be wyse in youre owne cōsaiences) that partlye byndnesse is happened vnto Israel, so longe tyl the fulnesse of the heythen be come in, and so all Israel shalbe saued. As it is wycten: There shal come out of Sion he that doth deliuer, and shal turne away vngodlynes from Jacob. And this is my couenaunt with them, whā I shal take awaye their synnes. As concernyng the Gospell, I holde them as enemies for youre sakes: but as touchyng the deccon, I loue them for the fathers sakes.

For verely the giftes & callinge of God are such, that it can not repente him of them. For likewise as ye which in tyme passed haue noe beleue, but now haue opayned mercy thowm their vncleane: Euen so now haue they not beleue on the mercy which is happened vnto you, that they also maye opayne mercy. For God hath closed up all vnder vncleane, that he mighte haue mercy on all.

Of the depensse of cheriches, both of the wyrdome and knowlege of God: Hom incomprehsible are his iudgements, and his wayes vnsearcheable. For who hath knowen the mynde of the LORDE? Or who hath bene his counsell geuer? Or who hath geue him oughe a fise hande, that he mighte be recompensed agayne? For of him, and thowm him, and in him are all thinges. To him be praye for ever, Amen.

The XII. Chapter.

Desyre you brether by the mercifulnesse of God, that ye geue ouer youre bodies for a sacrifice, & is quyte holy, and acceptable vnto God, which is reasonable seruyng off God. And sithon not youre silues like vnto this worlde, but be chaunged thowm the reneuyng off ym mynde, & ye maye pious, what thinge that good, & acceptable, & perseute wil of God. For I saye thowm the grace & is geaf me, vnto euery man amonge you: that no man esteeme off him selfe more, then it becōmese him to esteeme: but that he discretely iudge of him selfe, accordinge as God hath dealt vnto euery man the measure of faith. For like as we haue many members in one body, but all the members haue not one maner of operation: Euen so we beinge many are one body in Christ. But amonge oure silues euery one is the membre of another, and haue vnto giftes, accordinge to the grace that is geuen vnto vs. If any man haue the gifte of prophecieng, let it be accordinge to the faith.

Let him that hath an office, waite vnto the office: let him that teacheth, take hede to the doctryne: Let him that exhorteth, geue attēdance to the exhortation. Let my geue let hi geue with single nesse. Let him that ruleth, be diligēt. If any man shewe mercy, let him do it with charite. Let loue be without dissimulation, hat that which is euill: Cleue vnto that which is good. De kynde one to another with thertly leue. In geuyng honoure go one before another. De not slouchfull in the byndnesse that ye haue in hande. De seruent in the spuce. Applye youre silues vnto theyr me. Radre in hope, be patient in trouble. Continuē in prayer. Distribute vnto the necessities of the sayntes. De glad to hardenore. Bless the that perseute you. Bless, & curse not. De mercy with them that are mist and wepe with them that wepe.

De of one mynde amonge youre silues. De not pious in youre owne consciences, but make youre silues equalled thom of y loue sake. De not wyse in youre owne opinions. Accompte vnto no man euill for euill. Priuytlye honeste a fise hande towarde euery man. If it be possible (as much as in you) kepe peace with all men.

Dearly beloved, auenge not youre silues, for ye geue rowme vnto the wrath off God. For it is wyrted: Vengeance is myne, and I wil rewarde, sayeth y LORDE. Therfore if thine enemye hunger, fede him: If he thyrk greue him drinke. So in so doinge thou shalt heape coales of fyre vpon his heade. He nor ouercome with euill, but ouercome thou euill with good.

The XIII. Chapter.

Let every soule submitte him selfe to the authoritee of the hyer powers. For there is no power but of God. The powers that be, are ordeyned of God: soe as who so ever resisteth the power, resisteth the ordinance of God. And they that resist, shall receaue to them selues damnacion. For rulers are not to be feared for good nor evil, but for euill. If thou wilt be without feare of the power, do well then, and thou shalt haue prayse of the same: for he is the minister off God for thy wealch. But yf thou do euill, then feare, for he beareth not the sword for naughte. For he is the mynister of God, a caller of vengeance, to punyssh him that doth euill. Wherefore ye must needs obeye, not onely for punysshment, but also because of conscience. For this cause must ye gear trybuce also. For they are Gods mynisters, to whym maneyne y same defence.

Gene to every man therfore his dutye: as he to whom tribute belongeth: custome, to whom custome is due: feare, to whom feare belongeth: honoure, to whom honoure pertaineth. One norbinge to any man, but to loue on another. For he that leueth another, hath fulfilled the lawe. For wher it is sayde: (Thou shalt not weake weblet: thou shalt not kill: thou shalt not steale: thou shalt not beare false witnessse: thou shalt not lust: and yf there be any other commandement, it is comprehended in this worde. Thou shalt loue thy neighbour as thy selfe. A one doth his neighbour no euill. Therefore to loue y fullfylling of the lawe.

And for so much as we know this, namelye the tyme: that the houre is now for vs to ryse from slepe (For now is oure saluacion naxer, then when ite beleued: the nighte is past, but the daye is come nye.) Let vs therfore cast awaye y rokes of darkness, and put on the armour of lighte. Let vs walke honestly as in the daye, not in excess of eatinge and in drunkenesse, not in chambrynge and mancomesse, not in stryfe and enuenge: but put ye on the LORDE Iesue Christ, and make not prouision for y flesh, w fulfill the luste of it.

The XIII. Chapter.

In that to weake in the faith, receaue into you, and trouble not the conscience. One beleueth that he maye eate all thinge: but he that is weake, eateth herbes. Let not him that eateth, despise him that eateth not: and let not him which eateth not, iudge him that eateth: for God hath receaued him. * Who art thou, that iudgest another mans seruauer? he standeth or falleth vnto his LORDE: see he maye well stonde, for God is able to make hym stonde. Some man putteth difference betwene daye & daye, but another man counteth all dayes alike. * Let every man be sure of his meanynge. he that putteth difference in the daye, doth it vnto the LORDE: & he that putteth no difference in the daye, doth it vnto y LORDE also. he y eateth, eateth vnto the LORDE, for he geneth God tharke: and he that eateth not, eateth not vnto y LORDE, and geueth God tharke. For none of vs lyueth to him selfe, and none dyeth to him selfe. If we lyue, we lyue vnto the LORDE: If we dye, we dye vnto the LORDE. Therfore, whether we lyue or dye, we are the LORDES.

So therto dyed Christ, and rose agayne, & and renyued, that he mighte be. LORDE both of dead and quyre. But why iudgest thou y brother? Or thou other, why despisest thou y brother? We shal all be brought before y iudgment seate of Christ, for it is wyrted: As truly as I lyue, (sayeth the LORDE) I shall kneas shal bowe vnto me, & all kynges shal knowlege vnto God. Thus shal every one of vs geue accomptes for him selfe vnto God. Let vs not therfore iudge one another any more. But iudge this rather, y none put a stumblinge blocke or an occasion to fall in his brothers waye. * I knowe, & am full certified in y LORDE Iesu, y there is nothyng comen of it selfe: but vnto him y iudgege it to be comen, to him it is comen. But yf y brother be greued ouer y meate, the walkest thou not now after charite. Destroye not whym meate, him, for whom Christ dyed, Se therfore that your treasure be not euill spoel of. For the kyngdome of God is not meate and drynke, but righte ouerfines, & peace, and to ye in the holy goost. he that in these thinges seureth Christ, pleaseth God, & is comended of him. Let vs therfore folowe those thinges which make for peace, & thinges wherewith one maye edifye another. Destroye not y worthe of God for any meates sake. All thinges trulye are cleane, but it is euill for y ma, which eateth wh horse of his consciene. * It is much better y thou eate no flesh, and drynke no wyne, not any thinge, wherby thy broether stonbleth, or falleth, or is made weake. I haſt thee ſaich, haue it with y ſilſe beſe God ſhappe is he, that coſdemneth not him ſilſe in y thinge: which be aloweth. But he that maketh conſcience of it and yet eazeth, is damnyed: becauſe he doth it not of faith. For i what ſo euer is not of faith, that ſame is ſubare.

The XV. Chapter.

What are ſtronge oughte to beare y frailtyſſe of them which are weake, and not to ſtonde in eure awne conſaytes. Let every one of vs orde him ſilſe ſo, that he pleaſe his neghbeure vn to his woth, and edifyinge: For Chriſt pleaſed not him ſilſe, but as it is wyſten: The rebukes of them which rebuked the, are fallen vpon me. What ſo euer thinge are wytted a fore tyme, ar wytted: for oure learynyng, that we thow patience and comfote off the ſcriptures, mighte haue hope. The God of patience and conſolacion graunte you to be like mynded one to warde another, accoringe vnto Jeſu Chriſt, that ye bringe of one mynde, maye do one mouth prayſe God the father of oure LORDE Jeſu Chriſt.

Wherſoe receaue ye one another, as Chriſt hath receaue you to the prayſe off God. But I ſaie that Chriſt Jeſus was a myniſter of the circumciſion for the tyme: to confirme the promyſes made vnto the fathers, and that the heythen mighte prayſe God becauſe of mercy, as it is wyſten: For this cauſe wyl I prayſe the amonge the Getyles, and ſynge vnto hyme. And agayne he ſaiech: Reioyce ye heythen with his people. And agayne: Prayſe the LORDE all ye Gentiles, and laude him: all ye nacids. And agayne Eliſa ſaiech: There ſhal be the roce of Jeſſe, and be that ſhal ryſe to rule the Gentyles, in him ſhal the Gentyles cryſt. The God ofſſ hope ſill you w all ioye and peace in beleuynge. y yemaye be pleruous in hope thow of power of the holy gooff.

What ſe ye your felues are full of goodnes, fylled with all knowlege, ſo that ye are able to exhorte one another. Venercheled (dareche) I haue k m whar me is boldy wytem vnto you, as one that parteth you in remembrance, for the grace that is geue me of God, that I ſhalte be a myniſter of Jeſu Chriſt amonge the heythen, to declare the goſpell of God, that the heythen mighte be an acceptable offerynge vnto God, ſanctified by the holy gooff. Therfore maye I boost myſilſe thow Jeſu Chriſt, that I medle with thinge perreyninge vnto God. For I durſt not ſpeake ougre, excepte Chriſt had wroughte the ſame by me, to make the heythen obdite thow wrode and dede, thow the power of tokens and wonders, and thow the power of the ſpore of God, ſo that from Jeruſale, and rode abate vnto Ilythium, I haue fylled all with the Goſpell of Chriſt. So haue I enſoyed my ſilſe to preach y Goſpell, not where Chriſt nam: was knowne, leſt I ſhalte byde on another mans foundacion, but as it is wyſten: To whom he was not ſpoken of, they ſhal ſe: and they that haue not herd, ſhal vnderſtonde. This is alſo the cauſe, wherfore I haue bene oft tymes let to come vnto you. But now ſich I haue remore place in the countree, hauynge yet a fewe menynges: ſince to come vnto you, when I ſhal take my iourney in to Spayne, I wil come to you: for I truſt that I ſhal paſſe y way and ſe you, and to be broughte on my way thither warde by you: but ſo, that I ſilſtrefre: ſh my ſilſe a litle with you.

But now go I to Jeruſalem, to myniſter vnto the ſayntes. For they of Macedonia and Achaia haue wyllingly prepared a com m m collection togerher, for the poore ſayntes at Jeruſalem. They haue done it with gladly, and their detters are they. For y ſo that this be made paraters off their ſpirital good thinge, their dueye is to myniſter vnto the in dodely thinges. Now when I haue perſourmed this, and haue broughte the fruſe ſeiled, I wil take my iourney by you in to Spayne. But I am ſure when I come vnto you, that I ſhal come with y full blif ſynge of the Goſpell of Chriſt.

I beſte you brechen thow oure LORDE Jeſu Chriſt, and thow is the loue of the ſpore, y ye helpe me in my boſynes with your prayres vnto God for me, that I maye be deliuered from the vnbelievers in Jeruſalem, and that this my ſeruyce which I doo Jeruſalem, maye be accepted of the ſayntes. For I maye come vnto you with ioye by y myl of God, and reſreſhe my ſilſe with you. The God of peace be with you all. Amen.

 gacion at Cenchrea.

The first Epistle of the Apostle S. Paul, to the Corinthians.

The summe of this Epistle.

- Chap. I. He commendeth the Corinthians, exhorteth the to be of one mynde, & rebuketh the diuysion that was amonge them. Wholy wyfdom is felicitye before God, yete there is no wyfdom but in the despyed gloos of Christe.
- Chap. II. It is not eloquence and glorious paynted wordes of woonly wyfdom, that can edifie and conuert soules vnto Christe: but the playne wordes of the scripture, for they maie mention of him and his crosse.
- Chap. III. Paul rebuketh the for an auro-racye of Christe in the soldoos of his wordes.
 No man ought to seioyce in men, but in God.
- Chap. IIII. The menshers are but mynisters.
 Judgement belongeth to only vnto God.
- Chap. V. After what maner Paul curseth the man, that had committed fornicacion with his mother in lawe.
- Chap. VI. He rebuketh the for goinge to lawe together before the heiden, and separtly vnclennesse.
- Chap. VII. Of marriage, virginite and wydowchaude.
- Chap. VIII. He rebuketh the that vsd their ly-berete to the slaunder of oother, & sheweth how men ought to behaue the towarde sch as be wofle.
- Chap. IX. Loue forbeareth the thinge: that she maye bo by the lawe. He rebuketh them to runne on feath in the couerit sparye haue begonne.
- Chap. X. He seareth them with the ensamples of the olde Testament, and exorteth them to a godly conuersacion.
- Chap. XI. He rebuketh the for the abscance and misorde that they had aboute the Sacrament of the body and bloude of Christe, and baryng them agayne to the first Institution.
- Chap. XII. The diuysite of the giftes of the holy goost, giuen to the cōfession and choyse of one another, as the membres of a mans body serue one another.
- Chap. XIII. The nature and condicions of loue.
- Chap. XIII. Paul sheweth that the gifte of propheticke interpretinge, or preachinge, excellith the gifte of tunges, and how they ought both to be vsed.
- Chap. XV. The resurrection of the dead.
- Chap. XVI. He seareth the in remembrance of the godderinge of the poore dwyll at Jerusale, and concludeth his epistle with the salu-tacion of certayne longye brethren.

 Corinthians.

The first Chapter.

2
 Act. 18. b 1oh. 1. 7. c
 Heb. 7. c
 1. Cor. 1. a

Paul, called to be an Apostle of Jesus Christ choore of will of God, and brother. Greeting, unto the congregation off God which is at Corinthum, to them that are sanctified in Christ. Jesus, sayntes by callinge, with all them that call vpon the name of oure LORDE Jesus Christ, in every place both off theires and oures. Grace be with you and peace from God oure father, and from the LORDE Jesus Christ.

Num. 21. c
 1. Co. 10. b
 1. Tel. 1. c

I thanke my God alwayes on youre behalfe, for the fauoure of God which is geue you in Jesus Christ, that in all poyntes ye are made ryche by him, in every wyse, and in all maner of knowlege (eue as I preachinge of Christ is confirmed in you) so that ye wante nothyng in eny gysse, and reayze but for the appearinge of oure LORDE Jesus Christ, which shall strength you also vnto yende, that ye maye be blamelesse in the daye of oure LORDE Jesus Christ. For God is faithfull, by whos ye are called vnto the felishippe of his sonne Jesus Christ oure LORDE.

 Act. 18. c

But I beseeke you brethre choore the name of oure LORDE Jesus Christ, that ye all speake one thinge, and let there be no discission amonge you, but that ye be perfecte in one meaninge. For it is shewed me (my brethre) of you, by them which are of yow holdes of Cloes, that there is stryfe amonge you. I beseeke of that, which every one of you sayeth: I holde of Paul. Another, I holde of. Apollo. The thirde, I holde of Ce-to the Corinthians.

phas. The fourth, I holde off Christ. In Christ then deuoyed in partes: Was Paul crucified for you? Or were ye baptyssed in name of Paul? I thanke God that I haue baptyssed none of you, but Crispus and Gaius: lest eny shulde saye, y I in my name had baptyssed. I baptyssed also y haue holde of Stephans. Ierarchimous knowe I not, whether I baptyssed eny other. In Christ sent me not to baptyse, but to preach the Gospell, not with wysdomme of wordes, lest y crosse of Christ shulde haue demede of none effecte.

For the worde of y crosse is foolishnesse to the that perishe: but vnto vs which are saued, it is the power of God. For it is written: I wyll destroye the wysdomme of the wysse, I wyll cast awaye the vnderstandinge of y prouidet. Where are the wysse? Where are y scriybes? where are y disputers of this worde? hath not God made the wysdomme this worde foolishnesse? For in so much as the worde by the wysdomme thertof knowe not God in his wysdomme, it pleased God thoro foolish preachinge to saue them y beleue. For the Jewes requyre cotens, and the Grekes are after wysdomme. But we preach Christ the crucified: to the Jewes an occasion off fallinge, and vnto the Grekes foolishnesse. But vnto them that are called (both Jewes and Grekes) we preach Christ the power of God and the wysdomme of God.

For the foolishnesse of God is wysse than men: and the weakenes of God is stronge than men. Brethren loke on youre callinge, howe that not many wysse after the flesh, nor many mightie, nor many of hie degre are called: but that foolish is before the worde, hath God chosen, that he mighte confounde the wysse: And that weakes is before the worde, hath God chosen, y he mighte confounde the mightye. And the wise and despise before the worde, hath God chosen, vs who that which is nothyng, that he mighte be trove that which is oughe, that no schull shulde reioyse in his pusiance. Of the same are ye also in Christ Jesu, which of oure made vnto vs wysdomme and righte consciens, and sanctification and redemption, that accordinge as it is wyrtten: he that reioysch shulde reioyse in the LORDE.

The 11. Chapter.

When I brethre, wha I came vnto you came not with wyse wordes, or hie wysdomme, to shewe vnto you the preachinge of Christ. For I shewed not forth my self

The first Epistle to the Corinthians. No. lxxiiij.

amonge you that I knewe any thinge, saue and Iesus Christ, euen the sam that was crucified. And I was amonge you in weaknes, and in feare, and in much tremblinge: and my worde and my preaching was not with enuynging wordes of mans wysdome, but in shewinge of the spere and of power: that youe saich shulde not stonde in the wysdome of men, but in the power of God.

That we speake of, is wysdome amonge thei þe are perfecte: not y wysdome of this worlde, neither of the rulers of this worlde which go to naughte: but we speake of the wysdome of God, which is in secretes and hath hid: which God ordeyned before the worlde unto oure glorie: which none of y rulers of this worlde knewe. For yf they had knowne it, they had not crucified the LORD of glorie, but as it is wyrten: The eye hath not sene, and the eare hath not herd, neither hath it entred in to the heart of man that God hath prepared for them that loue him.

But God hath opened it unto vs by his spere. For the spere searcheth out all thinge, yf euen the depensities of the Godhead.
 For what man knoweth what is in man, save the spere of man which is in him: Euen so man knoweth what is in God, saue y spere of God. As for vs, we haue not recea-ued the spere of this worlde, but the spere which cometh of God, so that we can knowe what is geue vs of God: which we also speake, not with conynging wordes of mans wysdome, but with the conynging wordes of the holy goost, and iudge spirituall matters spirituall. Howbeit the naturall man percei-ueth noching of y spere of God. It is so liknes vnto him, and he can not perceiue it: for it must be spirituallly discerned.
 Where that is spirituall, discouereth all thinge, and he is iudged of no man. For what hath knowne y mynde of the LORD: Or who shal ensoume him: But we haue the mynde of Christ.

The iii. Chapter.

¶ Now I beseeche you, could not speake vs to you as vnto spirituall, but as vnto carnall, euen as vnto babes in Christ.
 I gaue you mylke not then awaye withall, nether maye ye yet euen now, in so much as ye are yet fleshy. For seynge there is enuyng and discencion amonge you, as ye are fleshy, y walke after y manner of men: I would an one saye: y holde of Paul: another, I holde of Apollo, as ye nor the fleshy lye: What is Paul: What is Apollo: Eue mynisters are they, by whom ye are come to the beliere, and the same, accordinge as the LORD hath geuen unto eury man. I haue planteed, Apollo hath watered, but God hath geuen the increace. So then neither is he that planteth, any thinge, neither he that watereth, but God which geueth the increace. As for him that planteth, and he that watere, y one is as the other: but ye shal eue ry one receaue his rewarde accordinge to his labour. For we are Gods labourers, ye are Gods husbandry, ye are Gods buydinge.

Accordinge to the grace of God which is geuen vnto me, as a wyse buyder haue I layed the foundacion, but another buydeth thereon. Yet let eury man take hede how he buydeth thereon. For other foundacion can no man laye, then that which is layed, the which is Iesus Christ. But yf any man buyl-de vpon this foundacion, golde, syluer, precious stones, cumber, haye, stobbe, eury mans worke shal be shewed. For the daye of the LORD shal declare it, which shal be shewed with fyre: and the fyre shal trye eury mans worke what it is. Yf any mans worke that he hath buylded thereon, abyde, he shal recea-ue a rewarde: Yf any mans worke burne, he shal suffre losse: but he shal be saued himselfe, neuertheles as thorow fyre.

Knowe ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the spere of God dwelleth in you: Yf any man defile the temple of God, him shal God destroye. For the temple of God is holy, which ye are, and eue no man defile we him selfe. Yf any man thinke him selfe wyse amonge you, let him become a foole in this worlde, that he maye be wyse. For the wysdome of this worlde is foolshenes vnto God. For it is wyrten: he compasseth the wyse in their craftynesse.
 And agayne: The LORD knoweth the thoughtes of the wyse, that they are vayne.
 Therfore let no man reioyse in men.
 For all is yours, whether it be Paul or Apollo, whether it be Cephas or the worlde, whether it be life or death, whether it be present or for to come. All is yours, but ye are Christes, and Christes Gods.

The iii. Chapter.

¶ Let eury man this wyse esteeme vs, euen for the mynisters of Christ, and stewardes of the secretes of God.
 Now is there no more requyred of the steu-ardes, then, that they be founde faithfull.
 It is but a small thinge vnto me, that I shulde be iudged of you, or of mans daye, neither iudge I myne awne selfe. I knowe noughte by my selfe. yet am I not thereby iustified. It is the LORDE that iudgeth me. Therefore iudge ye nothinge before 3 yme, until the LORDE come, which shal bringe it to lighte that is hid in darknesse, and opene the counceils of 3 hertes, and the shal every one haue prayse of God.

B These thinges biethen haue I described in myne awne preson in Apollos for youre sakes, that ye mighte learne by vs, that no man counte hygher of him selfe, then aboute is wrytten, that one be noe paste up agaynst another for eny mans cause. For who preferreth the? What hast thou that thou hast not receaued? If thou hast receaued it, why makest thou the thy boost, as though thou haddest not receaued it? Now ye are full, now ye are made rich, ye raigne without vs, and welde God ye byd raigne, that we mighte raigne with you.

We thinke that God hath set forth vs Apollos for the lowestt off all, - euen as those that are appointed unto death. For we are a galyng stocke vnto 3 woilde and to the angels, and vnto men. We are foolcs for Chustes sake, but ye are wys in Chust: We weake, but ye stroge: Ye honorable, but we despyred. Euen vnto this daye we booger and chryst, and are naked, and are boffered with fystes, and haue no certayne dwellinge place, and labour and woork with oure arene handes. We are rayled, - and yet re blisse: we are persecuted, and suffre it: We are euell spoken of, and we praye: We are become as it were the very outscapinges of 3 woilde, yet the officeringe of all men vnto this tyme.

C I wryte not this to shame you, but as my deare child: I warne you. For though ye haue ten thousand instructours in Chust yet haue ye not many fathers. For I haue begotten you in Chust Iesu thorow 3 Gospel: Wherefore I exhorte you, - be ye my followers. For this cause haue I sent vnto you Timotheus (which is my deare sonne, and faithfull in the LORDE) that he maye put you in remembraunce of my wayes, which are in Chust, eue as I teach every where in all congregacions. Some are puffed vp, as though I wolde come nomete at you. But I wil come to you shortly (- yf the LORDE wil), and wyll knowe, not the wordes of the that are puffed vp, but 3 power. For the kyngdome of God is not in wordes, but in power. What wil ye? Shal I come vnto you 3 the rodd, or with lone and the space of weaknesse?

The V. Chapter.

I Here goeth a commen reporte, that there is whosome amoge you, and soch whosome, as is not once named amoge the heychen, - that one shalde haue his fathers wise. And ye are puffed vp, and haue not rather sorrowed, that he which hath done this dede, mighte be put first amoge you. For I verily as absent in body, but present in sperte, haue decremynd already as though I were present, to certmyge him that hath done this dede, in 3 name of our LORDE Iesu Chust, wha ye are gathered together with my sperte, and with the power of oure LORDE Iesu Chust, - to trye lyer him vnto Sathan for the destructione of the flesch, that the sperte maye be saved in the daye of the LORDE Iesu.

The daye of reioysinge is not good. - Knowe ye not that a litle leuen soweth the whole tompe of doure? Pourge out therfore the old leuen, that ye maye be newe doue, like as ye are strete ded. For we also haue an easter lambe, which is Chust, which is offered vs. Wherefore let vs - kepe easter, not in an olde leuen, mer in the leuen of malicioussnes, and wickednes, but in the swete bred of purenesse and of the trouth.

I wrote vnto you in the Epistle, that ye shulde haue nothinge to do with whosomegers, - that meant I not at all of the whoremongers of this woilde, ether of the carous, or of extortioners, or of such that worshippe ymages, for then must ye nedes haue gone out of the woilde. - But now haue I wryte vnto you, 3 ye shulde haue nothinge to do with them: (That is,) yf there be any man that is called a brother, and is an whoremonger, or conuou, or a whorshipper of ymages, ether a rayler, or a dronarde, or an extortioner, - with such shal ye not eate. For what haue Ie do to iudge them that are without? Do ye not iudge the that are within? As for them that are without, God shal iudge them. - Put awaye first you him that is euell.

The Vi. Chapter.

OW dare one off you hanyngest 3 nes with another, go to lawe before the vnrighteous, and not before the sayntes? Do ye not knowe that the sayntes shal iudge the wordes? If the wordes that shalbe iudged off you, are ye not good ynough to iudge small matters? Knowe not that we shal iudge the angels: how much more thinges that pertaine to the impossibilitye: Therefore yf ye haue iudgements of temporal matters, take them that are despised in the congregacion, and set them to be iudges. This I saye to youre shame. Is there wretchly no wise man amonge you? What not one at all, that can iudge betwixt brother to brother: but one brother goeth to lawe with another, and that before the iudicelers?

Now therefore is there wretchly a fault iudge you, that ye go to lawe one with another. Why rather suffre ye not wronge? Why suffre ye not your selues rather to be defrauded: but ye your selues do wronge and defraude, and that euen the church. A none yett that yf vnrighteous shal not inherite the Kingdome of God: Be not deceaued. Neither whomongers, ner worshippers of ymages, ner breakers off wedlocke, ner mealinges, necher abusers of them selues with mannynde, ner thymes, necher the coue¹tuus, ner dishonestes, ner cursed speakers, ner execucioners shal inherite the Kingdome of God. And such haue some of you bene, but ye are washed, ye are sanctified, ye are made righteous by the name of the LORD Iesus, and by the spirite of oure God.

I maye do all thinges, but all thinges are not profitable. I maye do all thinges, but I maye be brought vnder no mans power. Meates are ordeyned for y belly, and the belly serueth me. But God shal destroye both it and them. The body belongeth not vnto whoredome, but vnto the LORD, and the LORD vnto the body. God hath rayssed vp the LORD, and shal rayse vs vp also by his power. A now ye not that youre bodies are the members of Christ: shal I now take the members of Christ, and make them the members of an harlot: God forbid. O ye ye not knowe, that he which cleueth vnto an harlot, is one body: for they shal be trove¹ (so yeeth he) in one fleshe. But he that cleueth vnto the LORD, is one spiece.

Ye whoredome. All synnes y a man doth, are without the body. But he that commyeth whoredome, synneth agaynst his awne body. O knowe ye not that youre body is the temple of the holy goost: Whom ye haue of God, and are not youre awne. For ye are dearly bought. Prayse ye God that soyneth y body in y spiece, which are Gods.

The VII. Chapter.

Concernyng the thinges wherof ye wrote vnto me, I answer: It is good for a man not to touch a woman. The wretcheles to avoide whoredome, let every man haue his awne wife, and let every woman haue hir awne husbände. Let the man geue vnto the wife due beneuolence: like wylle also the wife vnto y man. The wife hath not power ouer hir awne body, but the husbände: as likewise the man hath not power ouer his awne body, but the wife. Withdrowe not y selues one fro another, excepte it be with the consent of both for a tyme, that ye maye geue youre selues vnto fastinge and prayer, and the come together agayne, lest Sathean tempe ye for y inconyng eye. But this I saye of sauours, and of commaundment. Howbeit I wolde rather y all me were as I am. Nevertheless every one hath his proper gifte of God: one thus, another so. To them verely y are vnmarried and to wedomes I saye: It is good for the that they abyde also as I do. But yf they can not absteyne, let them marry. For it is better to marry, then to burne.

But vnto them that are married, commaunde not I, but the LORD, that the wife separate not her selfe from the husbände: but yf she separate her selfe, y she remayne vnmarried, or be reconcyled to hir husbände: and let not the husbände put awaye his wife from him.

As for the other, vnto the I saye I, not y LORD: If every brother haue an vnbeleuyng wife, and she is content to dwell with him, let him not put hir awaye. And yf a woman haue an vnbeleuyng husbände, and he is content to dwell with her, let her not put him awaye. For the vnbeleuyng husbände is sanctified by the wife, and the vnbeleuyng wife is sanctified by the husbände: as els were youre children vncleane, but now are they holy. But yf the vnbeleuyng departe, let him departe. A brother or a sister is not bounde in such cases, but God hath called vs in peace. For what knowest thou a womā, whether thou shalt saue y ma: Or what knowest thou a man, whether thou shalt saue the woman? But euery as God hath distributed vnto every one, and as the LORD hath called every man, so let him walke: and so orden I in all congregacions.

If any man be called beyng circumcised, let him take no heyneshippes vpon him. If any man be called in the heyneshippe, let him not be circumcised. Circumcision is nothinge, and vncircumcision is nothinge, but the keepinge of the commaundmentes of God. Let every one abyde in the callyn

The first Epistle to the Corinthians. Ho. lxxx.

Whome onely I and Barnabas noe power this to do: Who goeth a warfare at my tyme upon his owne wages? Who planteth a vineyard, and eateth not of the frute thereof? Who seeth a flocke, and eateth not of the mylke of the flocke?

Saye I these thinges after the maner of men: Sayeth not the lawe the same also?

For it is written in the lawe off Moyses: Thou shalt not muffle the mouth of the ore that treadeth out the corne. Doth God take thought for the oven? Or sayeth he it not altogether for oure sakes? For no doute it is written for oure sakes. For he that careth, shalde care upon hope: and he that careth, shalde troste upon hope, for he mighte be partaker of his hope. As we have forme vnto you spiritual thinges, is it a greate thinge if we reape so bodily thinges? But yet other be partakers of this power on you, wherfore are not we rather?

Nevertheless we have noe used this power, but suffice all thinges, lest we shalde hynder the Gospell off Christ. Knowe ye not that they which laboure in the temple, haue their luyng of yf temple: and they that waite at the altare, enioye the altare? Euen thus also hath yf LORDE ordeyned, that they which preach the Gospell, shalde luyve of yf Gospell. But I have used none of these thinges.

Further wyte Iherosol, that it shulde be do neso vnto me: for I had rather dye, than that my man shulde byryng my reioysing to naughte. For in that I preach the Gospell, I make no boost myselfe, for I must neede do it. And woe vnto me, yff I preach not the Gospell. If I do it with a good will, I shall haue my rewarde: but yff I do it agaynst my will, yet is the office commytte vnto me. Wherfore shall I be rewarde?

(I am dy the lawe) that I preach the Gospell, and do the same frely for naughte, that I abuse noe myselfe in yf Gospell.

For though I am free from all men, yet have I made myselfe every mans seruant, for I mighte mynne yf moe. Vnto the Jewes I am become as a Jewe, to mynne yf Jewes.

To them that are vnder the lawe, I am become as though I were vnder the lawe, to wynte them which are vnder the lawe.

Vnto them that are without lawe, I am become as though I were without lawe (where as yet I am noe without the Lawe of God, but am in yf lawe of Christ) to wynte them that are without lawe. To the weak, am I become as weak, to mynne the weak. I am become of all fashions vnto every man, to save some at yf lesse. But this I do for the Gospell sake, that I mighte be partaker therof.

Knowe ye not, that they which runne in a course, runne all, yet but one receaiveth the rewarde? Runne ye so, that ye maye optayne me. Every one that pouerth must ye, as theyneth from all thinges, and they do it, that they maye optayne a corruptible crowne, but he to optayne an vncorruptible crowne.

I therefore so runne, not as at an vncertaine tyme: So fighte I, not as one that beatech yf aye: but I tame my body, and bringe it in to subieccion, lest when I preach vnto other, I myselfe be a cast awaye.

The X. Chapter.

Rebro, I wolde not that ye shulde be ignorant of this, that oure fathers were all vnder the cloude, and all passed thorow the see, & were all baptised vnder Moyses in the cloude and in the see, and byd all eate of one spiritual meate, and byd all drynke of one spiritual drynke: but they dronke of the spiritual rocke that folowed the, which rocke was Christ.

Nevertheless in many of them had God no delite, for they were synners downe in the wyldernes.

These are ensamples vnto vs, for we shalde be lust after euill changes, as they lust. Whether be ye worshippers off ymages, as were some of them. Accordinge as it is wyte eth: The people sat downe to eate and drynke, and rose vp to playe. Whether let vs commytte whoredome, as some of them commytte whoredome, and sell in one daye thirtwenty thousande.

Whether let vs tempte Christ, as some of them tempte him, and were destroyed of serpees. Whether murmur ye, as some of them murmured, and were destroyed theiow the destroyer.

All these thinges happened vnto the for ensamples, but they are yetted to warne vs, upon whom the ende of yf wolde is come.

Therfore let him that thinketh bestondeth, take heed, lest he fall. There hath yet no temptation overtake you, but such as yettoweth the nature of man. Nevertheless God is faithful, which shal not suffice you to be tempted above youre strength, but shal in the myddes of yf temptacion make a waye to come out, that ye maye beare it. Wherfore my dearly beloved, ste from worshippinge of ydols. I speake vnto them which haue discrecion, iudge ye what I saye. The cuppe of that is geuynge wherwith we geue thanke, is it not the partakinge of the bloodes of

How wolde I not that ye shulde be in the fallshipp of deuils. Ye can not drinke of the cuppe of the LORDE and of the cuppe of the deuils. Ye can not be partakers of the LORDES table, and of the table of deuils. Or wyl ye prouoke the LORDE? I maye do all thinges, but all thinges are not profitable. I maye do all thinges, but all thinges edifie not. Let no man seeke his owne profit, but let every man seeke anothers welch.

D But yf any man saye vnto you: This is offered vnto Idols, the eate not of it, for his sake that shewed it, and for hurtinge of conscience. (The earth is the LORDES and all that therein is.) Neuertheles I speake of a conscience, not thine, but of y^e other. For why shulde my liberty be iudged of another mans conscience? For yf I take my parte wth thankes yeinge, why am I well spoken of, for & thinge wherfore I gave thankes?

Col. 2. 16

For what whether ye eate or drinke, or what so ever ye do, do all to y^e prayse of God. Be not ye an occasion of fallinge, neither to the Jewes, ner to the Genyles, ner to the congregation of God, eue as I also please all men in all thinges, not seeinge myne owne profit, but the profit of many, that they might be saved. I folowe ye me, as I do Christ.

2 The XI. Chapter.
2 Commende you brethren, that ye remember me in all prayntes, and kepe the ordinances, eue as I delyered them vnto you. But I certifie you, that Christ is the heade of every man. As for y^e man, he is the heade of y^e woman, but God is Christs heade. Every man that prayeth or prophesieth, and hath eny thinge on his heade, shameth his heade. But every man that prayeth or prophesieth with vncovered heade, dishonoureth his heade. For it is euen a lyke moche as yf she were shaven. If she woman be not covered, let hir heare also be cut of. But yf she be oncomely for a woman to haue hir heare cut of, so to be shaven, then let hir couer hir heade. Neuertheles the man oughte not to couer his heade, for so moche as he is the ymage and glory of God: but the woman is the glory of the man. For the man is not of the woman, but the woman of the man. Neither was the man created for the womans sake, but the woman for the mans sake.

Therfore oughte the woman to haue a power vpon hir heade, for the angels sake. Neuertheles neither is the man withoute y^e woman, neither the woman withoute the man in the LORDE. For as the woman is of the man, euen so commeth the man also by the woman, but all of God. Judge ye by yo^r selues, whether it be comly, y^e a woman prayse before God bare headed? Or doth not nature teach you, y^e it is a shame for a man yf he weare long haire, & a prayse to y^e woman, yf she weare long haire? For hir heare is gawe heere to couer hir withall. But yf there be any man amonge you that hath lust to styffe, let him knowe, that we haue no such custome, neither the congregacions of God. But this must I warne you of: I commende it not, that ye come together not a fter a better maner: but a fter a worse. First, when ye come together in the congregacion, I heare, that there are dissensions amonge you, and I partly beueit. For there must be sectes amonge you, that they which are perfecte amonge you, mighte be knowne.

How many ye come together, the LORDES supper can not be kepte. For when it shulde be kepte, every man eateth his owne supper a fow. And one is herye, another is dynted, & aue ye not howe to eate and drinke in: Or despyse ye y^e congregacion of God, and shame them that haue not? What shal I saye vnto you? Shal I prayse you in this prayse I you not. That which I delyered vnto you, receaved I of the LORDE. For the LORDE Iesus the same mighte is the which he was betrayed, toke the bread, & gawe thankes, and brake it, and sayde: Take ye, eate ye, this is my body, which is broken for you. This do in the remembrance of me. After the same maner also he toke y^e cuppe when supper was done, and sayde: This cuppe is the new Testamēt in my blood, this do (as oft as ye drynke) in the remembrance of me. For as oft as ye shall eat of this bread, & drinke of this cuppe, ye shall shewe the LORDS death, vntill he come.

D Wherefore who soeuer shall eat of this bread, and drinke off this cuppe of the LORDS unworthely, shall be guiltye of the body and blood of Ihesus the LORD. * But let a man examine himselfe, and so let him eat of this bread, and drinke of this cuppe. For he that eateth and drynketh unworthely, eateth & drynketh his awnedamnation, because he maketh no difference of the LORDS body. Therefore are there so many weakes and sicke amonge you, and many slepe. * For yf we iudge oure selues, we shulde not be iudged. But when we are iudged, we are chastened of y LORD. That we shulde not be dauid with the world. * Wherefore my brethren, when ye come together to eat, tary one for another. But yf any man hunger, let him eat at home, that ye come not to gether vnto condemnation. As for other thinges, I wil see them in other when I come.

The XII. Chapter.

WH concerninge spirituall giftes (brethren) I wolde not that ye were ignorant. Ye knowe that ye were heathen and wente youre wayes vnto diuine Idoles, as ye were led. Wherefore I declare vnto you, * that no man speakinge throughe the spete of God, besyeth Ihesus. And no man can saye that Ihesus is the LORD, but by the holy goosf.

U There are diuerse giftes, yet but one spirit: and there are diuerse officies, yet but one LORD: and there are diuerse operationes: yet is there but one God, which worketh all in all. The giftes of the spete are geuen vnto every man to profithe the congregacion. To me is geuen throughe the spete the veteranage of wisdom: to another is geuen the veteranage of knowledge accordinge to the same spete: to another, faith in the same spete: to another, the giftes of healinge in the same spete: to another, power to do miracles: to another, prophecyinge: to another, iudgement to discern spetes: to another, diuerse tunges: to another, the interpretation of tunges. These all work of same onely spete work, and distributeth vnto every man, accordinge as he will.

For as the body is one, and hath yet many members, neuertheless all the members of the body: though they be many, are yet but one body: euen so Christ also. For we are all baptysed in one spete to be one body, whether we be Jewes or Gentyles, whether we be bondes or fre, and haue all - vnto it of one spete. For the body also is not one membre, ^{1 Cor. 12} but many. As the force saye: I am not yf han be, therfore am I not a membre of the body, is he therfore not a membre of yf body? And yf the force saye: I am not the eye, therfore am I not a membre of the body, is he therfore not a membre of the body? As all the body were an eye, where were then the hearinge? As all were hearinge, where then the smelling? But now hath God set the members, eery one generally in the body, as it hath pleased him. Neuertheless yf all the members were one membre, where were then the body? But now are the members many, yet is the body but one.

The eye can not saye vnto the hande: I haue no neede of the: or a gaime the head vnto the feete, I haue no neede of you: but rather a greate deale the members of the body which seeme to be most feeble, are most necessary: and vpon those members of the body which we thinke least honest, put we most honorifici on: and sure vncerly partes haue most beare on. For oure honest members neede it not. But God hath so measured yf body, and geuen most honour vnto eache membre which had neede, that there shulde be no stryfe in the body, but that the members shulde indifferently care one for another. And yf one membre suffre, all the members suffre with him: and yf one membre be had in honour, all the members are glad with him also. But ye are the body of Christ, and members, eery one of another.

And God hath ordeyned in the congregacion, first the. Apostles, secondly prophetes, thirdey teachers, then doers of miracles, after that the giftes of healinge, helpers, gouerners, diuerse tunges. Are they all Apostles? Are they all prophetes? Are they all teachers? Are they all doers of miracles? haue they all the giftes of healinge? Speake they all with tunges? Can they all interpret? But couer ye the best giftes. And yet shewe I you a more excellent waye.

The XIII. Chapter.

Though I spake with the tunges of men and angels, and yet had not loue, I were euen as soundinge brass, or as a tynlinge Cymball. * And though I coulde prophecy, & vnderstande all secretes, and all knowlege, and had all faith, in the

I coulde moue molucaynes out of their place, and yet had no loue, I were nothinge. And though I bestowed all my goodes to fede y^e poore, and though I gaue my body euen that I burned, and yet haue no loue, it profiteth me nothinge.

Phil 1 A one is pacient & courteous, lone enuyeth not, lone doeth not forwardly, is not puffed up, dealeth not dishonestly, is not enuieous, is not provoked vnto anger, chynketh not well, reioyseth not ouer iniquitye, but reioyseth in the truth, beareth all thinges, beareth all thinges, hopeth all thinges, suffereth all thinges.

B Though prophecienges sayle, or tungen ceasse, or knowlege perishe, yet lone fallerh neuer awaye. For oure knowlege is vnperfecte, and oure prophecienge is vnperfecte. But whi that which is perfecte, commeth, then shal the vnperfecte be done awaye. When I was a childe, I spake as a childe, I vnderstode as a childe, I imagined as a childe. But as some as I was a man, I put awaye chuldishnes. Now we se thow a glasse in a darke speakyng, but the shal we se face to face. Now I knowe vnperfectly: but the shal I knowe euil as I am knowne. Now abydeth faith, hope, lone, these thre: but the greatest of these is lone.

The XIII. Chapter.

A Aboute for lone. Couer spiritaill giftes, but specially that ye maye prophete. For he y^e speaketh with tungen, speaketh not vnto men, but vnto God: for no man heareth him. Howbeit in y^e spete he speaketh misteries. But he that prophetech, speaketh vnto men to edifyinge, & to exhortacion, and to cōfōite. He that speaketh with tungen, edifieth himselfe: but he that prophetech, edifieth the cōgregation. I wolde that ye all spake with tungen, but rather that ye propheteched. For greater is he that prophetech, then he that speaketh wth ediges: excepte he also expounde it, that the cōgregation maye haue edifyinge. But now brethren yf I come vnto you, and speake with tungen, what shal I profit you, excepte I speake vnto you ether by reuelacion or by Enoclegge, or by prophecienge, or by doctrine:

B Likewise is it also in y^e thinges that geue sounde, and yet haue not: whether it be a pype or an harpe, excepte they geue distynct soundes from them, how shal it be knowne what is piped or harped. And yf the trespere geue an vncertayne sounde, who wil prepare him selfe to the batteyll? Euen so ye like wyse, when ye speake with tungen, excepte ye speake playne woites, how shal it be knowne what is spokē: for ye shal but speake in y^e ayre. So many tynbes of woyses are in the woite, and none of them is without significacion. If I knowe no tōmō what y^e woice meaneth, I shalbe an aleaunt vnto him that speaketh: he that speaketh, shalbe an aleaunt vnto me. Euen so ye (for so much as ye couer spiritaill giftes) sette y^e ye maye haue plentye to the edifyinge of the cōgregation. Wherefore let him that speaketh with tungen, praye, that he maye interpetre also. If I praye with tungen, my spete prayeth, but my vnderstōbinge bringeth no man fraite, how shal it be then? Namely thus: I wil praye with y^e spete, and wil praye with the vnderstōbinge also: I wil synge psalmes in the spete, and wil synge psalmes with y^e vnderstōbinge also.

But when thou geuest thankes with y^e spete, how shal he that occupieth the tōmō of the vnlearned saye Amē at thy gyngge of thankes, seynge he knoweth not what thou sayest? Thou geuest well thankes, but the other is not edified. I thank my God, that I speak with tungen more then ye all. Yet haue I lemer in the cōgregation to spelle fyue wordes with my vnderstōbinge: I maye enforme other also, rather then ten thousande wodes with tungen. - Brethren be not children in vnderstōbinge, howbeit as concerninge malicioufnes be chuldish: be in vnderstōbinge be perfecte. In the laste it is wyeten: With other tungen and with other lippes wyll I speake vnto this people, and yet shal they not se heare me. sayeth the LORD. - Therfore are tungen for a token, not to the that beleue, but to them that beleue not. Contrary wyse, prophecienge, not to them that beleue not, but to them which beleue.

If the whole cōgregation now came together in to one place, & spake all with tungen, and there came in they that are vnlearned, or they which beleue not, shulde they not saye, that ye were out of youre wyes? But yff all propheteched, and there came in one y^e beleue not, or one vnlearned, he shulde be blesed of them all, and indged of all, and he shulde be the secrete of his hert be opened, and so shulde he fall doune vpon his face, worshippinge God, and knowelinge, that of a truerh God is in you. How is it euen wth them? When ye come together, carrye wth hath a psalme, hath doctrine, hath a tunge, hath a reuelacion, hath an interpretacion

The first Epistle to the Corinthians. No. lxxvij.

Let all be done to edification. If any man speake with tongues, let him do it him selfe beinge the first, or at the most him selfe beinge of therte, and one after another, and let one interpret it. But if there be noe an interpreter, then let him keepe silence in the congregation, howbeit let him speake to himselfe and to God. As for the prophetes, let two or thre speake and let the other iudge. But if any revelation be made unto another that sitteth, then let the first holde his peace.

¶ It maye all prophete one after another that they all maye learne, and that all maye have comfort. And the spaces of the prophete are subiecte unto the prophete. For God is noe a God of disension, but of peace, like as in all congregacions off the sayntes. Let your wyues keepe silence in the congregation, for it shal not be permittid unto the to speake, but to be under obedience, as if I have sayed also. But if they will learne any thinge, let them be their husbands at home. For it becometh not wome to speake in the congregation. O sprunge the worde of God from amonge you: For it is he come unto you onely: If any man chynke himselfe to be a prophet, or spiriual, let him knowe what I wryte unto you, for they are the commandementes of the LORD. But if any man be ignorant, let him be ignorant. When foue brethren, couet to prophete, and forbyd not to speake with tongues. Let all thinges be done honestly and in order.

The XV. Chapter.

¶ Declare unto you brethren, the Gospel that I have preached unto you in Corinth, (which ye have also accepted, and in the which ye stande, by the which also ye are saved) after what manner I preached it unto you, if ye have keepe it, excepte ye have believed in vayne. For first of all I deliuered unto you that which I also receaved, how that Christ dyed for oure synnes according to the scriptures, and that he was buried, and that he rose agayne the thirde daye according to the scriptures, and that he was seene of Cephas, then of the twelve: after that was he seene of mo then fyue hundred brethren at once, whereof there are yet many alive, but some are fallen asleepe. Afterward he was seene of James, then of all the Apostles. Last of all was he seene of me also, as if of one borne out of due tyme. For I am of last of the Apostles, which am not worthy to be called an Apostle, because I persecuted the congregation of God. But by the grace of God I am that I am. And his grace in me hath not bene vayne, but I have laboured more then they all: howbeit not by the grace of God which is w me. I knowe whether I be of they, thus have we preached, and thus have ye believed.

But if Christ be preached, that he is risen from the dead, how saye then some amonge you, that there is no resurrection of the dead: If there be no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen. If Christ be not risen, then is oure preaching in vayne, and youre faith is also in vayne: yet and we are founde false witnesses of God, because we have testified agaynst God, that he hath raised up Christ, whom he hath not raised up, if the dead rise not agayne. For if the dead rise not agayne, then is Christ also not risen agayne. But if Christ be not risen agayne, then is youre faith in vayne, and ye are yet in youre synnes: they also that are fall a slepe in Christ, are perished. If in this life onely we have hope on Christ, then are we of all men the most miserable.

But now is Christ risen from the dead, and is become of first frutes of them that slepe. For by one man cometh death, and by one man the resurrection of the dead. Soe as they all dye in Adam, so shal they all be made alive in Christ, but every one in his order. The first is Christ, then they that belonge unto Christ, when he cometh. Then cometh the ende, when he shal deliuer up the kyngdome unto God the father, when he shal put downe all rule, and all superiourite, & power. For he must raygne, till he have put all his enemies under his feet. The last enemy that shal be destroyed, is death, for he hath put all thinges under his feet. But when he sayeth, that all thinges are put under him, it is manifest that he is excepted, which put all thinges under him. Whom all thinges shalbe subdued unto him, then shal the sonne himselfe also be subiecte unto him, which put all thinges under him, that God maye be all in all.

¶ What do they which are baptised over of dead, if the dead rise not at all? Why are they then baptised over the dead? And why stande we in jeopardy every hoare? By oure reioysing which I have in Christ Jesus & LORD, I dye daily. That I have fought with beasts at Ephesus after of manner of men, what helpeth it me, if the dead rise not agayne? Let us eate and drynke, for tomorrow we shal dye. Be not ye discomfited.

Phil. 100. f Heb. 2.b

1Co. 11.b 2Co. 2.a

Well speakinges corrupte good maners. Awake righte up, and syne not: for some haue nee 3 knowlege of God. This I saye to youre shame.

But some man mighte saye: Howe shal the deed arise? And with what maner off body shal they come? Thou fool, 3 whiche thou knowest is not quyetened, excepte it dye. And what sowest thou? thou sowest not 3 bodye that shalbe, but a bare come, named yf we beate, or of some other. But God geueth it a body as he wil, and unto eury one of 3 keas his owne body.

All fleshe is not one maner of fleshe, but there is one maner fleshe of men, another of beastes, another of fishes, another of byrdes. And there are heauenly bodies, and there are earthy bodies: but the heauenly haue one glory, and 3 earthy another. The Sonne hath one clearenes, the Moone hath another clearenes, and the starres haue another clearenesse, for one starre excelleth another in clearenesse: Euen so the resurrection of the deed. It is sowne in corrupcion, and shal rise in incorrupcion: It is sowne in dishonoure, 3 shal rise in glory: It is sowne in weaknesse, and shal rise in power: It is sowne a naturall body, 3 shal rise a spirituall body.

There be a naturall body, there is a spirituall body also. As it is written: The first man Adam was made in to a naturall life, and the last Adā in to a spiruall life. Howbeit the spirituall body is not the first, but 3 naturall, and then the spiruall. The first man is of the earth, earthy: yf seconde mā is of heauē, heauēly. As the earthy is, soch are they also that are earthy: and as 3 heauenly is, soch are they also 3 are heauenly. And as we haue borne the ymage of the earthy, so shal we beare the ymage of the heauenly also. This I saye brethren, that flesh 3 blowe can not inheret 3 kyngdome of God: neither shal corrupcion inheret incorrupcion.

Beholde, I saye unto you a mystry: We shal not all sleepe, but we shal all be chaunged, and that sodenly, and in the twinklyng of an eye, at the tyme of the last trompe. For the trompe shal blowe, and the deed shal rise incorruptible, and we shalbe chaunged. For this corruptible must put on incorrupcion, and this mortall must put on immortallite. But when this corruptible shal put on incorrupcion, and this mortall shal put on immortallite, the shal the worde be fulfilled that is written: Death is swallowed up in victory. Death, where is thy synge? Hell, where is 3 victory? The synge of death is syn-ne: The strength of synne is the lawe. But thanke be unto God, which hath geue us the victory throughe oure LORDE Iesus Christ. Therefore my deare brethren, be ye fast fast, unmovable, 3 alwaye rich in the worke of the LORDE, for as much as ye knowe, that youre labour is not in vayne in the LORDE.

The XVI. Chapter.

Concernyng the gabdryng the 3 is made for the sayntes, as I haue ordeyned in the congregacions of Galacia, euen so do ye also. Upon some Sabbath daye let eury one of you put asyde by him selfe, and laye up what so euer he thinketh meete, that the collection be not to gather when I come. When I am come, whome euer ye shal alowe by youre letters, the 3 I sende do bringe youre liberallite unto Ierusalem. Nevertheless yf it be meete that I go thither also, they shal go with me. How I wil come unto you, when I go thowm Macedonia: for thowm Macedonia wil take my iourney. Which you praynturent I abyde, or els to yner. that ye maye bringe me on my waye, whiche so euer I go.

I wil not fe you now in my passage, 3 I hope to abyde a whyle with you, yf the LORDE shal suffice me. But I wil carrye the thebeis vntill whifson daye. For a great and fearefull dre is opened vnto me, and there are many aduersaries. Yf Timotheus come, se that he be without feare with you, for he woteth 3 worde of the LORDE as I do. Let no man therfore despyse him, but conuaye him forth in peace, that he maye come vnto me, for I loke for him with the brethren.

As for brother Apollos, be ye sure, that I greatly desired him to come vnto you with the brethren. And his mynde was not at all to come at this tyme, but he wil come whi he hath oportunitie. Watch ye, stande fast in the faith, quyte you like men, and be fast ge: let all youre thinges be done in loue.

But brethren (ye knowe the house off) Stephana, that they are the first frutes in Achaia, and that they haue appoynted the silues to mynister vnto the sayntes) I desire you to be obedient vnto soche, and to all that helpe and labour. I am glab of the 3 ymage of Stephana and Fortunatus, and Achaicus. For loke what was lackyng unto me on youre parte, 3 haue they supplied: they haue refreshed my spere and yours. Knowe them therefore that are soch.

The congregacions of Asia salute you.

The ii. Epistle to the Corinthians. Fo. lxxvij.

Agula and Priscilla salute you moch in the

The seconde
 Epistle of the Apostle S.
 Paul, to the Corinthians.

The first Chapter.

Paul an Apostle of Jesus Christ, by the will of God, and brother Ti-motheus. Vnto the congregacion of God which is at Corinth, I with all the sayntes which are all at Achaia.

Grace be with you, and peace frō God our father, and from the LORDE Iesus Christ.

Col. 1. 2
 Eph. 1. 2
 1 Pet. 1. 2

Blessed be God the father of oure LOR-DE Iesus Christ, the father of mercy and of God of all comforte, which comforteth vs in all oure trouble: in so moch so we are able to comforte them that are in any maner of trouble, with the same comforte wherewith nō oure selues are comforted of God. For as the afflictions of Christ are plenteous in vs, euen so is his consolacion plenteous in vs, Dnt: whether we haue trouble or comforte, it is done for youre welth. If it be trouble, it is done for youre cōfōrte and healeth, which healeth sheweth his power, in that ye suffre the same afflictions which we suffre. If it be comforte, it is done also for youre comforte and healeth. Therefore is oure hope safe for you, in so moch as we knowe, that like as ye are partakers of the afflictions, so shal ye be partakers also of the consolacion.

Verhamen we wolde not haue you ignorant of oure trouble, which happened vnto vs in Asia, for we were tressed our off measure passinge strength, so that we euen dyspured of life, and had concluded in oure selues so we must needs dye. Vnto this was done, because we shulde not pue oure trust 2

in oure selues, but in God, which rayseth vp the dead to life agayne: which delyuered vs from so greate a death, and yet delyueredh daylie. On whom we trust, that he wil delyuer vs here after also, by the helpe of youre prayer for vs: that on oure behalfe many thankes may be geuen by many persones, for the gifte that is geuen vs.

For oure reioysinge is this, euen the testi mony of oure conscience, that in synlenes & godly purenesse, not in fleshye wysdome, but in the grace of God, we haue had oure conuasiacion in the worlde, but most of all with you. For we wyte nothinge els vnto you, then that ye rebe and also knowe. Rec & Truste that ye shal synbe vs vnto the ende, euen as ye haue founde vs partly.

For we are youre reioysinge, eue as ye also are oure. reioysinge in y daye of the L O R D E Jesus. And in this considence was I mynided the otheer tyme to come vnto you (that ye mighte haue yet another pleasure more to passe by you in to Macedonia, & to come agayne out of Macedonia vnto you & to be led forth to Jerreye warde of you.

Whan I thus wyse was mynided, byd I vnto lightnesse: Or are my thoughtes fleshy? For so - but with me yee is yee, and naye is naye. O hatifull God, that oure worde vnto you hath not bene yee and naye. For Gods some Jesus Christ, which was preached amonge you by vs (namely, by me and Siluanus and Timotheus was not yee and naye, but in him it was yee. For all the promyses of God are yee in him, & are Aine in him, to the playse of God by vs. But it is God which stablysheth vs wth you in Christ, and hath annoynd us, and sealed vs, and geuen the earnest of the spere in oure hertes.

The II. Chapter.

For I call God to recorde vnto my soule, that to fauoure you with all I came not agayne vnto Corinthum. Not that we are - loides ouer youre faith, but we are helpe of youre ioye, for ye stonde in faith. But I decremynd this wth my selfe, that I wolde not come agayne to you in heuynes. For yf I make you ioye, wtho is it that shal make me glad, but the same which is made ioye by me? And the same haue I wyrtzen vnto you, lest whā I come, I shal be to the hynnes of them, of whom I oughte to reioyse: for somoch as I haue this con sidence in you all, that my ioye is the ioye of you all. For in greate trouble and angursh of otheer wote I vnto you with many teares: not yf ye shalde be ioye, but that ye mighte perceane the loue, which I haue most speci ally vnto you.

But yf any man haue caused sorowe, the same hath not made me ioye, but partly, lest I shalde grene you all. It is sufficient, that the same man is so rebuted of many, so that from hence forth ye oughte the more to ioye him and to comforte him, lest he be swalowed up in ouer much heuynesse. Wherfore I exhorte you, that ye shewe loue vnto him. For therfore byd I wyte vnto you also, that I mighte knowe the proofe of you, whether ye were obedite in all thinges. Wherfore I wrote vnto whō ye soigrene any thinges, I forgave hi also. For I also, yf I forgave anye vnto any mā, that forgave I for youre sake in the rowme of Christ, lest we shalde be pũcted of Sarban. For his thoughtes are not unknowne vnto vs.

But whā I came to Troada to prech yf Gospell of Christ (and a voie was open vnto me in y L O R D E) I had no rest in my spere, because I founde not Titus my brother: but I toke my leue of them, and went awaye in to Macedonia. Rec thankes now to God, which all waye geueth vs the waye in Christ, and openeth yf fauoure of his knowlege by vs in eury place. For we wento God the good fauoure of Christ, but amonge thes ye are saued, & amonge thes iustitise. To thes, yf fauoure of death was death: but vnto yf otheer, the fauoure of this vnto life. And who is merre therco: for we are not as many are, which choppet & dawge wth the worde of God, but eue our of purenesse, and one of God in yf sighte of Gods spere we in Christ.

The III. Chapter.

Whyne we then agayne to prech selues? Or neede we (as some othe) of piffles of commendacion vnto you or letters of commendacion from you: For oure epistle wyrtzen in oure hertes: which vnderstonde and red of all me, in that ye knowe, how that ye are yf epistle of thes mynished by vs, and wyrted, not with pen, but with the spere of the wynges of God: in tables of stone, but in fleshye tables of the hert. Such truste haue we thowen Christ to God warde, not that we are sufficient oure selues to thynke any thinge, as of our selues, but oure ableness commeth of God, which hath made vs able, to be a mynistre of the new Testament: not of the letter, but of the spere. For the letter killeth, but the spere geueth life.

But yf the mynistre of yf killeth the now the letter, and was figured in stones, was glorious, so that the child of Israel might not behold the face of Moses, for fearfulness of his countenance, (which glory nevertheless is done away) how shall not the manifestation of the spirit be much more glorious? For if the office that preacheth damnation be glorious, much more doth the office that preacheth righteousness exalt in glory, for in other parts that was glorified is not being glorified in respect of this exceeding glory. For if that which is done away, be glorious, much more shall that which remaineth, be glorious.

¶ Scynghe then that we have such trust, we use greater boldnesse, and do not as Moses, which put a vail before his face, so that the children of Israel might not see the ende of it, that is done away. But their myndes are blinded. For vnto this day remaineth the same covering vnto this day in the old Testament, when they receiue it, which in Christ is put away. But euen vnto this day when Moses is red, the vail hangeth before their herces: Let neuertheless whā they come to the LORDE, the vail shall be taken away. For the LORDE is a spirit: where the spirit of the LORDE is, there is libertie. But now the glory of the LORDE appeareth in us all with open face, and we are changing into the same ymage, from one cleannes to another, and as of the spere of the LORDE.

The III. Chapter.

¶ Herfore scynghe we have such an office (euen as mercy is come vpon vs) we sayne not, but cast from vs the doctes of sensiblenesse, and walke not in craftines: neither couer we the worde of God, but open the truth, and reporte oure selues to euery mans conſcience in the sighte of God.

¶ If oure Gospell be yet hyd, it is hyd in them that are lost: amonge whom the God of this world hath blinded the myndes of them which beleue not, that the lighte of the Gospell of the glory of Christ (which is the ymage of God) shulde not shyne vnto them. For we preach not of selues, but Iesus Christ to be the LORDE, and oure selues youre seruantes for Iesus sake.

¶ For God, that commanded the light to shyne out of darcknesse, hath giuen a cleare conscience in oure herces, by the light of the knowledge of the glory of God, which cometh in the face of Iesus Christ.

But this treasure haue we in earthy vessels, that the power which exelleth might be of God, and not of vs. We are troubled on euery syde, yet are we not without hope. We are in pauerie, but not utterly without somewhat. We are persecuted, but we are not forsaken. We are oppressed, neuertheless we perish not. We alwayes beare aboute in oure body the byenge of the LORDE Iesus, the life also of the LORDE Iesus might appeare in oure body. For we which lyue, are alwayes deliuered vnto death for Iesus sake, that the life also of Iesus might appeare in oure mortall flesch.

¶ Therfore is death now mightie in vs, but life in you. But scynghe that we haue the same spere of faith (acordinge as it is written. I beleue, and therefore haue I spokē), we also beleue, and therfore we speake, for we knowe that he, which rayſed vp the LORDE Iesus, shall rayſe vs vp also by the meane of Iesus, and shall sit with you. For all thinges do I for your sakes, that the plenteous grace by the chācellengyng of many, maye redounde to the prayse of God. Therfore are we not weary, but though we outwardly maye be corrupte, yet the inward is renewed day by day. For oure trouble, which is but temporal and lighte, worketh an exceeding and an eternall weighte of glory vnto vs, which loke not on the thinges that are sene, but on them which are not sene. For the thinges which are sene, are temporall: but the thinges that are not sene, are eternall.

The V. Chapter.

¶ We knowe surely, that if oure earthly house of this dwelling were destroyed, we haue a building ordeyning of God, an house not made with handes, but eternallstygne in heauen. And in the same sighe we also aſſure oure mansion, which is from heauen: and longer be clothed therewith, so yet: yf that we be founde clothed, and not naked. For as longe as we are in this tabernacle, we sighe and are grieved, for we had rather not be vnclothed, but to be clothed vpon, that mortalitie might be swallowed vp of life. But he that hath ordeyned vs for this, is God, which hath giuen vs the earnest of the spere. Therefore are we alwaye of good cheare, and knowe, that as longe as we dwell here in the body, we are not at home with the LORDE: for we walke in faith, and se him not. Let neuertheless we are of good comforte, and had leaue to be absent from the body, and to be at home with the LORDE.

¶ Wherfore, whether we be at home or sit home, we endeavour oure selues to please him. • For we must all appeare before the iudgment seate of Christ, & every one maye receaue in his body, according to & he hath done, whether it be good or bad. Scynge then that we knowe, how that the LORDE is to be feared, & we farr saye with men, but we are knowne well ynough unto God: Jcrist also, that we are knowne in your consciences. We praye not oure selues agayne unto you, but geate you an occasion to reioyse of us, & ye maye haue to reioyse agaynst them, which reioyse after the outwarde appearance, and not after the hart. For yf we do to much, we do it unto God: yf we kepe measure, we do it for youre sakes. For the loue of Christ constraineth vs, in as much as we thus iudge, that yf one be deed for all, then are all dead. • And therfore dyed he for all, that they which lyue, shalde not henceforth lyue unto them selues, but vnto him, which dyed for them and rose agayne.

C Therfore henceforth knowe we noman after y flesh: and though vs haue knowne Christ also after the flesh, yet knowe we him now so nomorie. Therfore yf any man bein chaff, he is a new creature. Olde thinges are past awaye, • beholde, all are become new. • Tenetables all thinges are off God, which hath reconcyled vs vnto himselfe by Jesus Christ, and hath giuen vs the office to preache the atonement. • For God was in Christ, and • reconcyled the wolde vnto himselfe, and counced not ther synnes vnto chm, and amonge vs hath he set vp the wolde of y atonement. • Now theare we messengers in the rowme of Christ, euen as though God exhorted by vs. We besike you now therfore in Christes steade, that ye be at one with God: • for he hath made him which, hence no synne, to be synne for vs, & we by his meanes shalde be that righteousnes, which before God is allowed.

The VI. Chapter.

We as helpers therfore exhorte you, that ye receaue not y grace of God in vayne. For he sayeth: • I haue herde the in the tyme accepted, and in the daye of saluacion haue I scouered the. Beholde, now is the accepted tyme, now is the daye of saluacion. Let vs geue no man occasion of euill, that oure office be not euill spoken of: but in all thinges let vs behaue oure selues as the • ministers of God: in much patience, in troubles, in necessities, in anguishes, in stryppes, in prisonmentes, in vprouers, in laboures, in wardynges, in fastynges, in purenesse, in knowlege, in longe sufferynge, in tendresse: in the hely goost, in lowe wysayned, in the wolde of the truth, in the power of God, by the armour of righteousness on the rightehande and on the left: in honoure and dishonoure, by euill report and good report: as discretes, & yet thus as vnknowne, and yet knowne: as vyrgins, and beholde, we lyue: as chastited, and not fylled: as foicourynge, and yet all maye myry as poore, & yet make many riches as honyng nothinge, & yet possesse all thinges.

O ye Corinthians, oure mouth is open vnto you, oure hart is made large. We are in no straynesse on oure behalfe: but re here as ye are in straynesse, that do ye of youre owne herely meanyng. I speake to you, as to childe, that haue like reuerence with vs. Our selues therfore at large.

Do not a straunge yock with the weakeliuers. For what fullhippe hath righteousness with unrighteousnesse. What company hath lighte with darknesse. • How agreeth Christ with Belial. • What part hath the beleuer with the infydele. • How accedeth the temple of God with ymagis. • We are the temple of the lyuynge God, as sayeth God: • I wyld well in them, and walde in them, and wyll be their God, & they shal be my people. • Wherfore come out from amonge them, and separate youre selues. • (sayeth the LORDE) and touche no uncleane thinge, so wyll I receaue you, & be youre father, & ye shal be my sonnes and daughter, sayeth y Almightye LORDE.

The VI. Chapter.

Synge now that we haue soden mysse (dearly beloved) let vs doo ourselues from all fylchynes of the flesh and spere, and growe vp to fullhousnes in y feare of God. • Understode us right. • We haue huree no mā, we haue corrupcion, we haue be defrauded no man. • I speake not this to cōdemne you, for I haue shewed you before, that ye are in oure heres, so bye and to lyue with you. • I am very bolde comrade you, I make much booff of you, I am filled with comforte, I am exceedinge ioyous in all our tribulacion. • For whan we were come into Thacebonia, oure flesh had no rest, but we were troubled on every syde: come be mas fightynge, inwarde was feare. • Notwithes God that comforteth the able, comforted vs by the comynge of Titus.

For onely by his comynge, but also by the consolacion wherwith he was cōforted you, whan he tolde vs yf desyre, your pyng, yd fructe mynde for me, so þ̄ I now reioyse y moie. For where as I made you sorry by the letter, it repenteth me not, though I yd repete. For I se, that the same epistle made you sorry (though it were but for a season). But now I reioyce, not that ye were sorry, but that ye were sorry for repentance. For ye sowed godly, so that in noching ye were hurt by vs. For godly sorrow causeth repentance vnto saluacion, not to be repented of: but worldly sorrow causeth death. Beholde, where as ye haue had godly sorrowe, what diligence hath it wroughte in you: yea a sufficient answer, displeasure, feare, desyre, a fructe mynde, punyshment. For in all poyntes ye haue shewed youre felowes, that ye are cleare in that matter.

¶ Wherefore though I wrote vnto you, yet is it no done for his cause that yd hurt, ne ther for his cause that was hurt, but that youre diligence (which ye haue for us in the sighte of God) mighte be manifest w̄ you. Therfore are we comforted, because ye are comforted: but exceeding the more ioyed we, for the ioye of Titus, because his spere was refreshed of you all. I am therfore not now ashamed, though I boasted myselfe vnto him of you: but like as all is true that I haue spoek vnto you, euen so is oure boasting vnto Titus founde true also. And his inward affection is more abundant towarde you, when he remembereth the obedience of you all, how ye receaued him with feare and trembling. I reioyse, that I maye be holde ouer you in all thinges.

The VIII. Chapter.

¶ Do you to wit (brethren) the grace of God, which is geue in the congregacions of Macedonia. For their reioyng was most abundant, when they were tryed by much trouble: & though they were exceeding poore, yet haue they stude exceeding richely, and that in singleness. For to their power I bare recorde: yea and beyond their power, they were willinge of their owne accord, and prayed vs with great instance, that we wolde receaue their benediction and fellowshipe of the habitaunge that is done for the sake ynto: And not as we loob for, but gaue ouer them selves first to the L O R D E, and afterwarde vnto vs by the wyl of God, so that we coulde not but desyre Titus, that like as he had begonne a fructe mynde euen so accomplish the same benediction amonge you. Now as ye are rich in all poyntes, in faith and in woide, and in knowledge, and in all diligence, and in youre loue towarde vs, euen so se that ye be plentifulle also in this benediction. This I saye not as commaundynge, but seynge, ether are so diligente, I proue youre loue also, whether it be perfecte or no. For ye knowe the liberallite of oure L O R D E Iesus Christ, which though he be rich, yet for youre sakes he became poore, þ̄ ye thowin his poortie mighte be made rich.

¶ And my counsell herin I geue, for this is profitable for you, which haue begonne a yere a goo, not onely to do, but also to wyl. But now persourme the dede also, that like as there is a ready mynde to wil, therema ye be a ready mynde also to persourme the dede. of that which ye haue. For yf there be a willinge mynde, it is accepted accordinge to that a man hath, not accordinge to that he hath not. This is not done to the intent, that ether shalbe haue ease, and ye obliuious, but that it be a lyke. For youre abundantie shalbe their lacke in this yme off darth, that ether ther abundantie also yf gathered maye supplie youre lacke, that there maye be equallite. As it is wyrtten: he y gathered much, had not the more: and he that gathered little, wanted nothings. That is be vnto God, which put in the hert of Titus, the same diligence towarde you. For he accepted the request in dede, yea he was rather so well willinge, that of his owne accord, he came vnto you.

¶ We haue sent with him that brother, whose name is in the Gospell thowin out all the congregacions. Not onely that, but he is chosen also of the congregacions, to be a felowe with vs in oure iourney, for this benediction that is mynistrd by vs vnto the people of the L O R D E, and to stete vp youre prompte mynde, and to beware, lest ymā repute euill of vs because of this plentifulle, which is mynistrd by vs: and therfore make we provision for honest thinges, not onely before the L O R D E, but also before men.

¶ We haue sent with them also a brother of oure, whom we haue oft proued diligente in many thinges, but now much more diligente. And this haue we done in grace hope towarde you, whether it be for Titus sake (which is my felowe and helper amonge you) or for oure brethren (which are Apostles of the congregacions, & the people of Christ.) Shewe now the profitt of youre loue and oure boasting of you, vnto thes, and ouerly in the sighte of the congregacions.

Rom. 11

A The handteachinge vnto y sayn ras, it is no neede for me to wyte vnto you: for I knowe youre redynesse of mynde, wherof I boast my selfe amonge them of Macedonia, and saye: Achaia was ready a yere agoe. And youre seruente hath promoted many. Neuertheles yet ha we wesen these brethren lest oure reioysing ouer you shoulde be in wayne in this behalfe, that ye mighte be ready, as I haue repo rted of you: lest whan they of Macedonia come with me, and fynde you vnprepared, we (I wyl not saye ye) shoulde be ashamed in this presumption of boastinge.

B Wherfore I thoughte it necessary to ex horte the brethren, to come before hande vnto you, for to prepare this blessinge promy sed afore, that it mighte be ready, so that it be a blessinge, and not a defraudinge. This I thynke that he which somewhat litle, shal reape litle also: and he yfoweth plentifully, shal likewise reape plentifully, every one accordyng as he hath purposed in his hert, not grudgynge, as of compulsion. For God loveth a chearfull geuer. God is able to ma ke you ryche in all grace, yf ye in all thinges haunge sufficier to the veremoost, maye be ryche to all maner of good wordes. As it is wyrted: the hath sparfed abiove z geue to y poore, his rightuousnes remaineth for ever.

C He that geueth seld vnto the poorer, shal mynyshe bred also for sode, and shal multi plye youre seld, and increase the frutes of yd righeousnes, that in all thinges ye maye be made ryche vnto all singleness, which caus eth thorow vs, thankelgyuynge vnto God.
 For the handteachinge of this collection not onely supplieeth the neede off the sayntes, but also is aboundant herin, that for this lau dable mynistracion many mighte geuecha rtes vnto God, and paye God for yd obedi ent professynge of the Gospell of Christ, z for yd singleness in distributyng vnto chy and to all men, and in their prayer for you, which longe after you, for the aboundant grace of God in you. Thankes be vnto God for his vnouersurable gifte.

The X. Chapter.

A Pan! my selfe beseeke you by the meke nesse and softnesse off Christ, which when I am present amonge you, am of small reputacion, but am bolde towarde you beyng absent. I beseeke you that I nebe not be bolde whan I am present, to vse y boldnesse wherwith I am supposed to be bolde, agaynst some, which reput vs as though we walked after y fleshy: for though we walke in the fleshy, yet fighte we not after a fleshy maner. For the weapons of oure warre are not fleshy, but mightie before God to cast downe strong holdes, wherewith we ouerthrowe ymaginacions, z every hye thinge yf exalceith selfe agaynst the know ledge of God, and byynge in to captiuitie all vnderstandinge to the obediencie off Christ are ready to take vengeance on all disobe diencie, whan youre obediencc is fulfilled. So ke ye on thinges after y weter appearaunce.

Afery man trust of himselfe yf he is Chast tes, let him thinke this also by himselfe, y like as he is Chaste, wut so are we Chastes also. And though yf I shoulde boast my selfe somewhat more of oure auocacion, which y LORDE hath geue vs to chaste and not to defraye, it shal be not be to my shame. This I saye, lest I shoulde seme, as though I wou te aboute to make you afrayed with letters.
 For the pistles (saye they) are fore and stron ge, but his bobely presencc is meane, and his speache to be. Let him yf is soche, thinke on this wyse, that as we are in roide by let ters whi i we are absent, soch are we also in dede whan we are present. For we barrene reken a comparacione of silues, vnto somewhat praye them silues: whertheles whyle they meane them silues by them silues, and bolde onely of them silues, they vnderstande not singe.

Soberdicit we wil not boast of silues abow measure, but onely accordyng to the meas ure of the rule, wherewith God hath distri buted vnto vs the measure to reachen vnto you. For we stretchenot of silues to farre as though we had not reached vnto you. For euen vnto you haue we come with the Gos pellof Christ, and boast not oure silues ou ermeasure in other mens Laboures: For and we hope whan youre faith is increased in you, that we wil come farther, accordyng to oure measure) and preach the Gospell vnto them that dwell beyonde you, and not con ioyse in that, which is prepared with an other mans measure.

The XI. Chapter.

Let him chat reioyseth, reioyse in the LORD: for he yf prayseth him selfe is, is not allowed, but he whos of DE prayseth. Wolde God ye coulde suffi me a litle in my soloshynes, yet be ye forbear me. For I am gelous ouer you wh godly leasly. For I haue married you vnto onem to bringe a chaste virgin vnto Christ. But I feare, lest as yf serpeth be ynto me wh iustelie, and so yd wyrtes shoulde be conu ee from the synagoge that is in Christ. For if he that commeth unto you, preach another Jesus, whom we have not preached, or if ye receive another spete, & ye have not received, or another Gospell which ye have not accepted, ye might right well have bene chere. For I suppose that I am no lesse than the hie Apostles are. And though I be rude in speakyng, yet am I not rude in knowlege, howbeit amde you I am knowne to the vice of it. Oo dyd I synne therein because I submyred my selfe, that ye might be exalted?

B For I preached unto you the Gospell of God freely, and robbed neither congregacions, and took wages of the, to preach unto you.
And when I was present with you, and had neede, I was generous to no man: for I which was lackyng unto me, the brethren which came fro Macedonia, supplied. And in all thinges I keepe my selfe so, & I shulde not be generous to you, & so wy I keepe my selfe. As surely as the trooth of Christ is in me, this rejoycing shal not be taken frome in the regions of Achaja. Wherefore: because I shulde not love you: God knoweth. We wrecheles what I do and myl do, that do I to ont away occasion, from the which seke occasion, that they mighte boast the selues to be like unto vs. For soch falsse Apostles & disceatfull woiters fashion them selues like unto the Apostles of Christ. And that is no marcell: for Satban himselfe is chaunged into y fashion of an angell of light. Therfore is it no greates thinge, though his my-nistres fashion them selues as though they were the pure chere of righteousnes, whose side shalbe according to their dedes.

C I saye agayne, lest any man thynke that I am foolish: or do take me even now as a fo-le, & I maye boast my selfe a litle also. That I speake now, that speake I not a fter the LORDE, but as it were in foolishnes, whyle we are now come to boasting: Synge that many boast them selues after y flesh. I wol boast my selfe also. For ye suffre folces gladly, in so much as ye youre selues are wyse. For ye kiffe even yf a man bringe you in to bondage, yf a man put you to dishonour, yf a man take ought fro you, yf a man exalte himselfe over you, yf a man smyte you on the face. I speake concernyng chere, as though we were weake.

Wherin I see now any man barre be bolde (I speake foolishly) therein barre. I be bolde also. They are Hebrewes, so am I. They are Israelites, even so am I. They are the side of Abinham, so am I. They are the my-nistres of Christ (I speake as a fo) I am more in labour: more abidaunt, in stryppes about measure, in punishments more plenteously, in death oft. Of the Jewes received I five tymes forty stryppes, one lesse.

Christ was I beaten with rodde. I was once stoned. I suffred chryse hyppocrite: nights and daye have I bene in the depe of D these: I have oft iourneyed: I have bene oft in perels of wacers, in perels amonge murtherers, in perels amonge the Jewes, in perels amonge the heythen, in perels in cities, in perels in the wyldernes, in perels upon the See, in perels amonge falsse bre-thre, in laboure & travayle, in much watchyng, in hunger and thurst, in much fastynges in colde and nakednesse: Besyde those thyngges which are ourwarde, namely my bayle combaunce, my daylie care for all congrega-cions. Who is weake, and I be not weake.
Who is offended, & I burne not: If I must needes make my boast, I will boast my selfe of myne insumyng. God yf facter of our L DE Jesus Christ, which is blessed for ever, knoweth that I ye not. At Damascus the gouvernour of y people under kynge Aere-tas, kepte y cite of the Damascenes, I wol-de have taken me, and at a ryndome was I let downe in a basket thorow the wall, & so escaped his handes.

The XII. Chapter.

S I professe me nothinge (no bouce) I do boast. Therefore I wol come to y visions and revelations of the LORDE. I knowe a man in Christ about fourtene yeares a gooe: whether he was in y body, I can not tell: or whether he was out of the body, I cannot tell, (God knoweth.) the same was taken up in to the thirde heaven: and I knowe the same man (whether he was in y body or out of the body, I can not tell, (God knoweth) howe that he was taken up to Paradise, and herde wordes not to be spoken, which no man can wrec. here of will I boast, but of my selfe will I make no boast, excepte it be of myne infirmities.
And though I wolde boast my selfe, I wyd not foolishly, for I wolde saye the truweth.
But I restra yne my selfe, lest any man shalbe chinte of me aboute y feyeth in me, or hearech of me. And lest I shulde exalte my selfe out of measure because of the hie revelacions, there is a warnyng geuen unto my flesh, even yf messenger of Satans, so durste me, that I shulde not exalte my selfe out off measure: for I which I besought the LOR

DE thys, that it might departe fro me. And he sayde vnto me: My grace is sufficient for the. For my strength is made perfecte in thow weaknes. I am glad therfore wil I reioyce in my weaknesse, that the strength of Christ maye dwell in me.

B Therefore am I content in infirmitie, in rebutes, in necessities, in persecucions, in anguyshes for Christes sake: for whā I am weak, thē am I stronge. I am become a foole i boasting my selfe: ye haue compelled me.

Cor. 9. 2 For I oughte to be commended of you, in so much as I am in nothinge inferior to y^e Apostles. Though I be nothinge, yet are I tokens of an Apōstle wroughte amonge you, with all pacifce, with signes, & with wonders & with mighty dees. For what is it, wherein ye are inferior to the oether congregacions? excepte it be y^e I haue not bene greuous vnto you. Some haue me thus regarded. Beholde, I am ready the thirde tyme to come vnto you, and wil not be chargeable vnto you. For I seeke not your, but you. For y^e childre oughte not to gather treasure for the elders, but the elders for the childre. I wil verie gladly bestowe, and wil be bestowed for your soules: though y^e I lose you, the lesse am I loue: agayne.

R. 2. c.

C What is it for so that I grieved you not, men which do so much as I was crafty, I toke you by thye. Haue I defrauded you by any of thē, whō I sent vnto you? I desired Titus, & with him I sent a brother: dyd Titus defraude you? Haue we not walked in one spere: Wete we not in like foote stepes? Agayne, thynke ye y^e we create our selues? We speake in Christ in the sighte off God. But all thie (dearly beloved) is done for y^e edifyinge. For I feare lest whan I come, I shal not fynde you such as I wolde: and lest ye shal fynde me such as ye wolde not: lest there be amonge you, debates, envynges, matches, strynges, backbitings, whysperings, swellings, vprours: lest whan I come agayne, God bringe melome amonge you & lest I be constrained to bewaile many of the y^e haue synned before, & haue not repented ones y^e unclennesse and whoredome, and wantonnes, which they haue comyted.

The XIII. Chapter.

Deut. 16. c.
Mal. 1. b.
D Now come I the thirde tyme vnto you. In the mouth of esow or thie witness shal every matter be stablished. I haue tolde you before, & tell you before as presēt y^e seconde tyme, & nyete it now beinge absent, vnto the which in tyme passed haue synned, & to all oether yf I come agayne, I wil not spare, synging that ye see experice of him, which speaketh in me, in euery Christ, which amonge you is not weak, but is mighty amonge you. And though he was crucified in weaknes, yet sueth he in the power of God. And though we are weak in him, yet lyue we with him in the power of God amonge you.

D Prove youre selues, whether ye are in the faith, against youre selues. Or in some ye not so selues, y^e Jesus Christ is in you: Excepte ye be cast awayes. But I trust ye notome, y^e we are not cast awayes. I desire before God y^e ye do no euill: not y^e we shulde some comendable, but y^e ye shulde do y^e which is good, & let vs be as cast awayes. For we maye do nothinge agaynst y^e truth, but for y^e truth. We are glad whan we are reate, & ye syng: & the lime also we wyffe for, namely y^e perfectnesse. Therfore wyte I these things beinge absent, lest whā I am presēt, I shal be vs sharpnesse, accordinge to the power: which the LORD hath geue me to edifye, and not to destroye.

Synally brethren, reioyce, be pacifce, & force y^e selues, be of one mynde, be peaceable, and the God of loue and peace shal be with you. Salme one another with an holy kyffe. All the sayntes salme you. The grace of oure LORD Jesus Christ, & the loue of God, and the fellowshipe of y^e holy goost be with you all. Amen.

The Epistle of the Apostle S. Paul to the Galatians.

The summe of this Epistle.

Chap. i. Paul rebueth them, because they were fallen awaye from the gospell, because his owne confession, manifesteth his office as apostellshippe, and declared himselfe to be equal with the hie apostles.

Chap. ii. He wylth toberth Price in the lawe, and proueth that the lawe and circumcisions are not necessary to saluacion.

Chap. iii. He rebueth the puffed swarth of the Galatians, shewing the vngodlynesse of the lawe, and declared neuertheless that it was not giuen for naught.

Chap. iiii. Paul sheweth that thow Christ was the delayered from the lawe, and rebueth the vngodlynesse of the Galatians.

Chap. v. He labourerth to drawe them awaye from circucision, sheweth them the battell betwixte the spere and the flesch, and the victory of them both.

Chap. vi. He exhorteth them to brotherly love, and one to beare with another, because they wylteth them to beate of circucision.

The Epistle
The Epistle of the Apostle S. Paul to the Galathians.

to the Galathians. Fo. lxxvij.

The first Chapter.

Paul an Apostle (not of men, nor by mā, but by Jesus Christ & by God the father, which ray- sed him up frō y dead) & all the brethē which are w me. Unto the cōgregaciō in Galacia.

Grace be with you, and peace frō God the father, and ourē LORD Iesus Christ, which gave him selfe for oure synnes, that he mighte belyue vs from this present euil world, accordinge to the will of God ourē father, to whom be prayse for ever and ever. Amen.

I marvelle if ye are so soone turned (from him that called you in the grace of Christ) into another Gospell: which is nothinge do, but that there be some, which trouble you, and intende to pervertē the Gospell of Christ.

Nevertheless though we ourē selves, or an angell from heave preach unto you any other Gospell, the which we have preached unto you, the same be accursed. As we have sayde afore, so saye we now agayne: If in any mā preach unto you any other thinge, the which ye have receaved, yf same be accursed. Preach I men now to God: Or go I aboute to please men: If I shulde yet please men, I were not the servant of Christ.

But I certifie you brethren, that the Gospell which is preached of me, is not of men. For I neither receaved it, nor learned it of mā, but by the revelaciō of Iesus Christ. For ye have herde of my conversaciō afore tyme in the Jeweshippe, how that beynde measure I persecuted the cōgregaciō of God, and spoiled it, and prayyled in the Jewe shippe aboute many of my companyons in my uaciō, & was a moche more strait man tēyer of the tradicions of the fathers.

But when it pleased God which separet me from my mothers wombe, and called me by his grace, for to declare his sonne in me, that I shulde preach him throughe the Gospell amonge the heythē, immediately I commēd not of the matter with flesh and bloude: neither came I to Jerusalem unto them which were Apostles before me: but wente my wayes in to Arabia, and came agayne to Damascus. Then after thre yere I came to Jerusalem to se Peter, and abode with him fyfene dayes. As for the other Apostles, I sawe none of them, save James the LORD'S brother.

The thinges that I wryte unto you, beholde, God knoweth, I feyne not. After that wente I into the coastes of Syria and Cilicia: but of face I was unknowne to y Christen congregaciōs in Jewrye. Nevertheless they had herde onely, that he that persecuted us in tyme passed, preached now y faith which some tyme he destroyed: and they pray sed God in me.

The II. Chapter.

Then after foure yeres, I wente up agayne to Jerusalem with Barnabas, and toke Titus with me also. But I wente up by revelaciō, and commēd with the of y Gospell, which I preach amonge the heythē: but specially with the which were in reputaciō, lest I shulde runne or had runne in vayne. But Titus which was also with me, was not compelled to be circelysed, though he was a Greke: and that because of certayne incommoder beyngē false brethē, which came in amonge other, to spye our owre libertie, which we have in Christ Iesus, that they mighte bringe us in to bondage: To whom we gave no rewme, no nor for the space of an houre, as con cernyngē to be broughte in to subjection: if the rithē of the Gospell mighte come ynne with you.

As for the that seemed to be greates, what they were in tyme passed, it maketh no matter to me. For God loyeth not on the outward appearance of men. Nevertheless they which seemed greates, taught me nothinge: but contrary wyse, when they sawe that the Gospell ouer the vnicūciōn was cōmyrred unto me, as y Gospell ouer y circūciōn was commyred unto Peter. For he y was mightie rich Peter to the Apostles.

shippe ouer the circumcision, the same was as mighte with me also amonge the heythen) they perceiued the grace that was geuen vnto me.

A.C. 11. 2
A. Co. 9. 8

James and Cephas and Iohn, which seemed to be plers, gaue me and Barnabas a righte handes, and agreed with vs, that we shoulde preache amonge the heythe, and they amonge the Iewes: onely that we shoulde remember the poore, which thinge also I was diligent to do.

But whā Peter was come to Antioche, I wichstode him in y face: for he was worthy to be blamed. For a fore there came certayn from James, he ate with the heythe. But whā they were come, he wichdane and separated himselfe, fearinge the which were of the circumcision. And the other Jewes dyssembled with him likewise, in so much that Barnabas was brought in to their simulation also. But whā I sawe that they walded not righte after y truth of the Gospell, I sayde vnto Peter openly before all: If thou beynge a Iewe, lyuest after the maner of the Gentyles, and not as do the Jewes, why causest thou the Gentyles then to lyue as do the Jewes?

Phil. 3. 2

Though we be Jewes by nature, and not symmers of the Gentyles, yet (in so much as we knowe, that a man is not made righte by the dedes of the lawe, but by the faith on Iesus Christ) we have belated also on Iesus Christ, that we mighte be made righte by the faith of Christ, and not by the dedes of the lawe, because that by the dedes of the same no fleisch shal be iustified.

Ifre then which site to be made righte by chuff, shulde be yet founde symmers of fleshe, is not Christ then the myster of synnes? God sothy. For yf I buyde agayne that which I haue destroyed, then make I my selfe a trespasser. But I thorow the lawe am deed vnto the lawe, that I mighte lyue vnto God. I am crucified with Christ, yet do I lyue: neuer thelesse now not I, but Christ lyueth in me. For y list which I now lyue in fleshe, I lyue in the faith of y sonne of God which loved me, and gaue himselfe for me. I cast not awaye the grace of God. For yf righteounes come by the lawe, then dyed Christ in vayne.

The III. Chapter.

21 Ye foliue Galatias, who hath bewitched you, that ye shulde noe beleue the truth: To whos Iesus Christ was describied before the eyes and amonge you crucified. This onely wolde I terme of yon: Receaued ye the spiere by the dedes of the lawe, or by the preachinge of the spiere? Are ye so nowise? He begame in the spiere, wolde ye ende now the in the flesch? How y suffred so much in vayne? If it be dele in vayne, he that getteth you the spiere, and dwelleth soch greute a crete amonge you, doeth he in thow the dedes of the lawe, or by y paradunge of the faith? Euen as Abrahā belated God, and it was counted vnto him for righteounes. Thus ye knowe, that they which are of faith, are Abrahāms children.

The scripture saue a fore haide, that he iustified the heythen thow so faith. Therefore shewed it glad cytynges of a fore vnto Abrahā, and sayde: In the shal all the heythen be blessed. So then they which be of faith, are blessed with faithfull Abrahā. For as many as go aboute with the wordes of the lawe, are vnder y curse: For it is writte: Cursed be every man, which obeyeth not in all thinges that are wyrted in the booke of the lawe, to do them. That no man iustified by the lawe in the sighte of God is crydite: For y iust shal lyue by his faith. The lawe is not of faith, but the much doth y same, shal lyue eberit. But Christ hath deliuered vs from y curse of the lawe, whā he became a curse for vs. (For it is wyrted: Cursed is every man that hangeth on tree) that the blessinge of Abrahā mighte come on the Gentyles in Christ Iesu, and that we mighte foreceane y promysed spiere, thow so faith.

Brethren, I wil speake after the maner of men. Though it be but a māns Testamēt, yet no man despyseth it, or addeth any thinge thereto, whā it is confirmed. To Abrahā and his side were the promysis made. He sayeth not: In the dedes, as in many, but in thy dede, as in one, which is Christ. The Testamēt (I saye) which afore was confirmed to Christ warde, is not difannuled (that the promes shulde be made of none effect) by the lawe which was geuen beyonde this tyme: neither thurte yeres thereafter. For yf the enheritance be gotten by the lawe, then it is not geuen by promes. But God gaue it frely vnto Abrahā.

Wherfore the serueth the lawe? It was added because of transgression, till the she came, to the which the promes was made. And it was geuen of angelo, by the hande of the mediator. A mediator is not a mediator of one onely, but God is one.

In the lawe then agaynst the promys of God: God sothy, howbeit yf there had hate gotten a lawe which coulde haue geue it, he no doute righteousnes shulde come of the lawe. But if scripture hath shew vp alvnder synne, that y^e promes shulde come by the faith on Iesus Christ, geue vnto the that beleue. Before faith came, we were kept and shew vp vnder the lawe, vnto the faith which shulde afterwarde be declared.

Thus y^e lawe was a scolemaster vnto Christi.
that we might be made righteous by faith.
But now that faith is come, we are nomo re vnder the scolemaster. For ye all are the children of God by the faith in Christ Iesu.
For as many of you as are baptysed, haue put on Christ. There is nether Iew nor Grie ke here is nether boide ner fre: here is nether man nor woman, for ye are all one in Christ Iesu. As ye be Christes, the are ye Abrahams seed and heires according to the promes.

The iiiij. Chapter.

But I saye: As longe as the heyre is a childe, there is no difference betwe ne him and a seruaunt, though he be kide of all y^e goodes: but he is vnder tutore and gouernour, vntill the tyme appoynted of the father. Euen so we also, wha we were children, were in bondage vnder the outward detractions. But whan the tyme was ful filled, God sent his sonne, borne of a womā, and put vnder the lawe, to redeme them which were vnder the lawe, that we might re ceive the fre childe. For so moch the as ye are children, God hath sent the spire of his sonne in to oure hertes, which cryeth: Abba, deare father. Wherfore now, thou art not a seruaunt, but a sonne. If thou be a sonne, then art thou the heyre of God thro ugh Christ. Noe withstandinge whan ye haue not God, ye byd seruaunt vnto them, which by nature are no Goddes. But we no winge ye knowe God (ye rather are knowe ne off God) how is it that ye tume you backe agayne vnto the weakes and beggerly traditions, wher vnto ye desyre agayne a fleshy to be in bondage?

Reobserue dayes and tymes, and ty mes and yeares, I am in feare of you, lest I haue bestowed laboure on you in vayne. Die the I buside you, be ye as I am, for I am as ye are. Ye haue not hurte me at all. For ye knowe howe that in weaknes after y^e fleshy I preached of Gospell vnto you at the first: and my necessitie which I suffered after the fleshy, ye despysed not, nether abhorred, but receaued me as an angell of God, ye euen as Christ Iesu. So now happy were yether: for I beare you receade, that yf it had bene possible, ye had plucked out your eynes, and geue them vnto me. Am I therfore be come yo^r enemy, because I tell you y^e trouth?

They are gelous ouer you amysse. Kee they wolde make you to fall backe, that ye might be serued to the worde. Iesu good to be serued, so y^e it be allwaye in a good thin ge, and not onely whan I am present wth you.
My litle children (of no hom I trauaile in byth aga yne, wntill Christ be fastioned in you) I wolde I were wth you now, and coulde change my voyce, for I stode iⁿ bouce of you.

Tell me ye that wylde vnder the lawe, ha ue ye not herde the lawe: for it is wrytten, that Abraham had two sonnes - the one by Gen. 16. 4 a bonde mayde, the other by a fre woman. Gen. 21. 2 As for him that was of the boide mayde, he was borne after y^e fleshy: but he which was of the fre woman, was borne by promes.
These wordes be broken somewhat. For these women are the two Testametes: The one from the mount Sina, that gendereth vnto bondage, which is Agar. For Agar is called in Arabia y^e mount Sina, and reacheth vnto Ierusalem which now is, and is in bonds ge with hir children.

But Ierusalem that is above, is the fre Apo. 18 woman, which is the mother of vs all. For it is wrytten: Keioyse thou baren, that bea rest no childre: breake forth and crye thou y^e trauailest not, for the desolate hath many mo childre, then she which hath an husban de. As for vs (brethren) we are the children of Isaac according to the promes.

But like as at that tyme, he that was borne after the fleshy, persecuted him y^e was borne after the spire, euen so is it now also.
But what sayeth the scripture: Put awaye the bonde mayden and hir sonne: for the son ne of y^e bonde mayde shal not be heyre with y^e sonne of the fre woman. So now brethren, we are not children of the bonde mayde, but of the fre woman.

The v. Chapter.

Sonde fast ether for in the libertye & wherwith Christ hath made vs fre, and be not wrapped agayne in the yocke off bondage. Beholde, I Paul say vnto you: If ye be circumcysed, Christ pro fitteth ye nothings at all. Ife yf ye aga ne vnto every man which is circumcysed that he is boude to kepe the whole lawe.
Ye are gone quite from Christ, as many of you as wylde maderig: ye was by the lawe and are fallen from grace. But we we in the spire off hope, to be made free by faith. For in Christ, we are circumcision any thinge worth mee vncircumcision, but faith which by lone is mightie in operation. Ye ranne well, who was a let vnto you, that ye shulde not obeye the truth: Such counsell is not of him that hath called you. A litle leuen soweth the whole lombe of dowe.

B I haue trusted warde you in J LORDE, that ye wylle none otherwys mynbed. But he that troubleth you, shal beare his iudgment, what so euer he be. Wherein yf J yet preach circumcision, why do J suffre persecution: then had the slander off the crosse ceased. Wolde God they were roted out frō amonge you, which trouble you. But brethren, ye are called vnto liberty, onely let not yere libertie be an occasion vnto the flesh, but by loue serue one another. For all the lawe is fulfilled in one worde, namely in this: loe thy neighbour as thy selfe. But yf ye byete and denoure one another, cate hede, that ye be not consumed one of another.

C J saye: Walke in the spire, and so shal ye not fulfill the L awes off the fleshe. For the fleshe lusteth agaynst the spire, and the spire agaynst the fleshe. These are contrary one to the other, so that ye can not do that which ye wolde: But and yf ye be led of the spire, then are ye not vnder the lawe. The dedes of \mathfrak{J} fleshe are manifest, which are these: Adoutrye, inhordome, vncleines, wantonnes, Idolatrye, witchcraft, hatred, varioucnce, sle, wrath, stryfe, sedicion, secca, envynge, murder, dyuelennes, glory, and such like: of the which J tell you before, as J haue tolde you in tyme past, that they which commytte such, shal not inherite the kyngdome of God.

But the frute of the spire, is lone, ioye, peace, longe sufferinge, gentlenesse, goodnesse, faithfulness, meekenesse, temperance. Agaynst such is not \mathfrak{J} lawe: But they that are Christes, haue crucified their fleshe, with the lustes and desyres.

The VI. Chapter.

We lye in the spire, let vs walke also in the spire. Let vs not be payne glouous, prouokinge one another, and envynge another. Brethren, A feyn may be overtaken of a sauer, ye which are spiriuall, enforme him with a meke spire: and visite thine owne selfe, that thou also be tempted. Deare ye one another hartly, and so shal ye fulfill the lawe of Christ. If yf any man entice himselfe to be forsworn in vnto he is nothinge, the same shall be punished. Let every man prouide his owne, and the shal be haue reioysinge in his owne selfe, and not in another. For euery one shal beare his owne burthen.

But let him that is tangled with the worde, mynster in all good thinges, than him that teacheth him. Doe not discorde, God will not be mocked. For what soeuer a man soweth, that shal he reape. For that soeuer sowne upon the fleshe, shal of the fleshe reape destruction: But he that soweth vpon the spire, shal of the spire reape life everlastinge. Let vs not be weery of well doinge, in what tyme is come, we shal reape without ceassing. Whye we haue tyme to reioyce, let vs do good vnto all men: but specially vnto the which are of \mathfrak{J} housholde of flesh.

Beholde, with how many wordes J haue written vnto you with myne arme hande. They that will please in the flesh, constrain you to be circumcysed, onely lest they shal be persecuted with the crosse of Christ. For cut they them selues which are circumcysed, kepe not the lawe, but wolde haue you circumcysed, that they mighte reioyce in your flesh. But God forbyd that J shuld reioyce, save onely in the crosse of oure LORD J ESUS CHRIST, wherby the world is crucified vnto me, and J vnto the world. For as Christ J es neither circumcision, nor any other thinge, yet vncircumcision, but a new creature. And as many as walke accordinge to this rule, peace and mercy be vpon the, as vpon I srael of God. From hence forth is no man put me to busynesse, for J beare in my body the markes of the LORD J ESUS CHRIST, be with youre spire Amen.

The Epistle of the Apostle S. Paul to the Ephesians.

The summe of this Epistle.

- Chap. I. The everlastinge obediencce and election of God in savyng all men throughe Christ J esus his sonne. We are ordained vnto good workes. The dominion of Christ.
- Chap. II. Paul sheweth them what manner of people they were before their conversion, and what they are now in Christ.
- Chap. III. He sheweth the cause of his passion, desyres them not to forsake the remembrance of his trouble, and prayeth God to make the stedfast in his grace.

Cap. iij. He exhorteth them vnto meeknesse, longe sufferinge, vnto loue and peace, enery one to feare and reuerence another with the gifte that God hath giuen him, to beware of superstitione, to keepe the old commandmentes of good liues, and to walke in a new life.

Cap. v. He exhorteth them vnto loue, with them to beware of drunkennes, curiouse-nesse, foolish talkyngs and false doctrine: to be circumspecte, to a voyde discontentment, to reioyce and to be thankfull towards God, to submit the selfe one to another. He exhorteth also women to be subiecte vnto their husbandes, and how lovingly men ought to intercare their wyues.

Cap. vi. How children shulde behaue them selfes towards their fathers and mothers: How fathers shulde beare their children: How seruants towards their masters: How maynteyners shulde beare their seruantes: How the spirituall baronell, and what weapons Christian men shulde fight withall.

The Epistle of the Apostle S. Paul to the Ephesians.

The first Chapeer.

Paul an Apostle of Iesus Christ by the will of God. To y^e sayntes which are Ephesians, & to the that beleue on Iesus Christ.

Grace be with you and peace from God our father, & fro the LORDE Iesus Christ.

Blesed be God the father of oure LORDE Iesus Christ, which hath blessed vs wth all manner of spirituall blessinge in heauenty thynges by Christ: accordinge as he had chosen vs by him, or ere the foundations of the worlde was layed, that we shulde be holy and without blame before him in loue, & ordeyned to be fore, to receaue vs as children thowm Iesus Christ, accordinge to the pleasure of his will, vnto the purpise of the glory of his grace, wherby he hath made vs accepted in the. Beloued, in whom we haue redemption thow his blood (namely) the forgiveness of synnes, accordinge to y^e riches of his grace, which he hath shed vpon vs abundantly in all wysdome and pacifce: and hath opened vnto vs the myserie of his wil accordinge to his pleasure, whiche he had purposed in himselfe, & it shulde be preache: wha^t the tyme was fullcomen, that all thynges shulde be gathered together by Christ, both the thynges which are in heauen, and also the thynges that are, vpon earth, euen by him, by whom also we are come to the inheritance: we that were thereto predestinate before, accordinge to y^e purpos of him, which worketh all thynges after y^e counsell of his owne wil, that we might be to the praise of his glory, euen we that before beleued on Christ, on who also ye beleued, after that ye herde the wyse of trouth namdy of Gospill of youre saluacion: wherin w^{as} when ye beleued, ye were sealed with the holy spere of promes, which is the earnest of oure inheritance to oure redemption, that we might be his owne to the praise of his glory.

Wherfore I also, (in so much as I haue herde of the faith which ye haue in y^e LORDE Iesu, and of youre loue vnto all y^e sayntes) ceasse not to geue thanke for you, and make mencion of you in my prayers, that y^e God of oure LORDE Iesus Christ, the father of glory maye geue vnto you the spere of wysdome, and open vnto you the knowlege of himselfe, and lighpen the eyes of youre vnderstandyng, that ye maye knowe what is the hope of youre callinge, and what the riches of his glorious inheritance is vpon the sayntes, & what is the exceeding greatnesse of his power towards vs, which beleeue accordinge to y^e mouyng of his mightye power, which he wroughte in Christ, when he raysed him up fro the dead, & set him on his rhyghte hande in heauenty thynges, above all rule, power, and might, and dominacion, and above all that maye be named, nor onely in this worlde, but also in y^e worlde to come. And hath put all thynges vnder his feete, and hath made him: above all thynges the heade of the congregacion, which is his body, and the fulnesse of him that filleth all in all.

and after the pynce that ruleth in the aye namely, a feare of space, which now worketh in the children of unbeloue, amonge whom we also had oure conuersacion in tyme past in the lastes of oure flesch, and byd the will of the flesch and of the mynde, and were naturally the children of wrath, euen as well as ocher.

But God whid is rich in mercy thero-m his greate loue wherwith he loued vs eue whā we were deed in synnes, hath quickened vs in Christ, for by grace are ye samed and hath raysed vs vp with him, and set vs with him in heauely thinges thowow Chast Jesu, & in tymes to come he mighte shewe the exceeding riches of his grace, in symnetesse to vs warde in Christ Jesu, for by grace are ye samed thowow saich, and that not of youre selues, for it is & grise of God, not of woordes, lest any mā shulde boast him selfe. for we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesu. vnto good woordes, to & which God ordeyned vs before, that we shalbe walke in them.

Wherfore rememb, that ye (which a fore tyme were Gentyles after the flesch), and we were called vnto circumcison, of the that are called - circumcison a feare the flesch, which circumcison is made with the hande) that ye at the same tyme were without Christ, and reputed aleauners from the comen welch of Israel, and were strangers from the Testamentes of promes, therfore had ye no hope, and were without God in this worlde. But now ye that be in Christ Jesu, and a fore tyme were farre of, are now made nye by the bloode of Christ.

for he is & peace, which of both hath made one, and hath broken downe the wall, that was a flappe betweene vs, and hath also thowow his flesch put awaye the cause of hated (namely the lawe of the commande-mentes commaunded in the lawe wyrtten) that of eueryne he mighte create one new man in him selfe, and make peace, and to reconcy-le both vnto God in one body thowow the crosse, and so he slew & hated thowow his owne selfe, and came - and preached peace in the Gospell, vnto you which were a farre of, and to the that were nye. for thowow him we both haue inuayned in one spire vnto the father.

Now therfore ye are nomore gystes and strangers, but cetyens with the sayntes, & of the household of God, baylde vpon - y foundation of & Apostles and prophetes - wher Jesu Christ is & heade corner stone in whom euery bygginge compled togother groweth to an holy temple in the L O R D in whom ye also are baylde togother, in an habitation of God in the space.

The III. Chapter.

for this cause I Paul am - a minister of Jesu Christ for you Gentyles, accordinge as ye haue herde of & of the grace of God whid chasow graunto you warde, for by & reuelacion was the mystery shewed vnto me, as I wrote aboue in fewe wordes: to herby whan ye reade, ye maye perceaue in me vnderston dyng in & mystery of Christ, which (mystery) in tyme past was not opened vnto the childer of as it is now declared to his holy Apostles and prophetes by the spire: namely, the the heythen shalbe in heritours also, as of the same body, and partakers of his minister in Christ by the Gospell, wherof I am made a minister accordyng to the graof the grace of God, which is gent ma con-ge to the workyngs of his power.

Vnto me - the least of all sayntes in this grace geun, that I shalbe preach amonge the heythe & vnto herdeable riches of Christ, and to make all men se, what is the fulshype of the - mystery, which firste the begun-ge of the worlde hath bene hyd in God, which made all thinges thowow Jesu Chast to the intent that now vnto the rulers of power in heauē mighte be knowne by congre gacion the manlyfode by whidome of God, accordyng to y eternall purpose, whid he hath shewed in Christ Jesu our L O R D by whom we haue boldnesse and inuayin all confidēce thowow saich on him. Wherfore I desyre that ye saynte not because of my tribulacions, & I - suffer for you, whid is youre prayse.

for this cause I bowe my knees vnto the father of oure L O R D Jesu Christ, whid is the true father, ouer all that is called fi-ther in heauē and in earth, that he graunce you (accordyng to & riches of his glorye) be strenghted with power by his spire in & inwarde mā, that Christ maye dwell in you re herce by saich, that ye be ynge root and grounded in loue, maye be able to cōspere de with all sayntes, what is the bredth, and the length, and the depeth, and the heyt, and to knowe the loue of Christ, which low yet passeth all knowlege: that ye maye be filled with all maner of fulnesse of God.

The III. Chapter.

Therfore which an prisoner in the LORDE, whose you, that ye walte as it becometh y^e callinge wherein ye are called, with all humblesse off mynde and meanes, and longe sufferinge, forbear-inge one another in loue, and be diligenc: to kepe the vnite of the spere throughe the bonde of peace. One body and one spere, eui as ye are called in one hope of youre callinge.
One WORDE, one faith, one baptyeme, one God and father of vs all, which is aboue all, and aboue all, and in you all.

¶ Vnto every one of vs is geuen grace, accordinge to the measure off the grise off Christ. Therfore sayeth he: he is gone vp as hye, and hath led awaye captiue captiue us, and hath geaue grises vnto men. Tha: he went, vp what is it, bute that he first came downe in to y^e lowest partes of y^e earth: he that came downe, is euen the same which is gone vp aboue all heauens, to fulfill all.

¶ And y^e same hath se some to be Apostles, some to be prophetes, some to be Euangeli-sts, some to be shepherdes & teachers, wher-by the sayntes might be coupled together throughe comen seruaunce to the conseruace of y^e body of Christ, vntill we all come vnto one maner of faith and knowlege of the sonne of God, and become a perfecte man in to the measure of the perfecte age of Christ: that we be noume children, & masteringe & caried about with every wynde of doctryne through the wicdenes of men and craftynes, wherby they laye awaye for vs to discaue vs.

¶ But let vs folowe the truse in loue, and in all thynges growe in him. which is the heade, euen Christ, in whom all the body is coupled together, and one membre hangeth by another throughe oute all of y^e yntes. ¶ Wher-by one mynstred vnto another (accordinge to the operacion as every membre hath his measure) and maketh, that y^e body groweth to the conseruaunce of his selfe in loue.

This I saye therefore, and testifie in the LORDE, that ye walke noume: as y^e other cheyden walke in the vnite of their mynde, blynded in their vnderstandinge, beyng strangers fro the life which is in God through the ignoraunce that is in them, because of the blyndnes of their heere which beyng ye past repentance, haue geaue them selues ouer vnto waneomes, to woeke all maner of vncleannes euen with greynesse.

¶ But ye haue not so learned Christ, yf so be that ye haue herde of him, & are taught in him, euen as the truse is in Iesu. So then as conceyninge the conseruaunce in tyme past: laye from you that olde man which marreth himselfe throughe vncleannes whites: but be ye renewed in the spere of youre mynde, and put on that new man, which is shapen after God, in true righte consciens and holynes. ¶ Wherfore put awaye y^e synge, and speake every man the truse vnto his neigh-boure, for as moche as we are membres one of another. ¶ Be angry, but synne not. Let not y^e Sonne go downe vnto youre wrath: neither geue place to the becherye. he that hath stolen, let him steale no more: but let him labour rather, and do some good with his hondes, that he maye haue to geue vnto him that needeth.

¶ Let no filthy communication procede out of youre mouth, but that which is good to edifye withall, whānebe so, that it be gracious to heare. And geue not the holy spere of God, wherewith ye are sealed vnto y^e daye of redemption. Let all byrternes, and feartines, and wrath, and roaringe, & cursed speakinge be sate fro you with all maliciousnes. But be ye courteous one to another, mercifull, and forgene one another, eui as God hath forgene you in Christ.

The V. Chapter.

Be ye the: folowere therfore of God as deare children, and walke in loue, euen as Christ loued vs, and gaue him selfe for vs an offeringe and sacrifice of a sweete sauoure vnto God. As for wha-dome and all vncleannes, or conseruaunce, let it not be named amonge you, as it becometh sayntes: neither schismes, nor falshe callynge, ner ieastynge (which are not comly) but rather geuyng of thanks. ¶ For be sure, that no rhotic monger, or vncleane person, or couētous person (which is a worshipp of off ymages) hath inheritance in the Kingdome of Christ and of God. (¶ Let no man disceane you with vayne wordes) for because of these cometh the wrath of God vpon the children of vncleane. Be not ye therfore companions with them. For sometime ye were darknesse, but now are ye lighte in y^e LORDE.

¶ Walke as the children of lighte, (¶ So the frute of the spere is all manner of goodnes, and righteousnes and tru. ch.) and pro-ue what is pleasing vnto the LORDE, and haue no fellowship with y^e unfruitfull workes of darkness, but rather rebote the. For it is shame euen to name those thinges, which are done of them in secretes. But all thinges are manifest, when they are reboted of the lightes. For what so euer is manifest, that same is lighte. Therefore sayeth he: * Awake thou that sleepest, and stande vp fro the dead, and Christ shal geue thee lighte.

* Take heede therefore how ye walke circumspectly, not as the vnwise, but as y^e wise, and redeme the tyme, for it is a miserable tyme. Wherefore be not ye vnwise, but vnderstande what the will of the LORDE is, and be not drunken with wyne, wherein is excess: but be full of the spere. and talke amonge your selues of Psalmes, and ymnes, and spirituall songes, synginge and makynge melody vnto the LORDE in youre hartes. * geuynge thanks alwayes for all thinges vnto God the father, in the name of oure LORDE Iesus Christ, submyttinge youre selues one to another in the feare of God.

C Let the women submytte them selues vnto their husbandes, as vnto the LORDE. * For the husbande is the wyues heade, eue as Christ also is the heade of the congregacion, and he is the Sauoure of his body. Therefore as the congregacion is in subiection to Christ, likewise let the wyues be in subiection to their husbandes in all thinges.

Re husbandes loue youre wyues, euen as Christ loued the congregacion, and gaue himselfe for it, to sanctifie it, and cleanse it in the fountayne of water by the worde, to make it vnto himselfe a glorious congregacion, hauynge no spot nor wrinkle, ner any such thinge, but that it shuld be holy and without blame.

So ought men also to loue their wyues, euen as their owne bodies. Let that loueth his wife, loueth himselfe, for no man euer yet hated his owne fleshe, but nourisheth and cherisheth it, euen as the LORDE doth also the congregacion. For ye are members of his body, of his flesh and of his bones.

* For this cause shal a man leaue father and mother, and cleue vnto his wife, and they two shal be one flesh: This is a greatesecret: that I speake of Christ and the congregacion. Let euery peple do ye so, that euery one of you loue his wife euen as himselfe: but let the husbande.

the VI. Chapter.

The children, obey youre elders (in the LORDE, for that is righte, whome the Lord hath ordeyned to be ouer you, as to the Lord, as thy father and thy mother: (This is the first commaundement, that hath any promise) that thou mayest prosper, and be welcomge vpon earth. And ye fathers, prouide not youre children vnto wrath, but bringe the vp in the nurture and in the instruction of the LORDE.

* Ye seruantes, obey youre boddy masters, with feare and tremblinge, in singleness of youre hart, euen as vnto Christ, which seruyc onely in the eye sighte, as man please: but as the seruantes of Christ, doynge the will of God from the hart with good will. Thynke that ye serue the LORDE and not men: and be sure that what good souer a man doth, he shal receaue a gayne of the LORDE, whether he be bothe or fre.

And ye masters, do euen the same vnto the, putynge a waye the threatenynge, and knowe that euen youre master also is in his weat, neither is there any respecte of persones with him.

Finally my brethren, be stronge in the LORDE, and in the power of his mighte: put on the arme of God, that ye maye stande stedfast agaynst the craftie assautes of the devill. For we wrestle not agaynst flesh and bloude, but agaynst rule, agaynst power, namely, agaynst the rulers of the world, of the darknesse of this world, agaynst y^e spirit of wickednes vnder the heauen, for this cause take ye the armour of God, y^e maye be able to resist in the euill daye, and stande perfecte in all thinges.

* Standetherefore, and youre lymmes geue aboute with the truth, hauynge on the best place of righte conscience, and shod vpon the feete with the gospel of peace, that ye maye be prepared: About all thinges take hold of the shield of faith, wherewith ye maye quenche all the fyre darters of the wicked. And take the helme of saluation, and the sword of the spere, which is the worde of God.

* And praye alwayes with all maner of prayer and supplication in the spere, and reachethere vnto with all instance and supplication for all sayntes and for me, that the worde maye be geuen me, that I maye open my mouth boldly, to utter the secretes of the Gospel, wherof I am a messenger in bondes, that I maye speake therein freely, as it becommeth me to speake.

But that ye maye also knowe, what I am in, and what I do, Tychicus my deare brother and faithfull mynister in the LORDE, shal spende you all i' whom I have sent unto you for the same cause, that ye mighte knowe what case I stonde in, and that he mighte comforte youre hartes.

Peace be vnto the bierth, and lone with faith, from God the father, & from the LORDE Iesu Christ. Grace be with all them that loue our LORDE Iesu Christ vnfaignedly. Amen.

The Epistle of the Apostle S. Paul to the Philippians.

The summe of this epistle.

- Chap. i. He exhorteeth them to increase in love, in knowledge and experience of godly things: maketh mention of his personall at Rome, is glad to heare Christ preached, is content either to dye or lyue, and prayeth them to lede a godly conuersacion, to be of one mynd, and to steare no persecution.
- Chap. ii. He exhorteeth them to write and brieflye lone, and to beware of stryfe and wayne glory: And for a sure ensample he layeth Christ before them.
- Chap. iii. He warneth the to beware of fals teachers, whom he calleth dogges and enemies of Christ, and exhorteth his owne righteousness.
- Chap. iiiii. He salureth certayne of them, that teach them to be of honest conuersacion, and thanketh them because of the prouision, that they made for him beyng in prison.

The first Chapter.

Paul and Timotheus the seruantes of Iesu Christ. Vnto all the sayntes in Iesu Christ, which are at Philippi, with the Bishoppes and mynisters. Grace be with you and peace from God our father, and from the LORDE Iesu Christ.

I thanke my God, as oft as I remembre you (which I alwayes do in all my prayers) for you all, and praye with gladnesse because of youre fellowship which ye haue in the Gospell from the first daye vnto now, and am surely certified of this, that ye which hath begonne that good worke in you, shal go forth with it vntill i' daye of Iesus Christ as it becommeth me to iudge of you all, because I haue you in my hart, as those that are partakers with me of grace in my bondage, in defendinge and stablyshinge of the Gospell.

For God is my recorder, how I lōge after you all euen fro the very firste in Iesu Christ. And for the same I praye, that ye maye increaseme more in all maner of knowlege and in all experience, that ye maye proue what is best, that ye maye be pure, & such as hurte no mans conscience, vnto the daye of Christ: fylled with the frutes of righteousness, which come by Iesu Christ vnto the glorie and prayse of God.

I wolde ye vnderstode bierthien, that my busynes is happened vnto the greater furtherance of the Gospell, so that my bondes in Christ are manifest thorow out all i' indgmet hial, and in all other places: In so much that many bierthien in the LORDE are boldened thorow my bondes, and barre more largelye speake the woide without feare. Some (no doute) preach Christ of enuye and stryfe, but some of good wil. The one parte preacheth Christ off stryfe and not vnto myn, supposyng to adde more aduersite vnto my bondes. The other parte of lone, for they knowe that I lye here for the desyre of the Gospell.

What then? So that Christ be preached all maner of wayes (whether it be done by occasion or of true meaninge) I reioyce therein, and wil reioyce. For I knowe that the same shal chaunce to my saluacion, & thorow youre prayer and mynistryng of the spere of Iesu Christ, as I lōke for and hope, that in nothinge I shalbe ashamed: but that with all confidence (as all wayes in tymes past, euil so now) Christ shalbe magnified in my body whether it be thorow life or thorow death. For Christ is to me life, & death is to me advantage. But in as much as to i' whether it be for the worse, I what I shal chose, for both they harde vpon me. I desire to be with Christ, which better (for me) but to abyde: needfull for you.

D And this am I sure of, that I shall abide, and continue with you all, for the furtherance and love of your faith, that ye may abundantly rejoyce in Christ Jesus throughout me, by my cominge to you againe. 1. Cor. 1. 2. Col. 1. 2. 1. Th. 1. 2. Onely let your conversation be as it becometh the Gospell of Christ, that whether I come to see you, or els be absent, I may yet heare of you, that ye continue in one spirit and one soule, labouring (as we do) to maintain the faith of the Gospell, and in nothinge startinge your shoulders, which is to them a token off perdition, but unto you of saluation, and that of God. For unto you it is given, not onely that ye should beleue on Christ, but also suffer for his sake, and to have even the same fight, which ye haue sine in me, and now heare of me.

The II. Chapter.

If there be amonge you any consolation in Christ, if there be any comforte of love, if there be any fellowshipe off the spirit, if there be any compassion and mercy, fulfill my love, that ye doe one waye, hauinge one love, beinge of one accord, and of one mynde: that there be nothinge done throught strife and waie glory, but that thowise meeknesse of mynde every man esteeme another better then himselfe: and let every man loke not for his owne profite, but for the profite of other.

Let the same mynde be in you, that was in Christ Jesus: which beinge in the shappe of God, thought it not robbery to be equal with God, but made himselfe of no reputation, and toke upon him the shappe of a servant, became like another man, and was founde in his apparell as a man: he humbled himselfe, and became obedient unto the death, even unto the death of the crosse.

Therefore hath God also exalted him, and given him a name, which is above all names, that in the name of Jesus every knee should bowe, both of thinges in heauen of thinges upon earth, and off thinges under the earth, and that all tongues should confesse, that Jesus Christ is the LORD unto the praye of God the father.

Therefore my dearly beloved, as ye have obeyed (not onely in my presence, so much more in my absence) even your owne saluation with feare. For it is God which enough of his owne good will. Do all thinges without murmuringe and disputing, that ye may be faultles and pure, and the childre of God without rebuke, in the waye of a crooked and perverse nation, amonge whom it is that ye shine as lightes in the world, holdinge fast the wordes of life, unto my reioycinge in the daye of Christ, that I have not runne in waie, neither laboured in waie. And though I be offered up unto the offeringe and sacrifice of your faith, I am glad, and reioyce with you all: be ye glad also, and reioyce yet with me.

I trust in the LORD Jesus, to sende Timothy shortly unto you, that I also may be of good comfort, when I knowe what case ye stande in. For I have no man that is so like mynde to me, which much so parte offe careth for you: for all other seth their awne, not that which is in Jesus Christ. But ye knowe the profite of him: for as a child unto the father, so hath he mystified me to me in the Gospell. Him I hope to see, as soon as I knowe howe it will goe with me. But I trust in the LORD, that I also my selfe shall come shortly.

Tertullus I thoughte it necessary to sende unto you the brother Epaphrodite, which is my companion in laboure and fellowe labourer, and your Apostoll, and my minister at my neede, for so much as he longed after you all, and was full of heavynesse, because ye had heard that he was sicke. And notwithstandinge he was sicke, and that nye unto death: but God had mercy on him, and not on him onely, but on me also, lest I should have had sorrowe upon sorrowe.

I have sent him therefore the more hastily, that ye might see him, and reioyce agayne, and that I also might have the least sorrowe. Receive him therefore in the LORD with all gladnesse, and make much off him: for because of the weake of Christ, he went so farre, that he came nye unto death, and regarded not his life, to fulfill that service which was lackinge on your parte towards me.

The III. Chapter.

WORSHIP my brethren, my brethren in the LORD. Where as I reioyce ever one thinge unto you, it grieveth me not, and maketh you the stronger. Bewarre off dogges, bewarre off workes, bewarre off disension: for we are the circumcision, even we that serve God in the spirit, and reioyce in Christ Jesus.

and haue no confidence in the flesh, though I haue rober of I mighte reioyce in y flesh. If any other me thynke that he hath rober of he mighte reioyce in the flesh, much more I, which was circuncysed on the eight da ye, one of the people of Iſrael, of the trybe off Ben Iamin, an aboue of the hebrues: as concernyng the lawe. * a Phariſeas concernyng seruantes. * I persecuted the congregacion: and as condinge the righte couines which is in the lawe, I was uncreakable.

• But the thinges that were nauantage vnto me, haue I counted losse for Chriſtes sake. And I thynke all thinges but losse, for that excellen. Knowledge sake of Chriſt: Iſo my LORDE: for whom I haue counted all thinge losse, and do iudge them but donge, that I mighte wyne Chriſt, & be founde in him, not hauyng myne awne righte doones which cometh of the lawe, but by the faith of Chriſt (namely) the righte doones which cometh of God in faith, to knowe him and the vertue of his reſurreccion, and the ſillſcheppe of his paſſion, that I maye be conſormable vnto his death, yff by eny meanes I mighte attayne to the reſurreccion from the dead. For that I haue arrayed vnto it all ready, or that I am already perfecte: but I ſolowe, yf I maye comprehend that, wherein I am comprehended off Chriſt Jeſu. Bue then, I counce not my ſelſe yet: that I haue gotten it: but one thinge: I ſe: I forger that which is behynde, and ſtrech my ſelſe vnto that which is before, & prece vnto y march a poynted, to optayne the reward of the hie callinge of God in Chriſt Jeſu.

Let vs therfore (as many as be perfecte) be thus wyſe in mynd: and yf ye be other wyſe in mynd, I praye God open euen this on to you. Let us procede by one rule, that we maye be of one accorde. • Bue then, be ye y ſolowes of me, and loke on the which walked ſo as ye haue vs for an enſample. For many walke (off whom I haue tolde you often, but now I tell you wepyng) eut enemies of the croſſe of Chriſt, whoſe ende is domination. * whoſe God is the belly, & whoſe glory ſhalbe to their ſhame, which are truly mynnd. • But our conſeracion is in heauen, from whence we loke for the Sauiour Jeſu Chriſt y LORDE, which ſhal diſſe o wyſe body, & it maye be like ſuſhion vnto his glorious body, accordinge to y woſyng wherby he is able to ſubdue all thinges vnto himſelſe.

Wherfore my biethie dearly beloved I longed for, my ioye: & my crowne conynue ſo in the LORDE ye beloved. I praye Eudias, & beſeke Synichas, that they be of one mynd in the LORDE. And I beſeke the my faithfull yoſe ſelowe, helpe the women, which haue laboured with me in the Goſpell, with Clement & with my other helpers, * whoſe names are in the boke of life. Reioyce in the LORDE alwaye, & agayne I ſaye, Reioyce. Let your ſomes be knowne vnto all men. The LORDE is euen at hande. Be not carefull, but in all thinges let yoſe petitions in prayer and ſupplicacion, with geuyng of thankes be knowne before God. And y peace of God, which paſſeth all vnderſtodyng, kepe your hertes and myndes in Chriſt Jeſu.

The Epistle of the Apostle S. Paul to the Colossians.

The summe of this Epistle.

Chap. I. He geueth thankes vnto God for their faith, loue, and hope: prayeth for their increase and strength how we are the Fyndome of God, obtained by Christ, which is the heade of the congregacion.

Chap. II. What greates care Paul toke for all congregacions. He exhorteth them to be steadfast in Christ, to beware of false teachers, and worldly wysdome, and to serue the false prophetes.

Chap. III. He putteth them in remembrance of the spirituall resurrection, to leue afyde all maner of corrupt hyunge, to be frutesfull in all godlynde and vertue, and sheweth all degrees their duty.

Chap. IIII. He exhorteth them to be seruent in prayer, to walke mysely vnto them that are not yet come to the true knowledge of Christ, and so salutech them.

The first Chapter.

In an Apostle of Jesu Christ by the will of God, and brother Timotheus.

To y^e sayntes which are at Colossa and brethren that beleue in Christ.

Grace be with you and peace from God our father & fro the LORDE Jesu Christ.

We geue thankes vnto God and the fa- ther of our LORDE Jesu Christ, pray- inge alwayes for you (since we herde of your faith in Christ Jesu, and of your loue to all sayntes) for y^e hopes sake which is layed vp in store for you in heauen: of the which ye haue herde before by the wordes of trouth in the Gospell, which is come vnto you, and as it is in to all the worlde: and is frutesfull as it is in you, since y^e daye y^e herde and recei- ued the grace of God in y^e trouth, as ye learned of Epaphras our deare seloued seruaunt: which is a faithfull mynister of Christ for you, which also declared vnto you your loue in the spere.

For this cause we also, since the daye y^e we herde of it, cease not to praye for you, & desyre that ye mighte be fulfilled with the knowlege of his will, in all wysdome and spirituall vnderstandinge, that ye mighte walke worthy off the LORDE, to pleas him in all thinges, and to be frutesfull in all good woorkes, and growe in the knowlege of God: & to be strengthened wth all power ac- cordinge to the mighte of his glory, to all paci- ence and long sufferinge with iustifolnes, and geue thankes vnto the father, which hath made vs mee for the embertousnes of sayntes in lighte.

Which hath deliuered vs fro the power of darknesse, & translated vs in to the bright- dome of his deare sonne: (in whom we haue redemption throughe his bloude, namly, the forgouenes of synnes.) Which is the ymage of the inuisyble God, first begotten be- fore all creatures. For by him were all thinges created, that are in heauen and earth, thinges visyble and thinges inuisyble, whe- ther they be maisties or lordshippes, eth- er rules or powers: All thinges are created by him and in him, and he is before all thinges, and in him all thinges haue their beyng.

And he is the heade of the body, nam- ly, of the congregacion. he is the begyn- ninge and first begotten from the deede, that in all thinges he mighte haue the preemin- ence. For it pleased the father, that in him shoulde dwell all fulnesse, and that by him all thinges shoulde be reconciled vnto him- selfe, whether they be thinges vpon earth or in heauen, that throughe the bloude on the crosse he mighte make peace euen throughe his owne selfe. And you (which were in tyme past straungers and enemies, because your myndes were set in euill wth the wo- rld)

The Epistle to the Colossians. Fo. lxxxviii.

he now reconciled in the body of his flesh show death, to make you holy, and unbla-meable with our faith in his awne sighte, yf ye conyue grounded and stablished in the faith, and be not moued awaye from the hope of the Gospell, wherof ye haue herbe: which is preached amonge all creatures that are vnder heauen, wherof I Paul am made a mynister.

To ouercome I in my sufferings, which I suffer for you, and fullfill that which is beyond of the passions of Christ in my flesh, for his bodies sake, which is the congrega-cion, wherof I am made a mynister, according to yf Goddys office of preaching, which is giuen vnto me amonge you, that I shalde richly preach the worde of God, namely, that mystery which hath bene hid since the worlde beganne, and since the begynnyng of tyme: but now is opened vnto you his synners, to whom God wolde make knowne the glorious riches of this mystery amonge yf herthen: which (riches) is Christ in you, and he that is the hope of glory, wher we preach, and warne all men, and teach all men in all wysdome, to make every man parfite in Christ Iesu: wher in I also labour, and straye according to the roolynge of him which wootech mightly in me.

The II. Chapter.

Wolde ye knowe what fightinge I haue for youre sake, and for them of Laodicea, and for as many as haue not seene my persone in the flesh, that ther heres mighte be consoled and brynged ther in loue, so all riches of full vnderstand-ynge, which is in the knowlege of the mystery of God the father and of Christ, in whom are hid all the treasures of wysdome and knowlege.

This I saye, lest eny man shalbe begyle you with entysinge wordes. For though I be absent in the flesh, yet am I present with you in the spete: ioyng, and beholdinge youre order and the stedfastnes of you-re faith in Christ. As ye haue therfore re-ceaved Christ Iesu the LORDE, men so wal-ke in him, and bereged & bylde in him, and be stedfast in faith, as ye haue learned: & be plenteous in the same in newynge thankes.

Beware lest eny man spoyle you throough philosophy and deceitfull waite after the tradicions of men, and after the ordinaun-ces of the worlde, and not after Christ. For in him dwelleth all the fulnes of the Goddys bodily, and ye are complete in him, which is the heade of all rule and power: in whom also ye are circumsyde with circumsacion without handes, by puttyng of the synfull body of the flesh: (namely) with the circumsion of Christ, in that ye are buried with him throough baptyeme: in whom ye are also rysen agayne throough faith, that is wroughte by the operacion of God, which trausyed him vp from the dead.

And with him he quyeted you, when ye were dead in synnes, and in the vncircum-sion of youre flesh, and hath soigevyn us all synnes, and put out the hardenynge that was agaynst vs (conserued in the lawe retyren) and that hath he taken out of the waye, and sustened it to the crosse: And hath spoyled rule and power, and hath made a shewe of them openly, and triumphed ouer them in his awne persone.

Let no man therfore trouble youre con-sciensce aboute meate or drynke, or for a pecce of an holy daye, as the holy daye of s^c newe Mone, or of the Sabbath daye, which are the shadowe of the thinges that were for to come: but the body selfe is in Christ. Let no man make you shoke at a wronge mark, which after his owne dosynge walketh in humblenes and spiritualite of angels, chary-ges which he neuer sawe, and is vayne, and pufft up in his owne fleshy mynde: and holdeth not himselfe to the heade, wherof the whole body by ioyntes and complex receameth nourishment, and is brynged together, and so groweth to the greatnes that cometh of God.

Wherfore yf ye be dead with Christ from the ordinaunces of the worlde, why are ye holden the with such tradicions, as though ye lyued after the worlde: As whan they saye: Touch not this, taste not that, handle not that. All these thinges do hurte vnto men, because of the abusi of them, which abuse cometh onely of the commaunde-mentes and doctrynes of men: which thinges haue a shyne of wysdome thowgh they be spiritualite and humblenes, and in that they spare not the body, and do the flesh no reuechinge vnto his nebe.

The III. Chapter.

Ye be ryisen now with Christ, like those thinges then which are aboute where Christ is, freyng on the righ-te hande of God. Set youre mynde on the thinges which are aboue, not on yf thinges that are vpon earth. For ye are dead, your life is hid with Christ in God.
Whan Christ of life shal shewe himselfe, the shal ye also appeare with him in glory.

• Manifeste therefore youre meenes which are upon earth, withoute envie, uncleanne, unnatural lust, or will concupisence, and covetousnes, which is a washippynge of Idols: for in which thinges sat as the wrath of God commeth vpon the children of unbelieve: in the which thinges ye walked some tyme, when ye layed in them.

• But now put all away fro you: wrath, fear, enesse, malicioussnes, cursed speakynge, fylthie wordes out of youre mouth. Let ye not one to another. Put of y olde man with his workes, and put on y newe, which is renewd in knowlege after y ymage of him that made him: where there is no Gheke, Jewe, circumcision, uncircumcision, Barbarous, Scythian, bodde, fre: but Christ is all and in all.

• To worshippe as the cleere of God, holy and beloved, put on tender mercye, kyndnes, humblesnes of mynde, mekenesse, longe sufferynge. forbearinge one another, and forgyvynge one another, yf any man have a quarrell agaynst another. Like as Christ hath forgyven you, even so do ye also. But a boue all thinges put on love, which is the bonde of perfectnesse. And the peace of God rule in youre hertes, to the which (peace) ye are called also in one body: and se y ye be charitable.

Eph. 5.1

• Ye seruantes, be obedient unto youre lordes as men please, but in synghenes of heart, fearinge God. What so ever ye do, do it truly, even as unto the LORDE and not men. And beware, that of the LORDE ceunty: remoure of y inheritaunce. The LORDE Christ. But he that doth...

ge that he hath done, for there is no respect of persons (with God.)

• Ye masters, do unto youre seruantes as that which is iust and equall, and knowe, y ye also have a master in heauen.

The III. Chapter.

• Continue in prayer, and watch in the same with thankesguyvynge, and praye also together for vs, that God open vnto vs the doore of the worde, to speake the mystery of Christ (wherefore I am also in bonds) that I maye viter y same, as it becometh me to speake. Walk ye wisely towards them that are withoute, and redeme y tyme. Let your speech be allwaye favourable, seasoned with salt, that ye maye knowe how to answer every man.

Tychicus the deare brother and faithfull mynister & selowe seruante in y LORDE, shal tell you what case I am in. Whom I have sent unto you for the same purpose, that he might knowe how ye do, & that he might comforte youre hertes, with one Onesimus a faithfull and beloved brocher, which is one of you: the which I hence you of all things, which are aduynge here. And I shal send my pson selowe salueth you, and Onesimus Barnabasses sisters some, conching to whom ye receaved commaundementes. If he come vnto you, receave him, and Iesu, which is called Justus, which are of the circumcision. These onely are my helpers in the kyngdome of God, which were to my consolation.

• Epaphias a seruante of Christ, which is one of you, salueth you, & allwaye laboureth feruently for you in prayers, y ye maye stonde perfecte and fall in all that is the will of God. I beare him recorde, that he hath a seruente mynde for you, and for the at Laodicea, and at Hierapolis. Deare Lucas the physician salueth you, and so doeth Demas. Salute the brethren, which are at Laodicea, and salute Nymphas, and the congregation which is in his house. And when the epistle is red of you, cause it to be red also in the congregation at Laodicea, & that ye knowe to be the epistle of Laodicea. And saye to Archippus: Take heere to the office which thou hast receaved in the LORDE, that thou fulfill it. My saluacion with the hande of my Paul. Remember my bodde. Grace be with you, Amen.

The first Epistle of the Apostle S.

Paul to the Thessalonians.
The summe of this Epistle.

- Chap. I. He thanketh God for them, that they are so steadfast in faith and good works, and receiue the gospell with so earnestly.
- Chap. II. He comforteth them in mynde of the godly conseruation that he led amonge them when he preached the gospell vnto them, than vnto God that they create the worlde so fruitfully, and carefully his absence.
- Chap. III. He sheweth how greatly he was reioysed wth Timothy told him of their faith and loue.
- Chap. IIII. He exhorteth them to steadfastnesse, to kepe them selfe from synne and vncleuely conseruation, to loue one another; rebuletely pynesse, and speaketh of the resurrection.
- Chap. V. He enformenth them of the daye of dome and admyng of the LORDE, exhorteth them to watch, and to regard the soday as they shoulde worke amonge them.

The first Chapter.

AD and Siluans and Timotheus.

Vnto the congregacion of the Thessalonians, in God the father and in the LORDE Iesus Christ.

Grace be with you, and peace from God oure father and from the LORDE Iesus Christ.

We geue thankes vnto God allwaye for you all, makinge mission of you in o' prayers without ceasinge, and call to remembrance a your worthe in the faith, and your labour in loue, and your patience in hope, which is oure LORDE Iesus Christ before God oure father: Because we knowe (brethren, beloved of God) how that ye are electe: for oure Gospell hath not bene with you in word only, but both in power and in the holy goost, and in much certayntie, as ye knowe after what maner we were amonge you for yere iijdea.

And ye became the solowere of vs and of the LORDE: and receiued the worde in much affliction with ioye of the holy goosts so that ye were an example to all that beloued in Macedonia and Achaia. For vs you was the worde of the LORDE noyced oue, not onely in Macedonia and Achaia, but all quarters also in yd saich i God spued abode so that it nederly not vs to speake any thinge at all, for they them selfe shewe of you, what maner of entryng in we had vnto you, and how ye are turned vnto God from synnages, for to serue the synnyng and true God, and to loke for his come from heauens whom he raised vp from the dead, euen Iesus, which hath deliuered vs fro the wraith whiche to come.

The II. Chapter.

Of ye youre felices (brethren) knowe of oure interaice vnto you, how that it was not in wayne, but as we had suffred afoie, and were shamefully intreated at Philippos (as ye knowe), we were bolde in oure God, to speake vnto you y Gospell of God with much stryuyng. For oure exhortacion was not to bringe you to avarice ner yet to vncleynes, nether was it with gyle: but as we are allowed of God, that the Gospell shulde be commyted vnto us to preache, euen so we speake, not as though it wolde please me, but God, which tryeth oure hertes.

For we haue not gone aboute with flatering wordes (as ye knowe) ner wayed for oure owne profyt: God is recorde nether soughte we prayse of men, nether of you nor of any other, whan we myghte haue bene chargeable vnto you as the Apostles off Christ, but we were tender amonge you.

Like as a nouisse cherissheth hir children, euen so had we hartely affection towarde you, and wolde with good wyll haue deales vnto you, not onely the Gospell of God, but oure lyues also, because ye were deare vnto vs.

We remembre brethren oure laboure and trauayle: For daye and nighte wroughe we (because we wolde not be chargeable vnto any of you) and preached the Gospell of God amonge you. We are witnesses, and so is God, how holysly and iustly and vnablemable we behaue oure selues amonge you that belone: as ye knowe, how that as a his children, euen so exhorted and besoughte eueryone wolde walke worshipfully before God, which hath called you vnto his b'ndome.

The first Epistle

to the Thessalonians.

For this cause thanke we God without ceasinge, because that whā ye receaved of vs the worde of the preachinge of God, ye receaved it not as f worde of men, but (such as is of a tructh) the worde of God, which woorketh in you that belene.

C For ye brethren are become the folowers off the congregacions off God which in Jewry are in Christ Jesu, so that ye have suffred even like thinges of youre kynsmen, as they have suffred of the Jewes. Which as they put the LORDE Jesu to deach, and their awne prophetes, even so have they persecuted vs also, and please not God, and are contrary to all men. f forbiddinge vs to speake unto the heathen that they mighte be saved, to fulfyll their synnes allwaye: for the wrath is come vpon them already vnto f remotest.

But we (brethren) for as much as we haue bene kepte from you for a season, as concerninge the bodily presence, but not in the here, we haue hailed the moie with greare desyre to se you personally. Therfore wolde we haue come vnto you, f Paul) two tymes, but Satban withstode vs. For who is our hope, or ioye, or crowne of glorying: are not yett in f sighte of our LORDE Jesu Christ at his commynge? For ye are our praye and ioye.

The III. Chapter.
Wherfore since we coude no longer forbear, we thoughte it good to remayne at Athens alone, f sent Timotheus oure brother and mynister of God, and oure helper in f gospel of Christ, to stablish you and to comforte you in youre faith, that noman shalde be moued in these troubles: (for ye youre selues knowe, that we are euen appoynted there vnto. And whan we reere with you, we tolde you before, that we shalde suffre tribulacion, euen as it is come to passe, f as ye knowe.) For this cause saynge f coude no longer forbear, f sent, that f mighte haue knowlege of youre faith, lest happily the tempter had tempted you, and left oure laboure had bene in vayne.

But now that Timotheus is come frō you vnto vs, and hath shewed vs of youre faith and loue, f how that ye haue alwaye good remembrance of vs, desyryng to se vs 23 f come to se you: therfore brethren tomin you in all oure troules shew your faith. For alwaye, f ye stonde stedfast in f DE. For what thankes can we recompende to God for you, because of this ioye that we haue conceyvinge you before our God: We praye exceedingly day and night, that we mighte se you presently, and fullill that which is lackyng in f faith.

God himselfe, f father of LORDE Jesu Christ gyde oure souerney vnto you. For the LORDE incredece you, f make you slowe our in loue one towarde another, and comforte all men (euen as we do towarde you) that yheres maye be stable and vblameable in holynes before God our father, at the comynge of our LORDE Jesu Christ with all his sayntes.

The III. Chapter.
Wherfore we besee you brethren and exhorte you in the LORDE Jesu, that ye incredece more and more, euen as ye haue receaved of vs how ye oughte to walke and to please God. For ye knowe what commaundementes we geue you by our LORDE Jesu Christ. In this is the will of God, euen your sanctificinge, that ye shalde absteyne from whoredome, f every one of you shalde knowe how to kepe his vessel in holynes and honoure, not in the last of conceyvence, as the heathen which knowe not God. And that noman go to farre, nor beseeche his brother bargayninge. For the LORDE is the angger of all such thinges, as we haue sayde testified vnto you a fewe tymes. For God hath not called vs to vncleynesse, but vnto holynes. f therfore that despycheth, despycheth not man, but God, which hath geuen us holy spire in vs.

But as touchyng brotherly loue, ye knowe that f reere vnto you, for ye yourselfes are charge of God to loue one another: yett and that thinge ye do vnto all the brethren, which are shewen out all the world. But we beseeke you brethren that ye incredece yett more and more, and that ye study to be quyet, and to worke with youre awne busynesse, and to walke with youre awne hand, as we commaunded you, that ye maye walke honestly towarde the that are without, and that nothyng be lackyng vnto you.

We wolde not brethren that ye shalde be ignorant concerninge them which are fallen a slepe, that ye forsooke nor as other to which haue no hope. For f we beleue that Jesu byd and rose agayne, euen so the alle which slepe by Jesu, shal God bringe with him. For this we saye vnto you in the name of the LORDE, that we which lyue and remainyng in the comynge, of the LORDE,

The first Epistle

shal not come yet they which slepe. For the LORD himselfe shal come downe frō hea- ven with a shout and voyce of ʒ Archangell and with the trompe of God, and the dead in Christ shal arise first: then shal we which lyue and remaine, be caught up w them also in the cloudes, to comere the LORD in the ayre, and so shal we euer be with the LORD. Wherefore comforte youre selues one another with these wordes.

The V. Chapter.

BYe of ʒ tymes and seasons (breethē) it is no nede to wyte vnto you. For ye youre selues knowe perfectly, that the daye of the LORD shal come euen as a thefe in the nyghte. For whan they shal saye: Lash, It is peace, there is no daunger, then shall iorden destruction come vpo the, men as the payne of a woman trauaylinge with childe, and they shal not escape. But ye breethren are not in darknes, that that daye shalde come on you as a thefe. Ye are altogether children of lighte, and children of the daye. We are not of the nyghte, neither of darknesse.

Therefore let vs not slepe as do ether, but let vs waken, and besidder. For they that slepe, slepe in the nyghte: and they that be drunken, are drunken in the nyghte. But let us which are of the daye, be sober, armed w the breastplate of faith and loue, and w the helmet of hope of saluacion,

For God hath not appointed vs vnto wrath, but to obtayne saluacion by ʒ meane of oure LORDE Jesu Christ, which dyed for vs: that whether we wake or slepe, we shalde lyue together with him. Wherefore comforte youre selues together, and eache one another, euen as ye do.

We beseeke you breethren, that ye knowe them which laboure amonge you, and haue the oversight of you in the LORD, and ge you exhortacion, that ye haue the me- rit in loue for their workes sake, and be at peace with echem. We desire you breethē, warne them that are vnto, of suite the feble myn- ded, forbear the weakē, be patient toward all men. Se that none recompence euill for well vnto any man: but euer solerte that which is good, both amonge youre selues and to all men.

Reioyce alwaye, praye continually, in all thinges be thankfull: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesu toward you. Quench not ʒ spere. despyse nor propheticke: procure all thinges, ʒ kepe ʒ which is good. Absteyne frō all suspitious thinges, The very God of peace sanctifye you echorow out. And I waye God, that yours whole spere, soule ʒ body be kepte blameles vnto ʒ comyng of oure LORDE Jesu Christ. Faithfull is he which hath called you, which will also do it. Breethren, praye for vs. Greete all the breethē with an holy kysse. I charge you by ʒ LORD, that this epistle be red vnto all ʒ holy breethren. The grace of oure LORDE Jesu Christ be with you, Amen.

The first Epistle to the Thessalonians, sent from Athens.

The seconde Epistle of the Apostle S.

Paul to the Thessalonians.

The summe of this epistle.

Chap. I. He thanketh God for their faith and loue, and prayeth for the increase of the same.

Chap. II. He sheweth them that the daye of the LORD shal not come, till the departinge frō the faith come first: and therefore he exhorteth them not to be discouered, but to stande steadfast in the thinges that h. hath taught them.

Chap. III. He desirith them to praye for him, that the gospell maye prosper, and grieueth that waicryinge to expulse the vble, and if they will not labour with their hands, that they shal not eate.

The first Chapter.

PAUL and Siluans ʒ Timotheus.

To the congregacion of ʒ Thessalonians in God oure father and in the LORD E Jesu Christ.

Grace be with you, and peace from God oure father, and from the LORDE Jesu Christ.

We are bounde to thankē God alwayes for you breethren, as it is meete: because that youre faith groweth exceedingly, and the loue of euery one of you increaseth toward another amonge youre selues, so that we oure selues make oure boast of you in the congregacions of God of youre pacize and faith in all youre persecucions and troubles that ye suffre, which is a token of the righteous iudgment of God, that ye are counted worthy of the Kingdome of God, for the which, ye also suffre.

For it is a righteous thinge with God, to recompence tribulation vnto the trouble you: but vnto you which are troubled, rest with vs. whā the LORDE Iesus shal shewe himselfe from heauen, with the angels of his power, and with flaminge yre, to geue vengeance vnto them that knowe not God, and to them that obeye not the Gos-pell of oure LORDE Iesus Christ. Which shal be punished with euerlastinge damna-tion, from y presence of the LORDE, and from the glory of his power, whan he shal come to be glorified in his sayntes, and to be come maruolous in all them that beleue: because ye haue belene oure testimony vnto you of the same waye. Wherfore we praye alwaye for you, that oure God make you worthy of y callinge, and fulfill all delecta-cion of goodnes, and the woyle of faith in power, that y name of oure LORDE Iesus Christ maye be playd in you, and ye in him, a coing to the grace of oure God, and of the LORDE Iesus Christ.

The ii. Chapter.

Wheske you bretheren by the commyng of LORDE Iesus Christ, and in that we shal assemble vnto him, that ye be not suddenly moued fro youre mynde, and be not troubled, ney by spiete, neither by wordes, ney yet by letter, which shalbe sente to be sent from vs, as though y daye of Christ were at hande. Let no man distraine you by eny meanes. For the LOR-DE commeth not, excepte the departhyng come first, and that that Man of synne be opened, euen the forme of perdition, which is an aduersary, and is exalted aboue all y is called God: Gods seruyce, so that he steereth as God in the temple of God, and boasteth himselfe to be God.

Remember ye not, that whan I was yet with you, I tolde you these thinges: And now ye knowe what witholdeth it, and that it mighte be creered at his tyme. For the mystery of the iniquyte worketh alreedy, eyll be which now onely lettereth, be take our of the waye. And then shal that wicked be creered: whom the LORDE shal consume with y space of his mouth, and shal destroye with the appearance of his commyng:

men him, whose commyng is a ster the rot eyng of Sathan. with all lyenge power, and signes and wonders, and with all decea-nableness of wrighteousnes amonge them that perishe, because they receaued not the loue of y crutch, that they mighte haue bene saued. Wherfore shal God sende them stroge delusion, that they shalbe beleue lies, y all they mighte be dained, which beleue the crutch, but had pleasure in wrighte-ousnes.

But we are bounde to geue thanks al-waye vnto God for you, bretheren be loue of the LORDE, because that God hath from the begynnynge chosen you to saluacion the sanctifyinge of the spire: and in deli-ueryng of the crutch, wher vnto he hath calld you by oure Gospell, to optayne the glory of oure LORDE Iesus Christ.

Therfore bretheren stonde fast, and kepe the ordinance which ye haue leered, wher ther ic were by oure preachinge or by epistoll.
But oure LORDE Iesus Christ himselfe, and God oure father, which hath loued us and geuen vs euerlastinge consolation, and a good hope throughe grace, comforte you herce, and stablish you in all doctryne good doynge.

The iii. Chapter.

Whermost bretheren praye for that the woyle of God maye haue fre passage and be glorified as eu-er with you, and that we maye be deli-uered from vnreasonable and euell mē. For saynt is not euery mā. But the LORDE is full full, which shal stablish the you and kepe you from euill. We haue confidence in the LOR-DE to you wards, that ye bech do and wil do that which we commaunde you. The LOR-DE gyde youre herces vnto the loue of vs and pacience of selfe.

But we requyre you bretheren, in the me of oure LORDE Iesus Christ, that y withdrawe youe selues from euery bruch that walketh inordinately, and not after the institution which he receaued of vs. For y selues knowe, how ye oughte to saluus: for we behaue not oure selues inordinly amonge you, neyher toke we bad of any man for naughte: but wounghe to labour and trauaile night and daye, lest we shoulde be chargeable to any of you. For we had we had auerite, but to geue oure selues for an ensamble vnto you to followe us. And whan we were at you, this we warnd you of, that yf there were any which wolden royle, yf same shulden not ease. For we had saye, that there are some which walke ge you inordinately, and worke noe at all, but are busy bodie. But them that are feble, we commaunde and exhorte by oure LORDE Iesus Christ, that they worke with quietnes, and eate their owne bred.

Reuerence bretheren, be not ye weary of well doynge. But yf any man obey

The first Epistle of the Apostle S. Paul to Timothy.

The summe of this epistle.

Chap. I. He exhorteth Timothy to worke vs his officenamely, to see that nothyng be taughte but Gods worde &c. He sheweth also wherfore the lawe is good, and telleth these sweete and glad sayenges, that Christ Jesus came in to the world to save synners, as a mynle of himselfe.

Chap. II. He exhorteth to praye for all men. He will not haue women to be ouer costlye prayed, nor to teach in the congregacion, but to be in mynne, and obeye their husbands.

Chap. III. What manner of man a byshoppe or prest ought to be, and what conicions his wife and children shuld haue. The properties also requyred in a deacon or mynister, and in his wife.

Chap. IIII. He prophesieth of the latter dayen, and exhorteth Timothy to the diligent studyng of the holy scriptures.

Chap. V. He teacheth him how he shal behaue himselfe in rebulyngs and degrees. Also he concernyng myndobeyes.

Chap. VI. The dutye of seruantes toward their masters. Agaynst such as are not satisfied with the worde of God. Agaynst curiouse men. A good lesson for slypemen.

And an Apostle of Jesus Christ according to the commaundment of God our Saviour, and of the LORDE Jesus Christ, which is our hope. A.C. 2. b 1. Tit. 1. a

Unto Timothy my naturall soune in the faith.

Grace, mercy, and peace from God our father, and oure LORDE Jesus Christ.

As I besoughte y to abyde still at thepse ius. (when I departed in to Macedonia) Act. 2. 20.

and so do, that thou commaunde some, that they teache none other wyse, neither geue they be to fables and genealogies, which are endlesse, and bredde outes moche then gouldy chyrurgie, which is by faith. 1. Tim. 1. c

For y these synners of the commaundement is lose of a pure here, and of a good conscience, and of faith vnfaigned, from the which some haue erred, & haue turned vnto vayne langwyng, wyllinge to be doctours of the scripture, and vnderstande not what they speake, neither wher of they assure. remongers, to they that defyle them selves with mannyng, to mensleues, to larys, to peruersed, & so forth yf there be any other thinge y is contrary to y vnholosome doctrine, accordinge to y Gospell of y glory of the blessed God, which (Gospell) is comynged vnto me. Rom. 1. d

And I thank Christ Jesus of ILORDE, which hath made me stryde, for he conuozed me faithfull, & put me in office, wha before I was a blasphemour, & a persecuter, & a tyrant: but I obtayned mercy, because I dyd it ignorantly in vnbeleue. & Tenere I also the grace of o' LORDE was more abundant: cho

C For this is a true sayenge, and by all mea-nes worthy to be receaued, that Christe Jesus came in to vs to orde to saue synners, of whom I am chefe. To witthstandyng for this cause opayned I mercy, that Iesus Christ mighte principally shene in me all longh patience, to the ensample of them which shulde beleue in him vnto eternal life. So then vnto God praye euerlastyng, immortal and vnsynable, and wys onely, be honoure and prayse for ever and ever Amen.

This commandment commytte I vnto the (my souerayn Timothy) accordyng to y propheteas which in tyme past were prophesied of the, that thou in them shuldest shewe a good figure, hauyng faith & good conscience, which some haue put awaye fro them, and as concernyng faith haue made hypocrisie of those nombres • Symeon and Alexander, to whom I haue deliuered vnto Sachan, that they mighte be taught, nomore to blaspheme.

The II. Chapter.

Serue these fore, & adoue all thinges prayers, supplications, interces-sions and prayngs of such as be had for all men: for prayngs, and for allechar are in anouerte, that we maye lyue a quyet & peaceable life in all goodynes and honestie.
 For that is good and accepted in y sighe of God oure Sauoure, which wil haue all men saued, and to come vnto the knowlege of y truty. For there is one God, and one mediator betwene God and men, (namely) the man Christe Iesus, which gaue him selfe a ranfome for all men, that at his tyme reshulde be preached, wherunto I am ordeyned a preacher and Apostle (I cell y truty in Christ and by no) a teacher of the heylth in faith and in the truty.

I wil therfore that men praye, in all places, liftinge up pure hâdes withoute wrath or boerynges. Likewyse also the women, that they araye them selues in comly apparell with shamsfastnes and discreete behaue, not with dyedyd heere, or golde, or perles, or costly araye: but with such as it becommeth wemen that professe godlynes choiow good woordes. Let the woman liene in subiecte with all subiection, I suffre not a woma to teache a man to haue aneuerite ouer the man, but for to be in silence. For Adam was first foumed, and the kynde of Adam also was not discreaed, but the woman was discreaed, and hath brought in the trasgression. To witthstandyng ge thouw bearynges of children she shalbe saued, yf she conynte in faith and in loue in the sancty sayenge with discrecion.

The III. Chapter.

This is a true sayenge: As a man cometh y office of a Bisshope, be desirous a good worke. But a Bisshope must be blamelesse, the husbâde of one wife, sober, discreete, manely, haberdone, a apte to teache: Not geuen to much wyne, no fightyng, nor geuen to filthy lucre: but gentle, abhorryng stryfe, abhorryng contouersie: one that ruleth his owne house honestly, ha-uyng obedient children with all honestie.
 (But ysa man can not rule his owne house, how shal he care for the congregacion of God?) he maye not be a yuge kolar, lest he be puse up, and fall in to the iudgment of euell speakers. he must also haue a good repute of them which are without, lest he fall in to the rebuke and snare of the euell speakers.
 Likewyse must the minister be honest, not double tongued, nor geuen to much wyne, neither vnto fylchic lucre, but hauyng the mystry of saych in pure conscience. And them first be pioned, and then let them minister, yf they be blamelesse.

Let not so many of them be honest, nor euell speakers, but sober and saychful in all thinges. Let the ministers be, enery one the husbâde of one wyfe, and such as rule the children well, and their owne householde.
 For they that minister well, gat them sel-ues a good degree and greete liberte in the saych which is in Christe Iesu.

These thinges teyxe I vnto the, trustyng ge shortly to come vnto the: but yf I say lge, that then thou mayest yet haue knowlege, how thou oughtest to behaue thyself in Gods house, which is the congregacion of the lyuynge God, the puler and grower of truty: and withoute maye, greates is the mystry of godlynes. • God was shewed in the flesh: was wishful in the spere: • man-ny of angels: was preached vnto the heyl-then: was belene on in the world: • was ceaned vp in glory.

The IIII. Chapter.

Some speake openly, the in y later tymes some shal depa-re from the faith, and shal geue vnto peccas of erreure, and deuallysh bearynes, of them which speake false thoom cryse, and haue their conscience marted with an rebore you, for byddyng to mary, and comandyng to abstayne fro the meate, which God hath created to be receaued w geuyng thanks of them which beleue and inoue the truth. * For euery creature off God is good, and nothinge to be refused, y is receaued with thanksguyng: for it is sanctified by the worde of God and prayer.

As thou shalt put the bierthen in remembrance of these thynges, thou shalt be a good mynster of Iesu Christ, which hath bene manifested up in the wordes of faith and of good doctrine, which thou hast folowed hitherto.

3 * As for ungoosly and olde womanly sables, cast them awaye, but exerceyse thy selfe unto godlynes. For bodily exerceyse profiteth little, but godlynes is profitable unto all thynges, as a thyng which hath promyse of the life that is now, and of the life for to come. This is a sure sayenge, 2 of all pat-rens worthy to be receaued. For therfore we laboure and suffre rebuke, because we hope in the lyuynge God, which is the Sauoure of all men, but specially of those that beleue.
Such thynges commaunde thou and teach.
* Let no man despise y yowth, but be thou unto them that beleue, an example, in word, in conuersacion, in loue, in yf spere, in faith, in puretye.

Gene: attendaunce to readyng, to exhortacion, to doctrine, vntill J come. Be not negligent in the gifte that is geuen the thow prophete, with layenge on of the han-des of the Elders. These thynges exerceyse, and geue thy selfe vnto them, that thine inteance maye be manifest vnto every man.
Take hebe vnto thy selfe, and to learnynge, conyng in these thynges. For yf thou so do, thou shalt saue thy selfe, and them that heare the.

The V. Chapter.

1 Quake not an Elder, but exhorte him as a father: and the ydger men as bierhim: the elder women as mothers: the yonger as sisters with all purenes.
Honour widowes, which are true widowes.
If any widowe haue children or neues, let them leue first to rule their awne houses godly, and to recompence their elders. For this good 2 acceptable before God. But the that is a righte widowe, 2 desolate, putteth hir trust in God, 2 cōnyng in prayer and supplication nighte and daye. But she that worken pleasure, is deed, euen yet a lyue.
And these thynges commaunde, that they maye be without blame. * But yf there be

The first Epistle

Pen of. Se that they which have beleuyng masters, despye them not because they are brethre, but rather do serue, for so much as they are beleuyng, and beloued, and parte kee of the benefite.

These thinges teach and exhort. If any mā teach other wyse, and agreeth not vnto the wholesome wordes of oure LORDE Iesus Christ, and to the doctryne of godlynes, he is putt vp, and knoweth nothyng, but waysteth his bryne aboue questions and strynges of wordes: wherof spryngge eny stryfe, raynges, euell farmynges, vayne disputacions of such men as haue corrupte myndes, and are robbed of the trewe, which chynte that godlynes is lucre: from such separate thy selfe. Howbeit it is greate auantage, who so is godly, and heldeh him content with that he hath. For we brynghe nothyng in to the worde, therefore is it a playne case y we can cary nothyng out. When we haue fede and rayment, let vs therewith be content. For they that wyll be riche, fall in to the temptation and snare, and in so many folish & noysome losses, which do wrong men in destruction and damnacion. For Couetousnes is the roote of all euill, which whyle some lusteth after, they erre from the faith, and rangled them selues with many sorowes.

But thou man of God, flye suche thinges: folow the righte cōsuetnes, godlynes, faith, loue, pacience, mekenes: fighte a good fighte of faith: laye honde on eternall life, whereto thou art called, and hast professed a good profession before many witnesses.

I geue the charge before God, which quyeteth all thinges, & before Iesu Christ, which vnder Pontius Pilate witnessed a good witnessyng, that thou kepe the commandement, without spot, vnreprouable, vntill the apperayng of oure LORDE Iesus Christ, which apperayng (at his cōme) he shal shewe that is blessed, and mightie ouerly, the kyng of all kynges, and LORDE of all lordes: which onely hath immortallite, and dwelleth in a lighte, that no man can see: whome no man hath sene, neither can se. Vnto whom be honoure and euer pperuerlastinge, Amen.

Charge the which are riche in this world, that they be not proude, nor trust in the vncertayne riches, but in the lyuyng God (which geuech vs abundantly all thinges to see them:) That they do good: that they be rich in good woorkes: that they geue and distribute with a good wyll: gather yn

Chap. III. He prayeth for the passionately men, thatt out spured in their conuulsions, lett vs what they be with in, for all they that face outwardly. Perfection for the gospel.

Chap. IIII. He exhortheth Timotheo to be still in the worde, and to suffice aduersite with mention of his awne deathe, and by doctryne of mothy come vnto him.

B * Be not thou ashamed therfore of y^e testimony of the LORDE, neyther of me, which am his purser: but suffice thou aduersite also wth the Gospell, accordyng to the power of God, which hath saved vs, and called vs with an holy calling: not accordyng to our debes, but accordyng to his owne purpose and grace, which was given vs in Christ Iesu before the tyme of the woorlde, but is now declared openly by the apperayng of oure Stanour Jesu Christ. Which hath taken awaye y^e power of death, and hath brought life and immortalitye vnto lighte, throughe the Gospell: wherunto I am appointed a preacher, and an Apolstoll, and a teacher of the theytner: for the which cause I also suffice these thynges, neuertheles I am not ashamed. For I knowe whom I haue beleued, and am sure that he is able to keepe that which I haue comytted vnto his keepyng agaynst that daye.

E * Holde the aser y^e ensample of the vobol some wordes, which thou heardest of me, concernyng faith and loue in Christ Iesu. This by charge kepe thou throughe the holy goost, which dwelleth in vs. This thou knowest, that all they which are in Asia, be turned fro me, of which sorte are Phigelus and Hermogenes. The LORDE geue mercy vnto the house of Onesiphorus: for he ofrefreschd me, and was not ashamed of my deuynt: but when he was at Rome, he soughte me out very diligently, and founde me. The LORDE graunte vnto him, that he maye fynde mercy with the LORDE in that daye. And howe much he mynistrd vnto me at Ephesus, thou knowest very well.

The ii. Chapter.

Thou therfore my sonne, be stronge throughe the grace which is in Christ Iesu. And what thynges thou hast herd of me by many witnesses, * the same commyte thou vnto faithfull men, which are apte to teach other. Thou therfore suffice affliction as a good soubyer off Jesu Christ. To ma^e that warreth, anglety himselfe with wordly busyntesse, & that because he woloe please him, which hath chosen him to be a soubyer. And though a man stryue for a mastyr, yet is he not crowned, ex cept he stryue lawfully. * The husbandman that laboureth, must first enioye the frutes. Consider what I saye. The LORDE shall geue the vnderstandyng in all thynges.

Remember that Jesu Christ, byng^e of the seide of Dauid, rose agayne fro the dead, accordyng to my Gospell, wherin I suffice as an emell doer euen vnto bandes: but the woorde of God is not bounde. * Therfore suffice I all for the electes sake, that they also mighte opayne the saluacion in Christ Jesu with eternall glory.

This is a true sayyng: * If we be deed wth him, we shal lyue with him also: * If we be pacient, we shal also reigne with him: * If we denye him, he also shall denye vs: * If we beleue not, yet abyeth he faithfull, he can not denye himselfe. Of these thynges put thou them in remembrance, and usi fyre before the LORDE, that they stryue not aboute wordes, which is to no profit, but to peruertere the hearers.

Study to shewe thy selfe vnto God a lawdable workman, that nedeth not to be ashamed, dewyng the woorde of trouth lawfully. * As for vngodly and wayne callinges, eschue them: for they helpe moche to vngodlynes, and their woorde stretcheth as both a canker: Of whose nombre is * Hymeretes & Philetus, which as concernyng the trouth haue erred, sayyng, that the resurrection is past already, and haue despayred the faith of y^eners performes.

But y^e sure grounde of God stondest fast, and hath this seale: The LORDE knoweth them that are his, and let every ma^e that calleth vpon the name of Christ, departe from unquyete. * To wthstandyng: in a greace house are not onely vessels of golde and of syluer, but also of wood and of earth: some for honoure, and some to dishonoure. But yf a man pouerge himselfe from such seluages, he shalbe a vessel sanctified vnto honoure, mete for the LORDE, and prepared vnto all good woorkes. * Sle thou the lustes of y^ent. But seloune righteounes, faith, loue, peace with all them that call vpon the LORDE: with pure hert. * As for folysh questions and such as teach not, put them fro the: for thou knowest that they do but g^oder stryfe. The seruante of the LORDE oughte not to stryue, but to be gentle vnto every man: apte to teach, one that can forbear the euel, one y^e can wth mettesse on souer. * Be thou yf God as eny tyme wyl geue thee taurke: for to knowe the trouth agayne from the snare of th^e are holden in prison of han

WHICH thou shalt knowe, that in the last dayes shal come perilous tymes. For there shalbe men which shal holde of the selues, comorous, boasters, proude, curied speakers, disobedient to their elders, vnch and fall, vn godly, vnkynde, truce breakers, fals accusers, ryatours, fearece, despyers of them which are good, craycours, haaby, hpe mynnded, greby upon volupcruousnes more then the louers of God, hauynge a shyne off godly luyng, but denyng the power therof. And soch auoyde. • Of this sorte are they which rāne frō house to house, z byynge in to bondage wemē ladē w synne: which (women) are led with dyuerse lustes, ener larryng, and are neuer able to come vnto the knowlege of the truethe.

2 But like as James and Jābes withstode Moses, euen so do these also resist the truethe: they are of corrupt myndes, and sende as cōcernyng it saich: but they shal pemaile no longer. For their folishnes shal be manifest vnto all men, as theirs was.

But thou hast sene the experience of my doctryne, my fashion of luyng, my purpose, my faith, my long sufferynge, my loue, my pacience, my persecucions, my afflictions, to which happened vnto me • at Antioche, at Iconium, at Lystra, which persecucions I suffered patiently, and from the all the LORDE deliuered me. • See and all they that wil lyue godly in Chufft Jesu, must suffre persecucion. • But the enell men and disceauers shal more wote and wofe, disceauynge and denyng disceaued.

• But conyngne thou in the thinges that thou hast lerned, which also were cōmytred vnto the, seynge thou knowest of whō thou hast lerned them, And for so much as thou hast knowe holy scripture of a childe, the same is able to make y wys vnto saluacion thow the faith in Chufft Jesu. • For all scripture genē by inspiration of God, is profitable to teach, to impoure, to amende, and to instructe in righteoufnes, that a man off God maye be perfect, and prepared vnto all good wotēs.

The IIII. Chapter.

Testifye thesore before God z before the LORDE Jesu Chufft, which he deyd, at his apparyng in his kyngdome: heu the woide, be seruent, be it out of reason: Impoure, rebuke, b all longe sufferynge and doctryne wil come, when they shal not suffre wholesome doctryne, but after their awne lustes shal they (whiche saye yche) get them an heape of teachers, and shal turne their eares from the truethe, and shalbe genen vnto fables. But wadye thou in all thinges, suffre aduersite, do the woide of a preacher of the Gospill, fullfyll thine office vnto the vtremost.

• For I am now ready to be offered, and in the tyme of my departing is at hande. I haue soughte a good sight: I haue fulfilled the course: I haue kepte the faith. From hence forth there is layed up for me a crowne of righteoufnes, which the LORDE berith vnto vs whiche shal geue me in y daye: whiche not vnto me onely, but vnto all them that loue his cōmyng. Make spede to come vnto me at once.

For Demas hath lefte me, and lothly this present woide, and is departed vnto Thessalonica, Crescens is to Galacia, Titus vnto Dalmacia, Onely Lucas is with me. Take Marke, z luyng him with the: for he is profitable vnto me to the mynistacion. Tychicus haue I sent to Ephesus. The cloke that I lefte at Troada with Carpus luyng with the when thou comest, and the booke, but specially the parchment. • Consider the copparynth byd me much well, the LORDE rewarde him accordyng to his dedes, of whom be thou ware also. For he withstode our woide sore.

In my first answerynge no man assiste me, but all forsode me. I praye God that he not be layed to their charges. Lett comfrowd byng the LORDE skode by me, z strengthe me, that by me the preachynge shalbe fulfilled to the vtremost, and that all the hey the shulde heare. And I was deliuered out of the mouth of the Lyon. And the LORDE shal deliuer me from all euill doynge, and shal kepe me vnto his heavenly kyngdome. To whom be praye for ever and ever. Amen.

Salute pūca and • Aquila, and y bothe holde of Onesiphorus. • Erastus abode at Corinth. • But Trophimus left I sith at Miletus. Make spede to come before wynter. Eubolus, and Pudens, and Linus, and Claudia, and all the brethren salute the. The LORDE Jesu Chufft be with thy spere. Bis ce be with you, Amen.

 ly, temperate, and soch one as cleerly vnto the true worde of doctryne: that he maye be able to rebouke rich wholsome learyng, & to impoune them that saye agaynst it.

¶ For there are many dishobedient, and talkers of vanite, and disceases of mynde: namely they of the circelacion, whose mou-thes must be stopped: which peruerse whole houses, teachinge thinges which they oughte not, because of filthy lucre. One of them selues euen their awne prophet sayde

 Wherefore rebuke them sharply, y^e they maye be founde in the faith, and not to take hebe him: for so much as they are abhominable and dishobedient, and vntrue to all good woikes.

The II. Chapter.

WHEN thou speake thou that which becommeth wholsome learyng. That y^e elder men be sober, honest, discrete, founde in the faith, in loue, in pacience. And the elder women likewise that they shew them selues as it becommeth holynes, that they be no false accusers, nor geuen to much wyne, that they teach honest thinges, that they enforthe the yonge women to be sober mynde, to loue their husbandes, to loue their childre, to be discrete, chaste, busy wyfly, good, obedient vnto their awne husbandes, that the worde of God be not euill spo-ker of. ¶ Rebouke the yonge men likewise, that they be sober mynde. Aboue all thinge shewe thy selfe: an ensample off good roote, with vncorrupte doctryne, with honesty, with the wholsome worde which can not be rebuked: that he which with standeth maye be ashamed, hauyng nothinge in you that he maye dyspayre.

¶ Rebouke the seruantes, to be obedient vnto their massers, to please in all thinges, not answeringe agayne, neither to be pyters, but to shewe all good faithfull in all thinges they maye do to the doctryne off God our Saviour. For the grace of God that bringeth uacion vnto all men, hath appeared, and teacheth vs, that we shalbe denye vngodlynes, and worldly lustes: and that we shalbe lyue discretly, righteously, and godly in this worlde, for myge for that blessed hope and appoyntinge of the glory of y^e greates God and of oure Saviour Iesu Christ: which gaze him selfe for vs, to redeme vs fro all vnrigh- teousnes, and to pouerge vs to be a pecaliar people vnto himselfe, to be seruently geues vnto good workes. These thinges speake and exhort, and rebuke with all earnest. So that no man despyse the.

The III. Chapter.
Write vnto them that they submyt the them selues vnto Princes and to the hys anoynte, to obey the offi- cers, to be ready vnto all good workes, that they speake euell of no man, that they be no stryters, but soft, shewyng all mekenes vnto all men. For we oure selues also were in try- tes past, vnwysse, disobediēt, in erreure, seruyng lustes and dyuersē maners of volup- tuosnes, lyuyng in malicioussnes and envye, full of hate, hatyng one another.

But after that y^e kyndnesse and loue of God oure Saviour to man warde appea- red, not for y^e dedes of righteousness which we wroughte, but after his mercy he saued vs by the founteyne of the new birth, and renuyng of the holy goost, which he shed on vs abundantly, thowso Iesu Christ oure Saviour: y^e we byng made righteous by his grace, shulde be heytes of eternall li- fe accordyng to hope. This is a true sayge.

Of these thinges wolde I that thou shaldest speake earnestly, that they which are be- come belouers in God, might be diligent to excell in good workes: for these thinges are good and profitabill vnto me. As for folysh questions, and genealogies, and brawlynges and stryngynges aboute y^e lawe, amoye the, for they are vnprofitable and vayne. A mā that is gotten vnto heresy, after y^e first and seconde monicion, anoyde, and knowe, that he that is sodey, is pernered, z synnet euen- nymed by his awnciudgment.

Whan I shal sende Artemas or Tichicus vnto y^e, make speche to come to me vnto Ni- copolis, for I have determyned there to ynter. Wryng Ienas y^e Scrybe and Apol- o on thei iourney diligently, that nothin- be lackyng vnto them. And let oure al- l excell in good workes, as farre z wynteth, that they be not Apostle S. Peter.

The first Chapter.

PETER an Apostle of Iesu Christ, to the that dwell here and there as straungers thowost our Pontus, Galacia, Capadocia, Asia and Bithynia, electe according to the foreknowledge of God the father thowost sanctification of the sperte, unto obedience and spritlikynge of the bloude of Iesu Christ.

1 Pet. 1.1-2

Grace and peace be multiplied with you. Blessed be God and the father of oure LORDE Iesu Christ, which according to his greater mercy hath begotten vs agayne vnto a lively hope • by the resurrection of Iesu Christ from the dead, to an incorruptible and vndefiled inheritance, which nature shal fade awaye, but is reserved in heauen for you that are kept by the power of God thowost faith to saluacion, which is prepared all ready to be shewed in the last tyme: in the which ye shal reioyse, though now for a litle season (yff neede requyre) ye are in heynes thowost manyfolde temptacions: that youre faith once tryed (beinge moche more precious then the corruptible golde that is tryed thowost the fyre) mighte be founde vnto laude, glory and honour at the appearynge of Iesu Christ: whom ye haue not sene, and yet loue him: in whom now ye beleue, though ye se him not. When so shal ye reioyce also with vnspokeable and glorious loye, receaunge the ende of youre faith, even the saluacion of youre soules.

Of which saluacion the prophetes haue enuyied and searched, which prophesied off the grace that shulde come vpon you: searchinge whan or at what tyme they shoulde off Christ that was in them, stand signified, which (sperte) testified before of passions that shulde come vnto Christ, and the glory that shulde folowe after. Vnto the which (prophetes) it was declared, shal not vnto them selues, but vnto us: shal demynister the thinges which are shewed vnto you, by them which thowost holy goost sent downe from heauen, ha preached vnto you the thinges which angels behelde.

Wherefore gyde op the i your mynde, be sober, and trust on the grace that is broughe vnto you, by the declaring of Iesus Christ, as obedient child: not fashionyng your selues to yo^r olde lustes of ignorance: but as he which hath called you is holy, cut so be ye holy also in all your conuersation: for it is wryete: Leuit. xi. 2. And ye holy, for I am holy.

Wherfore laye asyde all maliciousnes and all gyle, and ypocrisie, and envye, and all backynges, z as new borne babes desyre that reasonable mylke, which is without corrupcion, that ye may growe therein, ys fo be that ye haue: called how friendlye the LORDE is. Vnto whom ye are come, as to the lyngge stone, which is disallowed of men, but chosen of God and precious. And ye also as lyngge stones are made a spirituall boue, and an holy presthode by offe up. spirituall sacrifices, acceptable vnto God by Iesus Christ. Wherfore it is cōtymed in the scripture: Beholde, I put in Sion an heade corner stone, elect & precious, and he that beleneh on him, shall not be confounded. Vnto you therefore which are called to be holy: but vnto them that are of y^e same stone which the byrl made the heade stone in the colone to stumbe at, and a rock to be offended at, namely in the which stumbe at ye wold, and belene not that uerowen they n^ere se.

But ye are that chosen generation, that k^engly presthode, that holy nation, that peculiar people, if ye shulde heare the woide of him, which hath called you out of darkness into to his marvelous light: Then you, which in tyme past were not a people, but now are the people of God: which were vnder mercy, but now haue obtained mercy.

Dearly beloved, I beseeke you as strangers and pilgrims, z absteyne fro the fleshly lustes, which fighte agaynst the soule, and lede an honest conuersacion amonge the heytens, that they which backye you as euell doers, may se youre good woikes, and payse God in the daye of uisitation.

Submyete youre selues vnto all maner ordinaunce of men for the LORDES sake: whether it be vnto the kyngge as vnto y^e chiefe heade, or vnto rulers, as vnto them that are sent of him, for the punysshment of euill doers, but for the pacyfy of the that do well. For so is the will of God, that ye with red doynge shulde put to silence the ignorance of foolishness as fre, and not as bynyng the libertye for a cloke of wisdom, but as the seruantes of God. Honour all men, lone brotherly fellowshipe, feare God. Honour the kyngge.

Ye seruantes, obey youre masters with all feare: not onely yf they be good and righteous, but also though they be frome the world. For that is grace, if a man for consciencetowarde God endure grief, and suffre wronge. For he that payse it is, yf wh^{er} ye be buffeted for yo^r fautes, ye take it patiently. But yf whan ye do well, ye suffre wronge, and suffre it patiently, that is grace with God. For here vnto are ye called, for so much as Christ also suffred for vs, leauyng vs an example, that ye shulde folowe his footsteps, which dyd no synne, neither was there gylt soude in his mouth: which whan he was reuylt, reuylt not agaynst wh^{er} he suffred, he threared not: but commyted the cause vnto him, that indgeth righteously: wh^{er} his owne selfe bare our synnes in his body upon the tre, that we shulde be deluyred from synne, z shulde lye vnto righteousness, by whose stypes ye were healed. For ye were as shepe goinge astraye, but now are ye turned vnto the shepheard and Bisshopp of youre soules.

The III. Chapter.

Likewyse let the wyues be in subiection to their husbandes, that even they which beleue not the wynde, maye withoute the wynde be wonne by y^e consolation of the wyues, when they beholde y^e pure consolation in feare. Whose appaill shal not be outwarde but wynded heere, hanginge on of golde, or in purtyng on of gorgeous arraye, but lee y^e inward ma^e of y^e heart be incorrupte wth a meke & quiete spirite, which before God is much set by. See after this maner in the olde tyme, by y^e holy wome which trusted in God, eyer the seuerer more obedient unto their husbandes: Euen as Sara obeyed Abrahams, and called him lord: whose daughters ye are, as longe as ye do well, not beinge a strayed for any trouble.

Likewyse ye men, dwell wth them accordinge unto knowlege, geuyng^e a hand unto the wife, as to the weaker vessel: & as unto the y^e are heynes wth you of the grace of li^e, that youre prayers be not let.

But in conclusion be ye all of one mynde, one suffire wth another, lone as brethren, be pitifull, be curteous. Receyvence not euell for euill, neither rebute for rebute: but contrary wyse, blessinge and knowe that ye are called thereto, euen y^e shulde be heynes of y^e blessinge. For whos li^e is to lyue, and wolde some li^e good dayes, Let him refrayne his tongue from euell, and his lippes y^e they speake no gyle. Let him eschue euill, & do good: Let him seeke peace and ensue it. For y^e eyes of the LORDE are ouer the righteous, & his cares are open vnto their prayers. But y^e sa^e of the LORDE beholdeeth the y^e do euill. And it ho is it that can harme you, y^e y^e folome that which is good. For wth y^e thinge blessed are ye, y^e y^e suffire for righte iustnes sake. Feare not y^e their threatenynge, ne they be troubled, but sanctifie the LORDE God in youre hearts. Be ready alwayes to geue an answer to euery ma^e, that asyeth you a reason of the hope that is in you, and that wth mekenesse & feare, hauynge a good conscience, that they which badbyte you as euill doers, maye be ashamed, that they haue falselye accused youre good conuersacion in Christ.

For it is better (y^e the wyll of God be forth) ye suffire for well doynge, the for euill doynge. For as much as Christ hath once suffred for oure synnes, y^e iust for the vniust, for to bringe vs to God: & was slayne a ster the flesh, but quyeted after the spieete.

In the which spieete he also receiue, and preached vnto y^e spieetes that were in prison, which in tyme past beleued not, when God once a bode and suffred pacidly in the tyme of Tor, whyle the Arke was a purgatorye: Wherin frowe (that is to saye eyger soules) were saued by water. Which signefich Gen. 1.4 Rom. 8.4 tyme y^e now sauech vs: not y^e purynge a maye of the fylch of the flesh, but in y^e a good conscience cometh vnto God by y^e reformation of Iesus Christ, which is on the right hande of God, and is gone in to heaue, angels, power and mighte subdoned vnto him.

The IIII. Chapter.

For as much then as Christ hath suffred for vs in y^e flesh, like your selfe vnto Iesus Christ, which is on the right hande of God, and is gone in to heaue, angels, power and mighte subdoned vnto him.

For he which suffreth in the flesh, ceaseth fro synne, y^e hece forth (as much tyme as ye remaineth in y^e flesh) he shulde not lyue after the lustes of ma^e, but a ster the wil of God. For it is ynough, y^e ye haue spent y^e tyme past of the life, after the will of y^e he y^e then, wha we walked in wantonnesse, lustes, diuelkenes, glorony, ryuotous dyntynge, & labhorinable ydolatre ye. And it stoneth to the a straunge thinge, y^e ye turne not alw^{ys} them vnto the same excess of ryuot, & speake euell of you. Which shal geue accoupte vnto hi y^e is ready to iudge y^e quyet & y^e deed. For vs to this purpose alw^{ys} was y^e Gospell preached vnto the deed, y^e they shulde be iudged like other ma^e y^e flesh, but shulde lyue vnto God in y^e spieete. The ende of all thinges is at haide.

Be ye therfore sober & watch vnto prayer: but aboute all thinges haue senten^e lone amonge you oneto another. For loue correcteth the multitude of synnes. Be ye herberous one to another withoute graddinge, & mynister one to another, euery one wth the gifte y^e he hath receiued, as good stewerdes of the manifolde grace of God. If any ma^e speaketh, let hi speake it as y^e woode of God, If any man haue an office, let him exerce it as out of the power y^e God mynistrerh vnto hi, y^e God maye be prayseth in all thinges thotow Iesus Christ. To whos be hono^r and demynion for euer and euer Amen.

Werdely beleued, maruell not at this beate (which is come amonge you to trye you) as though some strange thinge happened vnto you: but reioyce, in as much as ye are partakers of Christs passioⁿ, y^e wha his glory appereth, ye maye be merry & glad. If ye be tryed for y^e name of Christ, blessed are ye y^e spieete (which is y^e spieete of glory) & reflecte vpon you. On their parte spoken of, but on y^e parte he is or, to make youre callinge and election sure: for yf ye do such thinges, ye shal not fail, and by this meane shal there be plenteously mynistring vnto you an entyringe in wroth & merisifinging kyngdome of oure LORDS and Sauoure Iesus Christ.

Therefore I doe not negligēt to put you allwaies in remembraunce of such thinges: though ye knowe them youre selues, and be stablished in the perfect truth. For withstandinge I thinke it mete, as lge as I am in this tabernacle, to stee you up by puttinge you in remembraunce. For I am sure, that I must shortly put of my tabernacle, euen as oure LORD Iesus Christ hath spewed vnto me. Yet I will do my diligēt, that allwaies after my departyng ye maye haue remembrance to kepe these thinges in remembraunce.

For we folowed not deceivable faibles, when we declared vnto you the power and commyng of oure LORD Iesus Christ: but with oure eyes we sawe his maiestie, when he receaued of God the father heaue from the heaue, by a voyce that came vnto him from the excellent glory, after this maner: This is my deare sonne, in whom I haue delice. And this voyce hearde we broughte downe fro brauen, when we were with him on the holy mount.

We haue also a sure worde of prophēcie, and ye do well that ye take heede therunto, as vnto a lighte: that shyneth in a darke place vntill the daye dawne, and the daye darre arise in youre heertes. And this shal ye knowe first, that no prophēcie in the scripture is done of eny private interpretation. For the prophēcie was neuer broughte by the will of man, but the holy men of God spake, as they were moued of y^e holy goost.

The ii. Chapter.

¶ But there were falsē prophētes also amonge the people, euen as there shalbe falsē teachers amonge you likewise, which p̄uēly shal bringe in damnable sectes, euen denyngē the LORD that hath boughe them, and shal bringe vpon them selues swift damnation: and many shal folowe their damnable wayes, by whō the waye of the truth shal be euell spokē of: and thoroū curtesie shal they with fayned wordes make marchauntise of you, vnto whō the iudgment is not negligēt in carters of olde, and their damnation slepeeth not.

For yf God spared not the angels that sinned, but cast them downe with the chēyng of darke in to hell, and deliquēt the

ouer to be kepte vnto iudgment: Neither spared the olde world, but saved 1200 the preacher of righteousness him selfe beinge of eight, and brought the floods vnto the world of the vngodly: And turned the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah into ashes, ouerturne them, damned them, and made on them an ensample, vnto those that after synide lyne vngodly: And deliquēt iust 2000 which was vexed with the vngodly conversation of y^e wicked. For in so much as he was righteous and dwelt amonge them, so that he must needs see it and heare it, his righteous soule was grieved from daye to daye with their vnlawfull debes. The LORD knoweth how to deliquēt the body out of generation, and how to restore the vniust vnto the daye of iudgment for to be punyshed: but specially them: that walke a feet the flesh in y^e lust of vncleannes, and despise the rulers: beinge p̄sumptuous, stubborne, and feare not to speake euell of the LORD: are in auaricie: whā the angels yet which are greater both in power and might, beare not that blasphemous iudgment agaynst them of the LORD.

But these are as y^e brute bestes, which naturally are broughte forth to be tate and destroyed: speakyng euell of y^e they knowe not, and shal perishe in their owne destruction, and so receaue y^e reward of vniughte oustnes.

They counte it pleasure to lyne deliciously for a season: Spottes are they and fishyngs: lyuyng at pleasure and in disceuable wayes: feastinge is that which is yours, hauyng eyes full of adoutrye, and can cease from synne, entynging vnstable soules: hauyng an hart cecynged & couetousnes: they are curid children, and haue forsaken the righte waye, and are gone astraye: followinge the waye of Balaam the sonne of Bofor, which loued the reward of vniughte: but was rebuked of his iniquyte. The came and comme beast spake with his voyce, & forbad the foolishnes of y^e prophet.

These are welles without water, & cloudes carried aboue of a cecynged mist of darke is refracted for euē. For they speake y^e proude wordes of vanite, vnto y^e veremost, and entyngē thoroū wantonnes vnto y^e luste of the flesh, euen them that were cleane escaped, and now walke in erreoure: and p̄omye them libertye, where as they them selues are seruautes off corrupcion. If all these thinges shal perishe, what maner persons them oughte ye to be in holy conuersacion and godlynes, loyng for and hastynge vnto the commynge of the LORDE. In the which the heauens shal perishe.

with fyre, and the elementes shal melde with heate. Therefore, • we loke for a new heuē and a new earth (accordyng to his promes) wherein dwelleth righteousnes.

Wherefore dearly beloved, synge that ye loke for such thinges, be diligent, • ye maye be founde before him in peace without spotte and vndefiled: and coure the long sufferyng of oure LORDE youre saluacion, • euen as oure dearely beloved brother Paul (accordyng to the wysdome geue vnto him) wote vnto you: yee speakinge therof almost in all Epistles, wherein are many thinges hard to be vnderstonde, whiche they that are vnderstand not, peruerse, as they do the other scriptures also, to their awnē damnacion.

Ye therfore beloved, synge ye knowe it before hande, beware, lest ye also be plucked awaye thorow the errors of y^e wicked, and fall from y^e owne stedfastnes. But growe in grace, and in the knowlege of oure LORDE and Sauiore Jesus Christ. To which prayse now and for ever, Amen.

The first Epistle of the Apostle and Euangelist S. Iohn.

The summe of this epistle.

- Chap. I. True myneste of the euangelist wordes of God. The bloude of Christ is purgacion from synne. No man is without synne.
- Chap. II. Christ is oure advocate. Of his loue, and howe it is tryed.
- Chap. III. The singular loue of God to be vs: and how we agayne oughte to loue another.
- Chap. IIII. Difference of spettes, and howe spere of God maye be knowen from the true of errors. Of the loue of God and of his neighbours.
- Chap. V. To loue God, is to kepe his commandementes. Foure commandementes that be. Enteringe life is in the sonne of God. Of the synne vnto death.

The first Chapter.

That which was from of begynnynge, which we haue herbe. which we haue sen: with of eyes, which we haue loked vpon, and of handes hau handled of the woide of life: and the life hath appeared, and we haue sen, and beare wyntes, and shewe vnto you of life that is euerlasting, which was with the father, and hath appeared vnto vs. That which we haue sen & herbe, declare we vnto you, that ye also maye haue fellowshipe with vs, and that oure fellowshipe maye be with the father and with his sone Iesus Christ.

And this woide we vnto you, that youre sye maye be full.

And this is the tybings which we haue herde of him, & declare vnto you, that God is lighte, and in him is no darknes at all.
If we saye that we haue fellowshipe with him, and yet walke in darknes, we lye, and do not the trouth. But yf we walke in lighte, even as he is in lighte, then haue we fel-lowschipp to gether, and the bloude of Iesus Christ his sone clenseth vs from all synne.

If we saye that we haue no synne, we discease oure selues, and the trouth is not in vs. But yf we knowlege oure synnes, he is faithfull and iust to foregiue vs oure synnes, & to clenze vs from all vniuerse synnes. If we saye, we haue not synned, we make him a liar, and his woide is not in vs.

The II. Chapter.

Whiche children, these thinges wyte I vnto you, that ye shalbe not syn-ne: and yf any man synne, we haue an advocate with the father, even Iesus Christ which is righteous: and he it is that oprayeth grace for oure synnes: not for oure synnes onely, but also for the synnes of all the worlde. And hereby are we sure that we knowe him, yf we kepe his commaundme tes. He that sayeth: I knowe him, and kepeth not his commaundementes, is a liar, and the trouth is not in him. But who so keperh his woide, in him is the loue of God perfecte in debe. Hereby knowe we, that we are in him. He that sayeth he abydeh in him, oughte to walke even as he walkeh.

Dearthen, I wyte no new commaunde-ment vnto you, but that olde commaunde-ment, which ye haue herde from the begyn-nyng: The olde commaundement is the woide, whiche ye haue herde from the begynnynge.
Agayne, a new commaundement wyte I vnto you, a thinge that is true in him & also in you: for the darknes is past, and the true lighte now shyneth.

He that sayeth he is in lighte, and hateth his brother, is yet in darknesse. He that loveth his brother, abydeh in the lighte, and there is none occasion of feill in him. But he that hateth his brother, is in darknes, and walketh in darknes, and can not tell whiche he goeth, for yf darknes hath bynded his eyes.

Babe, I wyte vnto you, that yf syn-nes are foregiuen you for his names sake. I wyte vnto you fathers, how that ye haue knowne him which is from 3 begynnynge.
I wyte vnto you yonge me, how that ye ha ue euercome the wicked. I wyte vnto you litle children, how that ye haue knowne the father. I haue wyntes vnto you fathers, how that ye haue knowne him, which is fro the begynnynge. I haue wyntes vnto you yonge men, how that ye are stronge, and the woide of God abydeh in you, and ye haue ouercome that wicked.

Se that ye loue not the woide, neither of thinges that are in the woide. If any man loue the woide, the loue of the father is not in him: for all that is in the woide (namely the lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eye, and the pryde of life) is not of the father, but of the woide. And the woide passeth awaye and the lust ther of. But he that fulfilleth the wyll of God, abydeh foreuer.

Litle children, it is the last houre, and (as ye haue herde that Antechrist shal come) euen now are there many become Antechris-tes already: wherby we knowe, that it is yf last houre. They wente out fro vs, but they were not of vs: for yf they had bene of vs, they wolde no doute haue conyrmid with vs. But that they maye be knowen, how that they are not all of vs.

But ye haue the vnoyntyng of holy, & ye knowe all thinges. I haue te vnto you, as though ye knewe me of trouth but ye knowe it, & are sure, & no lye cometh of y^e truth. Who is a liar, but he y^e denyeth y^e Iesus is a Christ: The same is y^e Antichrist, y^e denyeth the father & y^e sonne. Whosoever denyeth the sonne, the same hath not the father. Love what ye haue herde now from y^e begynnynge, let the same abyde in you. As y^e which he herde from the begynnynge shall remayne in you, then shall ye also abyde in y^e sonne & in the father. And this is the promise y^e hath promysed vs, euē eternall life.

This haue I wysed vnes you concerninge the char disceane you. And the annoyntinge robyd ye haue receaued of him, dwelleth in you: & ye neede not y^e any mā teach you, but as the annoyntinge teacheth you all thinges, euen so is it true, & is no lye. And as it hath taughte you, and so abide ye therein. And now habes, abyde in hi, y^e whā he shall appeare, we maye be holde, & not be made ashamed of him at his comynge. As ye knowe y^e he is righteous, knowe also that he which doth righteousnes, is borne of him.

The III. Chapter.

Holde what lone the father hath shewed on vs, & we shulde be called the childen of God. Therefore y^e wolde knowe what you see, because it knoweth not him. Dearly beloved, we are now y^e childen of God, and yett hath it not appeared what we shalbe. But we knowe y^e when he shall appeare, we shall be like him: for we shall se him as he is. And euery man y^e hath this hope in him, poureth him selfe, euen as he is pure. Who so euer comyteth synne, comyteth vnrighteousnes also, and synne is vnrighteousnes. And ye knowe that he appeareth to take awaye oure synnes: and in him is no synne. Who so euer abydeh in him, synneth not: who so euer synneth, hath not seene him neither knowe him.

Habes, let nom an disceane you. He that doeth righteousnes, is righteous, euen as he is righteous. He that comyteth synne, is of the deuell: for the deuell synneth since y^e begynnynge. For this purpose appeared the sonne of God to lowse the woordes of the deuell. Who so euer is borne of God, synneth not: for his side remayneth in him, & he cā not synne, becausē he is borne of God. * Ye who are the childen of God knowe & the childen of the deuell. Who so euer doeth not righteousnes, is not of God, neither he that loueth not his brother.

This is the trybunge which ye haue receaued: when the begynnynge, that ye shulde haue bene one, not as Cain, which was of the wicked, and slewe his brother. And whether slewe he him: euen becausē his awne woordes were euill, and his brother righteous. * Maruaile not (my brethren) though the woorde haue you. We knowe y^e we are trāslatid from deathe into life, becausē we loue the brethren. He that loueth not his brother, abydeh in deathe. * Who so euer hateth his brother, is a manslayer. And ye knowe that a manslayer hathe not eternall life abydinge in him.

Herby haue we perceaued lone, that he gaue his life for vs, and therfore oughte we also to geue oure liues for the brethren. * He y^e hath this woorde good, & seyth his brother haue neede, and sheweth vp his hart to him, how dwelleth the loue of God in hōm: My litle children, let vs not loue with word, neither with tonge, but with y^e dede, and with the trouth. Herby knowe we, that we are of the verite, and can quyte oure hart before him. But yf oure hart condemne us, God is greater the oure hart, and knoweth all thinges. Dearly beloved, yf oure hart condemne us not, then haue we a fre boldnes to God worde. * And what so euer we say, we shall receaue it: becausē we kepe his commandmentes, and do thofe thinges, which are pleasant in his sighte.

And this is his commandement, that we beleue on y^e name of his sonne Iesus Christ, and loue one another, as he gaue commandement. And he that keepeth his commandementes, dwelleth in him, and seeth him. And hereby knowe we that he abydeh in vs, euen by the space which he hath geuen vs.

The III. Chapter.

Early beloved, beleue not ye any space, but proue the spere, whether they be of God. For many fūse prophetes are gone out in to the worlde. Herby shall ye knowe the spere of God: Euery spere which confesseth, that Iesus Christ is come in the flesh, is of God. In euery spere which confesseth not that Iesus Christ is come in the flesh, is not of God. And this is that spere of Antechrist, off whom ye haue herde, how that he shall come, and euen now already is he in the worlde. Litle children, ye are off God, & haue ouercome them: for greater is he that is in you, then he that is in the worlde. They are off the woilde, therefore spech they off the woilde, and the woilde bekeneth into them. We are of God, & he that knoweth God, herkeneth vnto us he that is not of God, heareth vs not. Here by knowe we the spirite of truth, and y^e spirite of error.

2 Dearly beloved, let vs loue one another, for loue cometh of God. And euery one y^e loueth, is borne of God, and knoweth God. He that loueth not, knoweth not God: for God is loue. By this appeared the loue of God to vs worde, because that God sent his only begotten sonne in to this worlde, that we might see lyne throug him. Herin is loue, not that we loued God, but that he loued vs, and sent his sonne to make agremite for oure synnes.

Dearly beloved, yf God so loued vs, we oughte also to loue one another. To man hath sene God at any tyme. Yf we loue one another, God dwelleth in vs, and his loue is perfecte in vs. Herby knowe we that we dwell in him, and he in vs, because he hath gyven vs of his spirite. And we haue sene, & testifie that the father sent the sonne to be the Saviour of the worlde. Whofoerer now confesseth y^e Jesus is the sonne of God in him dwelleth God, and he in God: and we haue knowen and belued the loue that God hath to vs.

3 God is loue, and he that dwelleth in loue dwelleth in God, and God in him. Herin is the loue perfecte with vs, that we shoulde haue a fre boldnesse in the daye of iudgment: for as he is, and so are we in this worlde. Feare is not in loue, but perfecte loue casteth out feare: for feare hath paynesfulness. He that feareth, is not perfecte in loue.

4 Let vs loue him, for he loued vs first. Yf any man saie: I loue God, & yet hateth his brother, he is a liar. For he that loneth not his brother whom he seeth, how can he loue God, whom he seeth not. And this commaundment haue we of him, that he which loneth God, shoulde loue his brother also.

The V. Chapter.

5 So so euer belueth that Jesus is Christ, is borne of God. And whofoerer loneth him that begat, loneth him also which was begotten of him. By this we knowe that we loue Gods children, when we loue God, and kepe his commaundementes. For this is the loue of God, that we kepe his commaundementes, and his commaundementes are not greuoun. For all that is borne of God, ouer cometh the world: and this is the victory that ouercometh the world, and oure faith. Who is it y^e ouercometh the world, but he which belueth that Jesus is the sonne of God?

of S. Iohn. Ho. xciij.

This is he that cometh with water and bloude, euen Jesus Christ: not with water onely, but with water and bloude. And it is the spirite that beareth wytnes: for the spirite is the truth. (For there are those which beare recorde in heauen: the father, the word, and the holy goost, & these thre are one.) And there are thre which beare recorde in earth: the spirite, water and bloude, and these thre are one.

6 Yf we receaue the witness of men, the witness of God is greater: for this is the witness of God, which he testified of his sonne. He that belueth on y^e sonne of God, hath the witness in him selfe. He that belueth not God, hath made him a liar. And this is that recorde, euen y^e God hath giuen vs euerlasting life. And this life is in his sonne. He that hath the sonne of God, hath life: he that hath not the sonne of God, hath not life.

7 These thinges haue I wytted vnto you, which belue on the name of the sonne of God, that ye maye knowe, howe that ye haue euerlasting life, and that ye maye belue on y^e name of the sonne of God. And this is the fre boldnesse which we haue towards him, that yf we aye any thinge accordinge to his will, he heareth vs. And yf we knowe that he heareth vs what so euer we aye, then are we sure that we haue y^e petitions, which we haue desired of him.

8 Yf any man see his brother synne a synne not vnto deathe, let him aye, and he shal geue him life, for the y^e synne not vnto deathe. There is a synne vnto deathe, for the which saie I not that a man shoulde praye. All unrighteousnes is synne, and there is synne not vnto deathe.

9 We knowe, that whofoerer is borne off God, synneth not: but he that is begotten of God, keepeth himselfe, & y^e wicked toucheth him not. We knowe, that we are of God, & the worlde is set altogether on wickednes. But we knowe, that the sonne of God is come vnto vs, and hath gyven vs a witness, to knowe him which is true: and we are in him y^e is true, in his sonne Jesus Christ.

The ii. Epistle
The seconde
 Epistle of S. Iohn.

The summe of this epistle.

As wryteth vnto a certayne lady, reioyceth that her children walke in the truth, & that they the into loue, warneth them to beware of fodey deceaues, as demy that Iesus Christ came in the flesh, playeth them to conuynce in the doctrine of Christ, and to haue nothinge to do with them that bringe not this teenyng.

My Elder. To y electe lady and her childre whom I loue in the truth: & not I onely, but all they also that haue knowen the truth, for the truthe sake which dwelleth in vs, and shalbe with vs for euer.

Grace, mercy, and peace be with you fro the LORDE Iesus Christ & some of the sathers in the truth and in loue.

I am greatly reioysed, that I haue founde amonge thy children, them that walke in y truth, as we haue receaued a commaundment of the father. And now lady I beseeke the (not as though I wroce a new commaundment vnto the, but the same which we haue had from the begynnynge) that we loue one another. And this is the loue, that we walke a fter his commaundementes.

This is the commaundment (as ye haue herde fro the begynnynge) that we shalbe walke therein. For many deceaues are come in to the world, which confesse not I Iesus Christ is come in the flesh: this is a deceauer and an Antichrist. Take heede to youre selues, that we lose not that which we haue wrought, but that we maye receaue a full reward. Who so euer transgresseth, and abydeh not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God: he that abydeh in y doctrine of Christ, hath both the father and the sonne.

¶ If any man come vnto you, and bynge not this doctrine, receaue him not in to the house, necher salute him: for he that salureth him, is partaker of his euell dedes. I had manynges to wryte vnto you: neuerthe-

I wolde not wryte w papyr and ynke, & to come vnto you, and to speake mouth, that oure ioye gilden of thy electe sister

The thirde Epistle
 of S. Iohn.

The summe of this epistle.

He is glad of Gaius, that he small eth in the truth, & that he is to be lauyng vnto the good dustin in their persecution, sheweth the vryne dealinge of Diotrephes, and the good report of Demetrius.

My Elder. To the beloued Gaius, whom I loue in the truth. My beloued, I wrythe in all thinges, that thou shouere and saue well can as thy soule prospereth. I reioysid greatly, when the bishopen came, and testified of the truth that is in y. how thou walkest in the truth. I haue no greater ioye, the to heare that my childre walke in the truth.

My beloued, thou doest faithfullly what so euer thou doest to the bishopen and to straungers, which haue done witness of thy loue before the congregation: and thou hast done well that thou wydest bynne them forwarde on their iourney, withy before God. For because of his names lute they wente south, and eoke nothinge of the heychen. We therfore oughte to receaue such, that we mighte be helpeo vnto the truth.

I wrote to the congregation, but Diotrephes, which loueth to haue the premyence amonge them, receaued vs not. Wherfor yf I come, I wil declare his dedes which he doeth, ieastringe vps vs with malicious wordes: necher is he therwith content. For onely he himselfe receaueh not the bishope, but also he forbydeth them that wolde, and thrusteth them out of the congregation.

My beloued, for some not y which is euill but that which is good. hee that doeth will is of God: but he that doeth euill, isyth not God. Demetrius hath good report of al men, and of the truth: yet and we our selues also beare recorde, and ye knowe that oure recorde is true. I had many thinges to wryte, but I wolde not wryte, and get wryte vnto the. But I trust shortly to see the and so wyl we speake togeher moeth next month. Peace be with the. The louers salte the. God in tyme past byspake vnto y fathers by propheces, but in these last dayes he hath spoken vnto vs by his sonne, whom he hath made heire of all thinges, by whom also he made the world. Which (some) beynge the brightnes of his glory, & the very ymage of his substance, bearinge up all thinges with the worde of his power, & hath in his owne persone purged oure synnes, and is set on the righte hande of the maieste on hye: beynge equal as much more excellent then y angels, as he hath obtainyd a more excellent name then they.

For vnto which of the angels sayde he at eny tyme: Thou art my sonne, this daye haue I begotten thee: And agayne: I will be his father, & he shall be my sonne: And agayne, wha he bringeth in the first begotten sonne in to the worlde, he sayeth: And all the angels of God shal worshipp him. And of the angels he sayeth: He maketh his angels spices, & his mynisters flames of fyre. But vnto y sonne he sayeth: God, & sate emburch for euer & euer: the cepter of y kynge-dome is a right cepter. Thou hast loved righte-ousnesse, & hated iniquyte: wherefore God (which is thy God) hath anoynted the with thou LORD in y begynnyng hast layed the foundation of the earth, and y heaues are the workes of thy handes: they shal perishe, but thou shalt endure: they all shal waxe olde as doeth a garment, and as a ve-sture shalt thou chaunge them, and they shal be chaunged. But thou art y same, and thy yeares shal not faile. Vnto which of the angels sayde he at eny tyme: Gye thou our

The Epistle

unto the Hebrews.

The II. Chapter.

Wherfore we ought to gaze the more heide vnto the thinges which we haue herde, lest we perish. For yf the worde which was spoked by angelo, was stedfast, and euery trasgression and disobedience receaued a iust recompence of reward, how shal we escape, yf we despyse so greate a saluacion: which after that it began to be preached by the LORDE himselfe, was confirmed vpon vs, by them that herde it, God bearynge witness thereto, with tokens, wonders and diuers powers, and giftes of the holy goost accordinge to his owne will.

For vnto the angelo hath he not subdued the wolde to come, wherof we speake. But one in a certayne place witnesseth & saith: What is man, that thou art myndfull of him: or the sonne of man, that thou vyltest him: What thou haddest for a litle season made him lower the angels, thou crownedst him with honoure and glory, and hast set him aboue the workes of chy handes. Thou hast put all thinges in subiection vnder his feet.

In that he subdued all thinges vnto him, he left nothinge that is not vnder him. Lettethes now if we not all thinges yet subdued vnto him. Dost thou, which for a litle season was made lesse then the angelo, we see that it is Iesus which is crowned with honoure and glory for the sufferynge of death, that he by the grace of God, shulde raise of death for all men. For it became him, for whom are all thinges, and by whiche are all thinges (after he had broughte many chyldren vnto glory): that he shulde make the LORDE of their saluacion perfecte thoroough sufferynge, for so much as they all come of one, both he that sanctified, & they which are sanctified.

For the which cause sake, he is not ashamed to call them brethren, sayenge: I will declare thy name vnto my brethren, and in the myddes of the congregacion will I praysse the. And agayne: I wyl put my trust in him. And agayne: beholde, here am I and my chyldren, which God hath giuen me.

For as much then as the chyldren haue flesch and bloude. he also himselfe likewise toke parte with them. he thoroough death, mighte take awaye the power of hym, which he had shippes over death, that is to saie, of death: that he mighte deliuer the which thoroough death were all their liues tyne in dai. Whiche, for he in no place taketh on him, angels, but yf side of Abin ham tabeth be on him. Wherfore in all this he it became him to be made lesse vnto his brethren, that he mighte be mercifull vnto a faithfull by priest in thinges concerninge God, to make agrement: for the synnes of y people. For in that he himselfe suffered and was tempted, he is able to suffer them that are tempted.

The III. Chapter.

Wherfore holy brethren, ye that are partakers of the heavenly callinge, consider the Embassatour and by priest of profession, Christ Iesus, which is faithfull to him that obeyed him, euen as was Moses in all his house. But this man is worthy of greater honoure then moles, in as much as he which prepared the house, hath greater honoure in it then the house it selfe. For euery house is prepared of some man: but he that obeyed all thinges, is God. And Moses verely was faithfull in all his house as a mynister, to beate witness of those thinges which were to be spoken afterwarde. But Christ as a forme hath rule ouer his house, whose house are we, yf we holde fast the confidence and reioysing of that hope vnto the ende.

Wherfore, as y holy goost sayeth: Todaye yf ye shal heare his voyce, harden not youre heeres, as in the promouynke in the daye of temptation in the wilderness, when youre fathers tempted me, proued me, and sawe my workes foure yeares longe. Wherfore I was grieved wth that generation, and sayde: They erre ener in their heeres. But they knewe not my wayes, so that I went in my wrath, that they shulde not enter into my rest.

Take heede brethren, that there be not in any of you an emell hert of unbelene, to departe from the lyuynge God: but exhorte yowr selues daylie, whyle it is called to daye, lest eny of you ware harde harted thoroough dyceitfulnes of synne. For we are become partakers of Christ, yf we kepe fast vnto yf enre the begynnynge of the substance, solange as it is sayde: Todaye, yf ye shal heare his voyce, harde not youre heeres, as in the promouca. For some whan they herde, prouoide, howbeit not all they came out of Egypte by Moses. And wch whom we, he displeasid foure yeares longe: Was he not displeasid wch them yf synned, whose carcasses were ouerthrowne in y wilderness: To whom swaue he, they shulde not enter in to his rest, but vnto the y beleued not: And we y they coude not enter in because of unbelene.

The Epistle

The III. Chapter.

Let vs feare therfore, lest eny of vs forsake the promise of enyngynge in to his rest, shulde seme to come behinde: for it is declared vnto vs as well as vnto the. But the worde of preachinge helpe not the, whā they ehar herde it, beleued tenor. (For we which haue beleued, enter in to his rest) accordinge as he sayde: Euen as I haue srome in my wach. They shal not enter in to my rest. And ehar (spake he) verely lāge after that the workes frō the begynnyng of the worlde were made: for he spake in a certayne place of the seuech daye, on this wyse: And God rested on the seuench daye from all his workes. And in this place agayne: They shal not come in to my rest.

Whyng it foloweth the, that some must enter there in: and they, to whom it was first preached, entered not therein for unbeloued sake, therfore appoynteth he a daye agayne after so longe tyme, and sayeth: Todaye (as it is rehearsed by Dauid) Todaye ye shal heare his voyce, then harden not youre heeres. For yf Iosua had geuen them rest, the wolde he not a fter warde haue spoken, of another daye. Therfore rema yneth there yet a rest vnto the people of God. For he that is entered in to his rest, ceaseth from his workes, as God doth from his.

Let vs make hast therfore to enter in to that rest, lest eny man fall after the same example of vnbeloued. For the worde of God is quyte, and mightie in operacion, and sharper the ny two edged swerde, and entereth thorow, euen to the denynginge of the soule: the spere, and of the ioyntes and the mary, and is a iudger of the thoughtes and intencions of the hert, neither is there eny creature invisible in the sighte of him. But all thinges are naked and bare vnto the eyes of hi of whō we speake.

The V. Chapter.

Syng ehen that we haue a greate bye prest, eue Iesus the sonne of God, which is entered in to heauen, let vs holde oore profession. For we haue not an hye prest which can not haue compassion on of infirmities, but was in all poyntes cōcept, like as we are, but without synne. Let vs therfore go boldly vnto the seate of grace: that we maye receaue mercy, and fynde grace to helpe in the tyme of neede.

For euey hye prest that is taken frō among men, is ordeyned for men in thinges pertaininge to God, to offer giftes and sacrifices for synne: which can haue compassion on the ignorant, and on them that are out of the waye, for so much as he himselfe also is compassed aboute with infirmities. Therfore is he bounde to offer for synne, as well for him selfe as for y people. And nowm takech the honoure vnto himselfe, but he that is called of God, as was Aaron.

Euen so Christ glorified not himselfe to be made hye prest, but he y sayde vnto him: Thou art my sonne, this daye haue I begotten the. As he sayeth also in another place: Thou art a pist for euer after the order of Melchisedech. And in y daye of his slerbe, he offered vp prayers and supplications, wether he cryenge and carow vnto him the was able to saue him frō death: it was herde also, because he had God in honoure. And though he was Gods sonne, yet learned he obedience, by those thinges which he suffred. And he beyng made perfecte, became the cause of euerlastinge saluacion, vnto all the y obey him, and is called of God an hye prest after the order of Melchisedech. Wherof we haue many thinges to saye, which are harde to be recored, because ye are dull of hearinge. For where as concernyng the tyme ye ought to be teachers, yet haue ye neede agayne, the we teache you the first preceptes of the worde of God: and are become sodi as haue neede of milke, and not of stronge meate. For euey one that is fed yet with milke, is vnperfecte in the worde of righteousness, for he is but a babe. But stronge meate belongeth vnto them the are perfecte, which thorow custome haue their wytes exercised to iudge both good and euell.

The VI. Chapter.

Herfore let vs leaue the doctryne pertaininge to the begynnyng of a Christen life, and let vs go vnto perfection: and now nomozelaye the foundation of repentaunce from deed workes, and of faith towarde God, of bapteme, of doctryne, of layenge on of hādes, of resurreccion of the deed, and of eternall iudgment. And so will we do: yf God permeyte. For it is not possible, that they which were once lighted, and banerasted of the heauy gyfte, and are become partakers of the holy goost, the haue tasted of the good worde of God, and of the power of the worlde to come, yf they fall awaye (and concernyng them selfes cōstrycie the sonne of God a fteshe, and make mocke of him) that they shulde be repentaunce.

saluaciõ is nye, though methos speak. For God is not unrighteous, that he shulde forge: youre worke and laboure of sloue, which ye shewed in his name, whan ye mynistrad vnto the sayntes, and yet mynister. See and we desie, that every one of you shewethe same diligence, to the stablyshinge of hope euens vnto the ende, that ye saynte not, but solome them which thowm faith and pacie ce in heret the promyse, for whan God made promes to Abiaham, because he had no more greater to swere by, he sware by himselfe, and sayde: Surely I wil blesse the and multiply þe in dede. And so he abode pacie ly, and openyed the promes.

As for men, they swere by him that is greater then them selues: and the oath is the ende of all swyre to confirme the thinge amonge them. But God, wylinge very abun dantly to shewe vnto the heydes of promes the stableness of his counsell, added an oath þe by two immutable thinges (in the which it is impossible þe God shulde lye) we mighte haue a stronge consolacion: men we, which are sted to holde fast the hope that is set before vs, which (hope) we haue as a sure and stedfast anchor of oure soule. Which (hope) also curreth in, in to those thinges that are within þe wayle, whether the souerayner is for vs entered in, ent Jesu, which is made an hye priest for euer after þe order of Melchisedech.

The VII. Chapter.

This Melchisedech: Kyng of Salem
Gen. 14. 18
(which berige priest of she most hye God, met Abiaham as he returned agayne from the slaughter of the kynges, and blessed him, vnto whom Abiaham also gaue tithes of all the goodes) first is by interpreta cion kyng of righteousnes: after that is he kyng of Salem also (that is to saye, kyng of peace) without father, without mother, without kynne, and hath neither begynnyng of dayes, nor ende of yse: but is likened vnto the souerayner of God, and comyngeth a priest for euer.

But consider how greates a man this was, to whom the Patriacke Abiaham gaue tithes of the spoyle. And wretely the childien em, whan they receaue the priesthode, inmyndement acouynge to the tithes of the people, that chey derth, though they also came out of the loynes of Abiaham.

But he whose kynde is not comen and gethem, receaued tithes of Abiaham, and blessed him that had the promes. Now is it so without all sayyng, that the lesse receaueth blessinge of þe better. And here men that bye, receauet tithes. But there be recea ueth tithes, of whom it is witnessid that he lyeth. And to saye the truth, I can him selfe also which receaueth tithes, payed tithes in Abiaham: for he was yet in the loynes of his father Abiaham, whan Melchisedech met him.

If now therfore perfection came by the priesthode of the Lawe: for vnder the same (priesthode) the people receaued the lawe: what neede is then further moore, than another priest shulde ryse after the order of Melchisedech, and not after the order of Lawe?

For if the priesthode be recalled, it is necessarie must the lawe be translated also. For he of whom these thinges are spoken of another crybe, of the which neuer man mented at the cleare.

For it is euident, that ourte LORD Iesu, kyng of the trybe of Juda, to the which crybe Mosse spake nothinge cõcernynge priesthode. And it is yet a more euident thinge, after the symlicode of Melchisedech he berige another priest, which is not made after þe lawe of the carnall commaundement, but after the power of the eternelk liue: for he resisteth: whom are a priest for euer after the order of Melchisedech) then the commaundement that wente before, is disannuled because of his weaknesse, and vnpossibilities. For the lawe made nothinge perfect, but was an introduction of a better hope, by þe which hope we haue nye vnto God. And for this cause is it a better hope, þe it was not promysed without an oath. These priestes were made without an oath, but this priest with an oath, by him that sayde vnto him: The LORD sware, and wyl not repent: Thou art a priest for euer after the order of Melchisedech. This is Iesu become a stablischer of so much a better Testamēt.

And amonge them many were made priestes, because they were not sufficed to endure by the reason of death. But this man, because that he endureth euer, hath an euerlastyng priesthode. Wherefore he is able also euer to saue them, that come vnto God by him: z lyeth euer, to make intercession for vs.

For it became vs to haue sode an hye priest as is holy, innocēt, vndefiled, separted from synners, and made byer then beauer:

which hebreth not daylie (as yonger hye prestes do offer vp sacrifice first for his owne synnes, and then for the peoples synnes. For that byd be once for all, when he offered vp him selfe. For the lawe maketh men prestes which haue infirmitie: but the moide of the ooth, that came sence the lawe, maketh the some prest, which is perfecte for euermore.

The VIII. Chapter.

In the thinges which we haue spoken, this is the pith: We haue sodi an hye prest, that is set on y righe bande of the seate of maiestie in heauen: and is a mynister of holy thinges, and of the true Tabernacle, which God pitched, & not man. For euer hye prest is ordened to offre giftes and sacrifices: wherfore it is of necessite, y this man haue somwhat also to offer. For he were not a prest, yf he were upon earth, where are prestes y acordinge to the lawe offer giftes (which purpos serue vnto the ensample and shadowe of beaulty thinges, men as the answere of God was geuen vnto Moses, when he was aboute to synnise the Tabernacle: Take heed (saye he) that thou make all thinges accordinge to the patrone shewed the in the mount.) But now hath he obtayned a more excellent office, in so much as he is the mediator of a better Testament, which was made for better promyses. For yf that first Testament had bene faultles, then shulde no place haue bene soughte for the seconde. For in redubynge the he saith: Beholde, the dayes will come (sayeth the LORDE) that I wyl synnise vnto the house of Israel, and vpon the house off Iuda, a new Testament: not as the Testament which I made with their fathers, in that daye when I toke them by the handes, to lede them out of the sonde of Egipite: for they contynued not in my Testament, and I regarded them not, sayeth the LORDE.

For this is the Testament, that I wil make vnto the house of Israel after those dayes, sayeth the LORDE. I wyl geue my lawes in their mynde, and in their herttes wyl I wyrite them: And I wil be their God, and they shal be my people: and they shal not reach euery mā his neyghboure, and euery man his brother, sayenge: I knowe y of LORDE, for they shal knowe me from the leest to the most of them: for I wil be mercifull ouer their vnghebecomesse: And on their synnes & on their iniquities wyl I not thynke any more. In that he saith: A new he wreath out y

The IX. Chapter.

That first Tabernacle vntely had ordinaunces, and seruynges off God and ourwarde holynes. For there was made a foretabernacle, wherein roas y candilstick, and the table, and the sheue bic: and this is called y holy. But beynde the seconde wayle was the Tabernacle which is called holiest of all, which had the golden censoi, and the Arke of the Testament overlaid rounde aboute with golde, wherein was the golden pot with Manna, and Aarons robb: that stoness, and the tables of the Testament: Aboute therein were the Cherubins off glory ouer shadowyng the Mercyseate: Of which thinges it is not now to speake percularly.

When these thinges were thus obeyned, the prestes wence alwayes in to the first Tabernacle, and executed y seruyce of God. But in to the seconde wente the hye prest alone once in the yeare, not withoute bloude, which he offered for himselfe and for the ignorauce of the people. Wherwith the holy goost this signifieth, that the waye of holynes was not yet opened, whyle as yet the first Tabernacle was stondeyng. Which was a similitude for the tyme then present, in the which were offered giftes and sacrifices, and coulde not make perfecte (as partaynyng to the conscience) him, that byd the Gods seruyce onely with meates and drynkes, and byuersa washynges, and iusticynges of the flesh, which were obeyned vnto the tyme of reformation.

But Christ beyng an hye prest of good thinges to come, came by a greater and a more perfecte Tabernacle, not made with handes, that is to saye, not of this maner buydyng: neyther by the bloude of goates or calues: but by his owne bloude entered he once for all in to the holy place, and hath founde eternall redemption. For yff the bloude off oren and off goates, and the ashen off the come when it is spenkleb, halueth the vnclene as couduyng the purificacion of the flesh. How much more shal the bloude of Christ (which thoro the eternal spere offered him selfe without spot vnto God) poure oure conscience from deed workes, for to serue the vnyng God: And for this cause is y pouer diatour of the new Testament, whiche thoro death which he auoided, redemption of those transgressions (that were vnder the first Testament) they which were called might receive the promise of eternal inheritance. For where there is a Testament, there must also be the death of him that maketh the testament.

For a Testament taketh an executor when men are dead: for it is of no value, as long as he that made it is alive. For the which cause that first Testament also was not obeyed without blood. For when all the commandmentes (accordinge to the lawe) were red of Moses unto all the people, he took of bloude of calves and of goates, with water and purple wolle and yspoke, and sprinkled the booke and all the people, sayinge: This is the bloude of the Testament, which God hath appointed unto you. And the Tabernacle and all the vessels of the Gods service sprinkled be with bloude likewise. And almost all things are purged with bloude after the lawe: and without shedding of bloude is no remission. It is necessary then, that the similitude of heavenly things be purified with such: but if heavenly things themselves are purified with better sacrifices, then are they.

For Christ is not entered in to the holy places, but is made with handes (which are but similitude of true things): but in to the very heauen, for to appeare now before the face of God for us: For to offer himselfe as the high priest entered in to the holy place every yeare with strange bloude: for the same he often hath suffred since the world beganne. But now in the ende of the world hath he appeared once, to put synne to flight, by the offeringe up of himselfe. And as it is appointed unto me, that they shall once dye, and then cometh the iudgement: For Christ was once offered, to take awaye the synnes of many. And unto them that loke for him, shall he appeare agayne without synne unto salvation.

Rom. 8
Heb. 10

The X. Chapter.

Of the lawe which hath but the shadowe of good things to come, and not the things in their awne substance, can neuer by the sacrifices which they offer yeare by yeare continually, make the comers there unto perfecte: For should they have ceased to have bene offered, should theye had nomore conscience of synnes. For in those sacrifices there is made but a min. For the bloude of oxen and of goates shuld take awaye synnes.

When soe when he cometh in to the world, he sayeth: Sacrifice and offeringe thou wouldest not have, but a body hast thou desired me. Where offerings and synnes offerings hast thou not allowed. Then saide he: Lo, I come. The beginninge of the doke it is myeten of me, that I should obey will of God. Above wha he had sayde: Sacrifice and offeringe, and burnt offerings and syn offerings thou wouldest not have, neither hast thou allowed (which yet are offered after lawe). Then saide he: Lo, I come to do will of God: there taketh he awaye the first, to stablish the latter: In the which will we are sanctified by the offeringe up of the body of Jesus Christ once for all.

And every priest is ready by his ministringe, and oftentimes offereth one maner of offeringe, which can never take awaye synne. But this man when he had offered for synne, one sacrifice which is of value for ever, sat him downe on the right hande of God, and from hence forth eateth, and his seat he made his fore seate. For with one offeringe hath he made perfecte for ever, the that are sanctified. And the holy ghost also beareth us records of this, even when he sheweth before: This is the Testament, that I will make unto them after those dayes, sayeth the LORD: I will geve my lawes in their hearts, and their synnes and iniquities will I remember nomore. And where remission of these things is, there is nomore offeringe of synne.

Seynge now brethren, that we have a sure insurance in to that holy place, by the bloude of Jesu (which he hath prepared unto us for a new and living waye, through the waye, that is to saye, by his flesh) and synge also that we have an high priest over the house of God, let us drawe nye unto here in a full faith, sprinkled in our hearts from an ewell conscience, and washed in our bodies with pure water: and let us keep the profession of our hope without waveringe (for he is faithfull that hath promised) and let us confide one another to: providinge of love and of good works: and let us not forsake the fellowshipe that we be in amonge ourselves, as the maner of some is: but let us exhorte one another, that so much the more, because ye see that the day draweth nye.

For if we synne willfully after that we have receaved the knowlege of the truth, there remaineth unto us nomore sacrifice for synnes, but a fearfull loyng for iudgment and violence fyre, which shal deuoure y aduersaries. He y despyeth Moyses lawe, dyeth without mercy vnder two or thre wit-nesse: Whom moche more punishment (suppose ye) shal he be comed woerby, which treadeth vnder foote the sonne of God, and trodgeth the bloude of Testamēt (wherby he is sanctified) an unwoly thinge, & both dishonoure to the spere of grace: For we knowe him that hath sayde: Vengeance is myne, I will recompence, sayeth the LOR-DE. And agayne: The LORDE shal iudge his people. It is a fearfull thinge to fall in to the handes of they wyngye God.

But call ye to remembrance y dayes y are past, y which a ster ye had receaued lighte, ye endured a greace sighte off aduersities: partly whyle all mē wored & gased at you for the shame and tribulacion that was done vnto you: and partly whyle ye became copanyers of them which so passed their tyme. For ye haue suffred with my bōden, and toke a woerth y spoyling of youre goodes, and that with gladnes, knowinge in youre selues, howe that ye haue in heauen a better & an enduring subsaunce. Cast not awaye therefore yō confidence, which hath so greate reward. For ye haue neede of patience, that after ye haue done the wyl of God, ye might receaue the promes. For yet ouer a litle whyle, and then he that shal come, wyl come, and wyl not tary. But the it shal lue by his saich: And yf he withdraue himselfe awaye, my soule shal haue no pleasure in him. As for we, we are not of those which withdraue them selues to damnacion: but of them that beleue to the wyngye of the soule.

The XI. Chapter.

Whiche is a sure confidence of thinges which are hoped for, and a certaynte of thinges which are not sure. By it y Elders were well reposed of. Likewise saich we vnderstande, that the wordes and all the thinges which are sene, were made of naughte by the woerde of God.

By saich offered Abell vnto God a more precious sacrifice: by the which he opeayned wyntesse, that he was righteous: God testifyng of his giftes, by the which also he beynge deed, yet spaketh.

By saich was Enoch take awaye, that he shulde not se death: and was not foun-de, because God had taken him awaye. For afore he was taken awaye, he had recorde that he pleased God. But without saich it is impossible to please God, for he that commeth vnto God, must beleue that God is, & y he is a rewarder of them that see him.

By saich he honoured God, after y he was warned of thinges which were not sene, y prepared the Ark, & sayng of his housholde: chooseth the which Arke he condemned the world, and became heire of the righteousnes, which cometh by saich.

By saich Abraham whā he was called obeyed, to go out in to the place, which he shulde afterwarde receaue to inheritaunce: and he wente out, not knowyng whither he shulde go.

By saich was he a straunger in the lōde of promes as in a straunge counre, y dwelt in tabernacles: and so dyd Isaac & Jacob, he yew wth hīm of the same promes: for he looked for a cite which hath a foundacion, whose bylder and maker is God.

By saich Sara also receaued strength to be with child, and was deliuered of a child when she was past age, because he iudged him to be saichfull which had promysed.
 And therfore spoyng there of one (ye euen off one which was as good as deed concey-nyng the body) so many in multitudine the starres off the heuē, and also the sōnde off the see shone, which is innumerable.

All these dyed a conyng to saich, and re-ceaued not the promys, but sawe the afar re off, and beleued them, and saluted them: and confessed, that they were straungers & pilgrims vps earth. For they that saich sōch thinges, declare, that they like a naturall counre. And doubtles yf they had bene myn-de full off that counre from whence they came out, they had lēsure to haue returned agayne. But now they desire a better, that is to saie, a heauēly. Wherfore God is not ashamed of the, enē to be called the God: for he hath prepared a cite for them.

By saich Abrahā offered vp Isaac, whā he was tamped, and gaue ouer his onely begotten sone, in whom he had receaued the promys, of whom it was sayde: In Isaac shal thy sēde be called: for he considered, y God was able to raise vp agayne from the deed. Therfore receaued he hīm for an ensampl.

By saich Isaac blessed Jacob and Esau, concernyng thinges to come.

By saich Jacob, whā he was a byenge, blessed both the sonnes off Joseph, y bowed himselfe forwarde the topps of his cepter.

By saich Joseph whā he dyed, remem-bred yf departyng of the child of Isaac, & gave commaundment concernyng his bones.

Exod. 1. 1. By faith Moses whā he was borne, was hid the monethes of his Elbers, because they sawe that he was a proper childe, neither feared they the Kinges commaundment.

Exod. 2. 1. By faith Moses when he was greaer refused to be called the sonne of Pharaos daughter: and chose rather to suffre adversite with the people of God, then to enjoye pleasures of synne for a season: and esteemed the rebuke of Christ greater riches, then the treasure of Egypte: for he had respect unto the reward.

Exod. 12. 1. By faith he forsoke Egypte, and feared not the fearcenes of the Kinge: for he endured, and as though he had sene him which is invisible.

Exod. 13. 1. By faith he helde Easter, and the effusion of bloude, lest he which slewed the firstborne, shulde couche them.

Exod. 14. 1. By faith they passed thow the reed See as by drye londe: which whā the Egipcians assayed to do, they were drowned.

By faith the walles of Jericho fell, whā they were compassed aboute seven dayes.

By faith the barke Raab perished not with the embeduers, whā she had receaved the spyes to lodgyng peaceably.

And what shal I more saye: if tyme wolde be to shewe for me to tall of. Gibson, of Barac, and of. Samson, 2 of. Jephthas, and of David, and. Samuel, and of the prophetes, which thowow faith subdued Kingdomes, wroughte rightousnes, prayned 3 promyses, stopped of mouthes of lydes, quenchid the wiske of fyre, escaped of edge of the swerde, of weake were made stronge, became valeaunt in batayll, turned to slighe the armyes of the alcautes. the women receaved their beed agayne from resurrection. But othe were raked, and accepted no deliveraunce, that they mighte optayne the resurrection that better is.

Othe raised of mockynges and scourginges, of bondes old and prisonment: were stoned, were hoven a sinder, were tempred, were slayne with the swerde, were aboute in shepe slaynes, and goates slaynes, in neede, in tribulation, in vexacion, which (men) the wolde was not worthy of: they wandred aboute in wyldernes, upon mountaynes, in dennes and caves of the earth. And these all thowow faith optayned good reporte, and receaved not 3 promyses: because God had prayned a better thinge for us, that they without us shulde not be made perfecte.

The XII. Chapter.

Wherof syngre we have so gettate multitude of witnesser above us. Let us also laye a waye all 3 past sich downe, and the synne that hangen on and let us runne with patience unto the heyl that is set before us, lo byngre unto Jesus of auncer and synnifer of faith: whid whan the toye was layed before him, abode the crosse, and despysed the shame, and usid downe on y righer hyde of 3 trons of God. Considre him therfore that endured such pynge Kinge agaynst hi of synners, lest ye be wery and saynte in youre myndes: for ye haue never resistid unto bloude, stryunge agaynst synne, and haue forgotten the consolacion which speaketh unto you as unto children: My sonne, despise not the chastenyng of the LORDE, neither saynte whan thou art wulced of him: for whid the LORDE leaue him he chasteneth, yet and he scourgeth every sonne that he receaveth.

If ye endure chastenyng, God offereth himselfe unto you as unto sonnes. What seme is that, whom the father chasteneth not: If ye be not under correccion (whay all are partakers) then are ye bastards and not sonnes. Whowever syngre we have had fathers off our flesch which correced us, we gave them reverence, shulde we not then moch rather be in subieccion unto 3 father of spirittual giftes, 3 we mighte say: And they verdy for a few dayes nurtured us after their awne pleasure: but he lemed us unto 3 which is profitable, that we mighte receave of his holynes. To no maner chastenyng for the present tyme seemeth to be ioyous, but greuous: neuertheles afterwarde it bringeth the quyte frute of righteousnes. Like vpon therfore the handes which were led downe, and the weake knees, and si that ye have straight stepes unto youre frute, lest any haltinge turme you out of the waye, yet it is: ther be healed.

Followe after peace with all men, and be ioyous, without the which no man shal se the LORDE, and loke well, that no mā be defraude of the grace of God, lest here sayngre weny bytter rote, and cause disquyeten, and therby many be defiled: that there be no whoremonger, or uncleane person, or suchlike, which for one meate sake solde his body righte, for ye knowe, howe that a firmament whan he wolde haue inhereted the blessing, he was put by: for he forde no place of repentaunce, though he desired of blessing.

with heares. For ye are not come to y moult that can be touched: and burneth with fy-re, neither yet to myst and darcknes, and tempest of wedder, neither to the sounde of the troupe, and y voyce of wyndes: which they that herde, wysshed awaye, that the woide shoulde not be spoken to them, for they were not able to abyde that which was spoken.

And ys a beest had touched the mountayne, it must haue bene slayd, or thrust thowm with a darce. And so terrible was the sighte which appeared, that Moses sayde: I feare and quake. But ye are come to the mount Sion, and to the cite of the lyvinge God, to the celestiall • Jerusalem, and to the multitude of many thousande angels, and vnto the congregation of the first borne, which are written in heauen, and to God the iudge of all, and to the spere of iust and perfec-te men, and to Jesus the mediator of the new Testament, and to the sprenlyng off bloude, that speaketh better then the bloude of Abel.

Se that ye despyse not him that speaketh vnto you: for ys they escaped nor which refused him that spake on earth, much more shal we not escape, ys we turne awaye from him that speaketh from heauē: whose voyce shole the earth at that tyme. Woe now promy-seth he, ys sayeth: • Yet once more wyl I shale, not the earth onely, but also heauen. To doute that same that he sayeth yet once more, signifieth the remouynge awaye of those things which are shaten, as off things which are made: that y things which are not shakē, maye remaine. Wherefore, seynge we receaue the vnumutable kyngdome, we haue grace, to herby we maye serue God, & please him, with reuerence and godly feare.

For oure God is a consuminge fyre.
The XIII. Chapter.
Let brotherly loue cōtinue. • Denot forgetfull to lodge strangers: for therby haue dyuers receaued angels into their houses in auarice. Remember them that are in bondes, and as though ye were bounde with them: and be mydefull off them which are in aduersite, as ye which are also in the bodye. Let wredde be had in payce in all poyntes, & let y chamber be undefiled, for whose piers and ad-murerers God wil iudge. Let your conuer-sacion be without conuersiones, and be content with that ye haue already, for he hath sayde: • I wyl not sayle the nerher: so take the, so that we maye boldly saye: • The LORDE is my helper, and I wyl not feare what man maye do vnto me. Remember the which haue the ouersight of you, which haue declared vnto you the woide of Gods.

The ende of whose conuersacion se that ye loke vpon, and folowe their faith.

Jesus Christ yesterdaye and • Todaye, & the same cōtineth for euer. Be not caried about w dyuers and straunge lymynge: for it is a good thinge that the heres be stablyshed with grace, and not with meates, which haue not profited them, that haue had their passyme in them. We haue an altare, wherof they haue no power to eate, which serue in the Tabernacle. For the bodies of those beestes, whose bloude is broughte in to the holy place by y hye prestee pour-ge fyre, are burnt without the tētes. Therfore Jesus also, to sanctifie y people by his owne bloude, suffred without y gate, & he we go forth therfore out of the tentes, and suffre rebuke with him: for heere haue we no consuminge cite, but we seeke one to come.

Let vs therfore by him offre alwaye vnto God the sacrifice of piety: that is to saye, the frute of those lippes which confesse his name. To do good and to desire to please god, • for w such sacrifices God is pleased. Obey them that haue the ouersight off you, and submytce youre selues vnto them: for they watch for youre soules, euen as they that must geue accēptes therfore, that they maye do it with ioye, and not with grefe: for that is an vnprofitable thinge for you.
Praye for vs. We haue confidence, because we haue a good conscience in all things, and desyre to lyue honestly. But I desyre you y more abundantly, that ye so do, y I maye be refreshed vnto you the more quicly.

The God of peace (that bringeth agayn vs fro the deed oure) LORDE Jesus the greate shepherde of the shepe thowm the blou-de of the euerlastinge Testament) make you perfecte in all good woites, to do his wyl, workynge in you that which is pleasaunt in his sighte thowm Jesus Christ, to whom be praise for euer and euer Amen. I beseech you brethren, suffre the woide of exhortacion, for I haue written vnto you in few woides.
I knowe of brother Timotheus, whom we haue sent from vs, with whom ys he come shortly, I wil se you. Salute the that haue the ouersight of you and all y sayntes. The brethren of Italy salute you. Grace be with you all, Amen.

of S. James.

The summe of this epistle.

- Chap. I. He exhorteth to reioyce in trouble, to be feruent in prayer with steadfast belene, to loke for all good thinges from aboue, to forsake all vices: and thankfully to receaue the word of God, not onely hearynge it and speakyng of it, but to do therewith in dede. True religion is deuotion vnto what it is.
- Chap. II. He forbiddeth to haue any respecte of personne, but to regarde the poore as well as the ryche, to be lowyng and mercifull, and not to boast of faith wher no dedes are: for it is but a dead faith, wher good workes followe not.
- Chap. III. What good and euill cometh thro the tounge. The dayes of folly are letted. The difference betwixt the wysdome of the goseill and the wysdome of the world.
- Chap. IIII. Worre and fightinge cometh of voluptuousnesse. The fenibshippe of the world is enemye before God. An exhortacion to syle flamme: and the vanite of this life.
- Chap. V. He thurateneth the wicked ryche, exhorteth vnto patience, to beware of swearing, one to knowe his fautes to another, one to praye for another, and one to labour to saynge another to the contrary.

The first Chapter.

10. 6. a.
 11. 6. a.
 12. 6. b.

21 Times the seruante of God and of the LOR DE Iesus Christ, sendeth gretynges to the sq. trybes which are scattered here & there.
 My brethren, counte it exceadynge ioye whē ye fall in to diuers temptacions, for as moche as ye knowe, howe y^e trynges of youre faith bringeth pacience: and let pacien ce haue her perfect worke, y^e maye be per fecte and soune, lackinge nothinge.

22
 If any of you lacke wysdome, let him aske of God, which giveth to all men indifferen tie, and casteth no man in the teth: and it shal be geue him. But let him aske in faith and wauer not. For he that doubteth, is lyke the wauer of y^e see, tossed of the wynde, and caried wth violence. Therfore let y^e man thinke what he shal receaue any thinge of y^e LORDE.
 A wauerynge mynded mā ys vnstable in all his wayes.

23 Let the brother of lowe degre reioyce, in y^e he is exalted: and the rich, in y^e he is made lowe. For as the flō of y^e grasse shal he vanyshe awaye. The Sonne rysyth wth heat and the grasse wythereth, & his floure sal be awaye, and the beautie of the fassion of it perisheth: even so shal the ryche man perishe wth his abundaunce.

Happy is the man that endureth in temptacion, for when he is tryed, he shal receaue the crowne of life, which the LORDE hath promised to them that loue him.

24 Let no man saye when he is temptad, y^e he is tempted of God. For God tempteth not vnto euill, neither tempteth he any man. But euery mā is tryed, triaued awaye, & tryed of his owne concupisence. The whiche lust hath conceaued, she bringeth forth synne, & synne when it is fynished, bringeth forth death.

25 Lette not my deare brether, Every good gift, & euery perfect gift, is from aboue, and cometh downe from y^e father of light, wth whom is no variablenesse, neither is he chang ed vnto darknes. Of his owne will he geueth vnto us wth the worde of life, that we shal be the frist frutes of his creatures.

26 Wherefore deare brether, let euery man be swiffe to heare, slowe to speake, and slowe to wrath. For the wrath of mā wth worketh not that which is righteous before God.

27 Wherefore laye aparte all fylchines, all superfluite of maliciousnesse, & receaue wth mekenes y^e worde y^e is grafed in you, which is able to save youre soules. And ife that ye be doers of y^e worde & not hearers only, becau sines youre a wne sclaue. For if any h^{at} the worde, and do it not, he is lyk^e vnto that beholderth his owne face in a glasse.
 For as soone as he hath looked on himselfe, he goeth his waye, and forgetteth immediatly what his fasshon was. But who so looketh in y^e perfect lawe of libertie, and contineth therin (y^e he be not a forgetfull hearer, but a boar of the worde) the same shal be happye in his dede.

28
 If any man amonge you seme deuout, & refrayne not his tongue: but because his owne here, this mames deuocion is in vaine. For re deuocion and vndeiled before God the fa ther, is this: to vtilize the frendlesse and vndowes in their aduertyse, and to kepe his selfe vnspotted of the wth world.

The II. Chapter.

29 Brether, haue not the faith of our LORDE Iesus Christ y^e LORDE of glory in y^e respecte of personne. Ife come in to yo^r company a mā wth a golde ringe and in goodly aparell, & ther come in a poore man in vyle raimēt, & ye haue respecte to him y^e weareth the gaye clothynge & saye vnto hi: Sit thou here in a good place, & saye vnto y^e poore, stande thou there wth here vnder my foote: are ye not parcial in youre sinnes, and haue iudged a fier euill thogh good.

Harken my beare beloved brether. Hath not God chosen the poore of this worlde, which are rich in faith, and heyes of the kyngdom which he promysed to the chace to us him: But ye haue despised the poore. Are not the rich they which oppesse you: they which braye you before iudges: Do not they speake euill of that good name after which ye be named.

If ye fulfill the royall lawe accordinge to the scripture which saith: Thou shalt loue thine neyghbour as thy selfe, ye do well. But ye regard one person more then another, ye come synne, and are rebuked of the lawe as transgressours. Whosoever shal kepe the whole lawe, and yet faile in one point, he is guiltye in all. For he that sayde: Thou shalt not commit adulterie, sayed also: thou shalt not kill. Though thou do none adulterie, yet if thou kill, thou art a transgressor of the lawe. So speake ye, and so do as they that shalbe iudged by the lawe of libertie. For ther shalbe iudgement mercales to him that sheweth no mercy, & mercy reioiceth against iudgement.

What a waylet it my brether, though a man saye he hath faith, when he hath no dedes: Can faith saue him: If a brother or a sister be hated or destitute of dayly fode, & one of you saye unto them: Departe in peace, God sende you warmnes and fode: not withstandinge ye geue them not the thinges which are needfull to the body: what helpeth it them: Venes faith, yf it haue not dedes, is dead in it selfe.

Ye & a man mighte saye: Thou hast faith, and I haue dedes: Shewe me thy faith by thy dedes: and I wil shewe the my faith by my dedes. Beluest thou yther: He God: Thou doest well. The deuils also beleue and tremble.

Wile thou vnderstode o thou vayne man that faith which our dedes is dead: Was not Abraham oure father iustified thourough workes when he offered Isaac his sonne upon the altire: Thou seist how y faith wrought with his dedes, and through y dedes was the faith made perfect: & the scripture was fulfilled which saith: Abraham beleued God and it was reputed vnto him for righte wesen: and he was called y frende of God. Ye se then how that of dedes a man is iustified, and not of faith onely. Likewise also was Isaac Raab the harlot iustified thourough workes, when she receaued the messengers, and sent them our another waye: For as the body, with oute the spere is dead, euen so faith without dedes is dead.

The III. Chaper.

Brether, be not euery man a master, rememberinge how that we shall receaue the more damnacion: for in many thinges we synne all. If a man synne not in worde, the same is a perfecte man, & able to tame all the body. Beholde, we put bittes into the horses mouthes y they shalbe obeye vs, and we turne aboute all the body. Beholde also y shryppes, which though they be so grete, and are diuyn of force to winde, yet are they turned about with a very small helme, whiche forer the violence of the gouerner wyll. Euen so the tonge is a lytel member, and besteth great thinges.

Beholde how grete a thinge a lytell fyre kyndleth, and the tonge is fyre, and a worde of our myndes. So is the tonge set amonge our members, that it besteth the whole body, and killeth a fyre all that reueane of nature, and is in it selfe set a fyre euen of hell.

All the naturces of beastes, and of byrdes, and of serpentes, and thinges of the see, are made and camed of the nature of ma. But the tonge can no man tame. It is an vnruly euill full of deadly poison. Therwith blisseth God the father, and therwith curse we men which are made after the similitude of God. Out of one mouth proceedeth blessinge and cursynge. My brether thes thinges oughte not so to be. Doth a founnayne sende forth at one place sweete water and bytter also: Can the fygge tree, my Brether, beare olive beries: ether a vyne beare fygge: So can no founnayne geue bothe salt water and freshe also. If any man be wyse and embued with learninge amonge you, let him shewe the workes of his good conuersacion in mesnes that is coupled with wysdome.

But yf ye haue bitter enuyenge and stryfe in yo herces, ioyce not: neither be iharagayneth the truethe. This wysdome descendeth not from aboue: but is earthy, and nauall, and byuylishe. For where enuyenge and stryfe is, there is vnstableness and all maner of euill workes. But the wysdom that is frō aboue, is first pure, the peasable, gentle, and easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good frates, without iudgyng, and without simulation: yet, and the frute of rightewines is sownen in peace, of the that man yene peace.

The IIII. Chaper.

Rom whence commeth warre and stryfe amonge you: come they not here hence: euen of yo^r voluptuousnesse tharayne in youre mecha: Relusk and haue not. Ye enue and haue indignacion, and can not obtayne. Ye fight z warre, and haue not, because ye are not. Ye are z receaue not because ye are amyssi: eue to cōsume it upō yo^r voluptuousnesse. Ye abuouerate, z weme that bieie matrimonie: Knowe ye not: how that the frenshipp of ꝑ woulde is emmitte to godward: Whosouer wilbe a frende of the woulde, is made ꝑ enemie of god. (E thir do ye thinke ꝑ the scripture saych in wayne.

 The ꝑ spirit ꝑ dwelleth in you, lusteth euen contrary to enue: but geneth moie grace.

Submitt youre silues to God, and resist ye wauerynge mynede. Suffre afflictions: for iwe ye and wepe. Let youre langhter be turned to moynge, and youre ioye to the LORDE, and be shal lifte you up. Backbyte not one another, biethien. He that backbyte eth his boother, and he ꝑ indgeth his bo same. But and yf shon indge the same, thou art not an obster of the same: but a iudge.

 There is one lawe geue, which is able to sa ue and to dystroye. What art thou that ind geth another man?

Go to now ye that saye: to daye z to mo row let vs go into soche a cite and continue

 Therfore to him that knoweth how to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is synne.

The V. Chapter.

Go to now ye riche men, Wepe, and howle on yo^r wretchednes that shal come upon you. Your riches is cou rrupte, youre garnetes are moithraten. Your golde z yo^r siluer are canered, z the rust of them shalbe a witness vnto you, z shal eate youre fleshe, as it were fyre. Ye haue heaped treasure togedder in yo^r last dayes: Dehol de, the hyre of the labourers which haue re peded downe youre sildes (which hyer is of you kept backe by fraude) letteth: and the cryes of the which haue reped, are entered in to the earce of the LORDE Sabaoth. Ye ha ue lined in pleasure on the earth and in man equies. Ye haue noryshed youre hertes, as in adaye of slaughter. Ye haue cōdemned and haue killed the iust, and he hath not resisted you.

Ye paciers therfore biethien, vnto the cō mynge of the LORDE. Beholde, the bushe de man wayteth for the precious frute of earth, and hath longe pacience there vpon, vntill he receaue the ery and the latter rai ne. So ye also pacient therfore, and seeke youre herces, for the commyng of the LOR DE Diaweth nye, Goodge not one agaynst another biethien, lest ye be damned. Behol de, the iudge stondech before the doer. Take my biethien: ye prophesies for an ensamp ce, of iustfyng aduersite, and of long pacien ce, which spake in the name of the LORDE.
 Beholde we counse them happy which ad dure. Ye haue heard: of ꝑ pacices of Job, and haue knowen what ende the LORDE made. For the LORDE is very pitifull and mercifull.

But aboute all thinges my biethien sweare not, necher by heare, necher by earth, necher by eny other oche. Let youre ye be ye, and yo naye naye: lest ye faule in to ypoctry. If eny of you be euill vexed, let hi praye. If eny of you be merry, let him synge Psalmes. If eny be desaid amonge you, let him call for the elders of the congregacion, z let the pray ouer him, and anoynt him with oyle in the name of the LORDE: and yf prayer of iust shal sane the sicke, and the LORDE shal sa ue him: and yf he haue committed synne, they shalbe forgiven him.

Knowlege youre fantes one to another and praye one for another, that ye may be healed. The prayer of a righteous man may lech moche, yf it be secrete. Elias was an moichall euen as we are, and he prayed in his prayer, that it might not rayne: z it rayned not on the earth by the space of thre yeres and sire monethes. And he prayed agayne, and yf heard gaue rayne, z ꝑ earth brought forth hie fruce.

Biethien, yf eny of you erre fro the truth and another conuere him, let ꝑ sane knowe that he which conuerted the synner from goynges astraye out off his waye, shal saue a soule fro death, and shal hye chemelin
 tude of syn nes.

S. Jude.

The summe of this epistle.

It sheweth such as beinge dypped with their owne lustes, resist the truth, & therfore maye knowe them the better, he knoweth they be sold as synne heavily agaynst nature, and despici- cular etc. He exhorteth vs to visite one another, to praye in the holy goost, to continue in loue, to lofe for the comynge of the LORD, and to helpe another out of the fyre.

Was the seruante of Jesus Christ, the brother off James. To the which are called, and sanctified in God the father, and preserued in Jesu Christ. Mercy vnto you, and peace and loue be multiplied.

Beloued, when I gaue all diligence to wyte vnto you of the common saluacion: it was needfull for me to wyte vnto you, to exhorte you, that ye shalde continually labour in the faith which was once geue vnto the sayntes. For there are certayne craftily crept in, of which it was wyrtens aforesayd vnto soche iudgement. They are vngodly, and curse the grace of our God vnto wantaunce, and denye God the onely LORD, and our LORD, Jesus Christ.

My minde is therfore to put you in remembrance, for as moche as ye once knowe this, how that J. LORD, after that he had deliuered the people out of Egypht, destroyed them which afterwarde belened not. The angels also which kept not their first estate: but leste their awne habitacon, he hath reserved in euerlastyng chaynes vnder darknes vnto the iudgement of the great daye: euen as Sodom and Gomor, and the cities aboute them, which in lyke maner defiled them selues with fornicacion and folowed straunge fleshe, are set forth for an insamp- le, and suffer the vengeance of eternall fyre. Ye euyse these daemners bysle the fleshe despyse rulers, and speake euill of them that are in auctorite.

Yet Michael the archangell when he stroue agaynst the deuill, & dispued aboute the body of Moses, durst not genera-lynge sentence, but sayde: the LORD rebuke the. One these speake euill of those thinges which they knowe not: and what thinges of S. Jude. Ho. cxi.

they knowe naturally, as bestes which are without reason, in the thinges they con- tinue them selues. Wo be vnto the, for they haue folowed the waye of Cain, and are eter- nally geue to the erreoure of Balaam for lustes sake, and perishe in the trefason of Core.

Gen. 4. 8
Num. 16. 1

These are spores which of youre kindnes feast togedder, without feare, sedyng the fleshe. Cloudes they are withouten water, caried about of wyndes, and trees without frute at gabnynges tyme, wythe dead and plucked vp by the rotes. They are the taggyng waynes of the see, somyng out their awne shame. They are wandrynge starres, to whiche is reserved the myst of darkness for euer.

1. Pet. 2. 1

Enoch the seventh from Adam prophesied before of such, sayyng: I beholde, the LORD shall come with thousandes of myn- sters, to gene iudgement agaynst all men, and to rebuke all that are vngodly amonge the, of all their vngodly dedes, which they haue vngodly committed, and of all their cruell speakynges, which vngodly synners haue spoken agaynst him.

Apoc. 1. 2

These are murmurers, complainers, wal- kyng after their awne lustes, whose mouthes speake proude thynges. They haue me in greater reuerence because of an amenge. But ye beloued, remember the wordes which were spoken before of the Apostles of our LORD, Jesus Christ, how that they tolde you J. their shalde be beggers in the last tyme, which shalde walke after their awne vngodly lustes. These are makers off secretes fleshly, hauyng no spere.

1. Pet. 1. 4

But ye beloued, edifye youre selues in youre most holy faith, prayege in the holy goost, and kepe youre selues in the loue of God, lokyng for the mercy of our LORD, Jesus Christ, vnto eternall life. And haue co- passion on some, separatinge the: and othe- sawe with feare, pullinge them out of the fyre, and haue the fylthy vesture of the fleshe.

Vnto him that is able to kepe you, that ye faule not, and to present you faultlesse before J. presence of his glory with ioye,

J. is to saye, to God our sauour, re which only is wyse, be- glory, maiestie, domi- nion, & power, now and for euer. Amen.

reuelacion of Ihus Christus, which God gaue vnto him, sin: there vnto his seruantes thynges which muste shortly come to passe. And he sent and sheweth by his angel vnto his seruante Iohn, which bare the corde of the wynde of God, and of the bettymony of Iesus Christus, and of all thyngs that be sarte. -happy is he that readeth, and they that heare the wordes of the prophety and kepe thoo thynges which are wyrteth therein. For the tyme is at honde.

Iohn to the seuen cōgregacions in Asia. Grace be with you & peace, fro him which is and which was, and which is to come. I fro the seuen spyttes which are pearsheth re his throne, and from Iesus Christ which is a faithfull witnes, and first begyner of the deed: L O R D ower y thynges of the earth. Vnto him that loued vs and washed vs fro synnes in his awne blood, and made vs fre: grete Dyces vnto God his father, be glory and dominion for euer more. Amen. Behold, he cometh with cloudes, and althey shall se him: & they also which pearshd him. And all kyndes of the earth shal wyle. Amen. I am Alpha and Omega, the begynnyng and the endinge, sayeth L O R D E almyghty, which is and which was and which is to come.

I Iohn your brother and companyon in tribulation, and in the kyngdome and pacie ce which is in Iesu Christe, was in the yle of Pachmos for the woide of God, and for the witnessinge of Iesu Christe. I was in the spete on a sondaye, and herbe dehynte me, a gret voyce, as it had bene of a crompte, sayen ge: I am Alpha and Omega, the first and laste. What thou sittest, write in a booke, and sende it vnto the congregacions which are in Asia, vnto Ephesus and vnto Smyrna, and vnto Pergamos, and vnto Thyatira, and vnto Sardis, and vnto Philadelphia, and vnto Laodicia.

C And I turned backe to se the voyces that spake to me. And whē I was turned: I sawe seuen golde candlestickes, and in the myddes of the candlestickes, one like vnto the sonne of man clothed with a lymyn garnet downe to the ground, and gyrd aboute the brest with a golden gyrdle. His heed, and his heares were whyte, as whyte woll, as snowe, and his eyes were as a flammie of fyre: and his feete like vnto brasse, as though they were in a furnace: and his voyce as the sounde of many waters. And he had in his right honde seven starres. And out of his mouth went a sharpe two edged swerde. And his face shone euen as the sonne in his strengthe.

D And when I sawe him, I fell at his feete, and as deed. And he layde his right honde vpon me, sayenge vnto me: feare not, I am the first, and the laste, and am alwey, and was deed. And beholde, I am alwey seuer more, and haue the keyes of heill of deeth. Write therfore the thinges which thou hast seene, and the thinges which are, and the thinges which shalbe fulfilled here after: the mystery of the seuen starres which thou sawest in my right honde, and the seuen golden candlestickes. The seuen starres are the angele of the seuen congregacions: And the seuen candlestickes which thou sawest, are the seuen congregacions.

The iij. Chapter.

S Vnto the angele of the congregacion of Ephesus wyte: These thinges sayth he that holdeth the seuen starres in his right honde, and walketh in the myddes of the seuen golde candlestickes: I knowe thy woikes, and thy labour, and thy pacience, & howe thou canst not forbear thyn which are euill: and examynest them which saye they are Apostles, and are not: & hast founde the liars and hast suffred. And hast pacie ce: and for my names sake hast laboured and hast not sayned. I woe it is that I have somewhat agaynst the, for thou hast leste thy first loue. Remember therfore fro whence thou art fallen, and repent, and do the first woikes. Or elles I wyl come vnto the shortly, and wil remoue thy candlesticke out of his place, excepte thou repent. But this thou hast because thou hast left thy dekes of the Nicolaitans, which dekes I also hate. Let him which hath eares, heare, what I spake saith vnto the congregacions. To him that overcommeth, will I geue to eate of the tree of life, which is in the myddes of the paradys of God.

B And vnto the angele of the congregacion of Smyrna wyte: These thinges saith he that is first, and the laste, which was deed, and is alive: I knowe thy woikes and tribulacion and pouerte, but thou art ryche: And I knowe the blasphemy of them which call them selves Jewes and are not: but are the congregacion of Sathan. Feare none of the thinges which thou shalt soffre. Beholde, the deuell shal cast of you in to prison, to tempte you, and ye shal haue tribulacion 7 dayes. Be saith full vnto the deeth, and I wil geue you a crowne of life. Let him that hath eares, heare, what the spere saith to the congregacions: & that he that overcometh, shal not be hurt of the seconde deeth.

E And to the angele of the congregacion in Pergamos wyte: This saith he which hath the sharpe swerde with two edges: I knowe thy woikes, and where thou dwellest, euen where Sathans seat is, and thou kepest my name, & hast not denyed my saith. And in my dayes Antipas was a saith full witnes of myne, which was slayne amonge you, where Sathan dwelleth. But I haue a fewe thinges agaynst the: that thou hast there, that manye tyme the doctrine of Balaam, which taughte in Balat, to pur occasion offyn before the children of Israell, that they shulde eate of meate dedicat vnto ydoles, and to commyt fornicacion. Euen so hast thou the: that manye tyme thy doctryne of the Nicolaitans, which thinge I hate. But be conuerted, or elles I wil come vnto the shortly, and wil fight agaynst the with the swerde of my mouth. Let him which hath eares, heare, what the spere saith vnto the congregacions: To him that overcommeth, wil I geue to eate manna that is hyd, and wil geue him a whyte stone, & in the stone a newe name wytee, which no man knoweth, savinge he that receaiveth it.

F And vnto the angele of the congregacion of Thyatira wyte: This saith the some of what the spere saith vnto the congregacions.

The III. Chapter.

And I saw this I Iohed, and beholde, a boke was open in heauē, and the firste voyce which I herde, was as it were of a troupe talkinge with me, which sayde: come vp hither, and I wil shewe the thinges which must be fulfilled her after. And immediatly I was in the spere: & beholde, a seate was sit in heauen, and one sat on the seate. And he that sat, was to lode vpon like vnto a saphire stone, and a sardine stone. And there was a rayne bowe aboute the seate, in sighte like so a Smaragde. And aboute the seate were xxiiij. seates. And vpon the seates xxiiij. eldres sittinge clothed in white garment, and had on their heades crownes of golde.

And out of the seate proceeded lightenynges, and thunderynges, & voyces, and there were seen liues of fyre, burninge before the seate, which are the seven speres of God. And before the seate there was a sea of glasse like vnto crysfall, and in the myd of the seate, and rounde aboute the seate, were fourte beastes full of eyes before and behynde. And the first beast was like a lion, the seconde beest like a calfe, and the thyrde beest had a face as a man, and the fourth beest was like a flyeng eagle. And the foure beestes had eche one of them viij. wynges aboue him, and they were full of eyes with in. And they had no rest dayes necher night, sayenge: . holy, holy, holy, is the LORD God almyghty, which was, and is, and is to come.

And when those beestes gaue glory and honour and thankes to him that sitteth on the seate, which I heere for ever and ever: & xxiiij. eldres fell downe before him that sat on the throne, and worshipped him & layeth for ever, and cast their crowmes before the throne, sayenge: thou art worthy LORD God to receaue glory, and honour, and power, for thou hast created all thinges, and for thy willes sake they are, and were created.

The V. Chapter.

And I saw in the righte hande of him, that sat in the throne, a boke written with in & on the backside, sealed with seven seales. And I saw a stronge angel standinge with a loude voyce: Who is worthy to open the boke, and to loose the seales thereof? And no man in heauē nor in earth, necher vnder the earth, was able to open the boke, necher to lode thereon. And I weeped much, because no man was founde worthy to open and to lode the boke, necher to lode thereon.

And one of the eldres sayde vnto me: weep not: Beholde, the lyon which is off the tribe of Iuda. & one of DAVID, hath opened the boke, and to loose the seven seales thereof. And I beholde, & lo, in the myddes of the seate, and of the foure beestes, and in the myddes of the eldres, stode a lambe as though he had bene kylled, which had seven hoines and seven eyes, which are the seven speres of God, sent in to all the world. And he came and toke the boke out of the righte hande of him that sat vpon the seate.

And when he had taken the boke, the foure beestes and the xxiiij. eldres fell downe before the lambe, hauinge harpes and golden vialles full of odoures, which are prayers of the sayntes, and they songe a newe songe sayenge: thou art worthy to take the boke to open the seales thereof: for thou wast kylled, and hast redeemed vs by thy blood, out of all vntrednes, and of ges, and people, and nacion, & hast made vs vnto God, thynges and priestes, and we shall saygne on the earth.

And I beholde, and I herd the voyce of many angyles aboute the throne, and aboute the beestes, and the eldres, and I herde thousande thousandes, sayenge with a loude voyce: Worthy is the lambe that was killed, to receaue power, and riches & wisdom, and strength, and honoure and glory, and blessinge. And all creatures, which are in heauē, & on the earth, & vnder the earth, & in the sea, & all that are in the herd, & sayenge: blessinge, be noute, glory, & power, be vnto him, & syneth vpon the seate, and vnto the lambe for evermore. And the foure beestes saide: Amen. And the xxiiij. eldres fell vpon their faces, and worshipped him that sitteth for evermore.

The VI. Chapter.

And I saw when the seate opened one of the seales, & I herde one of the foure beestes saye, as it were the noyse off thonder: come and se. And I saw, and beholde: there was a white horse, and he that sat on him had a bowe, and a crowne was geuen vnto him, and he went forth conqueringe and for to ouer come. And when he opened the seconde seale, I herde the seconde beeste saye: come and se. And there went out another horse that was red, & power was geuen to him that sat there on, to take peace from the earth, and that they shoulde kill one another. And there was geuen vnto him a greet sword.

And when he opened the thyrde seale, I herde the thyrde beeste saye: come & se. And I beholde, and lo, a blacke horse, and he that face on him, had a paye of balances in his honde. And I herbe a voyce in the myddes of the foure beastes saye: a measure of wheat for a peny, and the measures of barley for a peny: and oyle and wyne shou hurre not.

B And when he opened the fourth scale, I herbe the voyce of the fourth beaste saye: come and se. And I looked, and beholde a pale horse, and his name that sat on him was death, and hell folowed after him, & power was geuē vnto them ouer the fourth parte of the earth, to kyl with swerde, and with hunger, and with death, of the vermen of the earth.

And when he opened the fyfte scale, I sawe vnder the altire, the soules of them that were kylled for the worde of God, and for yf testimony which they had, and they cryed with a loude voyce saye: how longe taryest thou. I. LORD holy and true, to iudge it to auenge oure bloude on them that dwell on the earth: And longe whye garmentes were geuen vnto euery one of them. And it was sayde vnto them, that they shulde esse for a lytle season, vntill the nombre of their felowes, and brethre, and of them that shal be kille as they were, were fulfilled.

C And I behelde when he opened the sixte scale, and loo, there was a grete earthquake, and yf some was as blacke as a sacke cloth made of heare. And the mone waxed eue as bloude: and the starres of heauen fell vnto the earth, euen as a fygge tree casteth from her her fygge, when she is shaken off a mighty wynde. And heauen vanysshed awaye, as a scroll when it is rolled togedder. And all mountayns and yles, were moued out of their places. And the kynges of yf earth, and the grece men, and the riche men, and the deere captaynes, and the myghte men, and euery free man, had them selues in denues, and in rockes of yf hylls, and sayde to the hylls, and rockes: fall on vs, and hyde vs from the presence of him that sitteth on the seate, and from the wrath of the lambe, for the grete daye of his wrath is come. And who can embare it?

The VII. Chapter.

D And after that same I foure angells stode on yf four corners of the earth, holdynge yf foure wyndes of yf earth, yf wyndes shulde noe bloude on yf earth, ne ther on yf see, ne ther on any tree. And I sawe another angel ascende fro the synge of the foure which had the scale of yf saynge. God and he cryed with a loude voyce to the foure angelles (to whom power was geuen to burne the earth and the see) sayenge: burne the earth ne ther the see, ne ther the trees, till we haue scaled the fyrruities of yf fourde in their fysshedes.

And I herbe the nombre of them which were scaled, and thers were scaled on a c. and xliij. M. of all the trybes of the children of Iffraell. Of yf trybe of Iuda were scaled xij. M. Of the trybe of Ruben were scaled xij. M. Of the trybe of Gad were scaled xij. M. Of the trybe of Asser were scaled xij. M. Of the trybe of Epephraim were scaled xij. M. Of yf trybe of Manasse were scaled xij. M. Of the trybe of Symeon were scaled xij. M. Of the trybe of Leui were scaled xij. M. Of the trybe of Issacar were scaled xij. M. Of the trybe of Zabulon were scaled xij. M. Of the trybe of Ioseph were scaled xij. M. Of the trybe of Benjamin were scaled xij. thousande.

After this I behelde, and so, a grete multitude (which no man coulde nombre) of nacions and people, and conges, stode by the seate, and before the lambe, clothed longe whye garmentes, and palms in the honde, and cryed with a loude voyce saye: saluacion be ascribed to him yf sitteth vpon the seate of oure God, and vnto the lambe. And all the angells stode in the compass of the seate, and of the elders and of the foure beastes, and fell before yf seate on the face, and worshipped God, sayenge, and Dicssynge and glory, wysdeme and thynge, and honoure, and power and myghte, be vnto oure God for euermore Amen.

And one of the elders answered, sayenge vnto me: what are these which are stode in longe whye garmentes, and wher comen they? And I sayde vnto him: LORDI thou wocest. And he sayde vnto me: these are they which cam out of grete tribulacion, and made their garmentes large, and made the whye in the bloude of the lambe: these are they in the presence of the seate of God and sate vnto him daye and nyght in his temple, and he that sitteth in the seate, will dwel amonge them. They shal hunger, & thers ne ther thysse, ne ther shal the some synge in them, ne ther any heate: for the lake which is in the myddes of the seate, shal fyde them, and shal leade them vnto fontaynes of wyng water, and God shal wype awaye all teares from their eyes.

shal reign for evermore. And the foure and twenty Elders, which sat before God on their seats, fell upon their faces, and worshipped God saying: we give thee thanks LORD God almighty: which art and wast, and art to come, for thou hast received thy great might, and hast rayned.

And the Seythen were angry, & thy wrath is come, and the tyme of the need that they shalbe be iudged, and that thou shuldest geue reward vnto thy seruantes the prophetes and sayntes, and to eche that feare thy name, small & great: and shuldest destroye them which destroye the earth. And the temple of God was opened in heauen, and there was seene in his temple the arke of his testament: and there followed lightenynges, and voyces, and thonderynges and earth quake, and a greates haile.

And there appeared a greates token in heauen. A woman clothed with the Sonne, and the mone vnder her feet, and vpon her head a crowne of euolue starres. And she was with childe, and cryed travaillinge in byrth, and paynd redy to be deliuered. And there appeared another token in heauen, and beholde a greates reed dragon, hauinge seven heades, and ten hornes and seuen crownes vpon his heades: and his tayle was the thyrde parte of the starres, and cast them to the earth.

And the dragon stode before the womā, which was ready to be deliuered: for to deuoure her childe as soon as it were borne. And she brought forth a man childe, which shulde rule all nacions with a rod of yron. And her sonne was taken up vnto God, and to his seate. And the woman fled in to wyldernes, where she had a place prepared off God, that they shulde fede her there a 111. ij. c. and lx. dayes.

And there was a greates battayll in heauen Michael and his angels fought with the dragon, and the dragon fought and his angels, and preuailed not, neither was their place founde any more in heauen. And the greates dragon that olde serpent (called the deuell and Sathanas) was cast out. Which disceued all the world. And he was cast into the earth, and his angelles were cast out with him also.

And I harde a loude voyce, which sayde in heauen: Now is saluacion, and strengthe and the Kingdome become ours Gods, and yf power his Christes: For he is cast downe, which accused them before God day and night. And they overcame him by the blow de of the lambe, and by the worde of their testimony, and they sloued not their lynes vnto the deeth. Therefore reioyce ye heauens, and ye that dwell in them. Woe to the inhabitants of the earth, and of the see: for the deuell is come downe vnto you, which hath greates wrath, because he knoweth, that he hath but a short tyme.

And when the diagon sawe, that he was cast vnto the earth, he persecuted the woman, which brought forth the man childe. And to the woman were geuen two wynges of a greates egle: that she might flye in to the wyldernes, in to her place, where she is nourished for a tyme, two tymes, and halffe a tyme, from the presence of the serpēt. And the diagon cast out of his mouth water after the womā, as it had bene a ryuer, that he might cause her to be caught of a floud. And the earth holpe the woman, and the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed vpon the ryuer which the diagon cast out of his mouth. And the diagon was wroth with the womā: and went and made warre with the remnant of hyr seed, which kepe the commandementes of God, and haue the testimony of Iesus Christ. And I stode on the sefonde.

The XIII. Chapter.

And I sawe a best rise out of the see, hauinge seuen heades, and x. hornes, and vpon his hornes x. crownes, and vpon his heed, the names of blasphemy. And the best which I sawe was lyke a cart of the mountayne, and his feet were as the feet of a bear, and his mouth as the mouth of a lyon. And yf diago gave him his power and his seate, and greates auourite: and I sawe one of his heades as it were wounded to death, and his deadly wounde was healed, and all the world rodded at the best, and they worshipped the diagon which gave power vnto the best, and they worshipped the best, sayinge: who is like vnto the best: who is able to warre with him?

And there was geuen vnto him a mouth to speake greates thinges & blasphemies, and power was geuen vnto him, to do sū. mone thea. And he opened his mouth vnto blasphemy agaynst God, to blasphem his name, and his tabernacle and them that dwell in heauen. And it was geuen vnto him to make warre with the sayntes, and to ouercome them. And power was geuen him ouer all kynred, tonge, and nacions: and all that dwell upon the earth worship him: whose names are not written in the booke of life of the lambe, which was kyled from the beginning of the worlde. If any man haue an eare, let him heare. He that leadeh in to captiuite, shall go in to captiuite: he that fulleth with a swearde, must be kyled with a swearde. Heare is the patience, and the faith of the sayntes.

And I behelde another best commynge vp out of the earth, and he had two hornes like a lambe, and he spake as dyd the diuys. And he dyd all that the first best coude do in his presence, and he caused the earth, and them which dwell therein, to worshippe the first best, whose deadly worlde was healeth. And he dyd grete wonders, so that he made fyre come downe from heauē in the sight of men. And deceaued them that dwell on the earth by y meanes of those signes which he had power to do in the sight of the best, sayenge to them that dwell on the earth: that they shulde make an ymage vnto the best, which had the wounde of a swearde and dyd live.

And he had power to geue a spere vnto the ymage of the best, and that the ymage of the best shulde speake, and shulde cause, that as many as wolde not worshippe the ymage of the best, shulde be kyled. And he made all bothe smale and greate, ryche and poore, fre and bond, to receaue a marke in their right hondes, or in their foreheades. And that no man might by or sell, saue he y had y marke, or the name of the best, echer the nombre of his name. Here is wisdom. Let him that hath wy, count the nombre of the best. For it is the nombre of a man, and his nombre is sixe hondred, the score and sixe.

The XIII. Chapter.

¶ And I loked, and lo, a Lambe stode on the mouē Syon, and with him C. and xliii. thousande haaynge his fathers name written in their foreheades. And I herde a voyce from heauen, as the sounde of many waters, and as the voyce of a greate thonde. And the voyce that I herde, was as the harpers that playe upon their harpers. And the ysonge as it were a newe songe, before the seate, & before y four bestes, and the elders, and no man coule learne y songe, but the hondred and xliii. thousande which were redeemed from the earth. These are they, which were not defiled with women, for they are virgins. These folowe the lambe whiche soeuer he goeth. These were redeemed from men, beinge the staffe of life to God and to the lambe, and in that moethes was sounde no gyte. For they are without spot before the throne of God.

And I sawe an angel flye in the myddes of heauen haaynge an emeraldynge Gospel to preache vnto them that sit and dwell in the earth, and to all nacions, kindredes, and tonges and people, sayenge with a lowde voyce: Heare God, and geue honour to him, for the houre of his iudgement is come: and worshippe him: that made heauen and earth, and the see, and the fontaynes of water. And there folowed another angel, sayenge: He is fallen, he is fallen: the Babylon that grete cite, for shee made all nacions drynke off the wyne off hir whoredomes.

And the thyrde angel folowed the first, ge with a loude voyce: If any man worshippe the best and his ymage, and receaue a marke in his forehead, or in his honde, the same shall drynke of the wyne of the wrath of God, which is poured in the cuppe of his wrath. And he shalbe punished in brimstone, before the holy Angels, and before the lambe.

And the synode of their torment shal beith vp evermore. And they haue no daye ner nyght, which worshippe the best and his ymage, and whosoeuer readeth the print of his name. Here is the patience of the sayntes. Heare are they that haue the commaundement and the faith of Iesu.

And I herde a voyce from heauen, sayenge vnto me: wyte: Blessed are y dead, which here after dye in the L O R D E. See the sum sayeth, that they rest from their laboure, for their workes folowe them. And I loke and behelde, a whyte cloude, and vpo y cloude one sittinge like vnto the sonne of man, haaynge on his heed a golden crowne, and in his hedde a sharpe sylle. And another angel came out of the temple, cryenge with a lowde voyce to him that sat on the cloude: Thynke in thy syde and come: for the houre is come to reape, for the tyme of the earth is ripe. And he that sat on y cloude, thre in his sylle on the earth, and the earth was reaped.

And another angell came out of the temple, which is in heauen, haaynge also a sharpe sylle. And another angel came out of the temple, which had power over fire, to cried with a loud cry vnto hym that had the sharpe sickle, and sayden Christe in thy sharpe sickle, and gather the clustres of γ earth, for hir grapes are ripe. And the angell thrust in his sickle on the erthe, and cutt downe the grapes of the vynyarde of the earth, and cast them in to the greates wynefat of γ wrath of God: & the wynefat was trodden without the cite, and bloude came out of the fat, even vnto the horse: by whiche space of a thousande and sixe hundred fulonges.

The XV. Chapter.

¶ And I sawe another signe in heauen grete & marvellous. vii. angells hauinge the seven laste plages, for in this is fulfilled the wrath of god. And I sawe as it were a glassse six, mingled with fyre, and them that had gotten victory of the best, and of his ymage, and of his marke, and of the nombre of his name, stonde on the glassse, hauinge γ harpes of God: and they songe the songe of Moyses the seruaunt of God, and the songe of the lambe, saynge: Great and marvellous are thy workes: LORD E God almyghty, just and true are thy wayes, thou synge of sayntes. Who shall not feare the LORD E and glorifie thy name: for thou only art holy, for all gentiles shall come and worshippe before the, for thy iudgements are made manifest.

¶ And after that, I looked, and beholde, the temple of the Tabernacle of testimony was open in heauen, and the seven angelles came out of the temple, which had the seven plagis, clothed in pure and bryght lymt, and hauinge their bestes gynced with golden girdelles. And one of the foure bestes gaue vnto the seven angelles seven golden vialles, full of the wrath of God which lieth for mermoz. And the temple was full of smoke for the glory of God, and for his power, and no man was able to entre in to the temple, vntill the seven plagis of the seven angels were fulfilled.

The XVI. Chapter.

¶ And I herde a greates voyce out of the temple, saynge to the seven angelles: go youre wayes, poure out youre vialles of wrath vpon the earth. And the fyfthe went, and poured out his viall vpon the earth, and there fell a noyse vnto the best upon the men which had the marke of the best, and upon them that worshipped his ymage. And the seconde angel shew out his viall vnto the see, and it turned as it were in to the blood of a deed man and euery lyuinge thinge dyed in the see. And the thyrde angel shew out his viall vpon the ryuers and fountaynes of waters, and they turned to bloude. And I herde an angell saye: LORD E which art and maister thou art righteous and holy, because thou hast gent some iudgements, for they shed the bloude of sayntes, and prophetes, and therfore hast thou gent them bloude to drynke: for they are worthy. And I herde another angell out of the altar, saye: euen so LORD E God almyghty, true and righteous art thy iudgements.

And the fourth angell poured out his viall on the Sonne, and power was gent vnto him to vex men with heate of fyre. And the men ragid in grete heate, and swa euell of the name of God, which had pouert out thosa plagis, and they repented not, to gent him glory. And the fyfthe angell poured out his viall vpon the face of the best, and his kyngdoms were derte, and they gaue their tonges for swowe, and blasphemed the God of heauen for soowes, and payne of their sores, and repented not of their dedes.

And the sixte angell poured out his viall vpon the grete ryuer Euphrates, and the water dried vp, that the waye of the kynges of the Easte shalbe prepared. And I sawe the vncleane spretes like frogges come out of the mouth of the dragon, and out off the mouth off the best, and out off the mouth of the falsse prophet. For they are the spretes of deuils mountyng mystacles, to go out vnto the kynges of the earth and of the whole world, to gadder them to the battayle of that grete daye of God almyghty. He holde, I come as a thefte. happy is he that watcheth and kepeth his garmentes, lest he be founde naked, and men se his shynites. And he gaddereth them together in to a place, called in the hebreue tonge, Armagedon.

And the seventh angell poured out his viall in to the ayre. And there came a greates voyce out of heauen from the seate, saynge: It is done. And there folowed γ voyces, bringes, and lighenynge, and there was grete earthquake, soch as was not since were vpon the earth, so myghty an quake and so greates. And was bewyde in to the parties. And the cities of nations fell. And greete Babilon came in remembrance before God, to geue vnto hyr the cuppe of wyne of the fiercenes of his wrath. And every yle fled awaye, and the mountaynes were not founde. And there fell a greate hayle, as it had bene talentes, out of heaue vpon the men, and the men blasphemed God, because of the plague of the hayle, for it was greate, and the plague of the sore.

The XVII. Chapter.

¶ And there came one of the seuen angels, which had the seuen vialles, and talked with me, sayenge vnto me: Come, I will shewe thee the ingment of the greete whoise, that stretcheth vpon many waters, with whom the kynges of the earth haue commytted whoredome, and the inhabitants of the earth are drunken with the wyne of her fornicacion. And he carryed me awaye into the wilderness in y^e spyt. And I sawe a woman syt vpon a rose colored best, full of names of blasphemie, which had seuen heades & ten hornes. And y^e woman was arrayed in purple and rose color, and decked with golde, precious stone, and pearles, and had a cuppe of golde in her honde, full of abominacions, and fylthines of her whoredome. And in her forehead was a name wyete, a mystery: greete Babilon the mother of whoredome, and abominacions of the earth. And I sawe the wyfe drinke with the blonde of sayntes, and with the blond of the witnesses of Iesu. And when I sawe her, I wounded with greete meruaile.

And the angel sayde vnto me: wherfore mercayllst thou? I wyl shewe thee the mystery of the woman, and of the best that beareth her, which hath seuen heades, and ten hornes. The best that thou seest, was, and is not, and shall ascende out of the bottomlesse pyre, and shal go in to perdition, and they that dwell on the earth shal woe (whose names are not wyrtten in the booke of life from the begynnyng, of the worlde) when they beholde the best that was, and is not. And here is a mynde, that hath whoredome.

The seuen heades are seuen mountanes, which the woman stretcheth: they are also mynde. Spyes are fallen, and one is, that is not yet come. When he cometh, he will continue a space. And the best that is not, is eue the eyght, and is of the seuen, and shal go in to bondage. And y^e corne houses which thou sawest, are ten kynges, which haue not yet receiued the kyngdome, but shal receaue power as kynges at one houre with y^e best. They haue one mynde, and shal geue their power and strenght vnto y^e best. These shal fyght with the lambe, and the lambe shal ouercome them: for he is the LORDE of all lordes, and kyng of all kynges: and they that are on his syde, are called, and chosen and faithful.

And he sayde vnto me: The waters which thou sawest, where y^e whoredome, and people, and folke, and nations, and congregacions, and the ten hornes, which thou sawest vpon the best, are they that shal haue the woman, and shal make her desolate, and naked, and shall eate hir flesh, and burne hir with fyre. For God hath put in their herres, to fulfill his wyll, and to do with one consent, to burne hir kyngdome vnto the best, vntill his wordes of God be fulfilled. And the word which thou sawest, is that greete cite, which reigneth ouer the kynges of the earth.

The XVIII. Chapter.

¶ And a sater that I sawe another cometh downe fro heaue, hauing great power, and y^e earth was dryghened with his dryghenes. And he cryed mightily with a stronge voyce, sayenge: She is fallen, she is fallen, euen greete Babilon, and become the habitacion of deuils, and y^e habitation of all foule spyttes, and a cage of all uncleane and hatefull byrdes: for all nations are drunken of the wyne of the wrath of the whoredome. And the kynges of the earth haue committed fornicacion with her, and her marchauntes are waxed ryche of the abundance of her pleasures.

And I herde another voyce from heaue saye: Come awaye from her my people, that ye be not partakers of her synnes, lest ye receaue of her plagues. For her synnes are gone vp to heauen, and the LORDE hath rememberd her wyrdnes. Rewarde her as she rewarded you, and geue her bubbe to drinke to her workes. And poure in bubbe vnto her in the same cuppe, which she fylled vnto you. And as moche as she glorified her self, and lynced wantonly, so moche poure ye in her of punishment, and sorrowe, for she synned in her herre: y^e fyre beinge a quene, and she was no whoredome, and shall sit no longer. Therefore shal her plagues come at one daye, death and sowes, and donger, and she shalbe bite with fyre: for wronge is the LORDE God which shal widge her.

And the fynyng of the earth shal betwepe her and wayle ouer her, which haue commeced formation and luyed wantanly with her, when they shal se the smoke of her burnyng, and shal fonde a farr of for feare of her punyishment, sayenge: Alas, Alas, that greate cite Babylon, that myghte cite: for at one houre is thy iudgment come. And the marchauntes off the earth shall wepe and wayle in them selus, because no man will bye their roare any moie, the ware of golde, and siluer, and of precious stemes, off perle, 2 fyle, and purple, and scarlet, 2 all thynges w^{ch} are, and all manner vessels of yuery, and all manner vessels of most precious wod, and of brass, and of yon, 2 nyomom and obours, and ornymences, and frant ynflax, and wyne, and oyle, and fyne flour, and wheate, and cattell, and shepe, and hawke, and charrrettes, and bodies and soules of men.

And the apples that thy soule lusted after, are departed from the. And all thynges which were deuynt, and had in pryce, are departed from the, and thou shalt fynde them no moie. The marchauntes of these thynges which were a wored ryche by her, shall fonde a farr of for feare of the punyishment of her, wepyng and waylinge, and sayenge: alas alas, that greate cite, that was clothed in fyle, and purple, and scarlet: and bedded with golde, and precious stone, and pearles: for at one houre is greate ryche is come to nought.

And euery shippe gonerer, and all they that occupie shippes, and shippmen which wote in the see, stode a farr of, and cryed, when they sawe the smoke of her burnyng, and sayde: what cite is like vnto this greate cite? And they cast dust on their heades, and cryed wepyng, and waylinge, and sayde: Alas, Alas the greate cite, when in were made ryche all that had shippes in the see, by the reason of her wares: for at one houre is she made desolate.

Reioyce ouer her thow beane, and ye holy Apostles, and prophetes: for God hath gwen youre iudgment on her. And a myghty angell toke up a greate stone lyke a myllstone, and cast it in to the see, sayenge: with such violence shal that greate cite Babylon be cast, and shalbe fonde no moie. And the voyce of harpers, and musiciens, and of pypers, and trempeters, shalbe herbe no moie in the: and no craftes man, of what soeuer craft he be shalbe fonde any moie in the: and the sounde of a myll shalbe herbe no moie in the: and the voyce of the brydgrome and of the bryde, shalbe herbe no moie in the: for thy marchauntes were prynces of the earth. And with thyne iudgment were deceaied all nacions: and in her was fonde the bloude of the prophetes, and of the sayntes, and of all that were slayne vpp the earth.

The XIX. Chapter.

And after that, I herde the voyce of much people in heauen, sayenge: Alleluia. Saluation and glory and honour, and power be ascribed to the LORDE of God, for true and righteous are his iudgements, because he hath widge the greates whom (which did corrupt y^e earth with her fornicacion) and hath auenged the bloud of his seruantes of her bond. And agayne they sayde: Alleluia. And smoke rose vpp for euermore. And y^e xxiiij: choro, 2 the foure bestes fell downe, and worshipped God that sat on the seate, sayenge: Amen: Alleluia. And a voyce came out of the seate, sayenge: prayse of LORDE God all ye that are his seruantes, y^e that feare him both small and greate.

And I herde the voyce of much people, and of the voyce of many waters, 2 as y^e voyce of stronge thondrynges, sayenge: Alleluia, for God omnipotent raiseth. Let vs be glad and reioyce, and gawe honour to him: for the mariage of the lambe is come, and his wife made her selfe ready. And to her was graunted, that she shulde be arrayed with pure and goodly fyle. (As for the fyle, it is the rightewesnes of sayntes.) And he sayde vnto me: Blessed are they which are called vnto the Lambes supper. And he sayde vnto me: these are the true sayenges of God. And I fell at his feet, to worshipp him. And he sayde vnto me: See thou do it not, for I am thy seloune seruant, and one of thy biethen, and of them that haue the testimony of Iesus, Worshipp God. For the testimony of Iesus is y^e spicce of prophesie. And I sawe beane open, 2 beholde, a robe of horff and he y^e sat upon him, was called fait and true, 2 in rightewesnes byk iudg make battayle. His eyes were fyre, and on his beade weren he had a name wyrtzen, that was his selfe. And he was vesture like a clothe, and his name is called, if you see of God. And of marriage which were in heaven, I tolde you upon my first trespasse, doth not with my first and pure selfe. And out of his mouth went a Scripture, saying, who shall be shalde in my eye. And he shall rule them with a rodde of iron, and he trode the wynefatte of the fiercenesse and wrath of all myngers. God. And he shal on his vesture and on his thyghe a name written. A kyng of all kynges, and LORD E of all lordes.

And I sawe the bestie and the kynges of y^e earth, and their warriours gathered together, to make battayle agaynst him: that sat upon the hoisse, and agaynst his forbeyers.

And the bestie was taken, and with him these false prophetes that wrought myracles by foules, with which he deceaued them: that receaued the besties marke, and they that worshipped his ymage. The besties were cast in to a ponde of fyre burnyng with byrstone: and the remnant were layne with the sword of him that sat upon the hoisse, and all the foules were filled with their fleshe.

were beheaded for the witness of Iesu. And for the wynde of God: which had no more shippe: the best, neither his ymage, make had taken his marke upon their forebodes, or on their handes: and they lay, as raynyed with Christ a thousand yeares: the other of the dead men layd no more, until the thousand yeares were finished. This is that first resurrection. Blessed are they that have part in the first resurrection. On such hath the seconde death no power, but they shall be the priestes of God and of Christ, and shall raygne with him a thousand yeares.

And when the thousand yeares are ended, Satan shall be loosed out of his prison, and shal goe out to deceaue the people which are in the foure quarters of the earth. And Magog, to gather them together in battayle, whose nombre is as the sand of the see: and they went up on the playne of the earth, and compassed the centres of the sayntes aboute, and the holde out city. An fyre came downe from God out of heauen, and deuoured them: and the beall that deceaued them, was cast in to a lake of fyre and byrstone, where the bestie and the false prophetes were, and shall be tormented day and night for evermore.

And I sawe a grete myrre sea, and in it that sat on it, from whose face the sea, both the earth and heauen, and the sea, was no more founde. And I sawe the sea, both grete and small stonde before God: the bolkes were opened, and another bolke was opened, which is the bolke of life, and the dead were subged of the things which were toyren in the bolke according to their dedes: and the sea gave up her dead, which were in her, and death and hell were up the dech, which were in them: as they were subged our man according to his dedes. And death and hell were cast in to the lake of fyre. This is that second death. And whosoever was not founde written in the booke of life, was cast in to the lake of fyre.
